RESERVE BOARD AIDS ROOSEVELT MONEY POLICIES

Calls Inflation Fears Needless.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Printing press money has no place in the present Roosevelt monetary program. The President is unchanged in his opposition to that type of inflation, according to assurances given by the President to members of the federal reserve board, disclosed here today.

At the same time it was learned that the reserve board, banking upon this and other assurances, has adopted a policy of full support for the President, on the promise of giving him a fair opportunity to try out his monetary policies.

This attitude of "give him a chance" today attracted other support to the President. The battle lines in the fierce struggle over monetary issues were drawn a bit closer. Recruits won to the sound money camps included Al Smith, James P. Warburg, Prof. O. M. W. Sprague, and the United States chamber of commerce.

Think Smith Hurt Self.

The President was reported to be standing firm in his determination to go the route of his present gold purchasing, price raising program. The feeling among his supporters here was that the intemperate terms used in Mr. Smith's attack, such as "crackpots," "baloney dollars," and "guinea pigs," had helped rather than hurt the Roosevelt cause.

United States Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho], and former Senator Robert L. Owen, 77 year old Democratic lawyer, declared in statements that none of the critics of the Roosevelt policy had offered any constructive alternatives.

With the renewed support of the federal reserve board, which it was learned goes even further than was indicated last night in a statement by Gov. Eugene Black, the treasury building has now about completed its metamorphosis from a haven of the rigid gold standardites to a citadel of Roosevelt advocates.

Hewes Soon to Leave.

One survivor of the gold standard school, Second Assistant Secretary Thomas Hewes, will shortly be severed from the service of the treasury, it was stated upon high authority today, unless he resigns sooner. The other assistants have no connection with monetary policies.

It was learned that Lewis Douglas, director of the budget, another who protested against the President's money program, has determined to stick entirely to his budget problems and to avoid any monetary discussions.

The attitude of the federal reserve board, it was learned, brought it to demur at the tone of a resolution adopted by the leading bankers who are members of the federal advisory council, and to suggest to the bankers that it would be best if nothing was done to "rock the boat" at the present time.

Banker Releases a Copy.

Accordingly, the resolution which strongly opposed the dollar depreciation program was not made public, and its publication only resulted from unauthorized disclosure of its text by one of the bankers who received a private copy.

Members of the reserve board, it is known, have reasoned among themselves that the President's program may be the lesser of two evils. Congress will be opening its regular session in six weeks. It was pointed out that unless the President, with full support from the federal reserve board, is able to hold to his own program, congress may be relied upon, it is said, to attempt widely varied and irresponsible inflationary schemes. Few conservative experts in the confidence of the treasury officials believe that congress would exert any conservative or restraining influence on the monetary situation.

Keeps Platform Pledge.

One member of the federal reserve board declared today that the President never has repudiated the Democratic platform pledge for the maintenance of a sound currency and that the utterances of Mr. Roosevelt frequently have held for a currency backed by gold. The President has responded negatively to all public inquiries concerning the printing of fiat money.

"He hasn't ever said he wanted uncontrolled inflation," this member

VIOLENCE MARKS EVE OF FEDERAL MILK INQUIRY

Smash Windows of Cash, Carry Stores.

BY PAUL POTTER.

The windows of two Chicago cash and carry milk stores were smashed yesterday in the turbulent milk and cream fight that is to be investigated by the federal government here this week.

Stones were thrown through the window of a store operated by Kenneth Broomhall, 3943 North Austin boulevard, at daybreak, causing slight damage. Broomhall said he had been selling milk for 8½ cents a quart. He declared he believed the attack was the result of his policy of selling milk below the 11 cents a quart price as required under the federal AAA's milk trade agreement.

Toss Blazing Rags in Store.

In the store of Marion Walker, at 140 South Kostner avenue, the windows were smashed at 3:45 a. m. and the vandals tossed gasoline soaked rags and papers that had been ignited through the windows. A needy family on the relief rolls, being sheltered by the owner, was sleeping in the store when the incendiaries threw in the blazing papers and rags. The fire was extinguished before serious damage occurred.

These outbreaks in the fight between dairy companies attempting to maintain the government's fixed price of 11 cents a quart and the bustling business being done by 250 dairy depots on a cut rate cash and carry basis, bring the reported violences against the independents to a total of five in recent weeks.

Max Meier, 2435 Winona avenue, union milk wagon driver for the Bowman Dairy company, is being held under bond for action of the grand jury on complaints that he threw milk bottles containing acid through the windows of a bakery owned by Philip Canesth, 2252 Foster avenue. Canesth testified he had been threatened previously by union drivers for selling milk at 8 cents a quart.

Milk Truck Is Stolen.

A delivery truck belonging to the Lake View Dairy company, 542 Grant place, one of the three dairies whose licenses have been revoked by the government, was stolen last Wednesday. It was found in the north branch of the river near Montrose avenue with the milk in it destroyed.

Fleeing from the scene of a smashed milk depot window last Monday, Lee Meyrick, 2017 East 82nd street, was shot and seriously wounded by Motorcycle Policeman Earnest Meade. At the Jackson Park hospital he denied the charges of Tony Kascos, owner of the store at 7851 South Park avenue, that Meyrick had hurled a brick through his window. Meyrick is an unemployed member of the milk wagon drivers' union.

Start Testimony Tomorrow.

Testimony of the various interests in the local milk industry is to be heard by the AAA beginning tomorrow morning at 9:30 in the Stevens hotel ballroom. From Washington it was announced that the government is anxious to open all the factors entering into the cost of Chicago's milk, and is especially anxious to hear from consumers' representatives.

Yesterday farmers of three states were holding meetings to select delegations to make a plea for better prices at the federal hearing. Chicago aldermen and representatives of women's clubs and other civic bodies have urged that consumers appear to volunteer the "attitude of the public."

Attorneys for the so-called milk trust, the wagon drivers' union, an association of small milk dealers, and another organization of independent milk venders are scheduled to appear. Jerome Frank, general counsel for the AAA, has been named by Administrator Peek to conduct the hearings, which may extend through Tuesday and Wednesday, possibly with evening meetings for the benefit of consumers employed during the day.

Stores Continue Sales.

Attorneys for the three wholesale dairies whose licenses were revoked on Thursday in Washington by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace yesterday said the dairies had received an official 12 page revocation order. Their next move, according to Attorney Arthur Seelig, representing the Edgewater Dairy company, has not been determined. Meanwhile stores supplied by the Edgewater concern, the Lake View and Wagner dairies, continued to sell milk at reduced prices in defiance of the newest Wallace edict.

There are 250 such stores operating

DISCOVERS A FEAR OF NRA IN GOING ABOUT AMONG NEW YORKERS

BY JOHN STEELE.
[London Correspondent of The Tribune.]

New York, Nov. 25.—[Special.]—If NRA turns out to be a new tyranny, as many people think it will, the American people will have to depend on the newspapers, and the newspapers alone, to defend their liberties. No one else will have the courage to do it.

If the men I have been talking to for the last week represent American thought, the American people are almost 100 per cent against the President's policies. But not one of them dares to say so—for publication. They include bankers, brokers, business men, all men who in the days I knew New York would have been willing to talk and glad to be quoted. Now they have all joined the ranks of the "don't quote me" boys and the reason is that they are afraid in some vague way that Washington will get them if they don't watch their step.

The situation in New York in this respect resembles somewhat the situation in Hitler's Germany. When I was there a few weeks ago I found old German friends willing enough to criticize the Hitler régime—but not before the servants. Here it is hardly as bad as that, but the critics of the President very definitely won't get into print. Perhaps Professor Sprague's break for the tall timber may give some of them courage to express themselves but it hasn't shown yet.

The great fear the business community is expressing in private is inflation. Some of them contend inflation has already begun by means of bond issues even if the printing presses have not yet been turned loose on greenbacks. "It only means they are paying 3 per cent for it instead of making it for nothing," one banker said. "United States bonds are or ought to be collateral and big bond issues mean inflation just as much as big money issues.

"The way things are going, however, they'll soon have to get busy printing greenbacks to meet expenses for people are ceasing to buy bonds and for the first time in many years United States government bonds are selling below par. When they become too cheap, the government will be forced to print money directly and then we will be on the slippery slope of inflation which ruined Germany and Russia, and destroyed 80 per cent of the value of property in France."

Some didn't want to be denounced as "chiselers." Others had some sort of vague idea that pressure might be brought on them through the banks and the Federal Reserve system. Still others had hopes of getting a slice of easy money that is being distributed by Washington and therefore didn't want to attract attention to themselves as opponents of the President's experiments.

Talk about a Nazi terror! We have something more than a little like it in America.

Airplane Dies Over the Loop; Lands Safely

Robert M. Hoffman, 415 Aldine avenue, was flying his private plane 8,000 feet above the loop just before dusk yesterday afternoon when the motor of his ship sputtered and stopped. With him was a family friend, Miss Catherine Heinrich, 22 years old, of 2239 Roscoe street.

ROBT. M. HOFFMAN.

Miles away from a landing field or any level ground that might even be used as such, Hoffman's plight was desperate. So he took a desperate chance.

He glided as best he could away from the skyscrapers directly below him and the long stretches of apartment towers and residences in the near distance. Then he landed in a little "back yard," 32 feet wide and 125 feet long, in the 2900 block on Greenleaf avenue.

A Daring Landing.

It was a daring landing, marred only by a damaged wing which bumped against two bungalows. Neither Hoffman nor Miss Heinrich was scratched.

After the accident the two got out of the plane cockpits and were driven away in a taxi. Hoffman was traced by Sergt. Thomas Leddy of the Rogers Park station through a pilot's license in the plane, and questioned at the station. There he told his story.

"Miss Heinrich and I took off about 2:30 from Pal-Waukee air port," he said. "The ship behaved well and we flew over the loop. About 8,000 feet up the motor died. I could not descend in the loop nor anywhere near, so I headed, with the advantage of great height, for the open country.

Steers for Vacant Lot.

"When I reached the vicinity of Devon avenue I was up only about 800 feet. At this point, however, I got my motor started. It worked for only a minute but it gave me momentum. Finally I saw this vacant lot."

In the descent the right wing of Hoffman's ship swept against the roof of Gottfried Henning's home at 2917 Greenleaf avenue. This turned the plane completely around and the same wing brushed the bungalow of Paul Stathas at 2911 Greenleaf avenue. The "emergency field" was the lot lying between these houses.

Hoffman promised to pay for the damage to the homes. Hoffman, 51 years old, owns the Cornelia garage at 3456 Broadway. He holds a pilot's license. His plane, a Yackey high wing monoplane with a Wright motor, was taken to the Curtiss-Reynolds field later.

TRAPPED BY FIRE WHEN SLEEPING, 2 BURN TO DEATH

Two men were burned to death and three others severely burned and otherwise injured when they were trapped by fire this morning in an old two story frame junk shop and second hand store at 2415 Lake street. Those who perished were Chris Miller, 49 years old, and John White, 38. Those burned and hurt were John Greenberg, 56 years old; Alexander Jeske, 59, and Walter Konowich, 39. They were taken to the county hospital. All worked as handy men in the shop and lived on the second floor of the place.

They were sleeping when the fire broke out on the first floor in front. They tried to escape down the single front stairway, but were driven back by flames. Greenberg, Jeske, and Konowich saved themselves by leaping from the second floor windows in the rear. White and Miller were overcome by smoke and fire and were dead when firemen arrived. About $2,000 damage was done to the building.

ROBBERS STRIP FOUR VICTIMS ON A CHILLY NIGHT

Four stripper bandits, all intoxicated, gave as many victims an embarrassing time early today. They first held up Harold Flynn, 6332 South Morgan street, took $1.80 and all his clothes except his underwear and threw him out of their car at 82d street and Vernon avenue.

They gave William Henley, 8035 Champlain avenue, the same treatment at 76th street and Dobson avenue after getting 80 cents. Two strangers, nabbed at the same time, shared similar fates. They were Norman Aretsky, 1158 East 54th place, who lost $14 in addition to his clothes, and Floyd Stauffer, 5455 Ellis avenue, who gave up his clothes and $2.

SERGEANT GETS A JOLT WHEN PHONE RINGS

Sergt. Frank Corcoran, acting lieutenant in charge of the desk at the Grand Crossing police station, answered a telephone call last night.

"There has been a larceny at 7828 Jeffery avenue," said a woman's voice.

"Why, that's the building I live in," said the sergeant.

"Yes, I know," replied the caller. "This is your wife. Somebody got in the laundry with a pass key and took 25 of the family's shirts, including yours!"

The sergeant ordered a squad to investigate.

Litvinov at Sea; to Visit Il Duce Next

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright, 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ABOARD S. S. CONTE DI SAVOIA, Nov. 25.—Maxim Maximovitch Litvinov, soviet foreign commissar, is sailing for home today in the luxury ship, Conte di Savoia. He smiled because he is bringing home the bacon and he hopes to pick up another bit of it in Rome. There he has an appointment to meet Premier Mussolini to discuss Italo-Russian relations.

Litvinov refuses to discuss his plans, but there are two outstanding facts in the relations between the two countries which indicate what he may be after. German-Russian relations are not as close as before since Chancellor Hitler came to power in Germany. Relations with Italy have been uniformly good.

Might Aid Germany.

Mussolini might play the part of an honest broker in restoring Russo-German friendship. The other factor is the growing entente of France and Russia which is not so good from Italy's point of view, so Litvinov may have something to trade in return for Mussolini's good offices in connection with Germany.

The trip started in summer weather. Litvinov and his assistant, Divilkoffski, stood out on the prow of the ship going down the river and the bay, admiring the sky line of New York and wondering at the material wealth of the United States as evidenced by the buildings and the busy trade of the port. They have a luxurious suite not far from an equally swanky suite occupied by Postmaster General Farley, who is going to Rome to see the pope.

CROWD SAYS GOOD-BY.

New York, Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Admirers, would-be exporters and autograph hunters crowded about Maxim M. Litvinov, soviet commissar of foreign affairs, so that he bumped his head, lost his hat twice, and almost fell into the swimming pool on the Conte di Savoia, bound for a visit with Benito Mussolini before returning to Russia.

Farley Also on Board.

Postmaster General James A. Farley sailed almost unnoticed as another passenger. A cheer from Farley's friends was drowned out by the chantings of sixty representatives of the Amtorg. They chanted "We do give best wishes to the peaceful diplomat of the soviet union; we do give best wishes to the diplomat who brought about peaceful relations."

Litvinov's escort of secret service men abandoned the commissar at the gangplank. He bumped his head on the steel lintel of a doorway as he darted inside the ship.

Four detectives met him and he galloped to the elevators with them.

Litvinov reached the sun deck. There news reel photographers were waiting.

"I'm saying good-by to the people of the United States," he said. "I want to say that the predominant feeling with me is that Russia is like a man who has found a lost friend after a long period of separation.

"True, the friendship was there, but we lost it for a time and we had a very hard time to find it. I do hope we shall never lose it again. It is my sincere hope that this friendship will endure and grow in strength. That is all. Good-by."

SON IS BOOKED AS SLAYER WITH DR. WYNEKOOP

Trapped in Fake as He Depicts Killing.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.

In an apparent outburst of filial devotion, Earle Wynekoop avowed last night that he alone had slain his wife, Rheta, and that his mother, Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, who "confessed" on Friday, had no part in the killing.

Unable to impose his story on the skeptical authorities, he was finally obliged to admit that it was a hoax. Notwithstanding the rejection of his confession of the killing, however, he was booked with his mother for the murder on the ground that he had guilty knowledge of the killing. Such are the complications of the Wynekoop case.

Young Calls Him "Liar."

The son's gesture on his mother's behalf was made while his chum, Stanley Young, a nephew of former United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson, was sitting at his side. Young is the youth with whom Earle had previously insisted he was driving to Kansas City last Tuesday afternoon when Rheta was slain.

Listening to Earle's new statement, Young grinned quizzically. When Earle insisted that they were not together about the hour of the murder Young called him "a liar." Accepting the truth of Young's statement, several points of which were verified by independent witnesses, Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty allowed Young to be released in the custody of his uncle, Mr. Johnson.

He "Re-enacts" the Crime.

To allay the doubt that met his "confession" from the start, Earle led a police squad to the Wynekoop home at 3406 West Monroe street and there he tried to reënact the killing of last Tuesday afternoon as he described it. His performance was almost perfect, but contained two ruinous blunders.

With Police Sergt. Richard Grey substituting for the dead Rheta, Earle "demonstrated" how he had taken his wife to his mother's basement office, watched her undress, clapped a chloroform bottle to her mouth when she was almost nude, and then fired a shot into her back. Police observers said his performance showed he had given remarkably close attention to chronicles and diagrams of the crime in the newspapers.

One of His Two Errors.

But one of his errors, they said, could not be overlooked. Whereas the dead Rheta's head had rested on an elevated leaf at the south end of the operating table where her body was found, Earle placed Sergt. Grey with his head at the north end.

In all other details except one, police said, Earle's demonstration was letter perfect, his imagination supplying such realistic touches as to have Sergt. Grey swing his legs, as Earle claimed Rheta had done when she sat on the table edge to undress. His second error was a failure to tuck a blanket around the sergeant in the same folds that Rheta's killer had tucked another blanket around her body.

Young Wynekoop began blurting out his verbal "confession" in the state's attorney's office while Prosecutor Dougherty, Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker and Police Capt. Thomas L. Duffy were trying to get him to admit that he had advance knowledge of a plot to slay his wife and hence was an accomplice. Under Illinois law the principal and an accomplice are held equally guilty in a murder case.

Murder Charge Against Both.

Earle, however, tried to turn the tables on his questioners and lead them into new realms of speculation by declaring there was no plot and no accomplice, and that he alone had killed his wife "because he hated her."

But his effort to lift suspicion from his mother, if such it was, will avail nothing, according to Prosecutor Dougherty. He declared that both mother and son will be held to the grand jury on a charge of murdering Rheta, Dr. Wynekoop as the principal and Earle as accomplice. Dr. Wynekoop is now in the county jail infirmary where she was sent yesterday morning after a habeas corpus hearing.

Cartridges Bought for Mother.

Prosecutor Dougherty's decision to book young Wynekoop on a murder charge was reached before Earle made his "confession." The decision grew out of a discovery that Earle had purchased cartridges on Nov. 11 for the revolver he had given his mother. This was the same day on which Dr. Wynekoop applied for a $5,000 double indemnity policy on Rheta's life and the day before Earle departed on a first trip to Kansas City, from which he later returned.

EARLE WYNEKOOP ADMITS MAKING FALSE 'CONFESSION' TO AID HIS MOTHER

Three camera studies of Earle Wynekoop who is being held with his mother, Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, for killing his young wife. After his mother had appeared in court yesterday and had been ordered to the county jail, Earle "confessed" that he was the slayer and told how he had "fled by airplane" after the crime. Later he admitted that this "confession" was a fake through which he hoped to free his mother.

The prosecutor said that Earle had also admitted giving his mother instructions in the handling of the gun. In her "confession" of Friday, Dr. Wynekoop said she used the gun to fire a bullet into Rheta's back after discovering that the young woman had died from an accidental overdose of chloroform while the doctor was treating her.

Story of Earle's "Confession."

The first indication that young Wynekoop was about to try shouldering all the blame for the killing came while Mr. Dougherty was questioning him concerning a rendezvous he and his mother held last Sunday night at 67th street and Kedzie avenue, while Rheta and other members of the Wynekoop family supposed he was out of town. The prosecutor was in hopes that Earle would admit he and his mother discussed Rheta's insurance. Instead Earle took the "confession" course.

"You've been blundering in this case all along," the young man calmly announced. "You've got my mother in jail, you've got a statement from her, and you've charged her with murder. You're wrong. It was I who killed my wife—no one else."

Chief Schoemaker and Prosecutor Dougherty pressed him for details. They were not wholly unprepared for such a statement, Earle having previously evinced an inclination to shoulder the blame.

"I let myself into the house about 3 o'clock Tuesday with my own pass key," he averred. "Rheta was there alone. I took her into the basement, suggesting that she weigh herself. She stripped off her clothes in my mother's consultation room and was sitting on the examination table. I grabbed a bottle of chloroform, clamped it on her mouth, and when she struggled I shot her in the back."

Attacks His Own Alibi.

"But what about Stanley Young's statement that he and you were driving to Kansas City?" queried Dougherty.

"That was a framed up alibi," said Earle. "We were together in Kansas City, it's true. But the way I managed that was to get a plane at an airport near Lockport, hop to Kansas City right after killing Rheta, and join Stanley in a hotel there."

The prosecutor asked him if he would repeat the story in Stanley's presence. He assented and his "alibi witness" was called in. Young grew first impatient and then indignant as Earle unfolded the story.

"You're a —— liar, Earle," he broke in. "You know that you and I were together from Monday night when we slept at Judge Johnson's house, through the next day and until Wednesday morning in Kansas City. What do you want to pull this Sherlock Holmes stuff for? You know you can't prove it. It's laudable to try to save your mother, but you can't do it by discrediting the statement she has already made."

Wants to "Take Blame."

"I won't see my mother go to the electric chair," Earle retorted. "I did it and I want to take the blame. You're a pretty smart fellow, Stanley, but the truth will come out yet."

"Your mother won't go to the electric chair, you fool!" Young snorted. "She'll not spend ten days in the penitentiary, either. You can't get away with this bunk! I won't be a party to a pack of lies. The police here can check the restaurants and filling stations we hit on the way."

Chief Schoemaker wanted to know the type of plane Earle used on his supposed hop to Kansas City. Earle said it was a buff colored open type ship. The chief asked who the pilot was. Earle's first response was that he couldn't remember and his second that he "would die sooner than tell."

Young was excused, and the questioning reverted to the Sunday night meeting between Earle and his mother. Here the son showed a remarkable cunning, which astonished his questioners and at first provoked them to wonder whether there might not be some truth, after all, in his statement that it was he who killed his wife.

"Now you're on that meeting again," he began. "Well, supposing I told you that I went there and told mother how unhappy I was with Rheta? Suppose I admitted that I told her I should want to be free of Rheta and that mother agreed to do the deed while I was out of town?

"That's what you want me to tell, you, isn't it? If I told you that you'd believe me. But when I tell you that I killed her you won't believe."

Chief Schoemaker was growing impatient at the son's recital.

"Just what's on your mind?" the chief demanded sourly. "You're trying to tell us something. Now give us the truth."

"I'm trying to save my mother from the chair," Earle insisted. "That what's on my mind. I'll confess anything, do anything you ask to save her. I'll go to the chair myself. I did it, I tell you. Why won't you believe me?"

The group adjourned to the Wynekoop home for reënactment of the murder. Earle let the party in, using the same pass key which he said he used to admit himself when he "went to kill Rheta." He led the police and prosecutor into his mother's consultation room in the basement. He ordered Sergt. Grey, Rheta's understudy, to sit upon the operating table.

"Now that's the way it stood," he said. "She was sitting there, with only a chemise on, swinging her legs. She had undressed to weigh herself. I grabbed the chloroform, pressing it to her mouth. That's how the scratches occurred around her lips. She struggled and fell to the floor, bruising her knees.

"I picked her up and put her on the table—she was light and frail, you know. The chloroform was working now. I gave her another dose, ran for the gun and shot her. Then I left the house."

Repudiates His Story.

The police permitted him to finish the "reënactment" and returned him to the state's attorney's office without calling his attention to his errors in placing Sergt. Grey's head at the wrong end of the operating table and in making the wrong folds in the blanket which he tucked about the sergeant. Prosecutor Dougherty, Chief Schoemaker, and Capt. Duffy had gone and Earle was chatting with a guard of two detectives when he repudiated the "confession."

"I know I didn't get away with it," he said. "I know I wasn't fooling you any. I didn't do it, of course, but believe me, my mother didn't either.

"All these silly theories of you coppers as to motive make me sick. You're just trying to frame me. My mother didn't kill her. We'll beat this case easily in court. Don't think I'll be silly enough to repeat all that stuff when mother and I go to trial.

"I was mixed up in a murder once before. I happened to be on the street near the scene of a killing. A flighty copper picked me up and thought he had the case practically solved before he found out who I was—just a witness. Then again I took a fellow to court who ran into my car and he beat the case. It makes me think the law's all wrong."

His rambling thoughts took another turn.

"Those girls that you brought in—they'd never have told such stories about me if they hadn't been nervous and unstrung," he said. "I'm not that kind of a guy. You know, my character is gone on account of those stories. All I have left is mother. Rather than lose her, I'd go to the chair. I'm not afraid to die. I'd take it and like it for her sake."

Taken to a Police Station.

A half hour later he was sent to the Brighton Park police station, there to be held until this afternoon when the police plan to take him and Stanley Young over part of the route of their last Tuesday's trip to Kansas City to affirm the alibi which Earle tried to repudiate.

At the station Earle was finger printed by Policeman Louis Vinopal. In his cell he complained a moment about not having had enough sleep. Then he brightened.

"I wish I had the morning newspapers," he said. His wish was fulfilled and for an hour he busied himself—despite admitted sleepiness—in reading accounts of the case in which he is a principal figure.

DR. WYNEKOOP JAILED

Both Earle and his mother sought release on writs of habeas corpus at the morning hearing before Judge Joseph B. David in the Criminal court. Both were denied freedom.

Oblivious of the crowded courtroom Dr. Wynekoop and her son clasped hands across their counsel's table as the hearing progressed. Dr. Wynekoop, red eyed from a restless night in a police cell and suffering from a heart ailment, nevertheless maintained a stanch composure in court.

DR. WYNEKOOP EATS FIRST GOOD MEAL SINCE HER ARREST

Dr. Alice Wynekoop ate her first good meal in three days at the county jail last evening, and it wasn't jail fare.

Since first being questioned by police she had more or less disdained all foods of substantial nature. "I don't feel like eating," she explained. About 5:30 last evening, however, she drank a glass of warm milk from the jail kitchen. Half an hour later she consumed with evident relish a dinner sent by her physician daughter, consisting of chicken soup, lamp chops, bread and butter, and milk.

After this repast Dr. Wynekoop retired to her bed in Ward B-4 of the jail hospital. She refused to see anyone, including officials of the state's attorney's office. No visitors will be allowed if she does not want to see them, Warden David Moneypenny said.

In the presence of Earle, an older son, Walker, and her daughter, Dr. Katherine Wynekoop, the elderly woman physician carried herself with spirit after the hearing, even managing a jest or two, until, with the jail door clanging behind her, she tottered and asked for water. Later Dr. Katherine and an attorney were admitted to attend her in the jail infirmary.

Curious Throng the Court.

The usually immaculate Earle, his hair tousled and a stubble almost obliterating his sideburns, was crushed back against a wall amid a disorderly jam of "murder fans" when Judge David took the bench.

"Sit down—sit down," the judge barked at the crowd, and turning to Earle added: "You, too, sit down."

Assistant State's Attorney James V. Cunningham, a habeas corpus expert, advanced to the bench. He said Earle was being held for "investigation" in connection with a murder.

"What do you mean—held for investigation?" the judge broke in. "If you have the evidence, charge him with murder. You can't hold people willy-nilly—not yet, you can't."

"There might be a charge lodged if we can gain a continuance for further investigation," Cunningham explained. "We don't want to ask the police to make a charge until we are almost certain of our evidence."

"All you need is reasonable grounds of suspicion," Judge David reminded him. "Have you got that?"

Prosecutor Dougherty then spoke up and informed the judge that he would ask only one more interview with Earle before booking or releasing him. The judge indicated his approval of the fairness of the offer and continued the hearing on Earle's case to 10 a. m. tomorrow.

Dr. Wynekoop Called to Bench.

With Earle's case disposed of, Attorney Frank Tyrrell, counsel for the Wynekoop family, beckoned the mother to come before the bench. She relinquished her son's hand, squared her thin shoulders with an effort, and came forward with her head held high and her shrewd eyes boring at the judge from behind her rimless spectacles.

"Sit down, please, doctor," Judge David said gently, observing her trembling hands. "Get a chair for the doctor," he told a bailiff.

"We've been shanghaied in this matter since yesterday afternoon," Attorney Tyrrell broke in. "I haven't had a single opportunity to talk to my client. The police have held her all this time."

"Your honor," protested Prosecutor Cunningham, "this lady has been formally charged with murder by the coroner."

"Well, you must send her to the county jail; that's where she goes," the judge declared. "There must be no temporizing. I'll remand her to jail right now, if that's where she wants to go."

"I will speak for my client," Attorney Tyrrell announced. "I know that's where she wants to go. I can have an opportunity to talk to her there."

"Well, you can talk to her now," the judge announced. "Ask her if she wants to go to jail. Ask her right now."

Difficult to Decide.

"Your honor, never having been in jail, I am at a loss to make a choice," she said, half whimsically.

"To jail she wants to go," Attorney Tyrrell added crisply, and it was so ordered.

"Hey there, don't be in a hurry," he said sharply. "Let the doctor rest a bit. Take her out the back way."

The hearing on Dr. Wynekoop's writ was continued to next Friday. Attorney Tyrrell announced he was prepared to produce as much as $100,000 cash bail, through the doctor's many professional friends. Although murder is usually regarded as an unbailable offense, the attorney pointed out that the statutes allow bail where no strong presumption of guilt can be produced.

REOPEN INQUEST AFTER 3 YEARS TO CLEAR BOY, OF 8

Theodore Schmitz Jr., 8 years old, of Channel Lake, will have an opportunity before a Lake county coroner's jury tomorrow to clear himself of the official findings that he shot and accidentally killed his brother, George, 14, in February, 1931.

Theodore was not quite 6 years old at the time and the verdict of a coroner's jury that he was responsible for his brother's death did not disturb him greatly. Since then age has added wisdom and with it sensitivity. And since then schoolmates have taunted him for the accidental slaying.

It is now asserted by Theodore's parents that these taunts not only impair his happiness, but that they are not justified. Some one else, not Theodore, according to the parents, accidentally killed George. As a result Coroner John L. Taylor has ordered a reopening of the inquest for 10 a. m. tomorrow in Strang's morgue in Antioch.

A dozen witnesses have been subpœnaed. Among them are Einar Sorenson of Channel Lake, chairman of the executive committee of the Democratic central committee of Lake county, and his two sons, Edward and Raymond. The Schmitz family say their boy George was shot in the rear of the Sorenson home. It was originally said he was shot in his own home. The shooting occurred in February, 1931.

DR. WYNEKOOP'S COMPOSURE GOES WITH HER TO JAIL

Her Strength Wavers but Not Her Spirit.

The ponderous iron gate of the Cook county jail slid back with a rumble yesterday to admit Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, and she entered, leaving all that is dear to her outside—but not her nerve. She had a quip and a smile even at parting for tall, blond Walker Wynekoop, the elder of her two sons. Walker stood staring forlornly after her as she said good-by with a wave of the hand through a small barred panel and the keepers slammed shut the great door between them.

A moment earlier he had tried to muffle her humorous comments to reporters, cautioning:

"Don't tell them anything, mother, please!" and whispered in her ear. She leaned back to kiss him and a photographer's flash bulb exploded as the caress was registered.

She Jokes Her Son.

"Well, anyway, you got your picture taken kissing your mother. Take off your hat when you kiss a lady," she chaffed. But Walker failed to play up to her pleasantry. His face did not lighten.

On this exit line she passed, still smiling, through the entrance and crossed the jail yard with her attorney, Frank Tyrrell, beside her, to discover the relative advantages of quarters there as against the uncomfortable police cells in which she had passed two preceding nights.

"What! No patrol wagons?" she had exclaimed incredulously as the little group crossed the yard from the Criminal Court building to the jail wall. "But I love the patrol. It throws you this way and it throws you that way, and you get your gymnasium as well as your transportation, all at once."

Placed in Hospital Cell.

Stout heart didn't mean physical strength, however. She entered the jail and was placed in the care of Mrs. Mary Kennedy, the matron, who announced at once to Warden David Moneypenny's office by telephone that Dr. Wynekoop was in great need of rest. The warden ordered her to be put in one of the hospital cells and to rest there until such time as she felt able to join the other thirty-six women prisoners, most of whom are colored, on the floor below.

A medical examination was given her, in accordance with the usual jail routine, by Dr. Consuelo Theodore. Before the examination she received the same fare at the noon meal as the other inmates—corned beef and cabbage, potatoes, rolls and coffee.

Lawyer Seeks Conference.

Although she was given the facilities for recovering strength after the tension through which she had passed since the discovery Tuesday night of her daughter-in-law's death, there was no immediate opportunity for complete relaxation. For Attorney Tyrrell wished to confer with her, and she had hardly been assigned to a cell before Dr. Katherine Wynekoop and Mrs. Mabel Faircloe of Peoria, her daughter and sister, arrived to visit her.

Dr. Katherine Wynekoop had not been conspicuous in the courtroom, where Judge Joseph B. David in a habeas corpus hearing had ordered her mother to jail.

Her visit with her mother lasted more than three hours. She and her aunt were admitted about 10:15 o'clock and left only when the hands of the clock were nearing 2.

Comforts Son in Court.

In the courtroom Dr. Lindsay Wynekoop was not seated at the counsel table, but in one corner of the space between the judge's bench and the first row of spectators' seats. Her son, Earle, husband of the slain Rheta, occupied a chair at the counsel table in the center of the room. He frequently sought her with a glance, and when at length Judge David left off speaking with attorneys to address a question to Dr. Wynekoop, she came forward and took the chair opposite her son. His hand groped for hers. She took it, patted it comfortingly and whispered to him.

At the conclusion of the court session she turned to accompany the bailiffs and found her older son, Walker, at hand. He had just returned from a trip out of town on business, and she told him, as he kissed her hurriedly in passing:

"I didn't get your telegram, the police didn't give it to me, but I read it in the papers." This message, sent by Walker from Peoria on Friday, expressed his belief in his mother's innocence and urged her to "keep up the fight."

Cryptic Remark Is Unexplained.

"This won't bother me long," Dr. Wynekoop had assured reporters before entering the courtroom. But she refused to elaborate on the meaning of this cryptic statement. The best guess of the auditors was that she referred to her health and possible death from causes unrelated to the case.

"Now don't ask me that," was her retort to questions about her comment. "This is as fair to the children as anything else," she added reflectively, and again speculations went unanswered.

Informed that Earle had angrily denounced his mother's confession as false she said sharply:

"Tell him to keep his mouth shut. He's a good boy, but he doesn't know anything. Tell him to keep his mouth shut."

Earle was seated in the state's attorney's office downstairs when this message was delivered to him.

"I have nothing to say to that. Maybe she's right," he said.

"Are you going to repudiate your confession?" was a query put to Dr. Wynekoop before the court hearing.

"No," she replied.

"Did your lawyer say he could show your confession was untrue and not logical?"

"I haven't had a chance to talk with him yet."

"Do you think he can do that?"

"It will be too bad if he does."

To a remark that any person seeking to give the impression that a robber killed Rheta would not, logically, have left his own revolver lying within a few inches of the body, Dr. Wynekoop retorted quietly:

"Yes. You know, there was plenty of time to dispose of that gun. There are many loopholes in that confession."

"Do you think that an experienced physician would burn the lips of a patient as Rheta's were, while administering chloroform?" she was asked. Her reply was:

"No. That's a reprehensible thing for a good physician to do. I'd be the first to condemn it."

MONEY IS MOTIVE FOR THE SLAYING, POLICE THEORIZE

Show Dr. Wynekoop Was Short of Funds.

Money was the motive for the slaying of Rheta Gardner Wynekoop, Lieut. Sam Peterson of the Fillmore police station, declared last night. He said he had traced incidents in the affairs of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop over a period of months forming a chain of evidence to support this theory.

Lieut. Peterson turned over to the state's attorney's office the anesthetic mask, chloroform bottle, and the victim's clothing to be introduced in evidence at the murder trial. He pictured Dr. Wynekoop as being in a difficult financial position for months, faced with hardship unless she obtained a relatively large sum of money within a short time.

"Insurance appeared to offer the logical solution of her difficulties," Lieut. Peterson said. "She had burglary insurance but was unable to collect on it, although she reported her home robbed.

"About six months ago Dr. Wynekoop wrote to Rheta's father in Indianapolis, warning him that his daughter was ill, and telling him to 'expect anything.' Perhaps that was when the murder plot had its inception."

Last August, it was learned from H. B. Brown, an agent for the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, Dr. Wynekoop applied for a $10,000 policy on Rheta's life.

The doctor was particularly interested in the double indemnity feature of the insurance, it was disclosed. She was perturbed when the company rejected the application after a physical examination.

While the following three months thus far have yielded no evidence of the progress of a plot, the doctor's financial affairs were becoming increasingly serious, Lieut. Peterson said. He pointed to her inability to pay even the small wages due her houseman, John Van Pelt.

"Despite this financial stringency Dr. Wynekoop was able to pay insurance premiums on the life of her daughter-in-law," Lieut. Peterson continued.

CAUSE OF DEATH STILL PROBLEM IN MURDER QUIZ

Coroner's Chemist Makes Report on Chloroform.

Indications were given yesterday that the trial of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, if and when one is held, will bring a sharp legal clash over the exact cause of the death of her daughter-in-law, Rheta.

Did young Mrs. Wynkoop die on the operating table, as Dr. Wynkoop maintained in her confession, from an accidental overdose of an anesthetic, chloroform? Or did the chloroform merely cause unconsciousness and a bullet from the pistol of the physician cause death? The evidence conflicts.

If the former hypothesis is correct it will be much more difficult to show guilt of murder. A defense for Dr. Wynekoop will be ready for her counsel—that the firing of a bullet into the young woman's body was not murder because there was no life to be taken away.

Report of Coroner's Chemist.

Dr. Clarence W. Muehlberger, coroner's chemist, yesterday reported after an examination of the body that it contained enough chloroform to produce "a deep surgical anesthesia and probably death." However, the scientist found the left lung filled with blood. Also there were blood clots in the stomach.

"Stomach and contents weighing 205 grams," said Dr. Muehlberger, "yielded .92 of a grain of chloroform. Six hundred grams of liver yielded two and a half grains of chloroform. Test for heavy metals revealed a very faint trace of mercury."

After conferring with the chemist, Chief Deputy Coroner Stephen Kolanowski declared that it was the gunshot wound and not the anesthetic that caused Rheta's death. He said that the blood in the lungs and stomach would not have been there had she been dead when the bullet struck.

Police Lieutenant's Story.

Support was given this contention by others who have been working in the investigation.

Lieut. Sam Peterson of the Fillmore police station, whose squad was the first to enter the Wynekoop home on the night of the murder, said yesterday that the bullet wound caused not only a flow but a spray of blood, which extended beyond the edge of the operating table on which Rheta's body lay and fell upon the floor of the surgery in the basement of the home.

"In my unprofessional opinion that girl was shot while she was alive and the heart was still beating," said Lieut. Peterson. "There was a great splotch of blood on the sheet underneath the body and small splotches on the floor, indicating that it had spurted from the wound."

This theory was supported by Dr. R. H. Jaffe, pathologist at the county hospital, who said that "not more than a teaspoonful" of blood would have flowed if Rheta had been shot after her death.

PSYCHIATRISTS GIVE THEIR VIEWS ON WYNEKOOPS

Amazed at Mother's Poise Under Quizzing.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Three psychiatrists yesterday gave their impressions of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop and her son, Earle, who are held on the charge of killing Earle's wife, Rheta. The three differed on several points, but were unanimous in finding both of them sane from the legal and medical standpoints.

Dr. John Favill, associate professor of nervous diseases at Rush Medical college, smiled at the report of Dr. Wynekoop's statement to her daughter, Dr. Katherine Wynekoop, that she confessed "to shield Earle."

"A Marvelous Actress."

"Earle didn't need shielding; he was shown to be in or near Peoria when the shooting occurred," he said, adding with a show of admiration: "Dr. Wynekoop is a marvelous actress."

In Dr. Favill's opinion, formed after listening to a night's questioning of Dr. Wynekoop and her son, there is no mental disease in either mother or son.

"Admittedly the mother was under a great financial strain, and money matters are apt to be more pressing than a desire to help one's son rid himself of an unwanted load in the form of a wife," he said.

In Dr. Favill's opinion, Dr. Wynekoop has not broken down since her arrest. Her confession was not a confession, but a statement that she fired a bullet into a dead body, he said.

"My impressions of Dr. Wynekoop were that she is a very keen witted, fast thinking, shrewd individual," said Dr. Favill. "I felt that she was weighing her words with great care.

"It may have been fatigue, or her troubles or her age which kept her from her greatest efficiency. If she had been at her most efficient she would have called the police immediately after Rheta's death."

Notes Son's Uncertainty.

But although Dr. Wynekoop at no time betrayed uncertainty or uneasiness, her son did, in Dr. Favill's opinion.

"At times he seemed on sure footing, and answered in a way I felt to be spontaneous," he said. "These were, particularly, when speaking of his being in Peoria at the time of his wife's death.

"His uncertainty in answering was when he was being questioned about insurance policies. Neither did he appear to feel on sure ground when he was asked about his sex life."

According to Dr. Favill, Dr. Wynekoop had an "excessive" affection for her son, which was revealed to him, he said, in her reply to a question put to her as to why she did not talk to Earle about his philanderings, of which she knew. She replied, he said, as follows:

"Well, you see, he was gone 14 hours a day. I only saw him at breakfast, and I couldn't scold him at the breakfast table and then have him gone all day, could I?"

Another Doctor's Views.

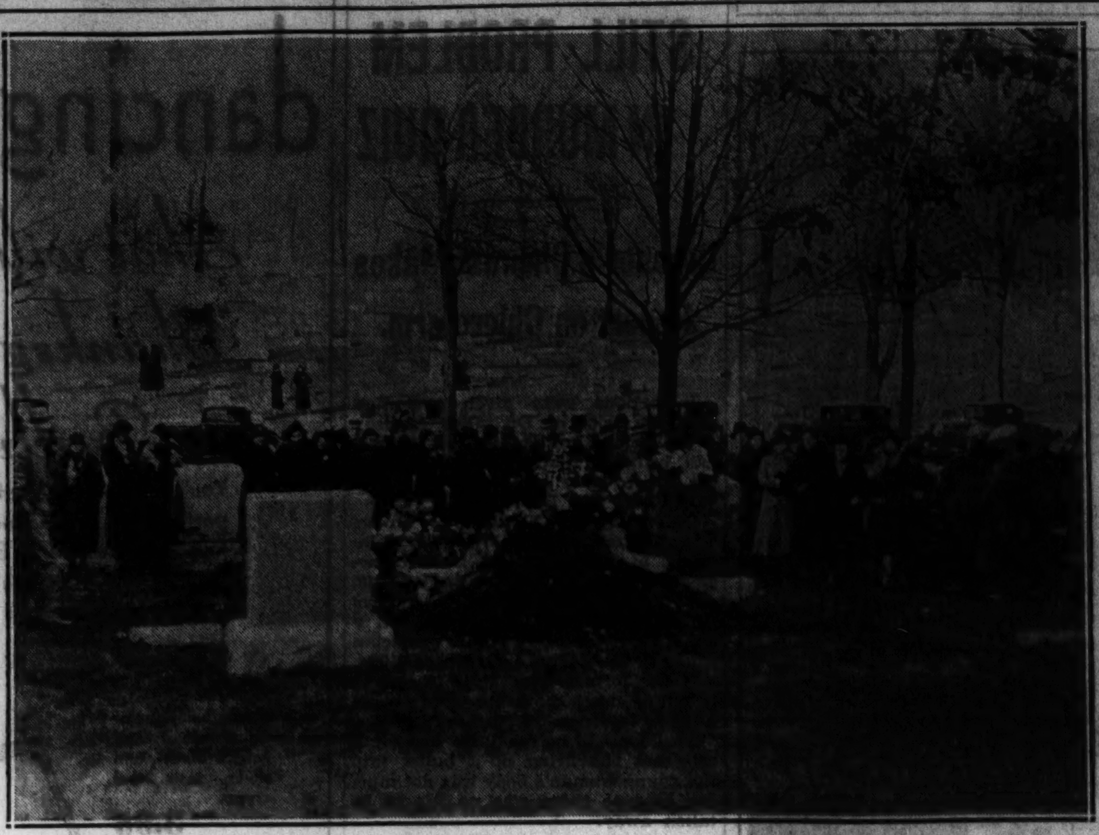
Dr. Harry A. Hoffman, director of the Criminal court behavior clinic, declared that the most interesting feature to him in the case was "the cold, stolid type" of Dr. Wynekoop, imitated but not equalled by the unemotional quality of her son. She was "above the average" intellectually, although not a superwoman, and her son was "just about average" intellectually. "Earle is above the average physically," Dr. Hoffman pointed out. "He is unusually well developed."

Dr. Clarence A. Neymann, associate professor of psychiatry at Northwestern university, who also is aiding the authorities, declared that the mother was "way ahead of the son from the intellectual standpoint, and from the standpoint of emotional stability."

"Earle is as stable emotionally as the average citizen, but Dr. Wynekoop has much better control over her emotions than the average," he said.

"There is no confession, only a very clever statement in which she does not even use the first personal pronoun," he said. "If the confession is correct, however, if the doctor did anesthetize and shoot Rheta, it would seem to me that the motive of greed police ascribe to her would not be enough, that one would have to look for a deeper motive, greed in that case being an accessory. The deeper motive would have to be an emotional one. One which should be investigated is the Odeipus fixation."

RHETA WYNEKOOP BURIED IN INDIANA



Relatives and close friends of the family gathered in Crown Hill cemetery at Indianapolis yesterday as the casket of Mrs. Rheta Gardner Wynekoop, who was chloroformed and shot by her mother-in-law, was lowered into the grave. In the center, behind the cross of flowers, are her father, step-mother, and grandmother. [Acme Photo.]

HUNDREDS FILE PAST THE BIER OF RHETA WYNEKOOP

Bury Slayer's Victim in Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—The body of Mrs. Rheta Gardner Wynekoop, who was slain in Chicago last Tuesday, was buried in Crown Hill cemetery this afternoon beside the grave of her mother, who died a number of years ago. Girlhood friends and relatives attended simple services in a mortuary here.

Hundreds of persons filed past the bier before the services. Masses of chrysanthemums, roses, and lilies banked the coffin. The body was dressed in a silk frock of her favorite shade of sea green, trimmed with lace.

Conducted by Her Pastor.

The services were conducted by the Rev. U. S. Clutton, pastor of the Tuxedo Baptist church, who had baptised Rheta and admitted her to membership in the church. In later years she played the violin in his services in the church and Sunday school.

In the hushed solemnity of the chapel the Rev. Mr. Clutton discoursed upon the life and character of the young woman. He avoided mention of the murder, speaking of her talent and consideration for others.

Mrs. R. R. Mitchell, former soloist of the church, who took part in many musical programs with Rheta, sang her favorite hymns, "Near to the Heart of God" and "He Knows." Young women who had been girlhood friends of Rheta were pallbearers.

The body was brought to Indianapolis last night by train. Her father, Burdine H. Gardner, flour and salt dealer, who had been in Chicago during the investigation of the killing, arrived by automobile to meet the train. He was met there by his wife and son Burdine Jr.

Father Accuses Husband.

Shortly before the services the father openly charged that his daughter's husband, Earle Wynekoop, and his mother, Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, planned "to get rid of Rheta so that Earle might marry someone else." He also said he believed a possible motive for the crime might be found in the fact that his daughter was insured by Dr. Wynekoop.

"Earle started associating with other women," Gardner said. "I don't believe his statement that Rheta was tubercular or had become slightly deranged. Her mother died of tuberculosis, but I am sure Rheta would have told us had she been suffering from the disease. I believe Earle and his mother planned to get rid of Rheta."

Phone Service Is Halted When Operators Strike

Gillespie, Ill., Nov. 25.—[U. P.]—Cities of Gillespie and Benld were without telephone service today as a result of a strike of operators for higher wages. The strikers said the walkout was for better wages and said they had been receiving pay ranging from $7 to $12.50 a week.

KILLER, A FUGITIVE OVER 30 YEARS, IS DEAD IN PRISON

Michael J. Lynch, convicted murderer of a policeman, who was a fugitive for a third of a century and who was finally discovered to be back in prison on another charge, died of heart disease yesterday in the Stateville penitentiary. He was 71 years old.

On July 20, 1887, when he was 25 years old, Lynch shot and killed Policeman William Halloran of the old 22d street station, after being arrested as a robbery suspect. He was sentenced to life imprisonment as "John Thomas," but feigned insanity and obtained a transfer to the Kankakee state hospital, the only institution for the criminal insane at that time. Soon afterward he escaped.

In 1922 Lynch was sentenced to an indeterminate term for assaulting a hotel clerk with a revolver. He had been in Joliet penitentiary for half a year when a Bertillon expert came across Lynch's old record. He proved that Lynch was Thomas despite the lack of fingerprint records.

During the long period Lynch was technically being sought, he ran afoul of the law only once, and then escaped from the Columbus, O., penitentiary by setting up a dummy in his bed. Stateville authorities said Lynch would be buried in the prison graveyard unless relatives are heard from.

Members of Chicago's regiments of the famous 33d division will be hosts to their comrades throughout Illinois on Dec. 2 and 3 when the various units gather at the Morrison hotel for the reunion of the 33d Division association.

The first day of the reunion will be devoted to a business session, the election of officers, and the annual banquet. The second day, Sunday, will give an opportunity for the renewal of acquaintances.

John B. Morgan, general chairman of the reunion, said he believed there would be a large attendance. Many employers in other parts of the state are giving short leaves of absence to former members of the 33d division to enable them to attend the gathering, he said.

CITY WILL OPEN BIDS TUESDAY ON WATER TUNNEL

Bids for a contract to bore a water tunnel under the Chicago river will be opened in the department of public works on Tuesday. The tunnel will be dug beneath Polk street between Wells and Canal streets, and in it will be placed water mains from the new Harrison street pumping station. City engineers have estimated the cost at not to exceed $190,000.

Opponents of the city administration have charged in published reports that this work should be done by city labor instead of by private contractors. Commissioner of Public Works Hewitt explained that more work will be done by city labor in connection with the construction of the new pumping station than in any similar projects under previous régimes.

AGENT OF FORD CHARGES SPITE IN TRUCK BIDS

Writes to Dern on His Truck Proposal.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—New efforts to maintain the NRA boycott on Henry Ford, despite the rulings of the controller general that Ford could not be excluded from government business, was charged against federal officials today.

Sensational charges that the officials "deem it more important to vent their spite against Ford products than they do to save government funds and put men to work," were made by R. P. Sabine, Ford Motor dealer in Bethesda, Md.

Sends Protest to Dern.

Mr. Sabine, in a letter of protest addressed to Secretary of War Dern, charged that Dern and other officials were conniving, in efforts to circumvent the law, to prevent Sabine from getting a contract to supply several hundred motor trucks which are urgently needed by the conservation corps.

Secret meetings to which government officials invited managers of other motor manufacturers, but not Sabine, were described in the Sabine letter.

The original proposals for the motor trucks were filed with the secretary of agriculture, and Sabine's Northwest Motor company was low bidder.

An effort was made to exclude the bid, because of Henry Ford's opposition to the NRA, but the controller ruled that so long as Ford did not actually violate the automobile code he was entitled to bid. After this ruling the matter was submitted to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, for a final decision.

Hears New Bids Are Asked.

Sabine disclosed today that new bids have been asked by the war department, and he declared he had learned that the new bids are for the same purpose. But the new specifications require "not less than six cylinder" engines in the cars, whereas the old specifications required not less than four cylinders. Sabine charged this was a deliberate effort to discriminate against Ford cars, which are all four and eight cylinder models.

The Sabine letter asserted that since the ruling by the controller general "a studied effort has been made to find some means whereby the law could be ignored, circumvented, and avoided."

In line with this policy, the letter stated, "On Nov. 21 a meeting was held to discuss a means of putting out a proposal for CCC motor equipment so as to eliminate bids on Ford products.

"Representatives of selected manufacturers were invited to this closed meeting and no probable Ford bidder was notified. Specifications were rewritten with the specific intent and purpose of eliminating bids of products of Ford Motor company, and without regard to equipment recognized as meeting government requirements."

"We are in a position where we could bid on either quantity if the proposal was fair and in keeping with good ethics," Sabine asserted.

LEWIS PRAISES NRA BEFORE CAPACITY CROWD

United States Senator James Hamilton Lewis yesterday interpreted the Roosevelt administration's efforts toward recovery as lifting the nation from despair to high hopes. He spoke to a crowd which thronged the Grand Opera house and overflowed into the street. This week he will begin a stump tour through several middle western states boosting the NRA and the government's financial policy and defending them against all attacks.

The picturesque senior Illinois senator gave a long address which ranged from a laudatory recapitulation of the administration's successes to a tart, if flowery, attack upon its critics. He referred particularly to Attorney Silas H. Strawn, former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, author of a recent attack upon the administrative feature of the NRA.

Gives Strawn "Credit."

"An old friend of mine, a distinguished lawyer of the bar," said Lewis, referring to Strawn, "who because of the positions he has occupied either through favor or desert, is quoted freely as having denounced the code as the origin of a purpose devilish and destructive, unknown in precedent and inexcusable in design. Yet it was his chamber of commerce that prepared the code so that business might know what rules were to be followed and what were violations of the laws of the federal trade commission."

Critics as a whole were referred to as "the chattering conclave whose wriggly minds, seeing the code as a covenant with death, seem to be ignorant of the fact that the federal trade commission has been building codes since 1919."

"And while these codes did not specify hours of labor or wages," the senator said, "otherwise, they were almost identical with what NRA has been doing in outlining fair practices.

"We, under the code, adopt a system which has prevailed in different undertakings for more than fifty years here in our own country, noticeably in the steel and iron industry."

"Never Any Inflation."

Using the colorful phrases which mark all his utterances, Senator Lewis next turned to "these malefactors of falsehood and prejudice who charge the administration with dishonoring the money of the nation, all within the accusation of inflation. The truth is," he declared, "that there never has been an inflation of the American currency. Let it be known that far from inflation, America has gold in her vaults, $200,000,000 in excess of the $800,000,000 necessary to protect every American dollar in existence.

"Not only is there no inflation of the American dollar but there will be none. President Roosevelt and his advisers are united against an inflation that rests its value only upon the mere printing of money."

Sees English Influence.

Taking to task former professorial advisers to President Roosevelt who recently have resigned, Senator Lewis adjured his audience to "be proud that we have those in authority at Washington who decline to surrender either to the deliberate traitor or to the seductions of flattering finance and, standing up for their own land, assert before the world their defiance against those who betray from within, or, assailing from without, seek to destroy the credit of America by making it subject to the demands and profit of England."

The senator's concluding encomiums were that "the nation is moving upwards; it is carrying its people forward; it does not pause to consider party or political distinction. We preserve our own rights and will continue to strengthen, support and increase them, and as we do so we pledge our faith to democracy and give praise that we represent America and that she is spoken for by President Franklin D. Roosevelt."

FIREMEN RESCUE PAIR TRAPPED BY LOOP BLAST

Firemen dashed through clouds of sizzling steam in the basement of the Capitol building at State and Randolph streets after a boiler explosion last evening and rescued two trapped furnace room workers.

Hundreds of pedestrians, who had heard the explosion of the boiler, blocked traffic at the busy intersection to watch the firemen enter the steam filled basement.

The workers rescued—Harry Klemm 51 years old, 9328 Tully avenue, engineer, and Joseph Lang, 35, of 3809 Wentworth avenue, stoker—were severely scalded and taken to the Passavant hospital. They are expected to recover.

The boiler burst as Klemm was trying to turn off a leaking valve. He was hurled from the top of the boiler to the floor. Lang was knocked off his feet. Eight other employés in various parts of the basement were shaken up. A few minutes later firemen under Battalion Chief Anthony Durkin arrived, and with the aid of Lieut. Thomas Martin's rescue squad rushed into the basement, picked up Lang and Klemm and carried them to the outside.

Air Mates Marry

Miss Ethel May Martin of Alma, Neb., a stewardess on United Air Lines, and John W. Hurley, a pilot for the same line, were married yesterday afternoon by the Rev. John M. Schneider, pastor of the Albany Park Methodist Episcopal church. The romance began when the two were members of the same airplane crew flying between Chicago and the East. Hurley is an ensign in the naval reserve air force. His attendants at the wedding were officers from the Great Lakes air base. The bride's attendants were stewardesses on the air line.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will give the concluding half of his speech on "The Freedom of the Press" over the National Broadcasting company network at 10:30 o'clock tonight. "TREAT ROOSEVELT AS WELL AS HOOVER," STEAGALL ASKS SMITH

Cleveland, O., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Congressman Henry B. Steagall of Alabama, chairman of the house committee on banking and currency, suggested today that Alfred E. Smith should accord President Roosevelt the same support and sympathy which he gave former President Hoover.

The congressman was asked to comment on Smith's "baloney money" statement in a question-answer period following his address on the Glass-Steagall banking act before the City club.

"I have the greatest admiration for Gov. Smith," Steagall said. "I supported him in 1928. I did not support him in 1924 nor in 1932. I don't know whether I will support him in the next Presidential campaign, but I would be much happier if he would accord the Roosevelt administration the same whole hearted support and sympathy which he gave the administration of Herbert Hoover, and in which I joined."

Much applause and laughter greeted this statement.

BULLITT TO SAIL WEDNESDAY FOR SOVIET RUSSIA

Many Problems Confront New Ambassador.

BY JOHN HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Relations with Russia will be formally resumed in December when William C. Bullitt, newly appointed ambassador to Moscow, presents his credentials to the soviet government, President Roosevelt announced today.

Mr. Bullitt will sail next Wednesday, it was decided at a conference here between the President and himself.

But though the formalities will be gone through, actual establishment of American diplomatic staffs in the embassy and in consulates in various Russian cities will be delayed. The new ambassador is to return to this country first and report.

U. S. to Go Slow.

It was considered significant that this decision was taken as the result of today's discussion at the "Little White House." One of Mr. Bullitt's chief purposes in coming to Warm Springs was to give the President a first hand report of the negotiations over the Russo-American claims which have been taking place in Washington during the past week.

The plan to delay the sending of a full corps of representatives to Russia is taken as a sign that the claims conferences have yet to reach an acceptable conclusion. For the President to go slow in setting up the usual diplomatic and consular agencies is a strategic way, it is felt, of letting Russia know that the United States is not going to be overanxious and will insist on a satisfactory solution of the debt problem.

President's Statement.

Announcement of Mr. Bullitt's plans was contained in a formal statement issued by the President late this afternoon. It said:

"Because of the difficulty of establishing adequate quarters for an American embassy and consulate and the staffs thereof in Moscow, where there is a housing shortage and a complete lack of American government offices and residences, I have ordered Ambassador Bullitt to proceed to Moscow to present his credentials, study the problems and make such preliminary arrangements as he may deem wise.

"Mr. Bullitt will embark on the steamship President Harding on Nov. 29 and will proceed direct to Moscow.

"I have ordered Mr. Bullitt to return to the United States as soon as practicable to report on the problem of the permanent establishment of the embassy and consulates and to organize the staffs."

Spends a Quiet Day.

With the exception of the conference with Mr. Bullitt, President Roosevelt spent a comparatively quiet day. The monetary policy, and the NRA had to contend for time with driving, swimming, and plain resting.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, visited with the President briefly. He had with him 25 codes, including the moving picture code. But the President deferred consideration of them until later.

Acting Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau was the third visiting official to confer with President Roosevelt. Mr. Morgenthau declined to comment on the mounting tide of criticism which has risen against the administration's monetary program.

NYE DECLARES NRA FAILS TO PROTECT SMALL INDUSTRIES

Washington, D. C., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—The NRA is "failing to accomplish through its codes that which the congress intended should be accomplished" because it fails to protect small independents against monopolistic practices, Senator Nye charged in a letter to Gen. Johnson today.

Senator Nye cited the incandescent lamp industry as an example and attacked Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric company, charging that owing to the presence of Mr. Swope as industrial adviser on the code for the electrical manufacturing industry, "the monopolistic group enjoyed an enormous advantage in the preparation of the electrical code."

This group "continues to enjoy" this advantage in the code administration since Mr. Swope resigned from the NRA to become a member of the electrical code authority, Senator Nye contended.

Characterizing the General Electric company as an "octopus," Senator Nye said that the independent incandescent electric lamp industry had been struggling for years against unfair competition.

NRA Inspector Killed as Own Car Runs Over Him

Sioux City, Ia., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Leslie Koontz, 44, government employe and chief NRA inspector on the site of the Missouri river navigation project here, was injured fatally tonight when his automobile ran over him while he was attempting to crank it.

SWEET REPLIES TO AL SMITH ON 'BALONEY DOLLAR'

Boston, Mass., Nov. 25.—(AP)—William E. Sweet, former governor of Colorado, today charged that Alfred E. Smith's attack upon the monetary policy of President Roosevelt was motivated by the former New York governor's association with Wall street.

In a statement issued here Sweet, a member of the national speakers' bureau of NRA, said Smith had always drawn campaign support from Wall street and that Wall street always knew where to find him. He also predicted Smith would be Wall street's candidate in the next presidential election.

Former Governor Sweet's statement in part follows:

"I notice that former Governor Alfred E. Smith does not want a 'baloney dollar.' The erstwhile presidential candidate has always drawn his campaign contributions and pap from Wall street and, of course, he believes with them in sound money.

"The governor is anxious that the people should not think that he has 'gone Wall street.' He need not have a fear as to this, because he has never been anywhere else. He was the avowed candidate of Wall street against President Roosevelt for the nomination at Chicago last summer."

RESERVE BOARD AIDS ROOSEVELT MONEY POLICIES

Would Allay the Fears of Inflation.

asserted. On the contrary he has reiterated his support of sound money. Until he performs an overt act against this policy, we think we ought to stand by him, at least to the extent of withholding criticism."

The President, it was learned, has planned to make a public statement soon clarifying his purposes in monetary manipulations. The best information available today is that because of the heat of the Smith and Warburg attacks, particularly, he will not dignify them with direct replies, but that when the turmoil subsides a bit, if it does, perhaps in a week or ten days, he will attempt a discussion of his policies. He is aware of the criticisms that doubt and uncertainty exist to a harmful extent, because of the degree of mystery which thus far have followed his actions.

Several Other Paths Open.

In support of the assurance that the President will not stand for printing press inflation, it was pointed out that before he would be forced to such a step, conceded by him to be most radical, he could adopt a number of other actions which would fall within the Roosevelt definition of sound money.

The President, might by executive order, devalue the gold content of the dollar, and apply the profit accruing to the federal treasury on its vaulted gold, a profit which would run between 3 and 4 billion dollars, toward the issuance of new gold-backed treasury notes.

Senator Borah's defense of the President's policies included the expression of a belief that Mr. Roosevelt will retain the support of public opinion unless his critics offer "an affirmative, constructive program."

Says People Believe Roosevelt.

"The thing that holds the people to the President," Mr. Borah said, "is the belief that he deeply desires to lift them out of their desperate troubles. The people naturally will ask those who object to the President's monetary system, 'What have you to offer in lieu of the President's program?'

"We had the gold standard for three and a half years of the depression. We should have had the confidence which it is said waits on the return of the gold standard. But confidence was not at hand, prices continued to fall, unemployment to increase, until on the third day of March this nation was in a state of economic collapse.

"The advocates of the gold standard stood about the bier of American industry and American agriculture speechless—not a word of hope, not a note of leadership. The great bankers and financiers offered no remedy.

"Neither Gov. Smith, Mr. Sprague, nor Mr. Warburg, in their attacks upon the present monetary policy offer anything except the mere restoration of the gold standard, the return to gold. It does not seem to me that it will suffice."

Dollar Drops 8.2 Cents.

In the month that the President's gold buying program has been in effect the gold value of the dollar has dropped from 69.4 cents to 61.2 cents, or 11 per cent. The announced aim of the President is to restore 1926 purchasing levels, but the achievement of such an aim would call for a reduction of the dollar's value to 50 cents, indicating the need for a further reduction of an additional 17 per cent from the 69.4 value.

While the dollar in terms of gold has been dropping 11 per cent, prices, according to Moody's commodity index, have increased 2.7 points, or about 2.2 per cent, during the month. On Oct. 24 the Moody index was at 122.9 based on Dec. 31, 1931, as 100. It is now about 125.6.

In the ten days during the raging of the battle over the policy only one advance has been made in the price of gold offered by the United States government through the RFC. Last Tuesday, after being held even for five days, the price was raised 10 cents to the level of $33.76, which has not been altered since Tuesday.

THEY'RE SHOOTING STARS

Gene Raymond, Columbia star, and Helen Vinson, screen actress, practice with bow and arrow at Palm Springs, California winter resort. Helen filed suit for a divorce yesterday. [Acme Photo.]

Sues for Divorce

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Helen Vinson, motion picture actress, today filed an action for divorce from Harry N. Viakerman of Philadelphia, alleging he was sullen, morose, objected to "people of the theater entering our home," and that he "nagged and criticized" her and her theatrical work when she came home after long hours spent in acting.

LINDBERGHS PLAN TO HOP TODAY FOR WEST AFRICA

LAS PALMAS, Canary Islands, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Marine officials said tonight Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh planned to leave early tomorrow for Villa Cisneros, on the West African coast about 300 miles southwest from here.

Villa Cisneros is used as a refueling and an emergency landing station by pilots in the French South American airmail service, and is about 600 miles due north from Cape Verde, the point where Col. Lindbergh has indicated he may start a westward trans-Atlantic hop.

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh, who flew here yesterday from Ponta Delgada, the Azores, were royally welcomed at a meeting today in the town hall, where the council voted Lindbergh the title of "guest of honor." Lindbergh spent much of today overhauling the motor of their seaplane, in which they set out from New York on July 9 for an aerial survey tour of the Atlantic and parts of Europe.

REMOVE THYROID TO SEEK CURE OF HEART DISEASE

An experimental operation in which the thyroid gland was removed to bring relief to a sufferer of angina pectoris was reported on Friday at a staff meeting of the John B. Murphy hospital, it was revealed by the hospital yesterday. The operation is said to be the first of its kind performed in Chicago and one of the few in this country.

The patient upon whom the operation was performed on Nov. 20 is Frank Lob, 54 years old, of 562 Arlington place. It was said at the hospital that the patient had been free of pain since the operation and that his blood pressure had dropped.

Dr. Arnold H. Kegel, who performed the operation, in discussing it at the staff meeting did not advise, in the light of present knowledge, the operation in all cases of angina pectoris. He pronounced the immediate results encouraging.

Los Angeles Bakes in Its 7th Heat Wave of Year

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Another day of 91 degree heat today sent 100,000 persons rushing toward the seashore, where long closed ice cream, hot dog, and amusement concessions were reopened for the off season business. The current month has seen six days with heat exceeding official readings of 90 degrees. It is the seventh torrid spell of the year.

in the Chicago area, dairymen said. In addition there are some 175 small milk dealers, most of whom have been in the neighborhood milk delivery business for 30 to 50 years, who protested at a meeting in the Chicago milk bottle exchange yesterday they were "caught between the trust and the chiselers."

"We are the 'forgotten men' of the Chicago milk industry's new deal," declared Otto P. Black, official of the Small Milk Dealers' association. "We represent five-sixths of the total number of milk dealers in the area, and our average investment is about $40,000 per dealer. Most of these concerns are father and son companies, in business here for an average of 30 years or more, and with an investment in excess of $7,000,000.

Report Heavy Losses.

"We endeavored for the most part to go along with President Roosevelt's new deal in the milk business. We are losing heavily in so doing under the present conditions, and can go no further. Either the government must enforce its code entirely or we will be obliged to enter into open competition not only for retail sales but in purchasing our milk from farmers."

In another dairy meeting tomorrow at the Morrison hotel a national committee selected by dairy farmers is scheduled to consider a national plan for controlling the production of all dairy products, including butter, cheese, cream, and milk.

The program if adopted will be advanced by the National Coöperative Milk Producers' association as the method for Secretary Wallace to pursue when he imposes the processing tax on all butterfat consumed in the nation. The tax may be imposed in December, or by January at the latest, it was indicated here yesterday.

DRAFT NRA CODE FOR COAL TRUCK MINES IN INDIANA

Petersburg, Ind., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—More than 75 operators of truck coal mines met here last night with NRA officials to establish a code of prices to be charged by operators from Pike, Knox, Daviess, Gibson, Dubois, Perry, Martin, Spencer, Warrick, and Vanderburg counties.

The prices per ton in the code presented by NRA officials ranged from $3.60 per ton for six inch lump and $2 per ton for screenings from Vanderburg county mines to $2.75 per ton for six inch lump and $1 for screenings from Pike county mines, while the prices to be paid in other counties graduated between the two extremes.

Warrick and Vanderburg counties could not agree as to the exact prices to prevail and much controversial testimony was offered. They will present codes worked out by mine operators Monday. Other counties asked permission to present different codes than the ones submitted by the NRA officials.

There was much confusion and a widely diversified view on the part of the mine operators as to the prices to be charged by the ten counties. NRA officials notified the operators that after the codes were established that it would be seen that every operator weighed the coal of the mine.

TRAIN KILLS 3 IN AUTO; HOBO ON ENGINE PILOT

Brazil, Ind., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Three persons, two of them Brazil High school students, were killed today when the automobile in which they were riding was struck at a grade crossing by a westbound Pennsylvania railroad passenger train.

The dead are:

CHESTER KIDWELL, 19.
DAVID FISHER, 17.
ANNA MARY PENMAN, 15.

A tramp, riding on the pilot of the engine and witness of the accident, was taken to Terre Haute for questioning.

6 Die as Auto and Bus Crash.

COMMISSAR SAYS U. S. IS GUIDED BY RED INFLUENCES

Claims 'Brain Trusters' Got Ideas in Moscow.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Nov. 25.—Some members of President Roosevelt's "brain trust" acquired a large portion of their "brains" during visits to Moscow, according to Commissar Valdemar Mezhlauk, Russian economic expert.

In an article in the Bolshevik, an official journal of the Russian communist party, Mezhlauk enumerates the economic achievements of the soviet government. He alleges that President Roosevelt has been influenced by professors, scientists, and engineers who have visited Russia in recent years and become enamoured of bolshevik methods which they are now trying to introduce in America.

Predicts Failure in United States.

The commissar predicts the failure of the efforts of the brain trust to improve the United States' position. He cites numerous statistics purporting to prove that the development of industry in Russia equals that in the United States.

Some of the commissar's contentions are based upon figures showing that the "number of cities in the U. S. S. R. having street car transportation increased from 293 to 356 [including those whose water is supplied from wells], while cities having sewerage systems increased from 35 to 5 5since the revolution."

"In 1933," he writes, "the 16th year of soviet power, the largest and leading capitalist country in the world, the United States, can find no other way from the mire of depression except to plant in its capitalist soil economic methods developed by the communist system.

"Scores of American scientists, professors, and engineers who visited Russia in recent years eagerly studying the experience of bolshevism imagine that through the adoption of our economic principles they can halt the decay of their dying capitalistic system.

"Most Curious Event in History."

"It is not accidental that these men have been employed by Mr. Roosevelt as advisers and experts at a moment when he attempts to use methods of communist economy in a capitalistic country.

"This is one of the most curious events in human history. But Mr. Roosevelt forgets that the first step necessary for success is a bolshevik revolution analogous to ours and the formation of a dictatorship of the proletariat. America can use our methods successfully only after a successful revolution following out the theories of Marx, Lenin, and Stalin."

JUDGE SENTENCES FOUR TO JAIL FOR ELECTION FRAUDS

Judge Charles T. Allen of Woodstock, presiding over election fraud cases in the Cook County court, yesterday sentenced four election officials to the county jail for making false returns on the canvasses of votes in their precincts.

Ralph Mancini, 1450 West Polk street; Joseph Pate, 1415 Spruce street, and Joseph Cutreru, 700 South Loomis street, who served as judges of election in the Thirty-fifth precinct of the Twenty-seventh ward at the judicial elections last June, were each sentenced to six months. James Pacente, 545 De Koven street, a judge of election in the Second precinct of the Twentieth ward at the election of Nov. 4, 1930, was sentenced to four months.

Mancinin admitted he had segregated ballots and allowed watchers to mark them. He said he made the confession to absolve Pate and Cutreru. In sentencing Pate and Cutreru, Judge Allen ordered stays of mittimus for them until Tuesday, when motions to vacate their sentences will be heard.

Maj. Lenox Lohr, Ill with Influenza, Is Improved

Favorable reports as to the condition of Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager of A Century of Progress Exposition, were issued yesterday at his home, 625 Noyes street, Evanston.

Maj. Lohr became ill on Wednesday while at work in the loop and was taken home. His illness has been diagnosed as influenza. According to his secretary, Miss Martha McGrew, there is nothing alarming about the case and Maj. Lohr appeared to be better yesterday than on the preceding days.

Girl Screams; Sergeant Captures Her Assailant

Miss Wanda Haman, 26 years old, 3208 Maypole avenue, was seized by a man last night and dragged into a clump of shrubbery at Central Park avenue and Madison street in Garfield park. Her screams attracted the attention of Police Sergeant Robert E. Calkins, who knocked down the attacker and arrested him. Miss Haman was unharmed. The man was identified as John Lee, 41 years old, 415 Carroll avenue. Calkins is attached to the office of Commissioner of Public Works Oscar Hewitt.

SCHACHT WARNS NATION AGAINST NEW INFLATION

Tells Germans It Can't Aid Trade.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—Export trade and industry cannot be resurrected with the help of inflation or any similar artifices. This was the substance of an impressive speech today by Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, the man who has succeeded in keeping German currency firm while the dollar and pound, despite much higher gold backing, have tottered on their thrones.

Dr. Schacht was addressing Ruhr industrialists at Solingen in reply to their complaints that export trade is becoming stagnant, which they claimed indicated that the Jewish boycott of German goods is beginning to be felt. The industrialists advocated partial inflation, but this was firmly rejected by Dr. Schacht.

Recalls Previous Inflation.

"Germany once suffered agonies as a consequence of inflation and for the safety of the state it is imperative to reject the idea of inflation or any fluctuating currency," he said.

"Monetary insecurity unleashes dangerous powers which cannot be mastered. The currency must remain on a firm foundation on which a healthy business can be revived.

"The stability of the German currency in the general world's turmoil has helped to restore German credit and showed Germany as a strong nation."

Stresses Need for Trade.

"Germany will not be able to pay its obligations to foreign countries if their markets fail to absorb German goods in sufficient quantities."

Despite the complaints of exporters Dr. Schacht still hopes that the "scrip system" will further German exports, but he warned his countrymen not to use it for dumping purposes, even when competing against the "rubber currencies" of others.

"Absolute national discipline," the slogan heard all over Germany these days, was also Dr. Schacht's order to the country's business men.

Ryan Art Collection Brings Total of $394,937

New York, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The Gothic and renaissance art collection of the late Thomas Fortune Ryan brought the estate $394,937 at the end of the three day auction today. With the etchings and books in the Ryan collection the grand total was $409,354.

OLD STATE CAPITOL AT VANDALIA WILL BE RESTORED SOON

Vandalia, Ill., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Restoration work is under way here on the old state capitol, which for many years served as the Fayette county courthouse and is considered one of the most important of the state's historical landmarks.

Vandalia was the state capital from 1819 to 1839. Seven governors administering their affairs in this city during that period. From 1839 to 1875 the old buildings were used jointly for Fayette county and the town of Vandalia for school purposes. In 1920 the state bought the structure from Fayette county.

The old building was the scene of Abraham Lincoln's early career as a law maker. He rode to the sessions on horseback from his home in New Salem. It was here he made his first official protest against slavery.

EX-MINISTER HITS BRITISH RULE FOR NEWFOUNDLAND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Nov. 25.—Sir William Coaker, former cabinet minister under Sir Richard A. Squires, today attacked the action yesterday of the present government headed by Prime Minister Frederick C. Alderdice in sponsoring acceptance by the legislature Monday of the royal commission's report recommending relinquishment of self-government for Newfoundland.

Sir William charged that the rights of the people are being trampled upon.

Sir William warned that if the commission's proposals, which involve government of Newfoundland direct from London and consequent loss of dominion status, are thrust down the people's throats, widespread unrest and bitterness would result.

ARGENTINA USES 'NRA' SCHEME IN REFUNDING DRIVE

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Argentina embarked on a "national economic recovery plan" today, and issued a device picturing the public presenting bonds to the government for refunding.

The step merely gave a name to a month's old campaign for the conversion of the internal debt and national mortgage bank securities at lower interest.

It was regarded with curiosity, however, as the first instance of adopting North American anti-depression methods.

ROBBERS STRIP FAMOUS IDOL OF $40,000 IN JEWELS

CALCUTTA, Nov. 25.—[U. P.]—The boldest thieves in many years defied superstition and the rage of the natives today to strip the famous idol of the Goddess of Destruction of $40,000 worth of precious jewels. The idol is in the temple of Dakahi Neswar, near this city.

So potent had the priests considered the spell of the idol, Kali, that the sacred object had been guarded only by a perfunctory watch. As Goddess of Destruction, Kali was popularly supposed to visit marauders with such dire punishment as to be immune from molestation.

Included in the loot were a diamond studded crown, a pearl necklace, and numerous gold ornaments shaped like human heads. A solid gold sacrificial knife used in rites was also stolen.

BEG YOUR PARDON

The Ministerial association of Berwyn calls attention to an error in THE TRIBUNE of Nov. 22, in which it was stated that Berwyn always was wet and probably would be after repeal. "Berwyn was always dry and we trust that we shall have at least 'ward local option,'" said the Rev. F. Paul Langhorne.

GERMAN PASTORS BOLT HITLERITE RULE IN CHURCH

Nazi Leader Ousts Bishop; Bitterness Grows.

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The ousting of an Evangelical church cabinet member and the resignation of three noted theological professors from the Nazi German Christian movement led many churchmen tonight to believe that only a miracle can prevent a schism in the Protestant ranks.

Thousands asked whether "Chancellor Hitler will interfere and try to compel the warring factions to stick together or will he as a political leader keep hands off in this religious quarrel?"

At the same time 400 pastors and churchgoers in Westphalia wrote to Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller that they declined to take orders from the reich's church government and Bishop Adler of Westphalia.

Threaten to Secede.

German Christians in Thuringia announced today their determination to secede from the Nazi church régime "because of questions of principle."

A secession also was declared in Bavaria, while in Wuerttemberg, 800 pastors made known they had broken with the Nazi Christians.

According to the Evangelical press service, bishops in Bavaria, Wurttemberg, Hesse, the Palatinate, and Baden, who met in Stuttgart yesterday, declared that "they will not leave the pastors of the Emergency federation [nearly 300 young clergymen, most of them war veterans, who declined to accept the German Christian theology] to their fate in this fight."

The fight between the Nazi faction headed by Dr. Joachim Hossenfelder, leader of the German Christian movement, and the group led by former Reichsbishop Friedrich von Bodelschwingh started more than a week ago with orders, later revoked, for the suspension of three pastors "for opposing the Nazi reconstruction of the church."

Bitterness Grows.

Since then developments have occurred with increasing bitterness — speeches at a massmeeting attacking the Old Testament as outmoded; demands that Bishop Hossenfelder be removed, and Mueller's agreement to rescind all church laws of recent months, including the bothersome clause pertaining to the participation of Jews in church work.

Almost simultaneously Professors Carl W. Fezer, Arthur Weiser, and Hans Rueckert of Tubingen university quit the Nazi movement in disgust.

The church cabinet has been composed of Bishop Schoeffel, Dr. Hossenfelder, Reichsbishop Mueller, Dr. Heinrich Weber of Munster, representing the Reformed church members, and Dr. Friedrich Werner of Berlin, legal counsellors.

Expect Serious Consequences.

The Lutherans, whom Bishop Schoeffel had represented in the church administration, agreed at their convention in Wittenberg two months ago to remain in the church provided one of their men be given a place in the cabinet.

Many churchmen felt that the move might have serious consequences, especially since Bishop Mueller asked Friedrich Coch, the Nazi bishop of Saxony, to take Bishop Schoeffel's place temporarily. Bishop Coch insists on ghetto churches for Christianized Jews. In this connection it was pointed out that Bavarian Lutheran bishops withdrew from the organization at a conference yesterday in Weimar.

A number of bishops, meanwhile, seriously advised Dr. Mueller to postpone his consecration as reichsbishop, scheduled for Dec. 3, until the situation has been cleared.

Insurgents led by Dr. Von Bodelschwingh arranged to say prayers in their 300 churches tomorrow on behalf of non-Nazi ministers who have been suspended by Hossenfelder. To the rebels' demands that Hossenfelder resign, that fighting parson declared the Nazi party would not permit him to quit.

'ULYSSES' ATTACKED AS OBSCENE; JUDGE SAYS HE'S IN DOUBT

New York, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The significance of "obscene" was debated today before Federal Judge John M. Woolsey, who then reserved decision on an action brought by the government to prevent American publication of James Joyce's "Ulysses."

Judge Woolsey said he had read most of the book during his September vacation and found himself puzzled whether it was "obscene."

"Some of was so obscure and unintelligible," he said, "that it was difficult to understand it at all. It was like walking around without your feet on the ground."

Morris L. Ernst, counsel for the publishers, said the book was unintelligible to him.

But Samuel Coleman, assistant United States attorney, made no such admission and argued that the book contained obscene passages.

Coleman argued that the "obscene passages" could not be deleted without ruining the work, so the entire book should be banned from publication in this country.

COL. F. M. ALGER ILL IN DETROIT; KIN SUMMONED

Chicago friends have been informed of the sudden and serious illness in Detroit of Col. Frederick M. Alger. Col. Alger is a son of Russell A. Alger, secretary of war in the cabinet of President McKinley. He is a brother of Mrs. Charles B. Pike of Chicago and his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Frederick Alger, Jr., is the daughter of Charles S. Dewey. Mr. and Mrs. Pike have been called to Detroit and have recalled invitations for a musical and tea they were to have given at the Chicago Historical society on Dec. 3.

GIRL SERIOUSLY HURT IN CRASH; SEEK COMPANION

Miss Ethel Short, 18 years old, 6945 Dorchester avenue, was in the Jackson Park hospital last night in a critical condition as the result of injuries suffered in an auto collision at the triple intersection of 83d street and South Chicago and Jeffery avenues. Her companion, Lyman T. Grossman, 7640 Saginaw avenue, who fled on foot, is being sought.

Mrs. Dorothy Wheeler, 22 years old, 7112 Clyde avenue, who was riding in the rear of the Grossman car, suffered a fracture of the left ankle. Her husband, Robert Wheeler, was unhurt. The occupants of the second car, Mr. and Mrs. William Alstedt, 8436 Jeffery avenue, were cut and bruised.

One death raised the 1933 Cook county motor toll to 990. The victim: Joseph De Stefano, 37 years old, 2447 South Washtenaw avenue, a laborer. Died at St. Anthony's hospital of injuries received when he was struck by a hit and run motorist at Roosevelt road and Western avenue.

Two men were seriously injured last night when the automobile in which they were riding collided with a truck at Southwest highway and Cicero avenue, near Oak Lawn. They are George Scanlan, 53 years old, 6421 South Laflin street, and William Kline, 43 years old, 6240 South Troy street. The driver of their car, Francis Mangen, 6421 South Laflin street, escaped serious injury, as did Alfred Pliz, of Chicago Heights, driver of the truck.

$5,000,000 LIVE STOCK SHOW TO OPEN THIS WEEK

Event to Bring Aristocrats of Animal World.

Stranger within our gates, who'er thou art,
Within these silent walls ye may commune
With lofty spirits of a mighty past
Rich in achievements wrought in fruitful fields
And benefactions rendered humankind.

Here have we builded us an inner shrine
Wherein the wrangling of the busy market place
Obtrudeth not; whereto, in quiet hours, we come
To cast aside each selfish, sordid thought,
And pledge our faith in high ideals anew.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Where did I find the massive bronze tablet bearing those stanzas?

Three guesses—ten, if you like.

No.

On the portal of a social settlement consecrated to the service of mankind?

No.

Amid the dim lights of a secluded chapel dedicated to prayer and meditation?

No.

Nor in any of a dozen other shrine places you might name.

But in the Chicago stockyards!

That square mile of intensive, spot cash business may roughly be described as a place where you see many things which you would least expect to see in such a place.

Stockyards an Art Center.

For example:

Ponderous tables loaded with those masterpieces and with silver trophies that commemorate epochal awards in the annals of stock breeding.

A 225 room hotel, one façade of which is a reproduction of that masterpiece of late Tudor architecture, Stratford-Upon-Avon's Harvard house, girlhood home of the mother of Harvard university's founder.

Over the broad stone fireplace—broad enough to roast an ox in—in one of the administrative offices this inscription: "Dedicated to the dignity of husbandry, the cultivation of the heart, the joys of friendship and good will among men."

Mezzotints and National Banners.

Long galleries hung with such treasures as mezzotints of George Morland's lovely rustic scenes and such rarities as a colored print of Copenhagen, the horse that carried the duke of Wellington on the Sunday of Waterloo.

Hanging from oak hewn rafters and from wainscoted walls, flags of many nations, from Denmark to the Argentine, the Danish flag accompanied with an inscription begging the yards to accept it "as a token of friendship and admiration to the greatest agricultural center in the world from a country whose wealth depends entirely upon its stock industry."

In front of the yards' Exchange building a replica in bronze of Paul Fjelde's bust of Abraham Lincoln, the original of which is one of the adornments of the capital of Norway. Both the original and the replica were cast in the yards' foundry.

Within doors, in a lofty paneled dining room of the Saddle and Sirloin club, another Lincoln memento, in the form of an executive order of 1864 restricting the wartime exportation of cattle and signed not with the customary "A. Lincoln" but with the full name. It is this signature which gives the item its special value.

Biblical Ruth Represented.

Illuminated parchments recording awards of the Ruth gold, silver and bronze educational medals, those medals being named for biblical Ruth who gleaned in the fields of Boaz and bearing the words "High aims form high character; Great objects bring out great minds." This year there are 117 contestants for the Ruth medal from eighteen institutions of learning in the United States and Canada.

And so on and on through club rooms and banquet halls baronial in their dignity and magnificence—portraits in bronze and in oil of Presidents of the United States, of cabinet ministers, of university deans, of diplomats, of grandees of Illinois since the time of old Isaac Funk, who, a century ago, in McLean county, laid the foundation of the greatest individual fortune based solely on agriculture that had been accumulated in America.

Statesmen of Agriculture.

Portraits of American governors and of Canadian prime ministers; portraits of Justin Morrill of Vermont, author of the act of 1862 establishing land grant colleges; of Conrad Kohrs, who looks as if he might have been first cousin to the poet Stedman, but whose claim to fame is that he cleaned up the cattle rustlers of the west; of Robert J. Kleberg, who was part owner and sole manager of a Texas ranch comprising a million and a quarter acres; of Dr. H. B. Favill, authority on bovine tuberculosis, who was part Indian and who, hearing a bore's brag, "My family came over in the Mayflower," replied dryly, "That's nothing—mine was on the reception committee"; of Prof. W. L. Carlyle, who now manages the prince of Wales' ranch at Calgary, and of Dr. Marion Dorset, discoverer of the hog cholera serum that has saved the world billions of dollars, who freely gave to his country a remedy that would have made him millions, and, refusing huge offers from the industries, is happy in his research work at a moderate salary in the bureau of animal industry in Washington.

History That Hits You.

Portraits, too, of great cattle whose strains have made history that is intimate to you because it makes better, cheaper, more nourishing and more tasty what is two or three times a day served on your table.

Anybody can profitably spend half a day studying the paintings, bronzes, prints, and the Tudor and colonial architecture in the stockyards. One day last year a group of Evanston clubwomen did that, and at the end of their visit they did not know whether to gasp or to laugh. So they compromised by doing both. They gasped at the money, patience, and taste that have been expended on art and architecture at the yards and they laughed because there, of all places in the world, they had found evidences so stately of such expenditure.

Another day the members of a cultural organization called Daughters of the Renaissance came and they said they were "dumfounded."

This Week Brings Stockyards Week.

Well, what THE TRIBUNE is trying to lure you to is a lively and, to be blunt, an intelligent interest in the fact that Saturday night of this week brings the opening of—

Stockyards Week

—in Chicago's calendar.

It brings the most dramatic and costly show of Chicago's year—a show which makes other shows, however lofty their intention, seem like exhibitions of tatting.

For the annual International Live Stock exposition at the yards is a five million dollar show, a show not only of thundering herds but of an élite corps of the young people of American farms, and this year forty-one states of the Union—one more than twice as many as officially exhibited at A Century of Progress—will take part in it.

Canadian provinces from the Atlantic to the Pacific will exhibit live stock and grain.

World Congress of Men and Beasts.

Breeders and buyers from the two Americas and from England, Scotland, Ireland, France, and Belgium will be on the scene.

Thirteen thousand head of cattle, horses, sheep, and swine of a value of five million dollars will be shown in an exhibition space covering twenty-two acres. There will be five thousand exhibits of hay and grain.

In a time of distraction and uncertainty you will see how solid are the essential resources of your country and you will renew your courage in the thought that not for long can such bounty fail of diffusing happiness and prosperity among a people schooled by adversity not to abuse its blessings.

In 1900, when the first Chicago "International" was given, old Mortimer Good..in, an agricultural journalist with a gift or legitimate Barnumese, called it "the Behemoth of shows."

Such it still is—fraught with drama, glowing with color, animated by high emulation, and dealing not with tatting but with those essentials of existence which come home to the business and bosoms of all men and women.

You might think that my old—but youthful—friend, B. H. Heide, forty-three years identified with activities at the yards and twenty years secretary-manager of the International, would by this time have become a shade unresponsive to the drama, the spectacle, inherent in what he calls "the supreme court of the animal kingdom," a court whose favorable verdicts will this year be embellished with prizes aggregating $100,000.

Not at all.

He responds to the International's thrills with as much zest as he did in 1900, when it was all a new story.

One of the Show's Thrills.

"I tell you," he said to me last week, "that when the nine six horse hitches of draft horses go tearing and thundering around the arena at a breakneck pace, it's one of the thrills of a lifetime. Nine six horse hitches! That means more than fifty-four tons of horse flesh, going full tilt, for each animal weighs more than a ton, and each team is drawing a glittering wagon. Some of those six horse hitches come from the ancient seats of their breeds in Normandy and Scotland, but—and this is part of the thrill to me as an American and a Chicagoan—as a result of advances in breeding in this country during the last quarter of a century we have outdistanced the breeders in the old lands. This result was attained largely through the Chicago International's establishment of standards and its generous rewards for attainment of and adherence to those standards."

Mr. Heide's huge thrill of the fifty-four tons of horse flesh tearing and thundering around the arena—and the proof of a quarter century of American progress that goes with the thrill—are typical of the stockyards.

You cannot get the magnitude and meaning of the impending show until you get the magnitude and meaning of the yards.

The yards are an industrial epic.

To feed far kingdoms of the world; by patience, research and native shrewdness to show men how to improve their cattle and thus to transform scrubby tissue into succulent nutriment, and by discoveries and ingenious processes to utilize seeming waste and make it wealth—that is an epic.

But a vast number of Chicagoans—especially when they are away from home—affect to be ashamed of their epic. They ought to be ashamed that they are ashamed.

They think of the yards as just a huge slaughter house, a necessary evil to be endured, not talked about. This is condescension lapsing into parochial snobbery, than which there is no snobbery more pitiless.

For, as a matter of fact, the yards are a mighty economic and educational center—a center lacking which this community would find considerable difficulty in maintaining such other educational centers as its Art institute, its Field museum, its planetarium, its aquarium, its three universities, its Newberry library, its Mundelein college, its Academy of Sciences, and its Historical society.

Nearly 20 Billions in 67 Years.

It has been estimated that in prosperous times one-sixth of the people working in Chicago work in the stockyards and their allied industries such as hides, tallow, by-products, stock feeds, fertilizers, medicines and serums, harness and saddlery.

That is how vital a community factor the yards are.

In all of its aspects it is colossal and its statistics stagger.

In the sixty-seven years since the Christmas day of 1865, when the Union Stockyards were opened, there have been received and sold within their gates 825,000,000 beasts.

They brought $19,600,000,000.

The receipts of the United States government from all sources for the fiscal year ending June, 1932, were $2,121,228,000.

In the year 1918 the yards received and sold 18,000,000 beasts of a value of $904,715,000—a sum sufficient to pay the peacetime expenses of a first class power if governments were ever economically administered.

Riches by Daily Trainloads.

The yards cover the square mile extending from Halsted street to Ashland avenue and from 39th street to 47th street, and a considerable part of the area of pens in that square mile is double decked.

In prosperous times an average of 1,000 carloads of live stock enter the yards daily—six days a week. The largest number of loaded cars entering in a day was 3,228. Again a comparison: The average freight train contains from fifty to sixty cars.

The most valuable steer ever sold in the yards was Lucky Strike, the "grand champion" steer of 1929. He was 428 days old, weighed 950 pounds, was bought at public auction in the yards for $8.25 a pound by J. C. Penny, chain store merchant, and was served up at a Christmas dinner for poor children in New York City. Another comparison: Fine beef on the hoof was selling in the yards in that year for fourteen cents a pound. The enormous price Lucky Strike brought—the total being $7,837.50—was due to the publicity created by his winning of the grand championship. The sale of the grand champion steer is always the International's premier sensation. Lucky Strike was raised by Elliott Brown of Rosehill, Mahaska county, Iowa.

One of the great problems of the yards is the feeding of the thousands of animals daily unloaded there. In good times a supply of from 4,000 to 5,000 tons of hay and straw is usually carried and there is storage room for 60,000 bushels of corn. These reserves are necessary because it is not always possible to buy from day to day or from week to week the amount of supplies required. There is no record of a day since the organization of the yards when ample feed for the animals was not in the storage barns.

The Yards as Schoolmaster.

I have spoken of the yards as an educational center. A specific instance of that work is the experience which the International gives young people in clear, rapid and accurate statements. More than a score of American colleges send teams of five boys each to take part in the International's contests on the judging of cattle, hogs, horses, sheep, meat, and grains.

These boys are the coming farmers and agricultural instructors of the nation. The correctness of their verdicts is passed on by committees of experts selected by the governors of the International. The experts are rigorous and their questions are rapid. Therein lies the test. A boy may know precisely why he favorably judged an animal on such and such points, but if, under the fire of questions, he loses his head and cannot clearly and briefly tell why, then the experts say, "Well, my boy, you are not making it clear. It's too bad, but you are out."

The high boy in a 1908 team is now Dean H. H. Kildee of Iowa State college and he says that to experience gained in these contests he owed his start as an expert.

8 Minutes to View; 8 to Tell It.

There are also non-collegiate judging contests in which the entrants are farm boys and girls of from ten to twenty years of age. Their high rewards are collegiate scholarships.

The points of excellence in an animal which the boys and girls must judge are topline, constitution, distribution of flesh—as to its being not lumpily placed—and breed characteristics—that is to say, the animal's trueness to form. They must differentiate as to four animals which they have been allowed eight minutes to observe, and in about the same time must give the experts the reasons for their verdicts, and do it without stammering or fluffing.

Napoleon and Dr. Johnson.

And now, having glimpsed some of the art and the achitecture, the colossal and the educational in the stockyards, do you still think of them as "just a slaughter house?" I trow not. For the truth—and even a supercilious Chicagoan who is half ashamed of the yards ought to be able to see it—is that the place has aspects, meanings, and messages at once the most extensive and the most personal to every Chicagoan and to millions of his fellow countrymen.

The extensive meanings may be summed up in nine words of Napoleon, who said: "Finances founded on good agriculture will never be ruined."

And the personal aspect was driven home by Samuel Johnson in his own blunt, incomparable way after that good supper he had one August evening at Colchester with young James Boswell.

"Some people," said he, "have a foolish way of not minding, or pretending not to mind, what they eat. For my part, I mind my belly very studiously and very carefully, for I look upon it that he who does not mind his belly will hardly mind anything else."

WITCH DOCTORS FAIL TO END PLAGUE; INDIAN CHIEF CALLS FOR HELP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PANAMA CITY, Nov. 25.—A jungle plague which has balked efforts of Indian witch doctors today forced Chief Cantule of the San Blas Indians to appeal to Panamanian health authorities for help. Physicians were sent by plane to the San Blas area, which is located on the north coast about 100 miles from the Panama Canal, this evening. The plague is reported to have killed more than 300 of the natives, most of them children.

The San Blasians, who live mainly on coastal islands, are a harmless, diminutive folk. They like to boast that they have never been conquered, either by Spain or Panama. Their territory, however, is owned by Panama. The Indians by refraining from intermarriage have preserved their racial integrity.

Their chief trade is with Colon, where they sell fish, cocoanuts and other native products. Until recently the San Blasians prevented visiting traders from spending their nights ashore. They compelled the traders to keep their distance aboard ship.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Natalie Hall, American actress of Boston and the leading lady of the "Ball at the Savoy" playing in the Drury Lane theater, announced her engagement today to Barry Mackay, who is appearing in the same production. She said she first met Mackay, who is the son of Leonard Mackay, the English musical comedy actor, in September.

HITLER TO LEAVE AUSTRIA ALONE, VIENNA IS TOLD

Germans Spread Word He Is Seeking Peace.

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Austria, Nov. 25.—German spokesmen here, who, though unofficial are easily recognizable, were spreading the word today that Adolf Hitler has at last decided to leave Austria alone.

They passed the good news around so diligently that the Austrians are forced to assume that they were acting on orders. A report comes, too, from Austrian Nazi sources who state that their leader, Alfred Proksch, an Austrian, has got to the ear of Hitler in Berlin and turned him against the provocative policies of Theodore Habicht, German inspector general of the Nazi party in Austria, who was operating with increasing animosity from Munich.

The Austrians are a skeptical race, but even governmental quarters here are inclined to accept the simpler story that Hitler has realized the fact that he cannot profess peace and expect to be believed so long as he continues to make passes at an Austria whose integrity would, there is little doubt, be defended with gusto by an embarrassing number of powers.

Bad Day for Relations.

Peace may be in the offing, but today was a bad day for Austro-German relations. Kurt Rieth, German minister to Austria, called on Chancellor Englebert Dollfuss tonight and demanded an explanation for the shooting on the Tyrolian-Bavarian frontier, near Kitzbuehel, of a German soldier.

He wanted to know two things: First, what Dollfuss is doing to investigate the death of Infantryman Schumacher, who, the Germans say, was shot on German territory, and, second, what steps he intends to take to prevent a recurrence of such gun play.

Dollfuss, it is learned, countered with the suggestion that perhaps the infantry man was on Austrian territory when he was felled, and said he would await the results of the official investigation in the mountains before issuing a reply.

Austrian Version of Shooting.

In an official communique tonight, the Austrian government declares categorically that the soldier was on Austrian territory when he was shot.

With 20 reichswehrmen or Nazi storm troopers, the Austrians are not sure which, on skis, he is supposed to have ventured onto Austrian territory. Three pro-Fascist Heimwehr men on border patrol duty were encountered. The Germans, according to the Austrian version, raised the cry, "Heil, Hitler," and the three Heimwehr men thought they were being attacked and opened fire.

Meanwhile, the first prospective clients for the gallows, which again became a reality in Austria with the declaration of martial law Nov. 10, put in their appearance.

They are six Nazis who were arrested at Ried, upper Austria, close to Braunau where Hitler was born. The men were seized after a bomb explosion broke 22 windows.

Authorities at Ried decided this was a clear case for the court at Vienna that, under martial law, must hand down a sentence which may mean death in three days' time.

But the court has to decide first whether it wants to take these six Nazis. Their bomb was an amateurish affair and, according to the law, the damage done must amount to at least 250 schillings [about $45]. The cost of the 22 windows at Ried must be figured out.

TEACH CHILDREN PEACE, PLEA OF MRS. ROOSEVELT

Urges New Outlet Besides War for Energy.

New York, Nov. 25.—[Special.]—The development of an outlet for the adventurous spirit of youth which heretofore has found its expression in war was urged upon more than 1,500 teachers and parents today by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Mrs. Roosevelt's message to parents and teachers was delivered at the annual regional conference of the Progressive Education association in the Hotel Pennsylvania.

Must Create New Ideal.

"I have a theory that our parents and our teachers are going to be responsible for one great thing in the future," Mrs. Roosevelt said. "They are going to be responsible for the state of mind which is either going to continue settling our difficulties by war throughout the world or it is going to give it up."

Mrs. Roosevelt felt that though disastrous, war, while it was going on, furnishes to youth "certain things which youth craves—a chance for self-sacrifice for an ideal." Those who went to the world war, she said, although many would not have admitted it, were possessed with an ideal.

"I believe we have got to find a substitute there in our education and in our homes, furnishing youth with an objective which they can feel is quite as grand and quite as great in possibilities as the chance they see when they go to war for their country and for some particular ideal which they think is going to be brought about as a result of that war."

Gives an Example.

For an example of her suggestion Mrs. Roosevelt said she had told the Junior league and the Red Cross that they might organize girls as they did during the world war into groups to be sent to other parts of the country as volunteer social workers. She had suggested, she said, that a New York girl might be sent to South Dakota, "where the grasshoppers have been eating everything in sight.

"She would come back having done a really adventurous job if she had really served as a social service worker there," Mrs. Roosevelt explained, "and with a greater knowledge of her own country and a different point of view as to what made life worth living."

GERMANY TO SEND TORTURERS OF ANIMALS TO JAIL

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—(AP)—A two year jail term threatens any one who "unnecessarily tortures or cruelly maltreats an animal" under the terms of a law for the protection of dumb animals promulgated today.

This law also forbids compelling an animal to do work exceeding its strength. It further prohibits any one to maintain, provide for, house, or transport an animal in a manner that causes it to suffer pain or damage.

Domestic animals may not be simply abandoned, nor may dogs be trained to chase cats, foxes, or other animals. Dogs' and horses' tails cannot be bobbed. Vivisection for strictly scientific purposes will be permitted only on condition that certain hitherto unproved results are likely to be achieved, that no animal be operated on more than once, and that it be killed painlessly immediately after the experiment.

J. D. Coffman Takes Job of Protecting Forests

Washington, D. C., Nov. 25.—(AP)—To assist interior department officials in protecting the forests of national parks, John D. Coffman, of the emergency conservation program, today took charge of a newly organized branch of forestry in the office of national parks, building and reservations.

HITLER LAUNCHES EFFORT TO PATCH ROW WITH PARIS

Sees French Ambassador at Secret Meeting.

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—(AP)—A secret visit by the French ambassador, Andre Francois-Poncet, to Chancellor Adolf Hitler, and their conference, reported to have concerned Germany's return to disarmament discussions, aroused intense interest tonight.

It was understood that Hitler, who six weeks ago today startled the world by withdrawing from the Geneva disarmament conference and the league of nations, requested the conversation and that the French envoy readily accepted the invitation.

The two met yesterday and news of the interview leaked out only by accident in governmental circles, much to the chagrin of Francois-Poncet, who, it was said, wished, like Hitler, that nothing be said about it.

Inaugurates New Policy.

The reason offered for the secrecy was that France yesterday was without a government following upon the defeat of Premier Albert Sarraut's cabinet on a budgetary measure.

It was assumed in diplomatic quarters that Hitler's request constituted an inauguration of his declared policy of dealing individually with representatives of various powers and that, after successful personal negotiations with the Polish envoy, the same course will be followed by the chancellor in his relations with France.

Some observers said it was really the old diplomacy, like the prodigal son, returning home again.

Satisfaction, however, was expressed on many sides at what bids fair to be a prelude to a series of personal negotiations on the vexing Franco-German problems.

Await New French Cabinet.

Much will depend, naturally, on instructions Francois-Poncet will receive in the course of the next few days from the new head of the French government.

For one version of the conference—that the interview had to do with complaints about the Petit Parisian's alleged revelations regarding reported propaganda campaigns abroad by Germany—there seemed to be no foundation.

Rather, highly placed circles appeared to be of the opinion that this marked the beginning of direct negotiation and was a part of a free exchange of views on disarmament.

It was pointed out that the British foreign secretary, Sir John Simon, told the house of commons yesterday that Great Britain had communicated with the Italian, French, and German governments about arms conversations in which Germany should be treated not as a "target for dictation" but as "a partner for discussion."

Reports Hitler Demands Saar.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 25.—Settlement of the Saar question—meaning its return to Germany without a plebiscite—was demanded by Chancellor Hitler in his interview with the French ambassador, Andre Francois-Poncet, according to the newspaper Echo de Paris.

The return of the Saar to Germany under the Hitler plan, it was said, would be achieved by a treaty, forestalling the necessity of the 1935 plebiscite. The treaty presumably would include safeguards of French investments in the territory.

SECRETARY HULL TO SEEK A TRADE PACT WITH BRAZIL

Pan-American Delegation Reaches Sao Paulo.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Several South American governments regarded as a maneuver tonight the recent White House declaration that the United States cannot discuss monetary and tariff problems at the forthcoming Pan-American conference in Montevideo.

Latin America, except Paraguay and possibly Cuba, considers these subjects, which previously were supposed to constitute the keynote of the United States' program at the coming "little world economic conference," as transcendental.

Doubting that domestic preoccupation could so divert the United States from inter-American tariff and money problems, some quarters felt Secretary of State Cordell Hull would consent to such discussions after perceiving the South American temper.

Seeks U. S.-Brazil Trade Pact.

Secretary Hull reached Sao Paulo, Brazil, with the American delegation to the Montevideo conference today and indicated that commercial trade arrangements may be worked out between the United States and Brazil.

"Suitable trade arrangements by which my country can exchange surplus flour, automobiles, and machinery for most of the surplus commodities of Brazil can and should be worked out," Mr. Hull said.

"I am sure that by bringing to bear mutually sincere purposes and intelligent coöperation we will be able to build a sturdy trade structure in the future.

"What is more important, by improving our everyday commercial relations we can exert an even stronger joint influence in the cause of world peace."

Comment by Press.

The newspaper Nacion called an agreement on monetary and tariff problems "a decisive influence upon Pan-American economic unity."

The newspaper Prensa conceded that "President Roosevelt sees clearly that such unity cannot be borne without tightening commercial ties."

Prensa added, however, that the United States' statement "is not a hopeful document" and that existing conditions require a more "immediate alleviation" than would be afforded by other means while customs walls remain.

The only item the United States consents to discuss, the newspaper declared, is the organization of peace votes.

PERUVIANS BUY 2 WARSHIPS; SAY IT WAS A 'FRAUD'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TALLINN, Estonia, Nov. 25.—Estonia is chuckling over her sale of two old destroyers to Peru for $400,000 in gold and over the mishaps of the Peruvian crews which, after three months, have succeeded in sailing their ships only from here to Lisbon. They suffered one breakdown after another.

According to one report reaching here, the commander has given up hope of reaching the home port and the destroyers, Lennuk and Vambola, will be disposed of in Europe for their junk value. They were originally built by Russia, one in 1917 and the other in 1918.

The Peruvians, according to dispatches received here, are peeved, claiming they were swindled. The Estonians retort that the Peruvians are bad sailors.

The Estonian parliament has decided to purchase two submarines and two submarine chasers with the cash received from Peru.

Tosses Cop Through Plate Glass Window and Is Shot

It's bum business to throw Policeman Thomas Conroy through a plate glass window. Michael Campbell, 40 years old, 7019 South Union avenue, and Oscar George, 41, of 7019 Stewart avenue, both said to be on relief rolls, found that out last night. Policeman Conroy met them in the Hingas restaurant at 5100 South Halsted street because they allegedly refused to pay for their meals. Campbell and George promptly threw him into the street—through the front window. Policeman Conroy retaliated by shooting Campbell in the thigh and arresting him and George.

New Peruvian Cabinet Is Formed; Ends Crisis

LIMA, Peru, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Official announcement of the formation of a new cabinet headed by José de la Riva Aguero today solved a three day ministerial crisis following the resignation of the Prado Ugarteche government on Nov. 23. The new premier will also hold the portfolios of justice and education. Alfredo Henriod, new minister of the interior and police, is at present consul general in New York. He is expected to arrive here on Dec. 2.

G. B. S. IS CHEERED AS HIS NEW PLAY ABOUT THE DEPRESSION OPENS

LONDON, Nov. 25.—(AP)—George Bernard Shaw was given a spontaneous ovation tonight at the opening performance of his new play, "On the Rocks."

Picturing modern England on the verge of a revolution, with unemployed persons overrunning the country and finally sweeping through Downing street as the curtain falls, the play reaches a climax more dramatic than the usual Shavian political dissertations for the stage.

As at a political meeting, the audience became so wrapped in the arguments presented in dialogue that shouts of dissent and cries of approval came from the gallery and from stalls filled with a distinguished first night audience.

Shaw beamed from a box during the presentation, but holding a lifelong belief that the stage is for actors and not playwrights he refused to take a curtain call, leaving this honor for Nicholas Hannen, who acted the part of the prime minister, and the cast.

MUSSOLINI PLANS DRASTIC SHAKEUP IN AIR SERVICE

Chicago Flight Leader to Be Retired.

ROME, Nov. 25.—(AP)—A sweeping reorganization of the air corps personnel under the new air minister, Premier Mussolini, was reported in authoritative circles tonight to be imminent.

The elimination of spectacular flights, such as the journey of an Italian seaplane squadron under Italo Balbo to Chicago and back last summer, also was said to be under consideration.

Money which would be used in such endeavors will henceforth be applied to improving equipment and training throughout the service.

To Retire Pellegrini.

The reported personnel changes will include the retirement of Gen. Aldo Pellegrini, second in command during the Chicago flight, the probable reassignment of Col. Ulisse Longo, third in command of the Chicago squadron, and the retirement of Gens. Vincenzo Lombard and Pietro Opizzi.

Gen. Pellegrini now is in charge of the ministry bureau dealing with foreign attachés.

Many other officers who owe their present high posts to Balbo's personal approbation, will be demoted or reassigned, it was understood, when Il Duce places in effect the old army system of promotion by service seniority.

To Advance Veterans.

Gen. Balbo, former air marshal and head of the air ministry, recently was made governor of Libya, in a cabinet shakeup.

It was said that the new policy embraces the advancement of numerous veteran officers "who have been stagnating in recent years."

The entire new policy is referred to as a "normalization" of service to promote the general efficiency of the entire corps, in contrast to the recent system of intense concentration on spectacular exploits aimed at promoting prestige abroad.

Leonard's Thanksgiving Plans Thwarted by Cops

Leonard Stevenson's plans for a festive Thanksgiving day next week went aglimmering this morning. Lieut. Thomas Keenan and a squad from the North Damen avenue station caught him as he was leaving from a rear door of the North Center meat market, 4126 Lincoln avenue, carrying two turkeys and a goose. Police predict that Stevenson, who is 29 years old, and lives at 1928 Cuyler avenue, probably will not be home Thanksgiving.

Montana Hills Alive with Eager Gold Hunters

Helena, Mont., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Scores of "pokes" of newly mined gold are being pushed across the counters of assayers' offices here. The hills and coulees of the Helena area have become beehives of eager gold hunters. Though essentially a "gold country," Montana metallists also are more than mildly interested in the affinity, silver, which dropped from its wartime peak of $1.33 an ounce, to 25 cents, and now is surging upward again around the 5[illegible] cent mark.

BEGINS PICKING 'CRISIS CABINET' TO RULE FRANCE

Chautemps Expects to Finish Task Today.

PARIS, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Premier Designate Camille Chautemps started forming a "crisis cabinet" tonight in the face of a mounting clamor for the rescue of the franc from perils of an unbalanced budget and dwindling gold reserves.

As the second choice of President Albert Lebrun, the veteran lawyer, legislator, and minister was said to be seeking a ministry that would last until the veteran Edouard Herriot would again be ready to take the helm.

The cabinet, Chautemps said, would be dedicated to a program of "public safety at home and national security abroad."

May Finish Task Today.

Political forecasters had already set Chautemps' ministerial funeral for Dec. 17, so that Herriot, whose government fell last December on his advocacy of a war debt payment to the United States, could avoid another debt default—an extremely embarrassing point to Herriot.

In the meantime wranglings in his Radical Socialist party over portfolios and opposition to new taxes complicated the task of Chautemps.

President Lebrun offered the cabinet forming job to Chautemps after a series of consultations with political leaders and the refusal of Herriot to assume the task.

Gesture to Herriot.

Herriot, it was understood, was tendered the opportunity as something of a gesture, because Herriot has hardly recovered from a serious three month illness and is known to want to defer any plans he may have at least until after the anniversary of his defeat last Dec. 14.

Chautemps' cabinet would be the fourth France has had in the last 12 months. That of Albert Sarraut stepped down early yesterday after the recalcitrant chamber of deputies had once more spurned the government's attempts to balance the budget and "save the franc" on an economy and new tax program.

Paraguay Claims Troops Repulse Bolivian Attack

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The war office announced today that Paraguayan troops had repulsed a sharp attack by Bolivian forces yesterday against the Paraguayan line at Toledo in the Chaco territory. Seventeen Bolivians were said to have been slain. The war office said the Bolivians were retreating in disorder.

Several Reported Drowned in Honduran River Flood

ASK STARS OF AIR AND STAGE TO AID BENEFIT

John Balaban, chairman of the theatrical committee for the benefit show to be staged at the Chicago Stadium on Dec. 20 for Chicago's own Christmas benefit, said yesterday that invitations have been extended to hundreds of stage, radio, and screen stars to participate. Proceeds from the show, which is being sponsored by Mayor Kelly, will be used to purchase clothes and toys for every needy child in the city.

The entertainment plans call for symphony orchestras, nationally known choirs, renowned dance bands, vaudeville, musical comedy, and legitimate stage headliners, radio performers of national repute, and as many movie stars as can come to Chicago on the show date. In addition celebrities from all branches of amateur and professional athletics will be presented.

SPAIN NIPS REBEL PLOT; 50 BOMBS SEIZED BY POLICE

MADRID, Nov. 26.—[Sunday.]—(AP)—Discovery of a nation-wide syndicalist revolutionary plot, scheduled to begin Monday, was announced early today by the government. The announcement said the revolution was to have lasted through next Sunday's elections, scheduled in many districts where last week's national balloting failed to produce the required 40 per cent plurality for a political party.

The government announced it had arrested five persons, including two women, in Huesca where the plot was formulated. It said police had seized more than 50 large bombs, numerous rifles and pistols and a large quantity of ammunition.

A reign of terror including the bombing of power lines and aqueducts, the dynamiting of bridges and paralyzing of transportation and public utilities was said to have been planned. The government said it believed the plot was completely frustrated.

CHINA MAKING RAPID STRIDES IN AVIATION

Approaching Strength of Leading Air Powers.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Nov. 25.—Although it has as yet attracted little attention internationally, the Chinese national government in recent months has made such rapid strides in aviation development that the country is rapidly approaching the strength of the six leading air powers. Already China is ahead of some of the smaller European nations such as Netherlands with some 300 planes, and in the event China succeeds in carrying out her present program, she will by 1935 be approaching the positions of soviet Russia and Poland, each of which have between 700 and 800 planes.

The Chinese program has been carried out so secretly that few persons, even foreigners residing in China, are familiar with what is going on at the military aviation school at Hangchow, which is only about a hundred miles from Shanghai. But Shanghai's foreign population recently has received some thrills in this regard by observing modern bombing and training planes, manned by Chinese pilots, flying in formation over the foreign settlements. Recent demonstrations of this character have been conducted for the purpose of stimulating further interest in the government's program and on each occasion the city was showered with leaflets containing the slogan, "Hon-Ko-Chui-Ko," meaning "National salvation by use of airplanes."

Dollars Pour In.

Millions of these circulars have been showered over the countryside, thousands of them falling on villages which heretofore have known only the primitive wheelbarrow, sedan chair or ricksha and as a result millions of dollars have rolled into the coffers of the official and semi-official organizations in Shanghai and Nanking which are behind the scheme. At the present time two separate groups of young Chinese aviators are out "barnstorming" over the country for this purpose.

One group is headed by a 21 year old Shantung boy who received his aviation training in Germany and flew his own plane back to China from Europe by way of India. Another group is promoted by the Chinese naval airplane factory at Amoy in Fukien province, China's initial attempt to manufacture planes by using engines imported from the United States.

The exact number of fighting planes which China possesses at the present is not known. The armament year book issued by the league of nations credited China with 150 to 200 a year ago, but foreign military observers claim the present number is nearer 400 at the present, especially when the planes owned by the Canton, Kwangsi and other provincial governments are added to the national establishment at Hangchow.

Many New Airports.

Within recent weeks Gen. Chiang Kai-shek has constructed new airdromes at Nanchang in Kiangsi province and elsewhere in the interior which are built to accommodate 300 planes each. The airdrome at Nanchang, constructed for use in the anti-Red campaign, was completed in two weeks by using 30,000 laborers. In a recent aviation demonstration staged by Gen. Chen Ming-shu, military dictator at Canton, 115 war planes were used, 75 of which belonged to the Canton establishment and 40 to Kwangsi province. Many other provinces also have their aviation establishments, even Szechuen and Shansi in the distant interior.

Chief development, however, has taken place at the government school at Hangchow, capital of Chekiang province, which is most modern, including facilities for night flying and the most modern defense arrangements. The Hangchow school owes its inspiration to the Japanese bombing of Chapei in the Chinese-Japanese fighting which took place here early in 1932. It was the sight of Japanese naval and land planes bombing this undefended native surburb of Shanghai, viewed by thousands of Chinese daily for nearly a month, that inspired the Chinese of high and low degree to develop an air service.

The entire country literally has been scraped for funds for this purpose. Much of the money previously spent on the more or less useless navy, was diverted to the purchase of planes and now as a last resort a national lottery has been inaugurated with drawings held every three months. This is expected to bring in five or six millions annually.

Patriotic Drives.

In addition so-called patriotic drives are being staged everywhere and new planes are being donated from unexpected places. Recently the laborers on the Peiping-Hankow railway contributed funds to purchase a modern bomber and another was given by the citizens of Ningpo, small port city to the south of Shanghai. A Chinese manufacturer of soya-sauce, an oriental conception of "Worcestershire," contributed funds for the purchase of a new Curtiss-Hawk pursuit plane. Another rich Chinese who allegedly amassed his fortune in the opium and gambling monopoly in one of the foreign concessions, donated three planes. Altogether some 30 planes have been purchased from funds raised by public subscription in China and, according to report, a dozen more have been donated by Chinese residing abroad in such places as the Philippines, United States, Netherlands, Indies, Singapore, and Siam.

Rapid Strides in Civilian Flying.

The chief adviser at the Hangchow school is Col. John H. Jouett, a former United States army pilot, with whom are associated several other expert American aviators.

In addition to the development in military aviation the country also has made rapid strides in civilian flying, this branch being greatly accellerated by coöperative arrangements with Pan-American Airways of the United States and the German Luft-Hansa interests.

FIVE EX-OFFICERS OF CUBAN ARMY LYNCHED BY MOB

Machado Aids Are Taken from Guard and Shot.

BY GUSTAVO RENO.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Nov. 25.—Five former army officers, charged with numerous slayings of political foes during the régime of former President Machado, were lined up and massacred by 40 masked men using machine guns near Colon, Matanzas province, today.

The five had been prisoners since Aug. 12, the day Machado was ousted. Today they were taken from San Severino castle at Matanzas, which is used as a garrison and prison, and were placed in an ambulance with a military escort. The convoy started for Santa Clara City, where the five were to be arraigned before the tribunal of sanctions.

Military Guard Tied Up.

Near a place known as Chucho Aguica, two miles north of the Alava sugar mill, the masked men in automobiles overtook the convoy. The gang covered Lieut. Rudolfo Arango and his five soldiers with guns and tied them with ropes. The prisoners were taken from the ambulance, lined up on the central highway, and shot down. The masked gang then fled.

The five slain men and the positions they formerly held were:

Lieut. Armando Vilches, commander of Colon barracks.

The officers were charged with killing the five Alvarez brothers, prominent anti-Machado revolutionists, in 1932.

President Grau Tells Views.

President Ramon Grau San Martin today showed a somewhat more conciliatory attude toward future Cuban-American relations following President Roosevelt's declarations regarding the United States' policy towards Cuba.

"Actual events prove that the policy of my government is one of respect for liberty, order, and justice," President Grau said. "I have attacked the Platt amendment because Cuba's new revolutionary spirit, of which the government is the most faithful interpreter, feels that all international treaties should be based on mutual justice and liberty.

"Cuba has asked for a revision of the permanent treaty of 1903, which makes the amendment a compulsory and integral part of the constitution, in accordance with modern democratic interpretation of justice and for adequate protection and mutual solution of social, economic, and political problems. I deem that no international treaty should impair the liberty and sovereignty of either signatory."

Guarantees Welles' Security.

Commenting on President Roosevelt's statement that Ambassador Sumner Welles will return to Cuba until he is replaced by Jefferson Caffery, President Grau said: "Welles will receive the government's full guarantees for his life, protection, and freedom, which are enjoyed by all private foreign residents of and visitors to Cuba. The government will not support or participate in any demonstration against Welles as planned by the student directorate."

President Grau declined to say whether he would tolerate or prohibit the hostile reception planned for Welles, but it is generally accepted that he will not interfere.

SLAIN BY BANDIT IN STORE BUT NOT MISSED 6 HOURS

Victim of a bandit bullet, Frank Naga, 35 years old, was found dead at 1 o'clock this morning in the basement of the Fair Deal meat market at 263 North Crawford avenue, where he worked as a porter.

Naga had been shot six hours before, but neither his employers nor any one else knew it at the time. Moreover, not having seen him around at the time they did not miss him afterward.

It was around 7 o'clock that four bandits entered the butcher shop and robbed Anthony Cascio, the owner, of $15. When one of the employés moved as if to resist the robbers sprinkled the place with bullets, then fled. Police made the usual investigation.

Then at 1 o'clock this morning, after the store had been closed, a janitor went into the basement to attend to the furnace. He found Naga dead at the bottom of the stairs, a bullet wound in his side. As police reconstructed the killing, Naga was climbing the basement stairs at the time of the robbery and as he reached the door leading to the store, a bandit shot pierced the door and hit him. A bullet hole was found in the door. Naga lived at the Cascio home, 4924 Iowa street.

LONG TREASURER GIVES $10,000 TO AID CANDIDATE

Denies Money Went for Overton Campaign.

New Orleans, La., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Testimony that Seymour Weiss, treasurer of Huey P. Long's political organization, had given him from $10,000 to $12,000 to run his campaign for public service commissioner was made today by Wade O. Martin, who ran on the same ticket with Senator John H. Overton, before the senate subcommittee investigating the Overton election.

Mr. Martin said the money was paid him by Weiss by draft, but mostly in cash, and at one time he gave him $2,000 in cash in an envelope at the Roosevelt hotel. The money, he said, was used for campaign expenses, but none of it was used directly in the Overton campaign. He admitted he had worked for Overton's election and both Senators Long and Overton worked for him.

Mr. Martin said that campaign funds were raised by calling on jobholders to contribute.

Contributions Are Voluntary.

"Sometimes it was 10 per cent, sometimes 5 per cent," he said. He asserted that the contributions were voluntary, but that as far as he himself was concerned if any employé refused to contribute he would fire him. Contributions by jobholders, he said, should be regarded in the light of insurance to protect the job.

"All of them get money from their followers and jobholders," he said.

"Both sides do it. There are two major political parties in Louisiana, the 'ins' and 'outs.'

"But the 'outs' don't get campaign funds from the public treasury," said Chairman Tom Connally [Dem., Tex.].

"The 'ins' don't, either," said the witness. "It comes out of our pockets after we get paid."

Responsible for Dummies.

Mr. Martin said he was responsible for the use of dummy candidates in his district and Mr. Overton had nothing to do with them. But he agreed with Senator Elbert Thomas [Dem., Utah] that the election commissioners chosen through the use of Martin dummies were pro-Overton.

His opponent, Mr. Martin said, used dummies and he was forced to use them for self-protection, but he did not believe in the dummy device and thought a law should be passed to prevent it.

Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, active head of the Choctaw club, political organization of New Orleans, came before the committee with his arms full of ledgers and said he wished to correct the impression that the club did not keep any records. He said the records of the club were available to the committee but there were not any records of contributions to the Overton campaign because the club made none.

R. C. Kincaid, a commissioner for ex-Senator Broussard, who was defeated by Senator Overton, said he wished to correct testimony made by a previous witness that he had refused to sign the tally sheets and that ballots were missing at the polls.

"Are you or were you on the pay roll?" asked Chairman Connally.

"No," replied Kincaid.

EYELESS MARINE FREAK IS CAUGHT IN DEEP WATER

VANCOUVER, Nov. 25.—(AP)—A marine freak without eyes, six feet long, less than three inches at its greatest width, smooth without fins or scales, was caught off Siwash Rock, Stanley Park, yesterday by three Barclay brothers, Charles, Fred, and William. It was taken on their cod lines at a place where the water is 180 feet deep.

The theory was advanced it might be a "sea ship" which is really a colony of minute creatures attached to each other, giving the appearance of one body.

There was no suggestion the new discovery could be linked with "Amiable Amy," the big monster, estimated at 80 feet long, which spectators claimed to have seen along the Vancouver coastline.

JUDGE ORDERS "SCOTTSBORO CASE" TO TRIAL

Refuses Plea to Quash Indictments.

Decatur, Ala., Nov. 25.—(AP)—The last obstacle to the third trial of Heywood Patterson, one of several Negro defendants in the "Scottsboro case," was removed today as Judge W. W. Callahan overruled a motion to quash the indictment on grounds of alleged fraud and "systematic exclusion of Negroes" from the jury rolls.

The jurist held there was not sufficient evidence to "presume fraud" in the entering of several Negroes' names on the rolls from which the grand jury had been drawn and that there was not conclusive testimony that Negroes were "systematically excluded."

Defense Loses Point.

Samuel S. Leibowitz, chief counsel retained by the international labor defense to defend the Negroes, entered an exception to the ruling, paving the way to take the case to the United States Supreme court again, where death sentences imposed on all the defendants on April 9, 1931, were set aside.

Leibowitz also sought to summon additional witnesses, offering six of the Negroes whose names appeared on the rolls to "prove that except for those in controversy, there are no Negro names on the roll." He also sought to call Judge A. E. Hawkins of Fort Payne, before whom the Negroes first were tried, Sheriff J. E. McBride of Jackson county and J. M. Money, probate judge of the county.

Refused Venue Change.

Judge Callahan denied the request. Judge Callahan earlier this week had overruled motions for a change of venue and a motion to quash the venire drawn for the Patterson trial.

Patterson and the other six defendants are charged with attacking Mrs. Victoria Price and Ruby Bates, Huntsville mill workers, aboard a southern railway freight train in Jackson county, on March 25, 1931, as the two women were hoboing their way home from Chattanooga.

Attorney Is Arraigned on Ex-Wife's Alimony Charge

Wilbur F. Kellogg, a patent attorney with offices at 35 East Wacker drive, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday on complaint of his former wife that he failed to keep up alimony payments for the support of their 13 year old daughter, Jeane. The mother and child are residents of Washington, D. C., where the divorce action was brought in federal court. Kellogg, who has remarried and lives at 2100 Home avenue, said he had paid $9,000 in alimony. He was released on $1,000 bonds, pending a hearing on Nov. 28 on the question of whether he is to be removed to Washington.

KANSAS HOUSE ACCEPTS CHARGE VS. ATTY. GENERAL

Impeachment Is Asked on Grounds of Neglect.

Topeka, Kas., Nov. 25.—(AP)—By action of the house of the Kansas legislature, which today accepted four articles of impeachment, Attorney General Roland Boynton of Kansas stands formally charged with complicity in the state's million dollar bogus bond scandal and neglect of the duties of his office.

Adoption of the articles, by votes ranging from 93 to 15 on article one to 87 to 1[illegible] on article three, resulted from investigation of Boynton's dealings with Ronald Finney, young broker facing various criminal charges in connection with the bond disclosures.

Some Irregular Transactions.

The first article charges Boynton with "a want of reasonable fidelity" as a trustee of the state school fund in purchasing municipal bonds from Finney at more than the market value. The second accuses Boynton of knowledge of alleged irregular transactions by Finney in his bond dealings, including "various and sundry forgeries and falsification of records," which Boynton "knowingly and willfully neglected to investigate and prosecute."

Article three charges a conspiracy between Boynton, Finney, Tom B. Boyd, resigned state treasurer, and others, alleging the attorney general aided Finney and the rest "in defrauding the state of Kansas and its political divisions." The fourth article asserts Boynton's usefulness as attorney general has been destroyed through his friendship and profitable relations with Finney.

No Date for His Trial.

No definite date for Boynton's trial before the senate was set, but several members expressed the opinion it might be delayed until after the first of the year to give the attorney general time to prepare his defense. Boynton, who previously had asserted his readiness to meet any charge the house might vote, had no further comment.

CHIP AT STONE FOR SKELETONS OF "UNKNOWN RACE"

30,000 Year Old Grave Found in Holy Land.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—[U. P.]—A force of archaeologists chipped away today at limestone believed to contain the skeletons of an "unknown race," embedded 30,000 years ago in a Palestine cemetery.

The research work, it was revealed today, is being conducted in the vaults of the Royal College of Surgeons. The "bodies" were found in a cave on the slope of the Mount Carmel district of Palestine by an expedition jointly promoted by the British School of Archaeology in Jerusalem and the United States School of Prehistoric Studies.

"We had marvelous luck to stumble on a cemetery of 30,000 years ago," Theodore McCown, American member of the expedition, said today. "Our first discovery was the unearthing of the skull of a child. We dug on and finally uncovered the complete skeleton. After many months of labor we found eight more skeletons lying in a row seven feet up the side of the cave.

"The bodies were all doubled up, to take as little space as possible in the prehistoric cemetery. Our theory is that the bodies were doubled up deliberately after death, and tied with some material which has since disappeared. Several of the skeletons are almost wholly undamaged."

"It seems certain," McCown added, "that the Palestine man is akin to the Neanderthaler man—his contemporary in Europe—though there are some important differences which make it clear that he is a separate race."

Sir Arthur Keith, eminent anthropologist, who is to make a report on the discoveries, said today that it is his belief that the skeletons are "much the most important and fully developed discovery yet made of the mid-pleistocene man."

LIQUOR CONVICTION OF 71 TO BE REVIEWED BY COURT NEXT MONTH

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Although it will not review their conviction on a liquor conspiracy charge until next March, the U. S. Circuit court of appeals today served informal notice on State Senator John J. McClure and his 70 codefendants that it will brook no delay when the time comes.

McClure was convicted yesterday of participation in a "protection" organization which the government alleged levied tribute on lawbreakers throughout Delaware county and hired police officers to enforce its reign.

Judge Joseph Buffington, senior jurist on the Circuit bench, instructed Clerk William P. Rowland to advise government and defense counsel to hasten printing of the voluminous records so that everything will be ready for the hearing in March. The record includes 2,250,000 words of testimony, to which briefs will be appended.

HOPE FOR STATE LIQUOR CONTROL LAW FADING OUT

Assembly Tackles Knot Again Tomorrow.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Unless all the ordinarily accepted signs fail, the Illinois general assembly will resume its special session on liquor regulation tomorrow with advocates of a state liquor control law completely without hope of attaining their goal.

So rapidly did the attendance in both houses dwindle last week and so divided was the opinion over the type of law to be adopted that the most optimistic observers would not predict a two-thirds majority in either chamber before Dec. 5 or soon thereafter.

Want Local Control.

Under these conditions, conscientious members from all parts of the state were agreed in only one conclusion—that control must be established by the local communities of the state, the cities, villages, towns, and counties under their general police powers.

Gov. Horner and other backers of the simplicity program, it is said, were desirous of reaching an agreed program and bill. Senator Harold G. Ward and a majority of the commission framed one bill and a minority of the commission—Ralph M. Shaw and Conrad Poppenhusen—drafted a much more detailed bill specifying exactly how liquor will be handled in Illinois.

There is a third proposal before the house of representatives. Both the short and the long bills are before the legislature as alternative measures in the report of the Ward commission. The third measure is not expected to attract much attention. This consists of a copy of the Ontario liquor control plan introduced by Sol Handy [Dem., Marshall].

Legislators Resentful.

Some old-timers said during the last week that the numerous absences were due to two causes—one, a resentment of imputations that the brewers and distillers were ready to buy a bill to their liking. The other is a feeling that the silence of interested manufacturers must be broken before business on the two-thirds scale could be transacted. There was nothing of an evidential nature in these stories. Reporters hunted all day long to ascertain if there was anything back of what were called the natural suspicions. Their results were nil.

Under such an impasse, members of both houses see themselves confronted with nothing but a choice between two bills having the same general purpose. One has become known as the Ward bill because Senator Ward drafted it in compliance with general instructions from the commission he heads. The other is called the Shaw bill because Attorney Shaw, conceded to be a conscientious disciple of the cause of repeal, spent many days drafting the measure he thought the situation demanded.

Short Bill Most Hopeful.

Observers say the assembly's chances of enacting some law by Dec. 5 will be better if it swings behind the short, or Ward, bill.

The essential difference between the two bills is that the Ward measure returns to cities, villages, and counties the same measure of home rule they had in pre-war days. For example, it drops in the lap of the mayor of Chicago the whole question whether he will allow a drink seller to operate, to continue in business, or be closed up.

The two bills' definitions of beer, wine and whisky are, in general, the same. Then comes the first parting of the roads. The Ward bill would hand back to the cities the powers they had before the war. It would leave, for example, plenary powers in the city council to draft whatever city ordinances it may deem requisite.

Sets Up Commission.

The Shaw bill, going into more detail, would create an Illinois liquor control commission consisting of three members, to be appointed by the governor, not more than two of whom could be members of the same party. This commission would have limited authority, having authority over railroad and boat licenses and acting as an appeal board. It would have no power to license drinking places in municipalities, that authority, as in Chicago, for example, being vested solely in the mayor.

This bill goes into great detail in specifying the character of those to whom licenses should be granted.

U. S. REALIZES $399,846 IN SALE OF SEIZED LIQUOR

New York, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The Bernheim Distilling corporation was successful bidder in the first sale by the government of liquor seized by coast guard vessels.

Bids opened at the federal building in Brooklyn yesterday showed the Bernheim corporation had submitted the highest of eight offers for 24,624 cases, 116 demijohns and two 50 gallon barrels of assorted liquors.

At the rate of $16.10 a case for the bottled liquor and $5 a gallon for the rest, the government will realize $399,846.40, less any deduction for broken bottles.

WETS WARN THEY WILL FIGHT RIGID U. S. LIQUOR RULE

Favor State Control of Booze Industry.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's program for absolute governmental control of the liquor industry after repeal may encounter the militant opposition of the same wet organizations which led the thirteen year fight to end national prohibition, it was learned today.

As it became increasingly certain that the administration will not materially relax the rigid control plan embodied in the revised distillers' code, Jouett Shouse, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, admitted the strong possibility that his organization will undertake a new fight against iron bound federal liquor regulation instead of disbanding as had been planned.

Hearings on Code End.

Mr. Shouse and other wet leaders are understood to feel that rigid governmental regulation of the liquor traffic is not what the wet organizations have been seeking for the last thirteen years, nor, they point out, does the administration's present program appear to coincide with the Democratic platform which promised a return of liquor regulation "completely" to the states.

Although formal public hearings on the distillers' code ended early today, the President's special liquor control committee, which drafted the pact, went into conference with a special committee representing the distillery interests to discuss the amendments proposed by the industry during the hearings.

None of the distillers entertained sanguine hopes that the alterations suggested by the industry will be adopted, however. It was reported that President Roosevelt had been advised of the nature of the industry's proposals and that he has instructed the liquor control committee to stand firm against material compromise.

Branded "Confiscations."

At best, spokesmen for the industry stated, they hope for relaxation of the drastic plant production limitation section of the administration approved code, which will permit the use of liquor producing facilities now in process of construction. Under the code as originally drawn by the presidential committee, only that plant capacity in use either at the time of repeal or on the effective date of the code, whichever might be earlier, could be continued after repeal except by special government permit. The provision, which in effect gave the government absolute control over future liquor production, was branded "confiscation of property" by spokesmen for the industry.

To Keep Price Rule.

In view of the instructions understood to have been given the committee by President Roosevelt, it was regarded as almost certain that the code as finally approved will contain its present provision for federal control over liquor prices and liquor sales and its present plan for domination of the industry by a federal alcohol control administration.

It was regarded as likely, however, that the administration may assent to a compromise on that provision of the distillers' marketing agreement which requires all liquor to be made of grain. Eastern distillers who have used molasses in the manufacture of inexpensive whisky, backed by Louisiana cane growers, charged the administration during the hearings were seeking to curry favor in the grain belt through this section of the agreement, which further binds distillers to pay "parity" prices for grain.

FARMER'S BOAR KILLS BIG BAD BEAR AND SAVES 3 LITTLE PIGS

Tacoma, Wash., Nov. 25.—(AP)—And the little pigs were happy because pap pig killed the big, bad bear.

Sheriff Jeff Bartell told this bedtime story today and he wasn't kidding—his boar did kill a big, black bear after hours of battling to save the lives of the three little pigs.

His children on the Bartell ranch told him a big bear with two little cubs had come to the pig pen and was trying to eat the little pigs and that a 625 pound boar was battling the bear. The sheriff thought his youngsters had lively imaginations.

Six hours later, he said, he went to the pig pen. The boar, protecting his little pigs and their mother, had ripped into the bear hour after hour and killed it. The claws and teeth of the bear cost the boar an eye, an ear, and several gashes.

MOTHER, 81, HAS SON, 58, JAILED FOR DRINKING

A frail 81 year old mother yesterday pleaded with Judge Harold P. O'Connell in the Town Hall court to send her 58 year old "boy" to jail to cure him of drinking. The son, Lee Ingham, hung his head in shame as his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Ingham, 606 York place, made her charge.

"Look at yourself," the mother said. "Your hands are shaking from the canned heat and moonshine you drink. You ought to be ashamed of yourself. Judge, he has been drinking for 30 years and I want him where he won't drink any more.

"He steals my glasses and pawns them to get drink. Then he sends me the ticket so I will buy them back for him to steal again. He even stole my false teeth to get moonshine."

At this the son, looking reprovingly at his mother, said: "Now, mamma, don't be telling the judge lies."

Judge O'Connell imposed the maximum fine of $200 and ordered Ingham taken to the bridewell. The mother thanked the judge.

36 Cars of California Wine on Way to East

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 25.—(AP)—California wine will be plentiful on the eastern seaboard when the passing of prohibition is celebrated. The Union Pacific railroad today announced the beginning of an eastward movement of 36 cars of the beverage, the first carload shipment it has handled since the advent of prohibition, from the Italian-Swiss colony at Asti, Cal. The movement, all headed for the Atlantic seaboard, began Thursday night with 12 car loads; fifteen will start tonight and nine tomorrow night.

U. S. JUDGE CLEANS HAMMOND SLATE OF DRY LAW CASES

Thirty-one assorted prohibition cases were dismissed yesterday at the instance of Assistant District Attorney William Duff before Federal Judge Thomas W. Slick at Hammond. This practically cleaned the docket of remnants of the Volstead law, Duff said. The government did not, as in the past, ask padlock proceedings or injunctions against the premises and owners.

PUT HUSBAND UNDER BOND.

James B. Kerr, 49 years old, 3041 Hartzell street, Evanston, was placed under a $1,000 peace bond for a year by Judge Harry H. Porter yesterday after his wife, Elizabeth, testified that he struck her.

U. S. QUESTIONS DILLINGER PAL SEIZED IN CITY

Seeks to Learn Hiding Place of Desperado.

Hopeful for a clew to the whereabouts of John Dillinger, escaped convict and leader of a band of Indiana desperadoes, Melvin H. Purvis, department of justice agent, yesterday questioned Leslie Homer, 41 years old, of Indianapolis, who was captured by Chicago police Friday afternoon at Ohio and La Salle streets.

Homer is known as one of Dillinger's henchmen. When arrested he was carrying a .38 caliber pistol with two extra clips of bullets. In a satchel, which he admitted owning, was a bullet proof vest.

Pal Has Long Record.

Jack Liberty, 31 years old, 4835 West Cermak road, who was with Homer, was also arrested. He was found to have a long record dating back to 1919.

Almost at the time Homer was arrested, Chief of Police Michael F. Morrisey of Indianapolis called the detective bureau and asked that Homer be sought. He is wanted in Indiana for violation of parole, Morrisey said. Homer was sent to the Michigan City penitentiary in 1928 for robbery with a gun and was paroled in September of this year.

Sergt. Thomas Harrison who arrested Homer turned him over to Purvis yesterday afternoon. Purvis refused to say why he wished to question Homer but it is known that the government is still engaged in an intensive search for Dillinger who shot his way out of a federal ambush some weeks ago.

Will Be Sent to Indiana.

Homer will probably be turned over to the Indiana authorities after the federal agents are through with him, it was said.

Liberty was held as a robbery suspect. Under the name of John Svoboda, he was sentenced to five to forty years for robbery in Minneapolis in 1919. In 1925, he was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction in Chicago for selling obscene pictures. In 1928, he was arrested for stealing an automobile but forfeited his bond and escaped. In 1920, he served six months in Sioux Falls, S. D., for violation of the prohibition act.

OF 2,660 SEIZED AS AUTO THIEVES BUT 67 GET LIMIT

Year's Figures Analyzed by Crime Board Chief.

Chicago motorists run such risks of automobile theft that they pay the highest insurance premiums in the United States, but the possibility of punishment for auto thieves in this city—even after their arrest by police—is so slight that of 2,660 arrested on auto theft charges only 67 were given the full punishment provided by law.

This is the verdict of Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the Chicago Crime commission, after a study of automobile larceny in the city during the twelve months ending last July 31. During the period, he reported in a survey made for the board of directors. 32.472 cars, valued at $23,000,000 were stolen.

During the year a total of 2,660 youths and men—most of them between 16 and 20 years old—were arrested and charged with automobile thefts. In both Municipal and Criminal courts only 806—fewer than one-third—were given punishment in any form, and most of these, according to the report, were given short terms in the county jail or the House of Correction.

Cites Law Requiring Prison Terms.

Col. Chamberlin called attention to the fact that the only legal punishment for an automobile theft is a sentence of from one to twenty years. Reductions of felony charges to misdemeanors is entirely extralegal. He pointed out that in only 67 cases was punishment given strictly in accordance with the statute.

"The study indicates that the majority of the judges of the Municipal and Criminal courts treat automobile thieves with extreme leniency and that in their desire to extend mercy they ignore the statute and administer the law, not as it is written, but rather as it appeals to their emotions," the report stated.

Thefts Reduced 13 a Day.

The report showed that police work, under the urge of public opinion which demanded more protection, had improved. During the year ending Aug. 1, 1932, there were 37,216 thefts within the city limits. The thefts during the year ending last July 31 were decreased by 4,744, or by 13 fewer each day.

In the Municipal court, the report stated, tabulation has shown that there were 2,526 automobile thefts and related offenses tried during the period of the survey. In only 432 instances was there definite punishment meted out, and in 2,094 cases there was absolutely no punishment inflicted. In the latter total are 833 cases which were held over to the criminal grand jury.

In the Criminal courts 653 defendants were charged with automobile larceny. Only thirty were sentenced to the penitentiary—eighteen for terms of 1 to 20 years, and twelve for terms of 1 to 10 years. Of the remainder 101 were sentenced to the reformatory and 16 to the Cook county jail.

There were 115 verdicts of not guilty, only 9 of which were returned by a jury, and 146 defendants were released on probation. In 227 instances the felony charge was waived and was reduced either to petit larceny or to driving away a vehicle without the owners' consent, both misdemeanors.

Assails Gutknecht's Record.

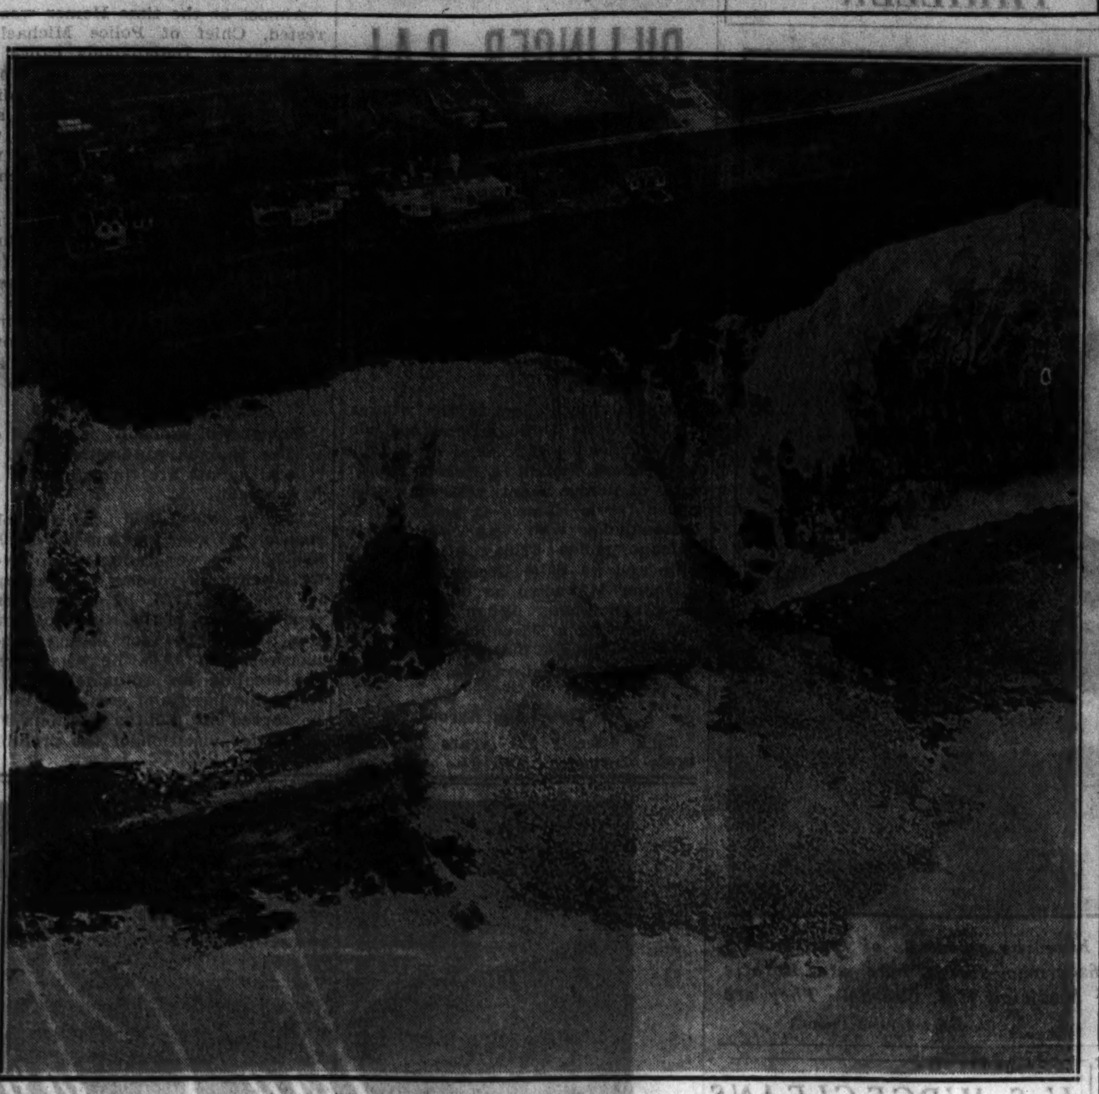
Among the Municipal court judges presiding in the Boys' court where youthful offenders against the auto theft statutes are tried, Judge J. William Brooks has the best record, the report stated. Judge John Gutknecht has the "worst record," the report added. Of Judge Gutknecht it said:

"His attitude has been that of a Juvenile court judge dealing with delinquencies instead of felonious offenses.

"He is tempermentally and emotionally unfit to deal with thieves, either young or old. Out of 733 complaints disposed by Judge Gutknecht, 430 escaped all punishment so far as the record shows."

Of the judges in the Criminal court who dealt with automoible thieves, Judge Harry B. Miller has the best record, the report states.

CHALK CLIFF CRUMBLING INTO SEA



Thousands of tons of chalk crashed into the sea a few days ago at Larkland Point, near Dover, when a section of the South Foreland cliffs collapsed. The sea water was turned white by the chalk which formed a small island off the coast. The village of St. Margaret's bay is in the background.

EXPLORER TELLS OF LOST WORLD NEAR HONDURAS

Finds Huge Reptiles, Sea Monsters.

Within 1,600 miles of Chicago, the romancer's wildest dreams of a lost world, gigantic reptiles, terrible sea monsters and strange races of men have been given factual foundations by the discoveries of F. A. Mitchell-Hedges, world known explorer.

For the first time since his return a few weeks ago from his latest expedition, a seven months' trip into wild regions of Central America, the explorer talked of his discoveries at length yesterday in his suite at the Seneca hotel.

He will speak tonight at the South Shore Country club and will show lantern slides of pictures of the great sea creatures he has caught and the strange scenes he has viewed. The affair has been called, "Lost World Night."

"Naturally these things sound incredible when one merely talks about them; they must be seen to be believed," said Mr. Mitchell-Hedges as he toyed with the shrunken heads of Equador Indians and the bones of the odd beasts he had found.

Mitchell-Hedges is an Englishman. He is a direct descendant of Oliver Cromwell, in whose old mansion he was born.

The region in which he has been blazing trails for archæology is in the neighborhood of the Republic of Honduras, on islands 120 miles to the north of this district and also in the interior of Central America.

"Four of the six islands in the group," he said, "are inhabited by a colony of about 3,000 whites who live as primitive as Indians and yet never allow their white blood to be mixed with the brown. They are the direct descendants of Sir Henry Morgan, Bloody Brewer and Spade Beat, old time pirates who made the Bay of Honduras their headquarters.

"They have names such as Morgan, Cooper and Johnson, and they speak English, though they have retained many old English expressions common in the language at the time their pirate forefathers were there."

COVER GUESTS WITH GUNS, ROB HYDE PARK HOTEL

Bandits Force Clerk to Hand Over $3,500.

Five men with revolvers invaded the Hyde Park hotel, 1511 East 51st street, a block and a half from the Hyde Park police station, and escaped with $3,500 yesterday afternoon.

The men walked into the lobby, revolvers drawn, and ordered several guests to remain seated and make no outcry. Leaving one of the men to guard the guests, the other four went to the desk where Clerk Ralph King was on duty.

Cover Clerks with Guns.

While three of the men covered the clerk with their revolvers the fourth bandit turned to the switchboard operator, Grace Vlazny, 21 years old, and told her to "leave them plugs alone."

The three bandits forced King to give them the $3,500 in cash from an open vault and the cash drawer. As soon as King handed over the money the bandits walked calmly out of the lobby to the street. Passing a doorman, who was unaware of the robbery, the bandits joined a sixth man seated at the wheel of an automobile at the curb and drove away.

Once a Show Place.

The owner of the hotel, J. E. Cornell, told police that the money taken was the property of the hotel. He said that none of the guests had money in the vault. The Hyde Park hotel, a show spot of Chicago in the "nineties," is now inhabited by families who have made their abode there for many years.

SHOOTS FRIEND OF A LIFETIME DEAD ON STREET

Charles Koehler, 42 years old, proprietor of a tin shop at 2020 Blue Island avenue, was a lifelong friend of James McGlynn, 1903 Blue Island avenue, a city alley inspector. Residents in the neighborhood who knew of the long friendship between the two men were horrified yesterday afternoon to see McGlynn walk up to Koehler in front of 2026 Blue Island avenue, draw a revolver and shoot Koehler three times, killing him instantly.

"Well, I've got you at last," McGlynn was reported to have said to Koehler just before the shooting. He walked away after Koehler fell to the sidewalk and was arrested a few minutes later by Maxwell street police.

McGlynn was questioned in an endeavor to discover a motive for his deed, but refused to explain why he killed Koehler.

Whatever your business, INTERNATIONAL TRUCKS offer you low-cost hauling

ECONOMY—rigid economy—is the need which has put International Trucks into the foreground of the hauling picture!

Truck owners who never before kept account of equipment costs now watch every maintenance and operation penny—finding in International Trucks the solution of their problem—and in International's after-sale service facilities the exclusive economies of the world's largest company-owned truck service organization.

Whatever your business—its size or nature—you will find there is an International to cut your operating expense. Come in and pick out the model you want and put it to your test.

Removable Cylinders permit replacement of cylinders without the expense of reboring or the replacement of the entire cylinder block. This great feature of advanced automotive construction has long been everyday practice in International Trucks.

Hardened Exhaust-Valve Seat Inserts are an International engine feature. They retard valve seat burning, engine efficiency is retained, and valves seldom need grinding. Details like these spell low-cost hauling over a long period of years.

The Minimum Price for Cleaning in Chicago Has Been Fixed at 95c The Maximum Will Be Much Higher. We Believe Such a "Price Boost" to Be Excessive and Not in the True Spirit of the N. R. A.

YOU MUST JOIN US IN THIS FIGHT AGAINST GREED

PROTECT YOURSELF by protesting. Sign the petition below. Mail it to Washington or bring it to any of our stores and we will mail it for you.

PETITION

To Hon. General HUGH S. JOHNSON
Chairman, National Recovery Administration
Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir:

I, the undersigned, sign this petition protesting an advance in Dry Cleaning Prices for the following reasons:

1—Because I, as one of the PUBLIC, WILL HAVE TO CARRY THE BURDEN OF SUCH ADVANCE IN PRICES.

2—Such arbitrary high prices reduce the volume of dry cleaning, necessitating the DISCHARGE OF A LARGE NUMBER OF EMPLOYEES.

3—I strenuously object to the enormous and UNREASONABLE INCREASE IN PRICES fixed by your local Board.

If you desire more petitions, call at any of the stores below

We are enthusiastically in favor of the National Recovery Act and have complied with every provision of the Code except its minimum price provisions. We believe in higher wages. We believe in shorter hours.

And We Believe in Fair Prices to The Public

A clause in this code has resulted in the fixing of high and excessive prices for dry cleaning in Chicago. We are absolutely opposed to such price fixing because:

First: Our patrons and the general public will bear the entire burden of such excessive advance in prices.

Secondly: It is possible to offer the highest grade cleaning at a minimum price of 39c and 49c instead of 95c and still comply with every provision of the Code.

Thirdly: Arbitrary high prices reduce the volume of dry cleaning so that all cleaners will be compelled to discharge a large number of their loyal employees.

Until it is determined by the Court that such unfair price fixing is within the true spirit of the National Recovery Act and the Constitution of the United States, we will continue to serve you at fair prices.

Here Are Our Minimum Prices for Cleaning and we are complying with every provision of the N. R. A. Code. except its minimum price provision.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

IS THE CONSTITUTION OUTWORN?

Although the American constitution has some devoted friends remaining, they are regarded by brain trusters as old fogies. It is thought that they live in the past and, although they may be well disposed citizens, are unable to see modern needs and do not realize that times are changing and will change still more. They are supposed by the intelligentsissima to be almost idolatrously minded and, although not indifferent to the admonitory examples of human suffering, to be powerless because they think too much of antiquated forms and worship wornout ideas.

Brighter citizens, who so regard themselves, say that the constitution is a flexible document and that it must yield to emergencies. These brighter citizens think that a people cannot be shackled to ancient dogmas and be forced to confine their efforts for the common good within the limitations imposed by men who lived long before present day conditions existed or could even be anticipated. The constitution, therefore, must constantly yield to the new requirements of life, to the emergencies which arise, and it must not prohibit the doing of wise things when the need for these things could not have been apparent to the men who laid down the law.

The constitutionalists have a word or two to say in reply to these arguments. One would be that a constitution is written with a view to emergencies. If it is a good constitution, and the American constitution has been regarded as the greatest work of law giving, it has emergencies particularly in mind. It knows that in panicky and distressed times people when off the even keel and much alarmed, angered or much distressed, are disposed to do hasty, unwise, and dangerous things. The makers of the American constitution did not view the future in the terms of their own personal experience with their present. Many of them were men familiar with the worst things which governments had done from the earliest recorded time. They knew human nature and they knew what majorities in a democracy and what authority in an absolutism would do when excited, tempted or hard pressed.

They knew what the consequence of these acts had been before. They knew that opportunity and emergency had been the excuse, one way or the other, for excesses from the consequence of which many peoples had been a long time in recovery. Therefore they tried to incorporate in the organic law for the United States some limitations and prohibitions designed to protect the individual at just such times as when excitement or emergency might lead a government into excess and prompt a majority of the people to acquiesce for one reason or another, the certainty being that they would live to regret what their hasty impulses had led them into. It is not true that the makers of the constitution did not consider emergencies. Nor is it true that these emergencies gain new terrors because there have been physical changes in the lives of the people. It remains true that constitutional guaranties, if they were wise ones, are likely to remain wise.

The constitution guaranteed to American citizens a status with which the American people have been very well content up until the last six months. They believed that they were living under protections which no emergency could take away from them, and until the last half year they have defended the liberties guaranteed them, regardless of circumstance or emergencies, as the most valuable thing they had. The constitution which contained their hopes and desires has not been made an antiquity by anything that has happened in the last six months. Emergency is not the thing which invalidates the constitution, but is the thing which proves the need for it. It is precisely in such times that the constitutional guaranties must be depended upon to check the excesses which would destroy the thing to be preserved.

A constitution which serves only so long as a government or a majority finds it convenient to work under it and acknowledge its supremacy is no constitution at all. In such case the people have only such laws as any congress from time to time cares to pass or any administration cares to demand and administer. Organic law which is set aside every time a government finds it impossible or inconvenient to work under it has been completely nullified. A constitution which deals with inalienable rights and at the same time is so flexible that it preserves none of them has been expunged from the laws of the nation. Either the conditions which the constitution provides shall prevail are good and the constitution governs or the conditions are not good and the constitution is worthless. If the American people finally decide that their constitution is only what congress by enactment decides it is, they should first determine whether they care or do not care for the freedom and the liberties they have hitherto enjoyed. If American conditions from 1789 up to March 4 this year were generally undesirable, the constitution which has been back of such conditions may be regarded as an antiquity, unfit for the present day or the future. Otherwise, not.

THE CODIFIED GOLDFISH.

Government absorption into public control of the varied and heretofore private enterprises of the country is no small business. It is not merely a comprehensive sweep into an embracing armful; it is really microscopic.

The railroads, the steel business, the coal mines, automobile production, etc., can be gathered up without much difficulty. An administrator can put his fingers on them, but when that has been done any number of busy ants are still running around loose.

People are not all engaged in the major or basic industries of the country. Industrial life isn't that simple and a take-over government cannot concentrate on majors but must scatter itself in pursuit of the minors.

The government printing office is a busy place these days running off the proposed codes of fair competition, and as they come from the press any one may take a handful of them and pause to view with wonder, if not incredulity, the wide spread of the Blue Eagle.

There is, for instance, the proposed code of fair competition for the goldfish industry, for sale by the superintendent of documents, Washington, D. C., price five cents. The citizen will learn that there is not a goldfish in the country which is not entitled to its share of government attention. According to the code, no goldfish producer may deliver a fish larger than the one called for in the order, nor may he seduce trade by overcounting the fish. He may in some circumstances add three per cent additional fish to the order, but that is to cover prepaid charges on return of empty cans. No rebates may be allowed except for the replacement of dead fish, and a report on the dead fish must be made on order report blank No. 679, signed by the express agent and mailed within twenty-four hours after the receipt of the shipment.

There must be no buying of pond run fish or in any other manner than by actual grading of the fish for size and variety and by actual count. Each goldfish sold in the United States must be a counted fish, and when the bureaucracy is completely satisfied with the statistical detail the records at Washington will probably contain each goldfish's name, size, weight, place of birth, place of residence, party affiliations, blood count, age, and movie star preference.

Private initiative is a fluid force. From a tremendous ocean of activity it flows in every direction, seeking to satisfy needs and wants of an up and coming people. When government seeks to follow it exactingly, punctiliously and inclusively it has to grow the million fingers which the private initiative itself has grown. The public can see this search and seizure in the basic industries, but that it not where the really delicate exploration is done. The ramifications and complications of the bureaucracy can be followed only when the tricklets of regulations are followed into the goldfish industry, the wet mop manufacturing industry, the dry mop manufacturing industry, the coin operating machine manufacturing industry, the beeswax bleachers industry, the insecticide industry, the scrap rubber trade, the cotton rag trade, the waste paper trade, etc.

What a man our Uncle Sam has become. The genius who made the better mouse trap in the heart of the wilderness might not be reached by customers, but the government agent with a code would find him out.

THE TEST OF A PRINCIPLE.

Although most of the newspapers recognize the principle involved in the freedom of the press some are partisan and some are advocates of special measures. The test of their wisdom they can make themselves. Would they consent to the abandonment of principles if they did not favor what was proposed to be done by abandoning the principles? Would they agree if the opposition sought by this means to gain an end? If a party they opposed proposed measures they opposed would they be for or against the constitutional principles involved? The test of a guaranty may escape the minds of men seeking special means for special measures.

A sound principle does not change. Programs will change and men will. Men who would lay aside a principle to get something they think is good will regret it when the principle is laid aside in pursuit of something they think is bad.

Every invasion of guaranties must be considered not in the light of present purposes but of other purposes.

Editorial of the Day

THE PRESIDENT'S ALLEGED INACCESSIBILITY.

[Scranton (Pa.) Republican.]

That a coterie may not build a wall of control about our government at Washington, the press must exert its uncensored power.

In normal times the danger now alleged of the impervious ring around the President would not be dangerous; there is always such a party control exercised by those of his party, selected by him for his secretaries and members of his cabinet. A President elected on a Democratic platform will surround himself with Democratic advisers.

The reputed situation of the present is both unprecedented and, particularly in view of our persistent money policy, alarming. A crisis is undoubtedly near, yet that almost fatal gold policy is held unflinchingly. It is said that all advocates of a different course find it impossible to present their case, their reason and illumination for the President's consideration, because the ring is too strong.

We believe that the President is not a party to this band. Perhaps he is not even aware of their activities in strangling all but their own side of the case. It is said that information the President had requested on gold had been forwarded but intercepted and kept from him.

But it is not alone the gold policy that is so maintained by that impervious band; the policies persisted in are not Democratic policies. They are pure socialism. Instead of the influence of the policies of the party selected by the people, as in times past, we have a screen of "brain trusters," of socialist proponents, through which no ray of any color unapproved by them may pass.

It was a Democratic platform that was elected. Both major parties are frustrated by a socialist ring composed of members like Secretary Ickes—who would socialize utilities by the lure of great funds from the three billion fund, some of which need not be returned—who would socialize building and owning apartments in New York—whose consistent program is socialistic.

An impervious ring, as alien to the victorious party as to the defeated party in the election, is a new thing in our history. But its novelty is eclipsed by the effective maintenance of un-Democratic, un-Republican and un-American principles doggedly preserved—even beyond the borders of the NRA.

When it comes to a policy which threatens our currency, our government bonds, the security of our banks, a policy of depreciating America—whether engaged in pure ignorance or by the design of foreign nations that stand to profit—it is time to resist.

THE DEFENSE OF AMERICANISM.

BY TIFFANY BLAKE.

The 18th amendment was fastened upon the federal constitution through the highly efficient efforts of the Anti-Saloon league, which for years had been working for legislation in restraint of the liquor traffic mainly through state and local action. With the entrance of the United States into the European war the expediency of a national system of control was generally recognized and in the preoccupation of the public mind with the overshadowing needs of war the advocates of permanent national prohibition were able to induce congress and the required three-fourths of the states to adopt it. This was accomplished in circumstances which suppressed calm consideration and discussion, and when the nation emerged from the war it found national prohibition fixed in our fundamental law, an accomplished fact, legally speaking, supported by a well organized propaganda. In this first period of prohibition criticism or dissent was condemned as immoral. With the growth of actual experience of the results of prohibition this repression progressively weakened and in the last two or three years of the experiment opposition to prohibition became respectable and no longer could be overawed. This change was hastened by the appearance of organizations whose motives could not be seriously discredited, notably the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, the Crusaders, the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, and the Voluntary Committee of Lawyers, Inc. Finally the American Bar association, which had not been heard during the earlier stage of prohibition, was induced, largely through the efforts of the Voluntary Committee of Lawyers, to express the opinion of the great majority of its members. Thus organization met organization and while the ground had been prepared by the few newspapers which, like THE TRIBUNE, had protested against prohibition from an early stage of the experiment, the demand for repeal made rapid headway.

The history of the amendment and its repeal is as significant as anything in the experience of popular government, and it is to be hoped its lessons will not be lost upon succeeding generations. But our own generation has need for reflection upon its meaning and for some immediate application of its lesson which is not confined to the problem of liquor regulation. The 18th amendment represented an extension of political power in the field of private conscience, overriding the principle of individual liberty and local self-government. It was an attempt to standardize morals as well as to make a strictly political agency a censor of private conduct. It was a revolutionary experiment embarked upon in a national emergency with little or no consideration of its ultimate consequences or permanent implications. It was inconsistent with fundamental principles and with the framework of American government, with its distribution of powers and responsibilities as between the national and state or local functions, its conception of the nature and limitations of law, and its philosophy of progress through the evolution of the individual guaranteed liberty in the greatest degree compatible with civil order.

But if this departure has come to its predestined end sooner than was expected, we are not done with the tendency of which it was but one expression. The urge to regiment us, to resort to political agency for the solution of problems in every field of social relation, to extend the functions and powers of political action, and especially to increase those of the national government, has steadily grown in recent years and notably during the present depression. In the emergency of the late war the prohibition experiment was tried, and in the aftermath of the war another emergency has opened the way to other departures from the principles of the American free society. These new experiments may be profitable, immediately or permanently; nevertheless they are as subject to examination, to criticism, and to conscientious dissent as any other experimentation, unless we have already abandoned our birthright as a free people and accepted a system of unquestionable authority. It is significant that precisely as in the first period of the prohibition experiment freedom of dissent was overawed and largely suppressed on moral grounds, so now we hear from the supporters of the new experiments that dissent is treason and ought to be suppressed. This is the gist of the government's attitude in the controversy over the free press provision of the newspaper code.

In short, the repeal of the 18th amendment does not close the question of the reconciliation of government with liberty. The issue raised by prohibition is of wider import than the problem of liquor regulation. It includes the whole problem of the proper functions of political governance and of the nature of the state in a free society.

If this is true it is permissible to suggest that organizations like the Committee of Lawyers and the Crusaders will do well to consider whether their work is done or just begun. The latter organization apparently intends to continue its service in another field, the very important field of taxation. The Committee of Lawyers announces that, the purpose of the organization having been fulfilled, no further activities will be undertaken unless in the event of litigation attacking repeal. The decision, one ventures to say, should be reconsidered, for the defense of our constitutional system is still urgently needed, and should be led by lawyers. It is happily true that the legal fraternity as represented in the American bar and some state bar associations has lately realized its responsibility for public education and leadership in the field of constitutional evolution. But the Committee of Lawyers was formed to awaken this responsibility in respect of prohibition and can and ought to perform the same service for the defense of American principles now threatened or repudiated under cover of a new emergency. Indeed, the legal profession more than laymen must understand that American constitutionalism was intended to withstand emergencies, that its guaranties were declared with the full understanding that emergencies would assail them, and that it is precisely in emergency that their assertion is most essential to the preservation of our heritage of liberty.

BETTER HEALTH FOR THE OLD.

THE great improvement in general health in the last thirty years has related to babies and children of all ages. Old people are no better off than they were when life is measured by death statistics. The death rate of those over 60 is no lower than it was. Certainly they have not fallen proportionately to improvement in other fields. It is probable that more men and women 70 years of age are able to work efficiently than was ever the case, but this is almost the limit in the gain that their groups can report.

Perhaps one reason for the poor showing made by the elderly is that they have been too complacent. They have not rowed enough or complained enough of neglect. Dr. Stanley Hall began his book, "Senescence" (written when he was beyond 70) with a complaint of the way elderly people were neglected. He could find very little medical literature on the subject. It was true nearly all the old people he consulted told him many things, and he found much lay literature written by old people—given over, in the main, to the relation of personal experiences, but the lay people who wrote and spoke to him were such palpable faddists that he did not trust their suggestions.

Since Dr. Hall's day a few books on old age have been written by medical men. The editor of this column has devoted two of the How to Live With series to the theme, one entitled "Senescence" and the other "Old Age."* The first means growing old and the second, experiencing old age.

Before a recent medical assembly Dr. L. F. Barker spoke on the minor discomforts of old people. They are very prone to the constipation habit and it is important that they pay attention to the tendency. As a rule, taking mineral oil has some drawbacks for them. They should drink more water than they do. A full glass of water or two on arising may suffice to give them bowel regularity, provided they follow a methodical routine. As a rule they are much helped by a sour milk and fruit diet. The old Arabs live largely on sour milk and dates. Agar is serviceable in constipation of the elderly. The tendency to accumulation and impaction must be watched and taken in hand if it shows itself. Constipated, elderly people are apt to have prolapse of the bowel and troublesome hemorrhoids. Some old people do not drink enough water, but some of them take too much. Drinking water too freely adds to the load on the heart and kidneys.

The people who live to a very ripe old age are those who have a tendency to lose weight, shrivel up, and dry out. It is better to do what can be done in a minor way to promote this drying-up process.

Old people have poor appetites and are small eaters. Nothing should be done to tempt them to eat. They get along well and have better health if they eat lightly and lose a few pounds in weight each year. Dr. Barker suggests they eat five small meals a day; that the midday meal be the heaviest and the evening meal the lightest. The foods should be plain and simple. No condiments, spices, or rich dishes should be eaten.

If the person is accustomed to taking beer or liquor it is best to continue the habit, although in moderation. If the habit is not established it should not be indulged. The same rule applies to the use of tobacco. An habitual tobacco user should decrease his allowance somewhat.

A POSSIBILITY.

B. B. writes: I have a mole on my face and a long, thick hair which persists in growing there. I cut or tweeze it off, but it grows back very quickly. Will it develop into cancer if I don't leave it alone?

REPLY.

There is a possibility. The hair can be removed by electrolysis or it can be cut off, say, once a week.

FRUITS AND VITAMINS.

L. M. S. writes:

1. Are there any foodstuffs, especially fruits and vegetables, that contain more vitamins than cod liver oil?

2. Can one get rid of a cold by going solely on a fruit diet?

REPLY.

1. No, so far as vitamin D is concerned. The answer does not apply to other vitamins.

2. Yes. A person can get rid of a cold whatever treatment he takes or without treatment. Sticking to a fruit diet helps.

A Study of Catholic Charities

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

A REPORT of expert studies covering the work of the Catholic charities in Chicago discloses the fact that Chicago has been the field of perhaps the greatest experiment ever made in the use of volunteer relief case workers. The study was made by two representatives of the Family Welfare Association of America assigned to make the survey at the request of Frank D. Loomis of the Allied Charities of Chicago.

Of primary interest to taxpayers, who in the end must pay the cost not only of public relief itself but also foot the bill for the machinery for its distribution as well, is the fact that the experts making the study of Catholic charities concluded that volunteer non-professional charity workers have done and are doing work that rates at least equal in practically all respects to that of employed professionals. In fact, the writers of the report go even further to suggest that Chicago's Catholic charities provide a pattern for future developments in relief work.

In addition to the saving in overhead through the use of volunteer workers, the report states that the actual monthly relief cost for each family is lower in the Catholic charities than in any other agencies except the Red Cross and the Salvation Army. The investigators attributed this saving to the more intimate knowledge of family resources gained by the volunteer workers enlisted from the charity applicants' own parishes. For instance, it was pointed out that smaller allowances frequently were granted "because of knowledge of resources within the family or of relatives who are willing to supplement the relief." Such information is more difficult for the professional case worker to secure.

"We were impressed," the investigators wrote, "with the significance of the present [Catholic charities] organization, the degree to which it has been successful in developing its corps of volunteer workers and the distinct possibilities which may well in the future provide an interesting pattern of organization."

The study was made by George Warren and Lula Jean Elliott, representatives of the Family Welfare Association of America. The report of their studies has been made public by Mr. Loomis at a time when a proposal is being made by a special commission of the Chicago Church federation that Protestant churches also form a central relief agency.

If the Protestant effort succeeds in evolving a charity organization comparable to that maintained by the Catholic church a great saving in the expenditure of public funds will result. It will also advance the time when the county will be off the dole. The Chicago Church federation's commission on charity, led by Dr. Henry Seymour Brown, reported progress in this direction.

The report of the Washington experts urges that the community at large should be better acquainted with the work of the Catholic charities. It points with approval to "the spectacle of 4,000 men visiting weekly approximately 8,000 families in which state and private funds are maintaining life." It further argues that this frequent visitation is not only a guarantee that funds are being carefully administered by the volunteer workers, but, "what is of more importance, that through such a corps of workers those families are receiving a stimulus, an encouragement, a friendly hand in meeting the problem of living at a time when all too many are giving way to despair."

While the religious element is constantly in the forefront in the administration of Catholic relief, yet the investigators discovered no cases in which sentimentality had influenced the size of charity grants.

"No evidence was found of overgenerosity in the amount of relief giving, nor of relief being granted to supplement any income within the family over the amount permitted on the emergency unemployment budget. On the whole, there is evidence that the Central [Catholic] Charity bureau is doing a very adequate relief job. The reading of the cases was convincing of the possibilities and contributions that an agency, based on a volunteer setup, has to offer, when this includes trained supervision."

The investigators made three recommendations to the Central Charity bureau which have been adopted by the Very Rev. Msgr. W. C. Cummings, director of the charities. The first was concerned with the auditing of charity cases, and the second and third involve the rapidity of the process of accepting or rejecting appeals for aid, and the introduction "of trained Catholic workers who believe in volunteer service to the end that more skillful leadership, supervision and direction be given to volunteer workers."

Volunteer relief workers under the Central bureau are members of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul. Conferences of this society are found in 325 parishes of the city and county. When a family appeals for relief at the parish residence, the pastor refers the applicant to the local conference. Two members of the conference are assigned to the family, who visit the home and then report back to the weekly meeting of the conference. After checking with the Central bureau to see that no duplication in relief exists and the family is accepted, members of the conference continue to visit the family weekly.

NOISY PLUMBING FIXTURES.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—Friend of the People.]—For the last year we have had a steady hum, sounding like running water, sometimes stronger than usual. Some of our neighbors hear it, but not so much as we do. It is located in our sink and bath. The water inspector was here, and having been told about it, said he couldn't locate it. It seemed that it hummed before he came in and then stopped. When he left it started again. Could there be a break in the street?

L. J.

On Oct. 31 the South district water pipe extension repaired a 1-inch service pipe supplying the above mentioned premises. This has apparently stopped all noises complained of.

O. E. HEWITT,
Commissioner of Public Works.

LIABLE FOR BALANCE.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—About four months ago I purchased an automobile on the installment plan, the financing being handled by a finance company. Since buying the car my wages have been reduced from $33 to $17.50 weekly and so I am unable to continue meeting the notes. There is a balance of $100 left on the car. I am not married and am 22 years old. 1. Can they force me to pay for the car? 2. Can they place an assignment against my wages? 3. If an assignment is placed against my wages and they then proceed to take further action, such as to sue me, how long can my wages be held up?

R. F.

1. You are liable. The creditor can collect if you have sufficient assets or income.

2. Apparently you are confusing "assignment" and "garnishment." The former would be an instrument signed by you and the latter would be the court proceeding independent of your signature. There is no exemption from garnishment for a person who is not head of a family.

3. The first step toward garnishment is the securing of a judgment against the debtor. Your wages could be held until the debt was paid.

CHURCHES AND RELIEF WORK.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—Your fine editorial on "Churches and Relief Work" approves a plan which I have advocated for many years. The churches are the natural, logical organizations to administer relief funds or food supplies. We have more than one thousand church buildings in Chicago nearly all strategetically located. They pay no taxes. Their ministers are men who have dedicated their lives to help humanity. This is their daily thought and study. Why should not these buildings and these men be utilized to carry on relief work? They would add an element which is practically absent today. They would give a spiritual benefit of hope, cheer and courage.

You know that Immanuel church has felt this responsibility and done this work for nearly forty years. We have believed your thought for relief work and acted accordingly. One of the embarrassments of the present is that our friends who once gave for local charity now say that the federal government is doing this work and there is no need to feel any responsibility for the care of the poor of our city. JOHNSTON MYERS.

COLLAPSE OF ANOTHER INDUSTRY.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—The return to wage earning of the many thousands being put to work by the government is a good wind that bears ill tidings for the thousands now employed in the offices of the unemployment relief. They are faced with almost immediate loss of their jobs. These employés, practically all college educated, have carried on the tremendous job of taking care of hundreds of thousands of the destitute. Ninety per cent of them will be left without visible means of support. Many of these white collared industrious people will have to apply for relief where there will be none. There is absolutely no provision being made for these Spartan workers.

Adding to overwhelming injury, the heads of the unemployment relief are making their workers work overtime each day to help put the new thousands to work. What boundless irony! These relief workers must work overtime to help thrust themselves out of work and into the poverty they have tried to ameliorate for others.

Couldn't the body, en massé, be put right into the work of maintaining the offices required for the new work, under the same supervision? BEWILDERED.

THE JOYS OF BUS RIDING.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—I have ridden in many buses in many cities of the United States and in numerous countries abroad and I have never ridden in more uncomfortable, badly heated, back and neck breaking buses than the double deckers which the city council for some mysterious reason allows to run in Chicago streets. In the rush hours, if one happens to be inside, either on top or below, it is impossible to get out, and if one of the unlucky passengers crowds in near the only door of this horrible vehicle he is nearly suffocated by a blast of hot air coming from the antiquated heater in front. A TRAVELER.

MR. HENNING'S ACCENT.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—I want to congratulate Arthur Sears Henning on his pure English. It is so refreshing after listening to these God-forsaken radio announcers who are striving to acquire the Oxford and Cockney accentricities. Mr. Henning's sturdy and altogether delightful English is a standard worth striving to attain. He uses the language and diction of an educated Devonshire man.

CHEATING THE RELIEF.

Wilmette, Ill., Nov. 16.—I note in this morning's issue that a citizen doffs his hat to the judge who sentenced the mother of four children to serve thirty days for receiving aid while earning. What this woman did was unethical and unfair, but it was scarcely criminal. Jails were designed for criminals and there are plenty of real criminals walking around who have never been in jail and never will be. This woman, besides being classed with criminals, will probably forfeit both her job and aid. How unfair to her children!

Those most deserving of aid are not always those who throw themselves entirely on relief from charity organizations. Many of such would be asking alms in the most prosperous times. There should be some way of assisting those who have initiative enough to help themselves in some degree. As things are now, we demand that a person be reduced to penury before he receives aid and in so doing we kill his self-respect. Why put a premium on beggary and punish initiative? I will cite only one such instance:

A woman receiving aid which was insufficient for her family's needs decided to bake a few loaves of bread to sell. It was very good bread which she sold to neighbors, thus making a very small sum of money. One of those numerous busybodies who write the 100 letters of complaint notified the relief organization and she was promptly dropped from their roll. Her family cannot live on what she makes, but her initiative was punished and she may now choose between begging and starvation. Also, her morale is shattered.

This matter of a shattered morale will one day have to be reckoned with. A case in point is the Spanish war veteran who used to receive a pension of $35 a month. On this he and his wife were able to get along and to keep their self-respect. Now that sum has been reduced to $15 and is no longer worthy to be dignified by the term pension. He has no job nor can he get one because of a bad heart. Their courage is gone and they refuse to ask for aid. The government is dispensing millions of easy money, but none of it will aid this veteran who was entitled to his pension.

ONE WHO IS WATCHING.

THE SIX HOUR DAY.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—I want to express my happiness over the editorial in THE TRIBUNE of Nov. 19, "The Six Hour Day." There is a great deal of loose talk against the shorter work day and it is very helpful to have your valuable support in the six hour day movement. While there may "not be many people who think an eight hour day is too short," there are a lot of employers who insist that an eight hour day is short enough.

My particular interest in this subject is to obtain a shorter work day for train dispatchers, a group of railroad employés who now work eight hours each day, and, in addition, have to give from fifteen to thirty minutes preparatory, or transfer, time on starting to work and on leaving work. This makes a working day of from eight and one-half to nine hours which your editorial shows is entirely too long in this day and age.

J. G. LUHRSEN,
President American Train Dispatchers' Association.

IMPROVING THE FAIR.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—Daily answers to the question, "What do you suggest to improve A Century of Progress Fair?" should be very interesting to TRIBUNE readers and of help to the management.

CHURCH EXPERT CONFIRMS BIRTH CONTROL FINDING

Father O'Brien Discusses Theory of Cycle.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Three and one-half pages in this week's edition of Our Sunday Visitor, distributed each Sunday morning at the doors of Catholic churches, are devoted to an article, "The Church and Birth Control," which is likely to create much discussion.

The article is written by the Rev. John A. O'Brien, Catholic chaplain at the University of Illinois. It analyzes the medical and religious aspects of a major problem of Catholic life. Dr. O'Brien bases his article on a report in the Homiletic Review, a magazine for priests, written by Dr. R. De Guchteneere of Belgium, known as one of the world's most distinguished gynecologists. He is also known as an outstanding champion of the church against artificial birth control practices.

Dr. De Guchteneere was invited to review and appraise the findings of Dr. K. Ogino of Japan and Dr. Herman Knaus of Austria, who, working independently, arrived at an identical conclusion in favor of the existence and practicability of natural birth control.

Discussions by Physicians.

Last January the Catholic Physicians' Guild of Chicago conducted a seminar on the topic which showed medical opinion divided as to the accuracy and effectiveness of such a method of limiting births, while some refused to accept the theory at all. Dr. Leo J. Latz, who had just completed a booklet incorporating the history and explanation of the study, defended it with statistics supported by other members.

De Guchteneere, of the Lambert Gynecological institute of Brussels, was one of the physicians who received the Knaus-Ogino findings with much reserve, according to Father O'Brien. The priest adds that in the Homiletic the Belgian states that along with further corroborative evidence these findings "demonstrate beyond doubt the existence of definite, determinable periods of sterility and fertility within the monthly cycle."

Expert Accepts Evidence.

"After an exhaustive review of the evidence," the Visitor article states, "he says, 'We may thus conclude that the fertile period does not exceed eight days each month. . . . The numerous cases of practical application observed by Ogino, Knaus, Smulders Georg, and others have amply confirmed the correctness of these views. If medical opinion in general has been slow to accept them, the explanation is that it is difficult to abandon a theory which one has been accustomed to accept as definitive.'

"Dr. W. A. Evans has stated in one of his recent syndicated articles that it takes about twenty years for a medical discovery to gain general acceptance.

Church Position on Sex.

"Contrary to the assertion of Dr. [Clarence] Little and other misinformed writers, the church does not look disparagingly upon sex. Nothing could be farther from the truth than to picture the church as viewing sex as merely a necessary evil which must be indulged to keep the race from extinction.

"The church has never forbidden the restriction of births. Her condemnation has been directed solely against unethical and unnatural methods of achieving that end. There is a fundamental ethical difference between artificial methods of the contraceptionists, involving an abuse of a natural law, and the method of birth restriction by respecting the laws of nature."

While there is no positive obligation on any specific couple to have children, Father O'Brien says, "it is certainly the ideal which the church holds before every normal healthy couple. The method of periodic abstinence has been discussed here not with a view of lessening the Catholic birth rate or that of the general population, but as a rational, natural and ethical means of having the number of children from whom the parents by virtue of their health and economic means can make decent provision."

Helpful in Economic Crisis.

"Furthermore," he adds, "there are vast numbers of young men who are hungering for the reception of matrimony but are deterred by the severe economic depression engulfing the world, from assuming the burden of supporting a family in these days of widespread unemployment.

"Until that time comes when the bursting prodigality of nature, from which the world through its faulty system of distribution is now suffering, is made available to all, the knowledge of the laws of the divine Legislator concerning the natural methods for the regulation of births will be most helpful and opportune."

In his encyclical on Christian marriage early in 1931 Pope Pius XI. included a direct reference to this method that received only passing mention in published accounts, Father O'Brien emphasizes. The section indicated said in part:

"Nor must married people be considered to act against the order of nature if they make use of their rights according to sound and natural reason, even though no new life can thence arise on account of circumstances of time or the existence of some defect.

"For there exists also, both in marriage itself and in the conjugal use of the rights which it confers, some secondary ends—for instance, mutual assistance, the fostering of mutual love, and the allaying of concupiscence—and these ends the parties are not in the least forbidden to pursue, always with the condition, however, that their action preserves its intrinsic nature and therefore also its necessary relation to the primary end."

Rules Gifts to League Not Deductible from Taxes

Washington, D. C., Nov. 25.—(AP)—The board of tax appeals today refused to permit contributions to the league of nations association to be deducted from taxable income. The ruling was in a decision upholding tax deficiencies assessed against James J. Forstall and Nell Lothrop Forstall of Chicago.

RITES TOMORROW FOR H. HENDERSON, LAWYER 63 YEARS

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon for Howard Henderson, a lawyer in Chicago for 63 years, and who was president of the Chicago Bar association in 1897. Mr. Henderson, who was 86 years old, died Friday evening at his home at 4109 South Park way.

Born in Chicago May 15, 1847, son of the Rev. Abner W. Henderson, a clergyman and educator of the Presbyterian church, Henderson received a thorough schooling. He attended Dwight and Holbrook's preparatory school at Clinton, N. Y., and from there went to the University of Heidelberg in Germany, and to the University of Edinburgh. He later was graduated from the Albany law school and took up the practice of law alone.

Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Annie Lyles Henderson Henderson, no relation, who he married in 1909, and by a sister, Miss Helen Henderson of Ashville, N. C. The services will be held at the undertaking chapel at 4227 Cottage Grove avenue. Burial will be at Rosehill cemetery.

2 QUIT RELIEF BOARD BECAUSE OF FRAUD POLICY

Goodspeed and Hunter Resign.

Two officials of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission have resigned, it became known yesterday, because of differences over the commission's prosecution of relief fraud cases. Also five social workers, who have been dispersing federal relief funds, have been discharged for communistic sympathies.

The two officials who have resigned are Charles B. Goodspeed, assistant to the chairman, and Joel D. Hunter, assistant to Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the commission. Mr. Hunter retains his post as director of united charities.

Resigns Because of Charges.

Goodspeed was appointed to his position when Edward L. Ryerson Jr. was chairman of the commission. He resigned, according to Robert J. Dunham, chairman of the commission, because of charges that welfare workers were inefficient. The charge of inefficiency was made by Attorney James A. Peterson, who has been prosecuting relief frauds, after he had studied caseworkers' reports on clients convicted of fraud.

Hunter was asked to resign, it was learned, because of his opposition to the commission's policy of prosecuting all relief fraud cases. As chairman of the advisory board of the Cook county bureau of public welfare, Hunter was active in a campaign conducted by the advisory board to get "an agreement in writing" from the commission that only cases approved by the board would be prosecuted.

Collects Own Evidence.

The relief commission retaliated by taking over the job of collecting evidence of fraud, instead of depending upon the bureau of public welfare to assemble it. Mr. Reynolds is in charge of this work. He has indicated that the fraud cases will be prosecuted as rapidly as they are uncovered.

The social workers discharged are Ruth Merlin, 1911 Humboldt boulevard; Abraham A. Charous, 2804 North Harding avenue; Arthur Witt, 6231 Vernon avenue; B. Hemphill, 5479 Harper avenue, and Blanch Cole Lowenthal, 436 Aldine avenue. Their dismissal followed the attempts of communist agitators to organize social workers into a union.

BURNS TO DEATH IN JAIL; NO ONE HAD KEY TO CELL

Greenfield, Ill., Nov. 25.—(AP)—The city hall, the jail, and the fire department apparatus were destroyed tonight in a fire which also burned to death a prisoner charged with a minor offense.

Efforts to rescue Clifford Probst, 31, a coal miner arrested at 11 p. m., failed because no one had a key to the cell. He died screaming in pain.

Volunteer firemen were able to save only one antiquated piece of equipment.

Prince Acts to Set Aside Pact with Mary McCormic

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Serge Mdvani has retained an attorney to bring action to set aside the property settlement recently entered into between Mdvani and his ex-wife, Mary McCormic, opera singer, at the time of their recent divorce, it was announced by Attorney S. S. Hahn, who said he is acting for the Georgian prince.

The Rev. A. J. Freeman, Blind Evangelist, Dies

Moline, Ill., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—The Rev. A. J. Freeman of Moline, 67, known in the United States, Canada, and Sweden as the blind evangelist, died today of a heart attack.

RUPTURE

Don't submit to avoidable operations or the use of antiquated trusses, which set where the lump is and not where the opening is. The opening is seldom larger than a dime, no matter the size of the rupture, and all cases can be retained with the end of a lead pencil. The Spermatic Shield-Complex (Patent No 747,247, No. 1237709 and other patents pending) is a scientific achievement in a highly specialized art. It will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly but contracts the opening in 10 days on the average case. Infinitely superior to any instrument method or operation and produces results in no other way obtainable. All cases are secure a lifetime as against any further trouble or expense. Large or difficult cases or incisional rupture (following operations) specifically solicited. This instrument received the only award at the International Medical Congress held in London, England, producing results without surgery, harmful injections, medical treatment or prescriptions. Has been supplied to U. S. Surgeon General's Bureau, U. S. Naval Hospital, Penn. R. R., etc. See booklet on "The Fallacy of Surgical Procedure."

PUSH PLAN TO EMPLOY 10,000 PAVING STREETS

City Would Relay the Old Brick Surfaces.

A plan whereby 10,000 men in Chicago may be put to work under the civil works administration immediately was under consideration by Commissioner of Public Works Oscar Hewitt yesterday. It was indorsed by city officials as one of the most practical projects evolved by the city for submission to the CWA.

The plan would employ 10,000 repairing 300 miles of brick pavements throughout the city. Street paving projects have been held up previously because of the cost of the materials involved. The CWA policy is against the payment of much money for materials, holding that the federal funds should be reserved for wages as far as possible.

Renovation of brick pavements costs materially less than other street repair work because the repairing is done by digging up the bricks and relaying them, bottom side up.

Cuts Material Costs.

Seventy-five per cent of the bricks can be used in this manner, it was said, and the cost of materials would thus be cut greatly. About 200 skilled brick pavers will be needed in the work, but the relaying process can be done by any physically fit person, it was explained.

Ald. Thomas P. Keane [31st] was an enthusiastic sponsor of the plan. He said that a block of brick pavement in Hirsch street, between Spaulding and Kedzie avenues, had been repaired by relaying the bricks and the result had been a stretch of smooth pavement good for at least ten years.

The 300 miles of brick pavement in the city will furnish bricks for about 225 miles of pavement, it was pointed out, since 75 per cent of the bricks are available for relaying. The remaining 75 miles may be laid with asphalt.

15 Stations to Open.

Fifteen enrollment stations will open in the suburbs of Chicago at 9 a. m. tomorrow for the registration of all unemployed who live in Cook county outside of Chicago. The system of enrollment will be the same as that introduced in Chicago last Thursday by Victor A. Olander, a member of the CWA for Illinois.

"All unemployed, whether on relief or not, are eligible for registration," said Mr. Olander. "There will be more registrations than jobs, but I believe that all the unemployed who care to apply should have the opportunity to do so. Selections of employés for CWA projects will not be made on the basis of priority of registration.

WHERE TO REGISTER

Following is a list of the suburban enrollment stations for the registration of unemployed in Cook county outside of Chicago which will open tomorrow morning:

NORTH SECTION.

Edison Park and Park Ridge: Park Ridge City hall, Touhy avenue and Northwest highway.

Winnetka, Wilmette, Kenilworth and Glencoe: Winnetka City hall

MARTIN NATHAN, RAILWAY SUPPLY DEALER, IS DEAD

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon in the First Presbyterian church of Evanston for Martin Kent Northam, who had been in the railway supply business in Chicago for 50 years and was head of the Railway and Manufacturers Agents company. Mr. Northam, who was 73 years old, died suddenly yesterday after a heart attack near his office at 176 West Adams street.

Mr. Northam is survived by his widow, Mrs. Estelle MacChesney Northam, and by a daughter, Neola, who is Mrs. John T. Zatteau of Evanston. The family residence is at 1043 Forest avenue, Evanston.

ILLINOIS HOPES TO GET MORE U. S. EASY MONEY

Slum Clearance Here Part of Plan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Illinois, heretofore the stepchild of the federal easy money fund for public works, may come through strong in the allotment of the remaining 450 million dollars left out of the original 3 billion 300 million dollar pork barrel, officials predicted today.

With only about 450 million dollars left at his disposal, Harold L. Ickes, public works administrator, has begun paying attention to the geographical distribution of allotments and is killing applications from California, New York, and other states which already have large chunks of federal funds.

For Slum Clearance.

The upshot of this new policy, officials of the public works fund predicted today, will be that Illinois will share heavily in coming allotments. Two of the earliest Illinois allotments are expected to be at least 29 millions to the Chicago Sanitary district and several millions for some federal slum clearance in the city.

Many Illinois and Chicago applications, however, will be caught in the last minute log jam. A survey which Administrator Ickes ordered made revealed today that the pending applications for nonfederal projects call for 3 billion 160 million dollars, more than seven times the amount of money actually left in the easy money fund.

Asks Woodhull to Hurry.

The congestion of applications has caused public works officials to advise Illinois applicants to rush through their projects. Administrator Ickes himself urged Ross A. Woodhull, chairman of the saintary district's finance committee, to rush its applications here early next week.

At least one large Chicago housing project sponsored by the state housing commission is scheduled to come up for approval by the new federal housing corporation. The Illinois delegation which was to present the project here Monday, however, has postponed its appointment with federal officials for another week.

Other Chicago projects, such as the completion of the outer drive bridge and the building of an elevated highway, still are in preliminary stages of approval or rejection. Settlement of prior bills and issuance of bonds is delaying the bridge project. Financing is also the big question before the highway sponsors.

Ickes Ignores Former Loans.

Although the slighting of Illinois and other Chicagoland stages in the early easy money allotments was repeatedly called to Ickes' attention by congressmen and press reports, he refused until recently to be guided in new allotments by the amounts already given states.

Recently, however, his subordinates have noticed, they say, that he is automatically turning thumbs down on requests from states previously favored. California, one of the big money getters in the early day, now is receiving practically no attention in spite of the fact that it has the longest list of pending projects.

New York, another early favorite, was recently told by Ickes that he would not grant application for road funds on the grounds that the state was able to finance its own road building.

Capt. Henry Watson, 99, Will Be Buried Today

Oquawka, Ill., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Funeral services for Capt. Henry Watson, 99, civil war veteran who died Friday, will be held in Monmouth tomorrow. Among his cherished possessions was a flag of the United States which he carried in his knapsack throughout the civil war. The flag was made by hand by Henderson county women.

NOTED HARVARD GEOLOGIST FALLS DEAD AT CLASS

Prof. G. H. Barton Once Aid of Explorer Peary.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 25. — [Special.]—Prof. George H. Barton, 81, noted Harvard geologist and a veteran explorer, fell dead today of a heart attack as he faced his geology class in the lecture room.

Prof. Barton had been suffering since Oct. 12 with heart disease, but last Saturday he felt well enough to begin teaching his geology class. He went to the lecture room today for the second class.

Beckons to Member of Class.

The professor walked into the class room with his usual energetic step, turned to the blackboard and wrote a few words, turned to his class and then seemed to falter.

"I don't feel very well," he said, and beckoned to a member of the class. He was helped to a chair and died almost immediately.

Prof. Barton was noted not only for his work in the field of geology, in which he was a leader, but as an expert on the volcanoes of Hawaii, as he passed a long period there with a government survey.

Former Associate of Peary.

As a former associate of the explorer, Peary, he did considerable work in the arctic. It was in 1896 that Prof. Barton went north with Peary on his sixth arctic expedition through northern Greenland. That was 13 years before Peary's eventful polar dash. At that time their ship, the Hope, was frozen in Cumberland sound upon their return and two days of bucking tactics were necessary to extricate her.

Soon after graduating from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in 1880, he accepted a position in Hawaii as a civil engineer and devoted himself to the study of volcanic geology.

Returning from Hawaii and several trips of exploration, Prof. Barton settled down to teach here. He shortly was made a director of the Teachers' School of Science, an extension of Harvard college, and in later years had much to do with the founding of a natural museum for children. He became a director of the children's museum.

HURLEY LEAVES $25,000 FUND TO NOTRE DAME

Edward N. Hurley, financier and war time head of the shipping board, who died on Nov. 14, bequeathed $25,000 to the University of Notre Dame for scholarships, it was learned yesterday. The bequest was made known by the university at South Bend, Ind., following the receipt of a notice from Attorney Andrew J. Ryan, who represents the estate.

A representative of the university will appear at Wheaton, in the Du Page county Probate court, when the will is offered for probate late this week. The scholarship fund is available to students earning half of their expenses. Mr. Hurley was a member of the board of lay trustees of the university and was the donor of the Edward N. Hurley College of Commerce building on the campus. He was awarded an honorary doctor of laws degree at Notre Dame in 1918 and received the Laetare medal from the university in 1926.

Hursen Funerals in Every Neighborhood

THE majority of families in Chicago and suburbs would never think of calling any one else but Hursen for funerals.

These families are located in every nook and corner of Chicago. Hursen service does away with the question of distance!

These families know that a "funeral by Hursen" is the deepest proof of their final devotion. It is this vast jury of Chicago families that has made Hursen's the largest and greatest funeral establishment in America today.

Yet, Hursen Funerals Always Cost Less

Hursen funerals are famous for their unusual elegance and finesse, unsurpassed in service, equipment and environment. The use of Hursen chapels, the most beautiful in the world, is always free of charge.

Hursen automobile equipment, the finest in America, is furnished at a price no greater than for less desirable equipment elsewhere.

So, no matter where you live, or your distance away, call Hursen, of course!

SHADWELL WILL LEAVES $100,000 TO 2 CHARITIES

The $100,000 estate of Bertrand Shadwell, who styled himself "the citizen of the world," was bequeathed to charity, it was learned yesterday when his will was admitted to probate by Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to the probate judge. Shadwell, who left Chicago 15 years ago to travel throughout the world, died on Aug. 31 at Antibes, France. He was 61 years old.

The will directs that $10,000 be given to the Illinois Humane society and the balance of the estate to the Salvation Army. The bequests are to be known as the Mary Helen Shadwell funds in memory of Shadwell's wife, who had accompanied him on his travels and died at Alexandria, Egypt, in 1925. The estate was represented by Attorney A. G. Humphrey.

Two other wills were filed with Clerk Mitchell C. Robin in the Probate court yesterday and were admitted to probate as follows:

Herman Palenz, died May 12. Estate, $2,000, to two friends. Herman Peetz is executor.

Adolph W. Nies, died Oct. 13. Estate, $4,200, to daughter, Clara M. Larson, who is executrix.

KNOXVILLE 2 TO 1 FOR MUNICIPAL POWER PROJECT

Voters Approve Bond Issue of $3,225,000.

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—The Tennessee Valley authority will have a municipal distribution system with which to test the effectiveness of its hydro-electric power "yardstick."

Knoxville's electorate went to the polls today and votew two to one approval of a proposal to issue $3,225,000 in bonds with which to construct or acquire a city owned system for the distribution of TVA power.

Complete returns from the city's 38 precincts showed a vote of 5,129 in favor of the bond issue and 2,564 in opposition had been cast.

Lighter Vote than Expected.

The vote was light. There are more than 16,000 registered voters in Knoxville. Anti-bond association managers, opposing the bond issue, had expected a light vote to mean victory, but the returns showed that the prediction was erroneous.

"I said before the election that the Tennessee valley authority would take no part in local politics and now that the election is over, I still make the same statement," David E. Lilienthal, of the TVA, said tonight.

He said, however, that the "TVA will be glad to confer with city officials when they come to us."

Although the bond referendum has carried, the bonds themselves are not voted. The vote merely gives the city council authority to issue the bonds, "for the purposes of constructing or acquiring a city-owned electric distribution system."

Purchase Believed Doubtful.

Inasmuch as $3,225,000 is the full amount of bonds which may be issued, and the Tennessee Public Service company, operating here, has approximately $10,000,000 property in the city, on rate base comparisons, it is not believed that purchase is likely.

Figures showing that 600 men would be employed for 16 months, 30 hours a week, at an average wage of 65 cents per hour, were used during the campaign by the bond proponents.

Knoxville has already made application to the federal public works administration for a loan and grant.

During the past two weeks, the TVA has awarded many contracts to Knoxville business concerns. The organization maintains its principal headquarters here, using the larger part of two office buildings, and announced a day or two before the election that it would occupy another building within a few days.

Suit Is Threatened.

A suit has been threatened the TVA by a Birmingham attorney who insists that the act of congress creating the authority specifies that the principal headquarters shall be maintained at Muscle Shoals, Ala.

The private utility operating in Knoxville proposed during the closing moments of the campaign to take TVA power and to pass on any savings to the consumers, but that proposal was ignored by TVA officials who refused to say whether they would sell the private company power if the bond issue was defeated.

The $3,225,000 bond issue brings Knoxville's total indebtedness to more than $30,000,000.

POWER PLANT IN SHED 10 BY 12 FT. IS DEDICATED

West Elkton, O., Nov. 25.—(AP)—This village dedicated—and helped to pay for—its new municipal light plant tonight with the best dinner the farm wives hereabout could cook—and all of them are past masters at the art.

The power house is a shed 10 by 12 feet the men of the village helped erect. The power is provided by a 20 horse power gasoline engine. The plant was planned only to light the streets of the village, in darkness for more than a year to economize on current purchased from a private utility, but already Mayor A. R. Kirk and those who plied pick and shovel with him are talking about expansion sufficient to light the village homes as well.

When West Elkton called in its neighbors to help celebrate its women collected a half dollar or so from each served with the rabbit, chicken, and oyster supper. What profit there is will be applied to wiping out the $500 the village still owes on the municipal plant.

The men of the hamlet of some 300 inhabitants dug into their own pockets to help buy what material they needed, stumbled about in dark streets for more than a year to save more money, and then plunged in with pick and shovels, hammers and saws to erect the power house and the boulevard lights and dig the long trenches in which the underground power lines run. It took them 18 months in all to do it. Tonight the job is officially done and dedicated.

LEADERS OF U. S. HOUSING FORM AN ASSOCIATION

The National Association of Housing Officials, composed of authorities engaged in housing projects under governmental sponsorship, was formally organized yesterday at a meeting in International house at the University of Chicago.

Ernest J. Bohn, chairman of the housing committee of the Cleveland city council, was elected president, and Alfred K. Stern, chairman of the Illinois housing commission, vice president. Charles S. Ascher, secretary of the public administration clearing house, Chicago, was made acting secretary of the association. Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, who is also president of the Federal Emergency Housing corporation, is a charter member.

Mr. Bohn said there was need for co-ordinated work among the agencies engaged in public housing. He pointed out that while full membership was granted only to public officials, private persons might become associate members and obtain the collected information the association plans to develop.

MRS. HUTTON INSISTS HE ASKED FOR $5,000 TO SETTLE GIRL SUIT

Fort Worth, Tex., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Asserted proof that David L. Hutton, her estranged husband, asked her for money in a proposed property settlement was offered here today by Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson-Hutton, the evangelist.

"Relative to Mr. Hutton's reported denial of demands for money," Mrs. Hutton said, "I will simply state that I hold in my hand his request for $5,000 to pay for the St. Pierre suit he lost."

The $5,000 to which the evangelist referred was awarded Hazel St. Pierre, blonde nurse, in a breach of promise suit.

Hutton's alleged request to his wife for the $5,000 is contained in a proposed property settlement which the evangelist exhibited in her suite at a hotel.

"Of course, I shall not agree to any such proposal," Mrs. Hutton said.

"I'm afraid he's gone too far now to make any sort of reconciliation possible."

NEWARK MAYOR FOR SYNDICATE FINANCIAL RULE

City Slated to Yield Power 2 Years.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Mayor Meyer C. Ellenstein and Reginald Parnell, director of the department of revenue and finance, agreed today to the plan of the citizens' financial advisory committee to surrender control of the city's finances to a syndicate of banks, insurance companies and other corporations in return for financial security until Dec. 31, 1936.

Under the plan the city commissioners virtually lose their right to govern Newark, since the budget will be controlled by a director who must have the approval of the syndicate.

Although the plan will not be adopted until one of the remaining three commissioners assents to it, it was learned today that all were in favor of it.

Fund of $24,000,000.

In return for allowing the bankers and insurance men to decide the city's fiscal policy, Mr. Parnell's department may draw on a balance not to exceed $24,000,000 over the three year period. This sum represents, roughly, 85 per cent of the city's delinquent taxes. The city is not permitted to borrow more funds from any source for any purpose without the consent of the syndicate.

Most stringent of the many provisions in the plan is the compulsory slashing of $2,000,000 a year from the year's budget of $21,000,000. This will involve an immediate new 10 per cent cut in the already deflated salaries of Newark's school teachers, firemen and policemen. In control of the budget cutting will be the director of the budget, appointed only with consent of the bankers and insurance men.

Eight Banks in Group.

At least eight banks and two insurance companies, names as yet unrevealed, are members of the syndicate. Several corporations, including the Public Service corporation, which controls utility and traction interests throughout New Jersey, also are members.

Frank A. Boettner, Newark corporation counsel, conferred today with a group of lawyers representing the syndicate. It is reported that they drafted several pieces of legislation necessary to put the plan into effect. One of the proposals concerns the delinquent tax law which heretofore has imposed a penalty of 1 per cent a month for arrears, excepting a three month period of grace. The new law would abolish the period of grace, so that delinquent payers would be fined 12 per cent a year.

Another law to be considered is the consolidation of the city's several pension funds into one central board, thereby avoiding duplication of clerical work and investment counsel.

Sees No Other Course.

Despite the drastic rules the plan imposes on the city commissioners the badly shaken credit structure of Newark left no other course open to them. It was learned at city hall today that of the five commissioners only Mr. Parnell had consistently favored the syndicate's offer. Mayor Ellenstein, while not eager to see Newark's government pass into the hands of bankers, admitted recently that he saw no other solution to the city's difficulties.

Additional provisions of the syndicate include the passage of a law compelling the city to keep in trust in a sinking fund all collections of any year for which tax revenue certificates are outstanding.

FACTIONS AGREE UPON OPERATION OF HOTEL LASALLE

Operation of the Hotel La Salle will be continued indefinitely pending a reorganization of the hotel's financial affairs, it was agreed yesterday before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

The order to Thurlow G. Essington, receiver, was made possible by a compromise between conflicting interests, including bondholders and general creditors.

Abel Davis, who by virtue of being receiver for the Illinois Life Insurance company, controls approximately 75 per cent of the assets of the hotel company, agreed that the hotel need not pay a year's rent, amounting to $54,000, beginning Dec. 1.

Gen. Davis also said he would purchase $25,000 of receiver's certificates. He was empowered by the court to deposit with the bondholders' protective committee $1,300,000 of the hotel securities held by him as collateral for a loan from the Illinois Life company.

Sues Estate of Tobacco Heiress; Demands $30,000

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Sheriff William R. Sutphen today served papers on the estate of Miss Doris Duke, tobacco heiress, in a damage suit for $30,000. Mrs. Cinina Rafaela of Raritan, in a complaint filed through her attorney, alleges that she was attacked by four great danes owned by Miss Duke. She was badly bitten, the plaintiff said, and her right arm now is paralyzed.

Builder Says Modern Housing Projects Will Not Pay in Slum Areas

CHANGES SITE, BUT FINDS COSTS HAVE ADVANCED

NRA Codes Boost Labor and Materials.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

That modern housing projects are not financially feasible for slum areas unless on a tremendous scale is the unusual discovery made by the backers of one of Chicago's large apartment corporations, whose plans are now under consideration in Washington by the public works administration. This information, gleaned after the expenditure of many thousands of dollars in architectural work and many months of planning, contradicts most of the theories advanced by experts on blighted areas.

Another situation uncovered by this same group of Chicagoans as a result of abandoning their slum site for one in a good neighborhood is that NRA activities are seriously handicapping them by boosting the cost of both labor and materials to a point where it is doubtful whether, even with the aid of a federal loan, the room rent can be kept down to a figure approved by the Washington authorities.

New Idea in "Clearance."

A third angle to the blighted area question, and one which has not received much if any attention from the experts, is the position taken by certain federal officials that modern housing projects must mean slum clearance. An answer to this was given yesterday by one of the best posted men on these matters in the city. He pointed out that a housing project erected in an outlying neighborhood that could not possibly be called a slum could easily and literally be made a "slum clearance project" as follows:

"If the project, for example, calls for $5,000,000 of new buildings," he said, "spend a good sized fraction of that amount in an actual slum clearance and turn the cleared property into a park. Then go ahead with the housing project even if it's miles away. You've then wiped out part of a slum, provided a small park, and supplied some good living quarters.

Answers Criticism.

"This should answer the criticism of the federal experts who insist on tearing down slum dwellings and also should pacify the real estate dealers and owners who object to more housing unless somewhere there's a commensurate amount of residential units wiped out."

The discovery that a modern housing project stands little chance of being a success in a slum area (unless it is on such a scale that nearly wipes out the entire blighted area) is based on the following facts:

1. A large majority of the residents of a slum could not afford even the lowest possible bracket of rentals.

2. Any who could afford the housing project rent schedules would at once move to a better neighborhood; they wouldn't stay in the old one, no matter what accommodations were offered them.

3. The younger generation move to better areas as fast as they can. They seldom settle down in the dismal neighborhood they were reared in.

"Diamond in an Ash Can."

"Building a modern housing project in a slum is like burying a diamond in an ash can and just about as much use," said the prime mover in the big project, who prefers that both his identity and that of his project not be made public. This attitude, by the way, is typical of all of the large number of housing projects either being planned or now under consideration at Washington. Promoters all declare it might kill their chances of getting federal funds if anything were said in advance of allocation.

For that same reason locations and names are omitted from this report. The people back of it, however, are wealthy, well known, and reliable. The architectural firm is an old established one.

A site was selected in one of Chicago's most notorious slum districts. Probably $25,000 was spent in plans, sketches, and various architectural and engineering work. An option was secured on property at $2 per square foot. An arrangement was made with union officials whereby a lower scale of wages would be in effect during the construction of the project.

It was found that with the then present low cost of building materials and the proposed lower labor scale a big apartment building could be erected on a site covering approximately two city blocks, with a rent schedule of a minimum of $8 per room per month.

Gave Up Slum Site.

"I spent several months of personal investigation in the slum district in which we planned to build," said the leading figure in this project. "I discovered, after talking with hundreds of residents, that we would never make a go of it. There were only a few families who could afford even our lowest rentals, and they all said they would move to a better neighborhood rather than live in a better building in the old area.

"We couldn't count on any one from outside becoming tenants, for they wouldn't walk through a slum to get to their apartments. And the younger generation without exception are moving elsewhere.

"We gave up our slum plan and selected a site in a moderate priced outlying neighborhood. But despite the fact that the land was only one-eighth of what we would have had to pay in our slum location we found that our rentals would be $9.90 and up a room per month instead of $8 in the slum site.

"This was caused by the advance in building materials brought about by NRA and also by the fact that if we get permission to build Washington will insist on the full union scale. Whether we ever go ahead remains to be seen."

Contracts Awarded

Contracts awarded in Chicago the week of Nov. 17 to 23, according to figures supplied by the F. W. Dodge corporation, totaled 15, with a combined cost of $326,700.

First View of the Interior of La Salle Street's Newest Bank

The new banking home of the American National Bank and Trust company—a first view of the interior of which is shown above—will be opened at 33 North La Salle street on Monday, Dec. 4. The artist, W. A. Simpson, has sketched a view from the center of the banking room on the second floor showing the great windows on the north overlooking Washington street. To the left is seen the new marble and bronze staircase leading from the La Salle street entrance to the building. It is located between two banks of elevators leading directly to the banking floor.

At the left is the trust offices' department and on the mezzanine floor above are the working spaces of the trust and stock transfer departments. The north end of the banking floor will be occupied by the executive officers. Ten conference rooms adjoin this space. At the extreme right the visitor glimpses the long line of forty-three cage counters and wickets of marble and bronze.

The architectural treatment throughout is modern, but conservative, characterized by simplicity, according to Weary & Alford, architects. The walls are covered with polished Italian Tavernelle marble, to a height of twenty-seven feet, the effect being enhanced by vertical fluted pilasters. The floor design is a geometric pattern of brown imported marble. The ceiling is decorated in soft tones, with blue predominating, and portions of the ornamental surfaces are embellished with gold leaf. From the ceiling panels are suspended five massive bronze fixtures of lantern type. The panels are further enriched by six modernistic life sized sculptured figures representing industry, packing, construction, agriculture, rail transportation, and navigation.

PIXLEY-EHLERS PLAN NEW CAFE ON WEST SIDE

A. J. Pixley, president of the Pixley & Ehlers restaurants, yesterday signed a lease for a new eating establishment at 1540 West Madison street, in the 8 North Ogden Avenue building. This will be the seventh unit to be opened by the firm since the beginning of the depression in 1929. Plans by Frank O. De Money, architect, call for walnut wainscoating and chromium trim. All illumination will come from indirect lights concealed at the tops of four supporting pillars in the room. An air conditioning system will maintain a uniform temperature throughout the year.

The lease was negotiated by W. H. Ames of L. L. Willis & Co., representing the lessee, and Martin J. O'Brien, building agent, the lessor. John Kinnare, Inc., is general contractor. Completion is scheduled for late in January.

The entire front of the building also will be remodeled by the owners at a reported cost of $26,000. The cost of the restaurant was not disclosed. Approximately thirty-five will be employed in it. About fifty workmen will be used in remodeling the building and restaurant. The restaurant will front on both Madison and Ogden.

Says PWA Billion Loan Would Bring $7,000,000 to Chicago

If the plans of the Home Builders and Land Developers' National Committee to have the PWA and other federal agencies loan a billion dollars to the home building industry, goes through on the basis of 75 per cent loans, the 2,000 single family house program for Chicago would bring $7,000,000 here to be spent in wages and materials. This statement was made yesterday by John D. Brennan of the M. H. Hussey corporation of Waukegan, a member of the committee and district chairman for the Chicago area.

First returns on the check being made in the Chicago metropolitan area by the Home Builders' committee shows that 2,000 homes in the $5,000 class could be absorbed at once, according to Mr. Brennan. He added that when the committee's survey of the nation is completed on Dec. 3 this figure may be larger. He pointed out that only 245 homes have been built in this area so far this year.

Says More Would Be Spent.

"Of course this $7,000,000 in wages and materials spent in the Chicago district would be only part of what actually would be spent," said Mr. Brennan. "People would make the initial payments on these homes and large sums undoubtedly would be expended for new furnishings and equipment."

Supporting the home builders' committee's recent charge that the government housing authorities are not interested in the single family home but are endeavoring to promote mass housing of the European type, Lynn C. Jones of Chicago yesterday made this statement:

"The government has launched a program of apartment building under the guise of slum clearance. The average cost of each project seems to be about a million and a half dollars. A project such as these benefit just one architect, one big builder, and one selected group of workmen.

Money in More Pockets.

"The same amount of money would finance the construction of over 250 private homes and mean dollars in the pockets of many architects, contractors, workmen, and home building realtors."

The Home Builders and Land Developers' National committee, which has its headquarters in Cleveland, plans a trip to Washington on Dec. 4 to ask for not less than a billion dollars for new low cost single family homes in all parts of the country.

"We're not asking for grants or gifts, but for loans that will enable us to fill orders for new homes," said Don A. Loftus of Cleveland, chairman of the committee. "I, myself, have bona fide orders for 1,150 single family homes in Cleveland. The people have the money for the down payments. I have the land, with improvements in and taxes paid. All we need is the first mortgage financing. The usual channels, as every one knows, are not available. Available money is lying in Washington. We're going there to get it."

WIEBOLDT RENTS DOUBLE PRESENT STORAGE SPACE

Due to business increase in the five Wieboldt department stores, the corporation has found is necessary to double its storage space and has leased the six story and basement fireproof warehouse at 2619-33 Arthington street, with 120,000 square feet of floor space, from the Heywood-Wakefield company. The term is ten years and the total rental reported to be $200,000. The lease provides for an option for additional space if needed. Lang, Weise & Cella were brokers for the Wieboldt Stores, Inc., and J. H. Van Vlissingen & Co., represented the lessors.

Paper Firm Leases Floor of Occidental Building

Allen & Co., paper merchants, have leased for a term of years the second floor of the Occidental building at 318 West Washington, containing 7,200 square feet, from the Garrett Biblical institute. Bert A. Allen, president, states that this is the first time the company has moved its offices in twenty-seven years. Robert White & Co., agents for the Garrett Biblical institute, represented all parties.

Carpet Firm Triples Its Chicago Warehouse Area

The Charles P. Cochrane company will triple its warehouse facilities as a result of leasing for several years 15,000 square feet of space from the Central Storage and Forwarding company. The firm will store carpets for its entire middle west trade in the new location.

BROKERS' NOTES

Frank H. Wilkins, former vice president of John Cummings Lindop Real Estate, Inc., and G. M. Grounds, formerly of the real estate department of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, have formed the firm of Wilkins & Grounds, with offices at 920 North Michigan avenue. Their phone is Superior 8899. They will specialize in commercial and chain store leasing.

LETTERS

Another Reply to the Mythical "Mr. Allen."

Real Estate Editor: I saw with interest Mr. F. H. Allen's letter in Sunday's real estate section wherein he appears to be voicing the bondholders' plea.

I am the owner of a number of bonds of issues called for deposit about a year ago by the bondholders' protective committee of the Woodlawn Trust and Savings bank. After a due outburst of righteous indignation, I deposited my bonds; incidentally, half of my bonds had reorganization plans outlined and were paying interest, although at a reduced rate, when called.

I thought, at the time, that the responsibility for the success of the plan lay solely with the committee, but since then I have learned differently. I expressed then the same general criticisms that I had heard others express; pretty much the same as Mr. Allen does in his letter.

It seems clear to me now why it is that so many committees, starting off so well, have been forced to the wall, so to speak, by the almost futile necessity of dealing with otherwise intelligent bondholders that are being continually thrown in confusion by suggestions such as Mr. Allen makes; half truths and generalized suspicions that are usually reiterated for quite different purposes than the unwary bondholder suspects.

Mr. Allen shows a startling lack of observance for one so apparently eager to see justice done the bondholders when he accuses THE TRIBUNE of not voicing our—the bondholders'—side. One can hardly pick up a TRIBUNE, issued within the last eighteen months, that does not have some letter or news item exhibiting the pros and cons of this question.

When a few bondholders can no longer defend their stand in not depositing their bonds for a legitimate reorganization plan that has been worked out to the satisfaction of all the rest of us, they always fall back to uttering those generalized suspicions that can be applied to practically every protective committee that has ever functioned, when the real reason, apparent to me, is that the holdout wishes to do a bit of racketeering at the expense of his fellow bondholders.

TRIO OF LAKE COUNTY FARMS CHANGE HANDS

Three Lake county farms, totaling 520 acres, are reported to have been purchased by a trio of Winnetka men who will do dairying, chicken and hog raising. Elmer E. Stults of the E. E. Stults Realty company was broker for the buyers. Geweke & Kolmar represented the sellers.

Frank F. Ferry bought the Oakwood farm of 205 acres, just west of Prairie View, on the new McHenry road, from Frances H. Hales of Oak Park. Adjoining this on the east is the 229 acre Herman Albrecht farm, which was purchased by Edward Hill from Laura Hales of Oak Park. The latter also sold the eighty-six acre farm east of Prairie View to Robert Hill.

These three sales are the largest sales of improved, equipped and operating farms in Lake county during the last three years.

Ninety Attend Meeting of North Side Rent Managers

Ninety persons attended the organization meeting of the North Side Renting Managers' association held at the New Lawrence hotel. By-laws submitted were unanimously approved. Frank J. Murnighan, Burt P. Kiely, Allen McDonnell, Roy E. Knauer, and Fredric P. Kirschner were appointed to the rules and regulations committee. According to William B. Snowhooks Jr., secretary of the association, organization work will be completed at the meeting next Wednesday; thereafter the meeting will be held on the second Wednesday of each month.

NEW U. S. LOAN BODY URGED TO AID REAL ESTATE

Suggested That Housing Cash Be Used.

MILO B. FRENCH.

Creation of a federal body similar to the Home Owners' Loan corporation, but making small first mortgages on larger apartment and business buildings, is suggested by Milo B. French, secretary of the First of Englewood Bond and Mortgage corporation, in a letter to Ickes, public works administrator. To accomplish this he recommends that any money allotted to the Chicago area for housing be used for this purpose instead.

He calls real estate "a sick baby that needs government help, not government competition" which he declares will be the case if Uncle Sam gets into the housing field.

Used For Back Taxes.

Mr. French stated that the proceeds of mortgages made by the suggested new corporation would go to pay back taxes and to rehabilitate structures, thus employing almost every type of union labor in Chicago.

"There are an untold number of excellent well built apartment and business properties in Chicago on which honest reorganization committees have secured the deposit of all outstanding bonds and the bondholders are willing to take liquidation trust certificates on the properties," said Mr. French to Mr. Ickes.

"But the committees can't complete the reorganizations because they can't get a loan in an amount sufficient to pay up all these past due taxes and the expenses of reorganization, and the cost of putting the properties back in shape so that they will pay off the loan. There are hundreds of equity owners in Chicago to whom a loan of this kind would mean the saving of their properties."

Where the Proceeds Went.

As an argument that this can be done, Mr. French points out that his firm recently successfully completed the reorganization of twenty-three apartment properties in Chicago on which he secured first mortgages totaling $350,000. The proceeds of these mortgages went, he stated:

1st. To the payment of over $125,000 to the city for past due taxes.

2d. To the payment of a 3 to 6 per cent dividend to the 500 bondholders on these properties who own bonds aggregating $1,500,000, which were all deposited 100 per cent.

3d. To the thorough rehabilitation of these properties, on which were hired practically every form of union labor in Chicago.

4th. The purchase of building materials and supplies.

Now 98 Per Cent Rented.

"This was all done without any excessive fees, foreclosure costs and these properties, for your information, are 98 per cent rented," Mr. French stated. "This was worked out on twenty-three apartment properties and is the 'proof of the pudding' and these properties are no different than hundreds of other fine apartments in Chicago."

Mr. French concludes his suggestion for a new federal lending body with the statement that "there is positively no doubt that a corporation of this kind can be worked out safely for the government, a credit to the administration, and a blessing for Chicago real estate."

WEST SIDE REAL ESTATE FIRMS BAR CONCESSIONS

Members of the newly formed West Side Renting Men's association voted at their second meeting to abolish rent concessions. Resolutions outlining this step were unanimously adopted. All members present were given a card to place in their office windows bearing the following notice: "Rents have been adjusted and for that reason there will be no more concessions given out of this office."

The attendance at the second meeting was double that of the first and the following new firms were enrolled as members: Paul H. Altemeir, R. G. Badeaux, William J. Dunne company, William R. Henriksen, Albert F. Keeney, William J. Klibanow, O. A. Lewis, John T. McEnery, J. W. McNichols, the Realty Management company and Paul E. Zimmerman & Co.

A committee to consider the establishment of a credit bureau was named. It comprises the following members: Fred M. Thurek, chairman; J. L. Shodin, Paul H. Altemeir, Arthur H. Davidson, and J. W. McNichols.

"The need of a central credit bureau speaks for itself when enormous sums are lost each year in avoidable bad accounts," said Lee Krafft of the west side office of Baird & Warner. "A central credit bureau strengthens the position of tenants who meet their obligations.

"Through the exchange of information and the gathering of rental statistics, the association will be in a position to diagnose problems; to foresee rental needs and trends, and to determine what size apartments will first experience a shortage and consequent increase in rentals. Prospective tenants will be provided with more definite information and better service."

HIDDEN WANT ADS

THE FASCINATING TREASURE HUNT GAME!

- Can you follow a trail? Do you like treasure hunts and other games that make you use your wits? Then get busy right now! Here's your chance—today Want Ad Wanda presents another of her fascinating hidden want ad treasure hunts! Today the clues are all new—and you'll find some of an entirely different variety.

You'll find it loads of fun. All you have to do is find between ten and fifteen hidden treasure hunt want ads in today's Tribune Want Ad Section. No hard work to do—no letters to write. You buy nothing—just send in an entry.

Join in this fascinating chase! Read the simple rules and start now!

THE RULES:

WHAT TO DO: Between ten and fifteen "treasure hunt" want ads are printed in today's Chicago Tribune Want Ad Section. A "treasure hunt" want ad looks just like a regular want ad, only the wording is different. The picture above will help you find the first treasure hunt want ad. The first one will have a clue to help you find the second one, and so on. All together there are not less than ten and not more than fifteen hidden treasure hunt want ads. It is up to you to decide when you have found them all.

JUDGING: Entries will be judged by a committee appointed by the Chicago Tribune and their decisions will be final. Accuracy will be the chief consideration; neatness will be the next. In case of ties duplicate prizes will be awarded tying contestants.

WHERE TO SEND ENTRIES: Entries should be mailed to "HIDDEN WANT ADS NO. "F," the Chicago Tribune, Postoffice Box 1718, Chicago, Illinois. All entries in today's game must be received in the Tribune office before 6:00 p. m. on Friday, December 1, 1933. No entries will be returned.

WHO CAN ENTER: This offer is open to all—men and women, boys and girls, except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. It is not necessary to buy the Chicago Tribune to compete. You may copy the hidden want ads and submit them on a separate sheet of paper. The Tribune may be examined at the Tribune offices or at public libraries, free of charge.

PRIZES:

To the persons who submit, in accordance with these rules, the most nearly complete sets of hidden treasure hunt want ads arranged in the most nearly correct order, the Chicago Tribune will pay $100.00 in cash prizes:

First prize	$25.00
Second prize	15.00
Third prize	10.00
Next five prizes, ea.	5.00
Next twenty-five prizes, each	1.00

Elaborate entries will receive no more consideration than simple ones. Just make your entry simple and neat.

N. U. PROFESSOR OPPOSES MERGER OF UNIVERSITIES

Would Stifle Initiative, He Asserts.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Dr. George W. Crane, professor of applied psychology in the department of liberal arts at Northwestern university, said last night that he opposed the merger of the Evanston university with the University of Chicago. Dr. Crane, whose textbook on applied psychology is widely used in universities throughout the world, attacked the proposed merger on the ground that it would stifle individual initiative and helpful competition.

Friendly and nonwasteful competition, as well as the initiative the competition stimulates, is as productive in educational progress and scientific research as in commerce and industry, Dr. Crane asserted. He is the first member of the faculty of either institution to make a public statement against the complete merger of the two universities.

Danger of Loss to Education.

"The merger proposal involves many far reaching consequences in education which certainly do not warrant precipitate action," said Dr. Crane. "As a sweeping conception in midwestern education, it may sweep out much that is most beneficial by trying to eliminate some wasteful competition.

"Alumni and faculties of both institutions should be given adequate time to consider every aspect of the case. While the merger appeals to the imagination, there is nothing thus far indicated which could not be obtained by a coöperative plan on agreement between the two universities which would not upset present administrative structures."

Dr. Crane cited the differences in the development of the traditions of the two universities as reasons for opposing the merger.

"At Northwestern," he said, "emphasis has always been placed upon undergraduate and professional education. At Chicago the developments have been toward graduate education and pure research. There is thus a clear cut and practical division of educational labor between us."

An Argument Against Merger.

Based on this division of effort, Dr. Crane argued against the merger, on the ground that the benefits of both systems could be obtained for the student by mere change of registration from one school to another.

Dr. Crane referred to those who express alarm "at our apparent lack of graduate research facilities at Northwestern in, for instance, the school of education. I see no reason why a student upon graduation from Northwestern should not, under the circumstances, go down to the midway and register in the graduate school there. It is much easier to change the registration of a student than to rebuild the administrative structures of the two universities."

Competition as a factor in education has been overlooked in the merger plans, Dr. Crane emphasized. He declared that competition and loyalties are driving forces through which not only education but society in general have benefited. Dr. Crane argued that the vastness of the merger would obscure departmental activity, with consequent loss of loyalty on the part of the staff and the students.

"Staff members, under the vast merger plans, would lose their sense of loyalty they have in a situation which is competitive without wastefulness. They would become cogs in a wheel—in a huge impersonalized mass which would emulate Columbia university."

HONOR D. W. CLARK ON 70 YEARS IN MASONIC LODGE

David Warren Clark, 93 years old, a retired banker, was honored last night by fraternal associates at the W. B. Warren Masonic lodge, 2708 Washington boulevard, in recognition of his seventieth anniversary as a member of the lodge.

For sixty-six years of his seventy years of membership, Mr. Clark has been treasurer of the lodge. This is thought to be a record for tenure of a Masonic office. More than 1,000 members and others, including Masonic leaders, attended the party. Mr. Clark's achievements as a business and Masonic leader were lauded.

Mr. Clark lives at 3125 Warren boulevard. He has lived in Chicago since 1854, having come here in that year from Boston, where he was born. He joined the Warren lodge in 1863 and saw its membership grow from twenty to more than 1,000. Until recently he was vice president of the Madison-Kedzie State bank.

16 Year Old Illinois Girl Is Married Third Time

Harrisburg, Ill., Nov. 25.—[Special.] A sixteen year old Eldorado girl has been married for the third time. The third marriage of Mrs. Verble Macy Gray occurred last evening to John Dodd, 24.

SEMINOLE INDIANS OF OKLAHOMA PONDER MIGRATION TO MEXICO

Seminole, Okla., Nov. 25.—[U. P.]—Oklahoma's Seminole Indians tonight considered a proposed mass migration to semi-wild Sonora, Mexico, where they might find good hunting instead of oil derricks and refineries.

Unlike previous generations of migrating Seminoles, the "Civilized tribe," would travel in automobiles bought with oil and agricultural wealth.

The tribe's head men, including Chief George Jones, cloaked their deliberations in secrecy. The principal obstacle facing the tribesmen, should they decide to migrate, was discovery of a document that contained a valid claim and grant to the old Seminole lands in the Mexican state.

It was feared that the document was destroyed several years ago when its custodian, Waxie Tanyan, lost her home in a fire.

TRIAL OF JOINT TAX OBJECTIONS OPENS TOMORROW

Affects 438,000 Homes and Small Flats.

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections last week were $2,219,581. Collections for the previous week were $2,438,921. A total of $90,762,835 has been collected since enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act was started on April 28. This week's collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for the last four years follows:

	1928.	1929.
Nov. 20-24.....$	128,869	$ 246,635
Uncollected	16,266,274	43,351,400
	1930.	1931.
Nov. 20-24.....$	362,210	$ 1,481,867
Uncollected	68,883,412	69,407,101

Hearing of charges that the 1931 tax assessment rolls are fraudulent, and by their lack of uniformity discriminate against the home owner, will begin tomorrow afternoon before County Judge Jarecki. The hearing will be on a test objection filed by the Chicago Real Estate board.

The board asks that Judge Jarecki reduce by 15 per cent the assessments on the 438,000 home and small flat buildings in Cook county. Judge Jarecki's ruling will apply to all property owners in these classes who combine their objections with the board's.

"Last Stand" in Fight.

The board's petition is the "last ditch" fight of the home owners. Last March the board of tax appeals entered a 15 per cent reduction order on the 438,000 properties. This reduction was sustained by the Illinois Supreme court last June. A month ago, however, after a rehearing had been granted the Supreme court voided the order. Relying on the Supreme court decision, Assessor J. L. Jacobs has refused to reduce the assessments. If the reductions were made, the county's tax revenue would be lessened by nearly $9,000,000. This would ruin the credit of the municipalities in the county, according to many county officials.

In the event that Judge Jarecki finds the tax rolls fraudulent and orders the reduction, it is believed that the long legal struggle would not yet be over. It has been indicated that the assessor would carry the fight to the Supreme court again.

The litigation over the reduction has greatly retarded the collection of taxes. The penalty date for the second installment of 1931 real estate taxes was fixed by statute as Sept. 1. County Treasurer McDonough was forced to extend the penalty date until 30 days after the Supreme court ruled on the petition for rehearing. This made the penalty date Nov. 21, but it was necessary to extend it again—this time to Dec. 1.—because of the impending hearing before Judge Jarecki.

See Further Penalty Delay.

The hearing is expected to take more than two weeks which will probably make a further extension of the penalty date necessary. Should the fight then be carried to the Supreme court again another postponement might be necessary.

Tax collections totals made public by the county treasurer last week disclosed that while 72 per cent of the first installment of 1931 real estate taxes has been paid, only 46 per cent of the second installment has been collected.

The treasurer announced that his office will be open all day to accommodate taxpayers who wish to join in the real estate board's objection.

2 FORECLOSURE SUITS AGAINST WM. H. MALONE

Foreclosure suits were filed in the Circuit court yesterday against two properties owned by William H. Malone, former head of the state tax commission, who is now in Europe and who was recently indicted by the federal government here on income tax charges. F. D. Bird, holder of mortgage notes signed by Malone, filed the suits, one of which seeks to foreclose a $60,000 junior mortgage on the Pickwick Theater building in Park Ridge. The other seeks to foreclose a $50,000 mortgage on a building at 6104-20 Norwood avenue. Two weeks ago a suit to foreclose the $350,000 first mortgage on the theater building was filed in the Circuit court.

FORM NEW BARGE LINE FOR ILLINOIS WATERWAY HAULS

Expect to Begin Operation by Feb. 15.

The formation of the Illinois Barge Line company, a corporation which will engage in contract transportation between Chicago, St. Louis, and intermediate points on the Illinois waterway, was announced yesterday by Donald S. Walker, president of the new concern.

A contract for eight barges of special design, to cost between $80,000 and $100,000, will be let this week. Delivery of the barges will be accepted next February and the barge line is scheduled to be in operation by Feb. 15, the date of the opening of the waterway.

Four Feet Above Water Line.

The barges, which will have a 500 ton capacity, are 160 feet long and 35 feet wide. They will be unique in that the top of the barge will be only four feet from the water line when the barge is loaded. They will draw five feet six inches of water. They will be constructed of welded steel and six of the eight barges will be covered, so that valuable cargoes may be transported safely.

"These barges will be lower than any ever built before," said Mr. Walker. "Barges on the Illinois waterway must be of different type from those on other waterways. They must be low, not only because of the 16 feet limit of bridge clearance but because the pilot of the towboat pushing them must be able to see over a string of barges ahead of him."

Cargoes to be carried by the barge line include pig iron, steel, sulphur, Georgia clay, hemp, cocoa beans, copper, lead, waste paper, newsprint, and coal. Inquiries have already been received, Mr. Walker revealed, which indicate advance orders totaling over 500,000 tons.

Plans for Towing Barges.

One boat will push the barges between Chicago and Ottawa, he explained. The barges there will be picked up by Capt. H. C. Blaske, pioneer Illinois river operator and captain of a large river boat, and taken on to St. Louis. This arrangement provides for a maximum of speed and efficiency, Mr. Walker said.

The company has contemplated using the Damen avenue terminal in Chicago for its home port. The terminal is at present owned by the state, but rumors that the state plans to lease it to another barge line or affiliated interests have made the officials doubtful of the advisability of using the Damen avenue terminal. If the Damen avenue terminal is not selected, headquarters probably will be established at the Tooker Storage and Forwarding company on the south fork of the south branch of the river at 36th and Iron streets.

Backers of New Company.

Among those backing the company are Orlo O. Montague, real estate dealer and vice president of the Chicago real estate board, and Cornelius Lynde, attorney for the Mississippi Valley association. Mr. Walker, the president, is a son-in-law of William R. Dawes, banker, who has for many years been interested in the development of the Illinois waterway. Walter J. Smith, vice president in charge of traffic of the new company, was traffic manager for the shipping board during the war and has for ten years been representative in Chicago of the commissioner of the port of New Orleans.

Another project designed to put into operation on the Illinois waterway a number of new type, all steel barges built in New York has been postponed until spring. The decision was made after it was learned that the tow barge of the fleet being brought here from New York had grounded on a sandbar at Marinette, Wis. The barges are of 700 tons capacity and as completely covered as a lake steamer. Because of their design, which makes them particularly fitted to clear the bridges over the Illinois waterway, the Chicago steamship concern, D. Sullivan & Co., considered putting them into service here.

WIFE OF PINCHOT TAKES UP FIGHT FOR 175,000 WAITRESSES

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of Pennsylvania's chief executive, today signed a petition addressed to her husband protesting against a provision of the state liquor control bill which would bar waitresses from restaurants and hotels which sell liquor.

The waitresses claim 175,000 girls would be thrown out of employment in the state after repeal of prohibition under the proposed act, which has passed the house.

Mrs. Pinchot said she thought that would be unfair.

BANQUET HONORS M. H. DURKIN, NEW LABOR DIRECTOR

Martin H. Durkin, Chicago labor leader recently appointed state director of labor, was guest of honor at a testimonial banquet held last night at the Sherman hotel. More than 2,000 persons, including state and city officials, labor representatives and civic leaders, attended the function.

William H. Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, who came from Washington for the occasion, was the principal speaker. He pledged his fullest support to the "plumber who arose from the ranks to become Illinois' director of labor." He also urged everyone to stand back of the Roosevelt administration in its efforts to remedy unemployment.

"We must win this fight against unemployment," said Mr. Green, "we can't stand it any longer. We tried another plan for four long years and things kept getting worse. Who has offered a better plan than the present one? The business and professional man owes much to labor which suffered so much, but remained self-controlled throughout this trying period."

Mr. Durkin declared he would do everything in his power to aid industry as well as the interests of labor, and assured his audience that he would not allow the department of labor to be used for racketeering purposes. He promised to exert every effort to advance the progress already made by both capital and labor.

SCHOOL BUDGET UP WEDNESDAY; FACES DEFICIT

Shrunken Revenues Must Be Considered.

Members of the board of education will receive at their meeting Wednesday the first estimates of resources and appropriations for the 1934 school budget. The estimates have not been completed, but from all indications the tentative budget will be unbalanced by millions of dollars because of decreased revenues.

The school board will be confronted with a deficit of $9,496,404 at the start of the next fiscal year on Jan. 1, according to a recent report of the citizens' committee on public expenditures. If this deficit were to be wiped out in one year by pay reductions it would mean a cut of 20 per cent in the salaries of teachers and other school employés in addition to the 25 per cent reduction of 1933.

Deficit Despite Cuts.

The deficit is in the educational fund from which the salaries of nearly all the 17,000 school employés are drawn. After deducting the deficit and considering the decreased income there would be a total income of $31,943,596 for this fund next year in contrast to expenditures of $40,825,696 for this year. The deficit remains despite the paring of $7,000,000 from the budget by economy measures adopted by the school board last summer.

The school trustees have been seeking a source of additional revenue other than taxes on real estate. At the suggestion of Trustee Charles W. Fry, James B. McCahey, president of the board, has written to Gov. Horner proposing that a portion of the money derived from taxing liquor, tobacco, or any other commodity be used for bolstering up the finances of the Chicago schools and other school districts throughout the state.

Reduction in Building Repairs.

The budget item for repairs of school buildings will reflect a saving of approximately $1,000,000 compared with the appropriations for this year, according to John Howatt, chief engineer for the system. This is not an actual saving, however, since the school officials reduced repair expenditures this year after the 1933 budget had been put into operation.

A force has been sent out to the schools to check over the repairs asked for and to eliminate non-essentials. It was said that because of the federal government's CWA program the expenses for painting the 400 schools of the city, which runs in normal years from $600,000 to $850,000, would be reduced materially.

Appropriations for the business department are estimated roughly at $6,050,000, judging from the progress made thus far. The 1933 salary cuts are taken into account in the reckoning. Proposed expenditures for the business department in 1934 are calculated as follows: Salaries, $4,500,000;

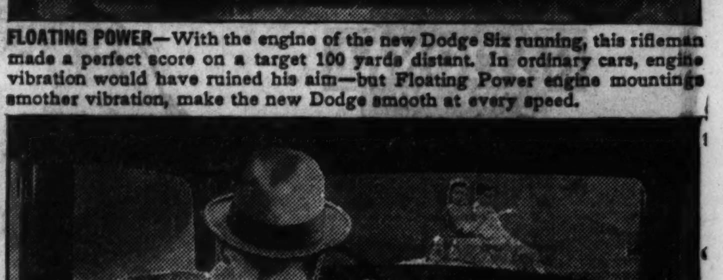
HOW MANY OF THESE UP-TO-DATE FEATURES WILL YOUR NEW CAR HAVE?

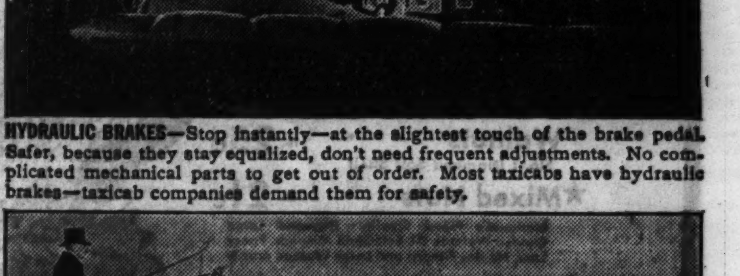
NOTHING BUT A STEEL BODY COULD STAND THIS TEST!

STEEL BODY—Engineers rolled a new Dodge Six down a steep hill. Over and over it went, crashing against rocks and bumps, to the bottom. Then—it drove off under its own power! Only a steel body could have stood this terrific test!

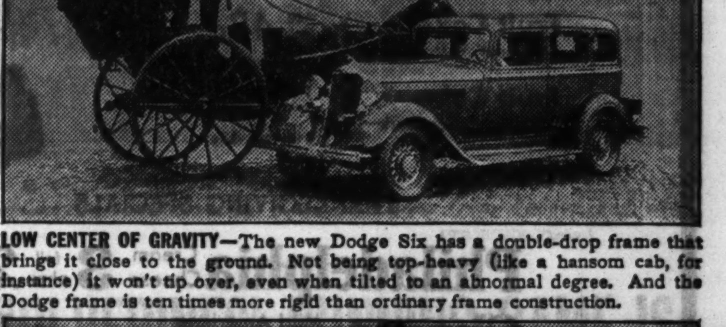
FLOATING POWER—With the engine of the new Dodge Six running, this rifleman made a perfect score on a target 100 yards distant. In ordinary cars, engine vibration would have ruined his aim—but Floating Power engine mountings smother vibration, make the new Dodge smooth at every speed.



HYDRAULIC BRAKES—Stop instantly—at the slightest touch of the brake pedal. Safer, because they stay equalized, don't need frequent adjustments. No complicated mechanical parts to get out of order. Most taxicabs have hydraulic brakes—taxicab companies demand them for safety.



LOW CENTER OF GRAVITY—The new Dodge Six has a double-drop frame that brings it close to the ground. Not being top-heavy (like a hansom cab, for instance) it won't tip over, even when tilted to an abnormal degree. And the Dodge frame is ten times more rigid than ordinary frame construction.



AUTOMATIC CLUTCH—This optional feature of the new Dodge Six takes most of the effort out of driving. You never need to touch the clutch pedal; never need to use your left foot. Start, stop, shift, reverse—and never touch the clutch. Dodge has Free Wheeling, too.

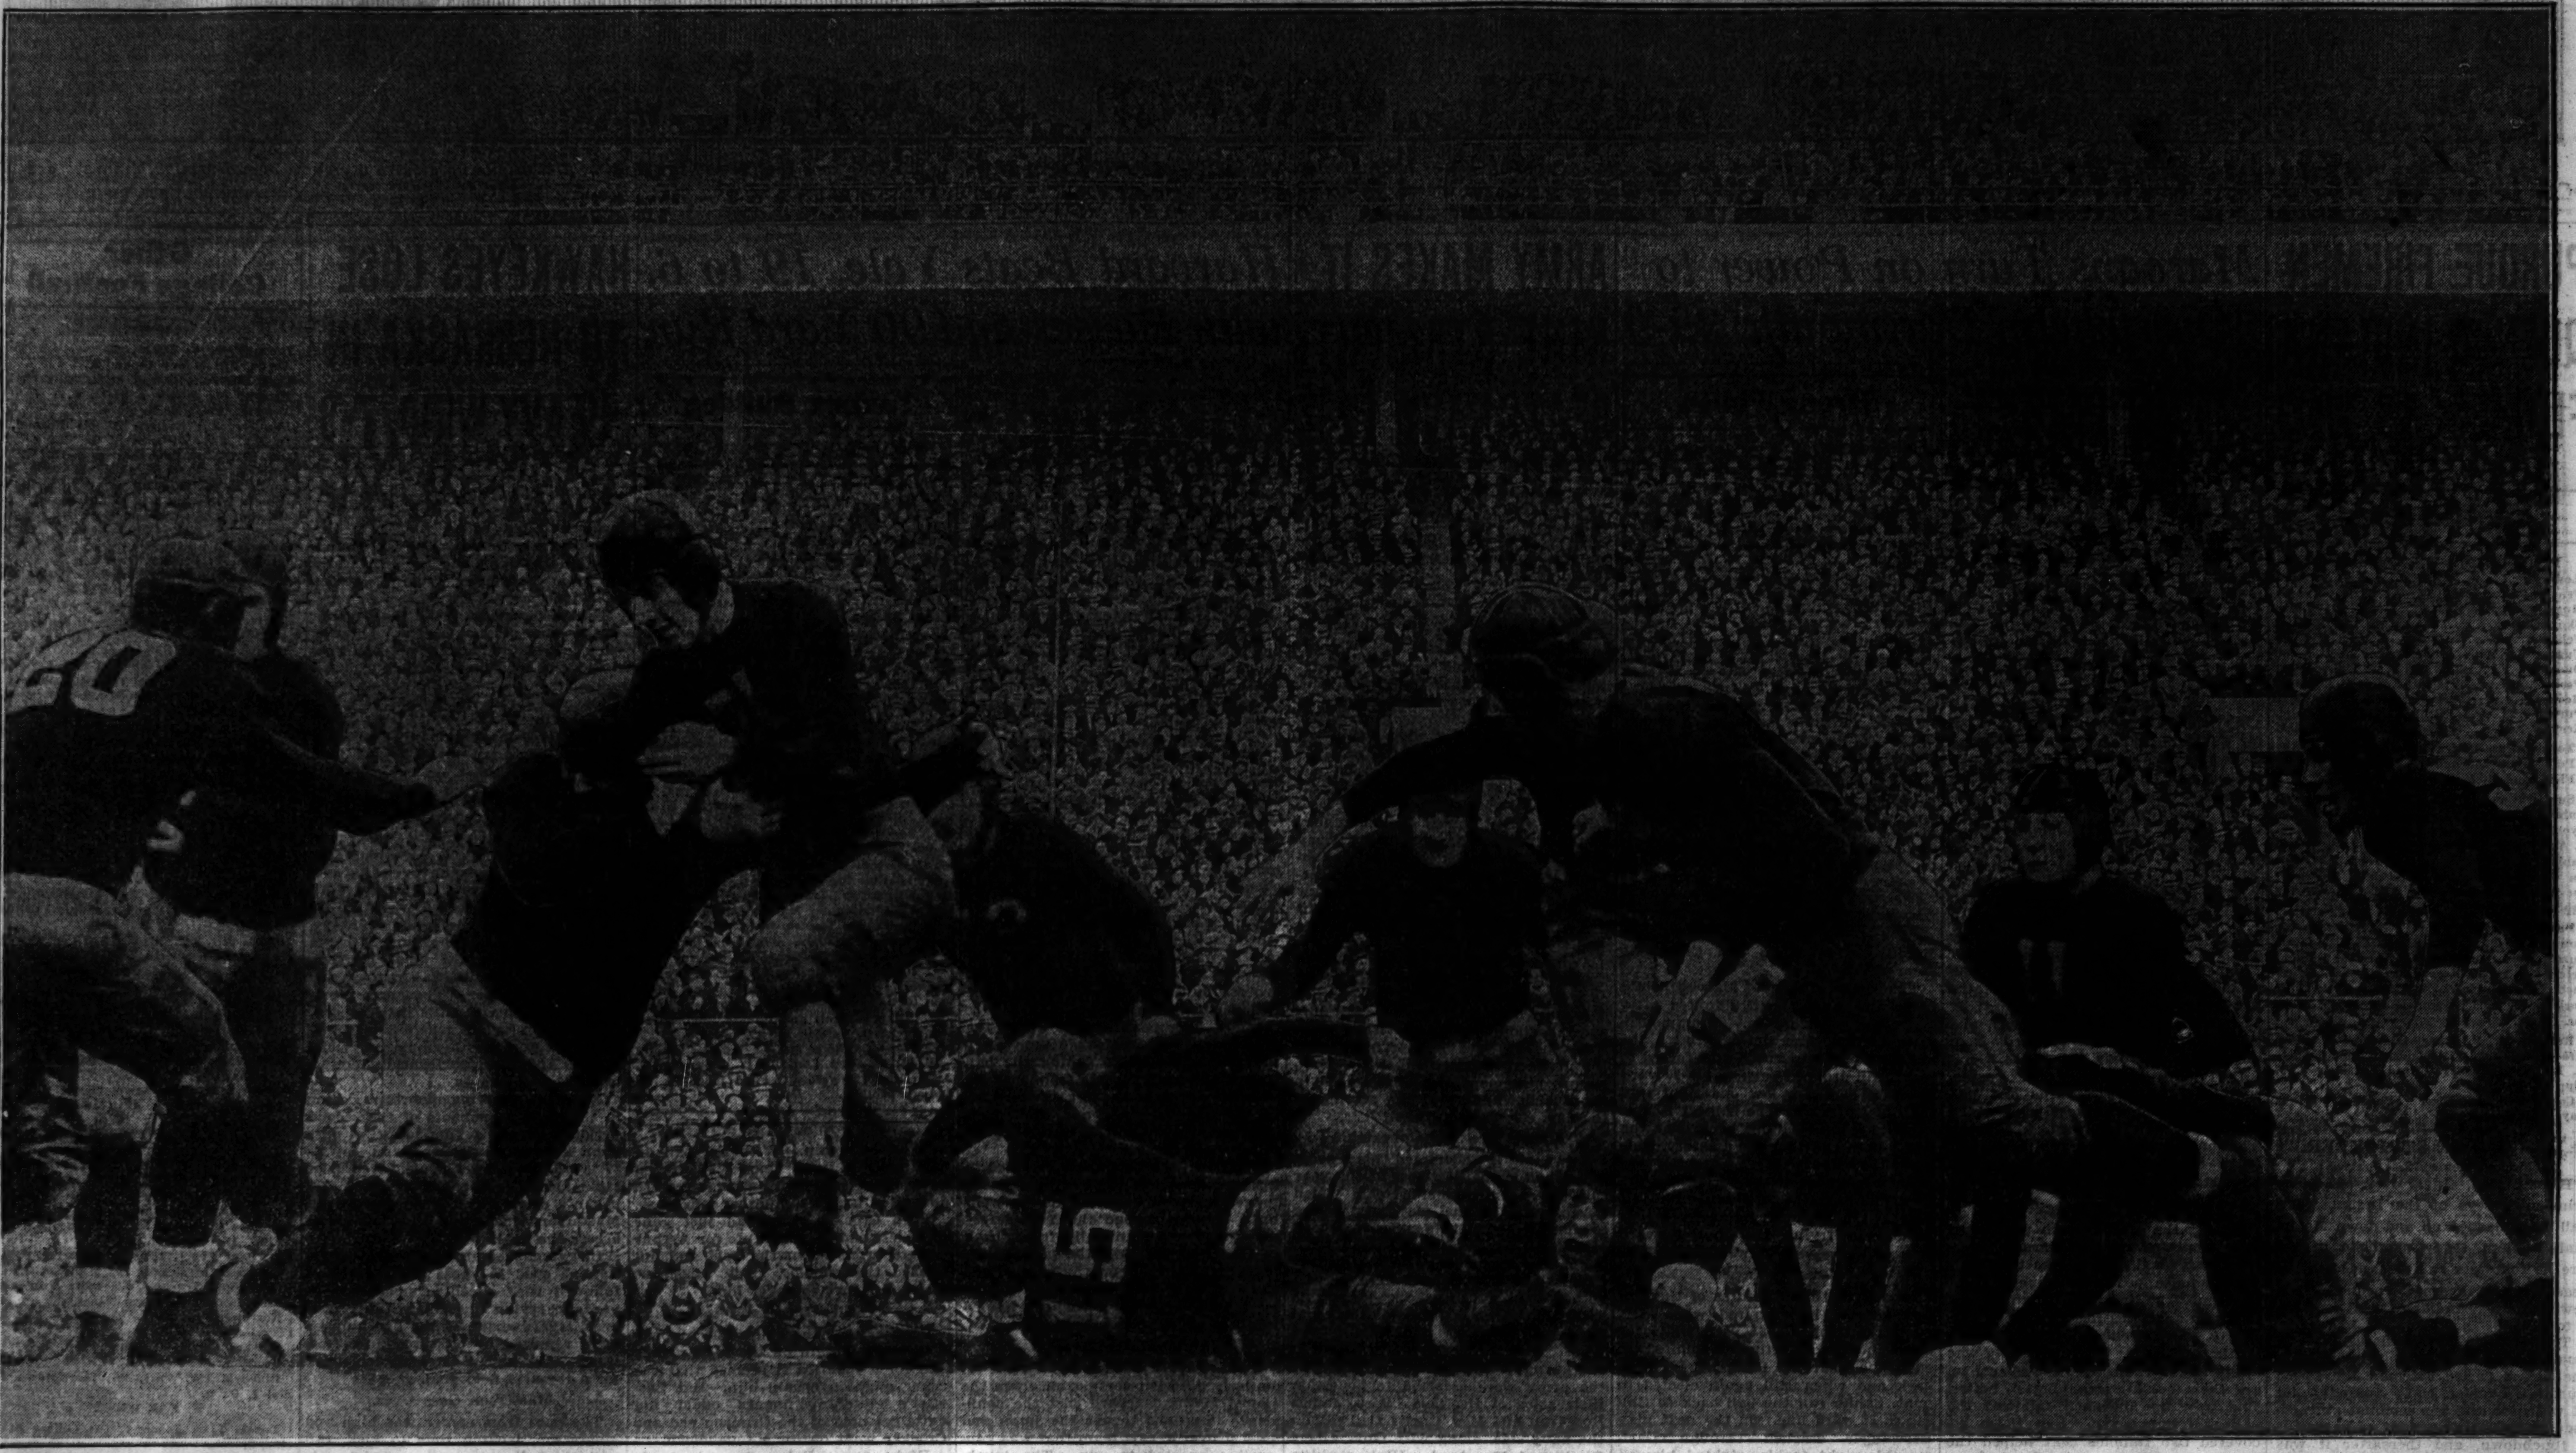
MICHIGAN WINS BIG TEN TITLE; WHIPS N. U., 13-0

NOTRE DAME LOSES, 19-0; CHICAGO CRUSHES DARTMOUTH, 39-0

THE MAIZE AND BLUE STILL WAVES OVER THE BIG TEN



Michigan beats Northwestern, 13 to 0, at Dyche stadium and clinches the Big Ten championship for the fourth successive year. A big factor in another successful season was the fleet Herman Everhardus, who is carrying the ball for a short gain against the Wildcats in the second quarter. Everhardus and other Wolverine backs were limited to short gains, so effective was Northwestern's front line defense. All of the Michigan points came via the air—field goals by Everhardus and Petoskey, a touchdown by Ward on a pass from Renner, and Everhardus' point following the touchdown.

WARBURTON SCORES TWICE; U. S. C. SPEED DAZZLES IRISH

BY ARCH WARD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 15.—Irvine Warburton, who never had been east of Phoenix, Ariz., became nationally famous by leading the Southern California football team to a 19 to 0 victory over Notre Dame before 37,000 midwestern fans this afternoon. It was the most decisive score the Trojans have rolled up in their eight year rivalry with the Irish and it evened the series at four games apiece.

It was a race of the swift, not a battle of the strong, and as Southern California had far more speed, it was a one-sided contest all the way. It was a signal victory and that signal was Warburton, who was the game in himself. Out of the heat of combat and from twisting, writhing masses, he twice slipped away for touchdowns. On each occasion his touchdown was preceded by brilliant ball carrying. An eel is sandpaper compared to Warburton.

Griffith Scores on Pass.

Between Warburton's runs, McNeish forward passed over the goal line to Griffith for the Trojans' second touchdown. The all-around work of Griffith, the brilliant play of Rosenberg at guard, and the strong defense at the flanks figured prominently in Southern California's triumph, but over them all, as the stands emptied themselves, was riding the name of Warburton.

It was Warburton, the midget, the alert, the opportunist, who broke up what for 15 minutes appeared to be a tight ball game.

He joined the Trojan ranks at the start of the second quarter with the ball near midfield. Wotkyns cracked Notre Dame's right tackle for five yards. Warburton had previously been stopped with slight gains and Notre Dame partisans were beginning to think this was one game in which he was going nowhere. But they soon found that Warburton, like a reptile in the sun, is most dangerous when he appears to be sleeping.

There He Goes!

After Wotkyns' gain came the signal for Warburton. He waited for his interference of two backs and running guard to clear the way and then he started. Krause, Notre Dame's left tackle, was crowded in and Millner, left end, was swept out. And on came Warburton through the opening. A short step here, a long one there, he was darting through the Notre Dame defense, throwing his hips to the right and to the left. Pilney, the defensive left half back, came up to make the tackle, but Rosenberg took him out of the play. Pilney was clutching at empty air as Warburton whizzed by. Mazziotti, who was on the opposite side of Notre Dame's box defense, cut across fast to force the runner out of bounds, at the ten yard line.

A roar of "hold 'em, Notre Dame," arose in crashing crescendo from the west stands. For the next three downs it sounded like the roar of Lincoln park lions at feeding time. A moment later the Irish rooting sec-

Illinois Loses to Ohio State in 7-6 Thriller

BY FRENCH LANE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., Nov. 25.—By the narrow margin of a point after touchdown Ohio State threw back Illinois, 7 to 6, in a spectacular football struggle here this afternoon and captured third place in the Western conference football race. The battle was as thrilling and as full of drama as any the old rivals ever waged.

The heartbeats of the 25,000 spectators in the huge horseshoe bowl began to quicken late in the third quarter. They beat faster and faster until a minute before the game was to end.

Then came the most dramatic moment of all.

Who Fired That Gun?

The Buckeyes were leading, 7 to 6, but the ball was in the possession of the Illinois warriors, who were fighting as gallantly as any Illinois team ever fought. They were fighting and marching and passing down the field to what seemed to be the touchdown that would turn the tide in their favor.

Beynon had passed 17 yards to Froschauer and the Illini were in Buckeye territory on the 47 yard line. A pass, Beynon to Frink, was good for five more yards.

Beynon whizzed another long one down the field and it dropped into the arms of Froschauer on the Ohio 9 yard line. Beynon rushed through the line for a two yard gain.

Suddenly, from out of the dusk, a pistol barked. For seconds—it seemed like years—the score board had been indicating there was only a minute to play.

Crowd Goes Out on Field.

The crowd rushed out on the field. The Ohio band started prancing and tooting; scarlet clad substitutes from the Ohio bench swarmed out on the greensward to their teammates.

Illinois players were pounding the ground, some of them weeping in their disappointment at not having been

BERWANGER LEADS IN POWERFUL ATTACK AGAINST EASTERN TEAM

BY EDWARD BURNS.

That Beeg Green team from Dartmouth yesterday had the great misfortune to get tangled up with a Maroon team that not only was inspired but plum crazy. The score was 39 to 0 in favor of Chicago and the Maroons didn't really open up until the last eight minutes of play.

In those last eight minutes, neighbors, the Maroons actually made four touchdowns and had another called back. No team ever became more completely drunk with power than did the Maroons in those staggering last eight minutes. Twenty-six thousand viewed the wildest Stagg field spectacle in recent years.

There were six touchdowns and Jay Berwanger was the only Maroon to make more than one. There was one safety, on a blocked punt. Chicago added only one point after touchdown, but it was made in the only attempt against the stiff wind, just to show it could be done.

Dartmouth Held in Check.

Only once did Dartmouth threaten. And that wasn't much of a threat. In the second quarter they got to Chicago's 16 yard line. And immediately they were squelched.

And, now, here's the log of those Maroon onslaughts:

Touchdown No. 1—Scored by Ewald Nyquist from the 1½ yard line after Berwanger had brought the ball to that point on a 25 yard advance on five plays.

Safety—Hill kicked into the Chicago team and the ball bounced over the end zone for two points.

Touchdown No. 2—Made in the third minute of the second quarter on a 61 yard squirming run by Berwanger.

Cullen Intercepts Pass.

Touchdown No. 3—Made at the end of the seventh minute of the fourth period when Ed Cullen intercepted a forward pass and ran 65 yards to a touchdown.

Touchdown No. 4—Scored by Sahlin in the 11th minute of the final period. A pass, Berwanger to Bush, made 16

BadgerFumble Gives Gophers 6 to 3 Victory

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 25.—Wisconsin's Badgers, bedeviled by their every conference opponent this unhappy season, suffered their greatest misfortune today and 30,000 Minnesota fans underwent one of the most disagreeable afternoons in Minneapolis football history in order to see their Gophers defeat the luckless lads from Madison, 6 to 3, at Memorial stadium.

The Badgers' misfortune was not apparent until the first minutes of the third quarter. Throughout the first two periods they had outplayed the rugged and supposedly more talented Minnesotans. In addition to this amazing performance they had even gone so far as to score three points to be the first Minnesota opponent of the year to lead the Gophers at any stage of a game.

Kicks Goal from 39 Yard Line.

It was big Mario Pacetti, the Badger's right guard, who in the first six minutes of play made a field goal. At the moment of his effort it appeared to be a foolhardy move, for the goal bar was 49 yards away. But with a spanking breeze directly to his back, Mario booted it over as though it had been from the ten yard line with Tom Fontaine holding the ball on the Minnesota 39 yard line.

Those three points loomed larger and larger as the half progressed and took on magnificent proportions in the second quarter when the Badgers turned back Minnesota on its own four yard line with four yards to go for a Gopher touchdown. It seemed that Dr. Clarence W. Spears might have a 3 to 0 victory to carry back to Madison in the handsome traveling bag with which the natives had presented him during the half as a token of esteem for his five years of coaching here.

Pug Lund Goes Over.

Then came the first three minutes of the third quarter, sad minutes for the 2,500 Badger fans who had come all the way up here to see their team play. The 2,500 were in ecstasy when

WOLVERINES' RUNNING GAME IS STOPPED, SO THEY TAKE TO AIR

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Hail, hail to Michigan, the champion of the west!

Michigan's kicks and Michigan's passes defeated Northwestern's impotent Wildcats yesterday at Dyche stadium, 13 to 0. And by this victory Michigan won the Western conference football championship for the fourth consecutive year, establishing a modern record for supremacy comparable only to the days when the point a minute elevens from Ann Arbor rode rampant over all opposition and the sons of Michigan brought forth that stirring challenge:

Hail to the victors valiant!
Hail to the conquering heroes!
Hail, hail to Michigan, the champion of the west!

Thirty-two thousand saw the finale of the campaign in which Michigan's veterans, none of whom ever has played except on a championship eleven, wrote finis to their great record.

Everhardus Scores First.

The thousands saw these veterans ward off a first quarter threat by the Wildcats and, having asserted their mastery on defense, turn to the business of manufacturing points. With a methodical fundamental attack the Wolverines sought scoring opportunities by John Regeczi's punting, obtained position in front of the goal posts, and left the field for the intermission leading, 3 to 0, when Herman Everhardus place kicked a field goal.

Then, in the opening minute of the third period, one long pass, accurately placed by Bill Renner in the hands of the fleet Willis Ward, reached Northwestern's goal. Everhardus place kicked the point. Once more in the same quarter the total was boosted when Ted Petoskey, hard driving running mate of Ward at the ends of Michigan's scrimmage line, place kicked a field goal from Northwestern's 35 yard line with a favoring wind at his back.

Wildcat Line Invulnerable.

Northwestern was whipped decisively, but the Wildcat line, never yielding to running plays by Michigan, repaid the loyalty of its followers. The Wildcat line repeatedly charged to halt the Michigan running attack. Except for that momentary break in the pass defense of the secondary, Northwestern might have kept its goal line uncrossed as it had against Stanford, Illinois, Minnesota, and Indiana. But without Ollie Olson, its long distance kicker, and without Al Kawal, fiery guard, both of whom were out with injuries, it had no chance.

The wind whipped the flags atop the huge steel stands to shreds. It was almost as important a factor in the outcome of the battle as Renner's forward pass. With its aid Regeczi forced back the Wildcats, who, how-

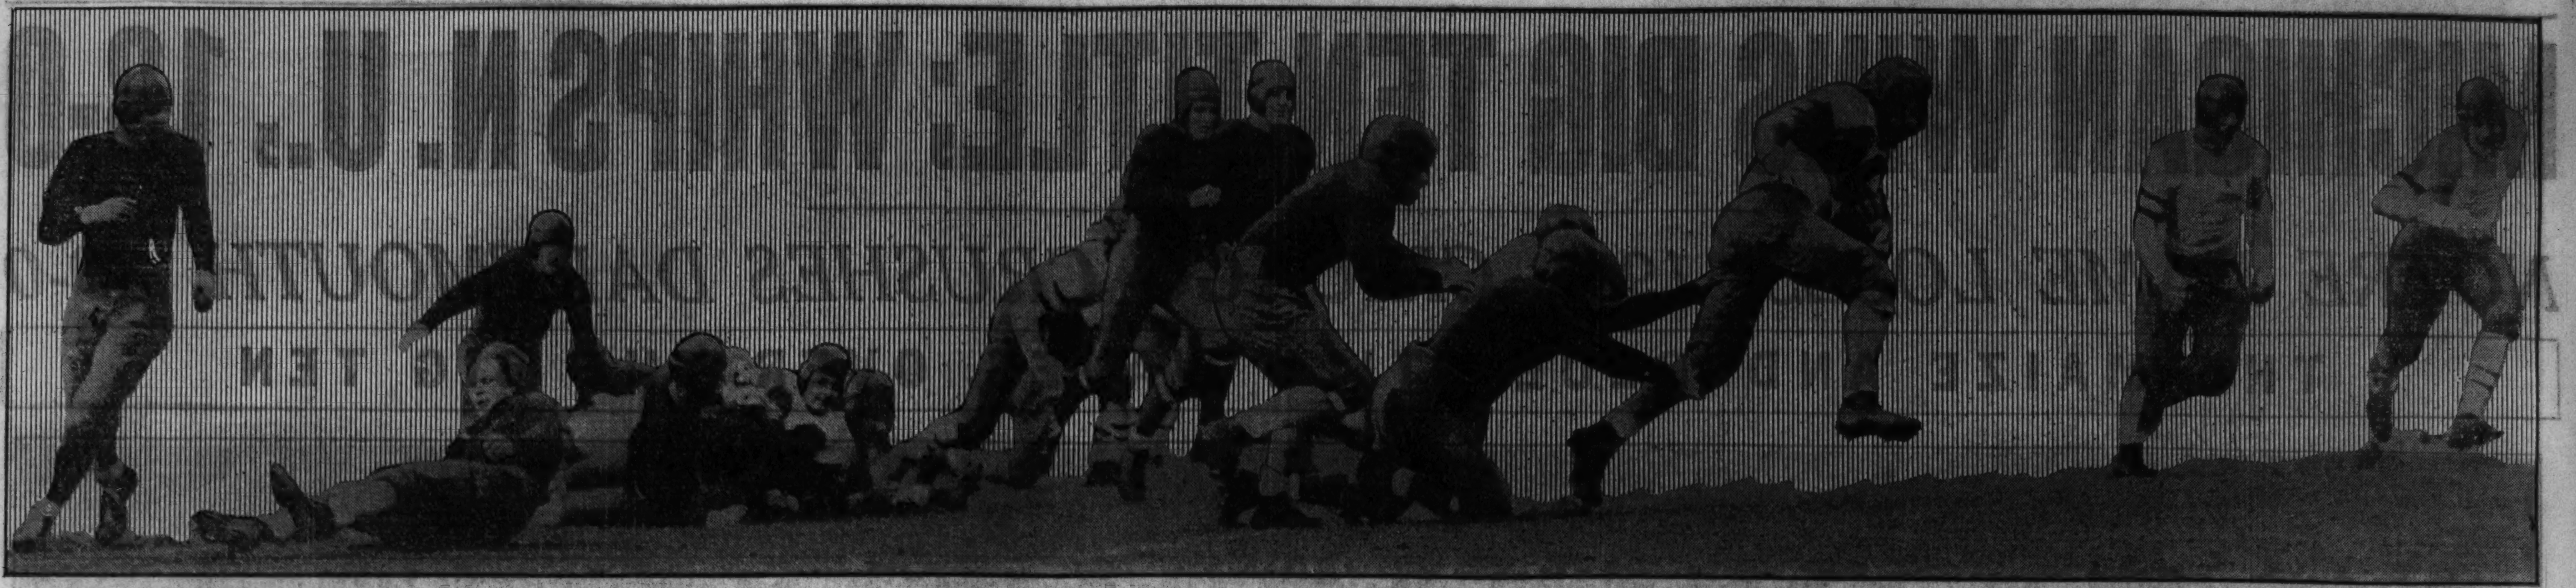
MAROONS GO ON SCORING RAMPAGE—39 POINTS AGAINST DARTMOUTH!



Jay Berwanger, finishing his first season as a Maroon, shows so much skill that Dartmouth probably wants to see no more of him. The star Chicago sophomore is going on one of his long runs that helped the Midway eleven pile up a 39 to 0 victory over Dartmouth, always one of the east's first flight teams. Berwanger scored two of the six touchdowns in the most impressive Chicago victory of the season. A crowd of 26,000 attended.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 25.—The crimson jerseys of the Indiana football team flashed up and down Memorial stadium today symbolic of the fire its followers had demanded in the season finale against Purdue. In a few minutes Indiana was leading, 3 to 0.

The crimson blazed fiercely for a quarter and a half, but midway in the second period Fireman Jim Peele, Purdue's quarter back, poured a lot of water on the homecoming proceedings by returning a punt 85 yards for a touchdown, and thereafter it was comparatively easy for Purdue to win the 36th renewal of this intra-state rivalry, 19 to 3.

Charges of indifference hurled at the Indiana team by Bloomington fans, and whispered about by the student body were emphatically belied by the eleven men who started the game. They outfought Purdue from the opening gun, charged into wreck any attempts at consistent offense the Boilermakers might have had in mind, and rushed into scoring position twice before the first quarter was ten minutes old.

Indiana Wrecks Passes.

After Peele's run, Purdue began gaining more regularly, and when Carter, Purvis, and Moore started another fierce assault in the third period, finally sending Carter over on a 16 yard run, the outcome became a matter of the size of the score. The one persistent plague which Indiana hurled at Purdue throughout the game was its defense on passes. Only two of nine Purdue attempts were completed and they constituted the last two plays of the game, which ended with the Boilermakers on Indiana's 5 yard line.

Indiana's opening charge was of the inspired type Crimson fans have been praying for all fall, and it made itself felt in the Purdue backfield. Under the fierce tackling of Indiana linesmen Fred Hecker fumbled on the third play of the game. He recovered the ball for a five yard loss. Purvis went back to kick on fourth down and the team that has been victorious in only one game this year, came sifting through the Purdue forwards so fast Purvis was hurried attempting to field a low pass from center. He also fumbled, but recovered for an eight yard loss and Indiana took the ball on Purdue's 31 yard line.

Five plays later 18,000 Indiana homecomers went into a frenzy and Indiana into a three point lead. Dauer lost a yard but Veller got 12 and a first down at left tackle. Veller failed once, but H. Sawicki added four yards in two drives at center. On fourth down, Reed Kelso, a junior playing his first year of varsity football, dropped back from his center position and made a place kick from the 16 yard line.

The Hoosiers got off to a flying start toward another score after an exchange of kicks when Huffman intercepted Hecker's pass and returned it 40 yards to Purdue's 40 yard line. Veller in three thrusts over the center of the line picked up 11 yards and a first down on the 29 yard line. Then Indiana took to passing and two went awry, setting the ball back to the 24 yard line. Kelso again place kicked, but this time his effort was short and fell in the end zone for a touchback.

Indiana made only one more serious threat after that, reaching the Purdue 15 yard line after a poor kick by Purvis and a pass, Huffman to H. Sawicki, good for 24 yards, but Sawicki fumbled on the first play and Moore recovered for Purdue.

In the meantime Indiana had been taking advantage of Bob Jones' kicking on which it was gaining repeatedly. Jones kicked one to Peele, who fumbled trying to catch the ball after he had misjudged it. The ball bounded ten yards to the 15 yard line, where Peele gathered it in and started down the side lines past the Purdue bench. At the 45 yard line he was pocketed by two Indiana men and faked as if he were going to step out of bounds. The Hoosiers hesitated and Peele leaped between them, continuing for Purdue's first score.

Purdue Opens Up.

The third quarter opened with considerable kicking. Purdue interjected an occasional line plunge into its offensive, but without any appreciable success until Purvis spun off left tackle for 31 yards on first down to Indiana's 26 yard line.

Carter carried the ball four successive times, going 16 yards around right end for a touchdown on fourth down, when Indiana had bunched up in the line to stop what it expected would be an attempt by Moore to pick up less than a yard for first down. Pardonner kicked the extra point. He had missed the first one.

By this time the Indiana fire was just a smudge and Purdue began an offensive that netted it eight of its 15 first downs. By the middle of the fourth quarter even second and third string men were reeling off the neces- more back, smashing off left tackle from the one yard line for the third and last Purdue touchdown. Three first downs were put together in this drive, with Carter and Dailey alternating in moving the ball along at four and five yard clips. Peele had directed this march and retired in favor of Toriello, whose attempted place kick was wide.

Statistics Tell Story.

Indiana made 3 first downs to Purdue's 3 in the first half. It gained 26 yards by rushing against Purdue's 70 in the same period, but the total first downs were Indiana, 4; Purdue, 15. Indiana's total gains by rushing were 92 yards and Purdue's 357.

Capt. Fehring of Purdue started the game, but was taken out because of a recurrence of an old injury. Hecker was hurt in the first half so severely he was unable to play in the second and Fritz Febel, Purdue's great guard, who has been somewhat of a scoring menace on passes and blocked kicks this year, was carried from the field in the third period.

Touchdown No. 5—Scored by Berwanger from Dartmouth's six yard line when he skirted Dartmouth's left end and outran the secondary. Tommy Flinn had just intercepted a pass and dashed 20 yards to Dartmouth's 15 yard line. Bob Wallace made nine then Berwanger carried it over.

Touchdown No. 6—Scored by Bill Berg, playing in his first game of the year. He intercepted a pass and ran 46 yards for a touchdown.

Berwanger Leads Attack.

As usual Berwanger was a glutton for punishment as well as a sparking performer in every department except kicking and he can be excused for his kicking failures when the tricky features of yesterday's wind are taken into account. The Dubuque strong man carried the ball 25 times for a total gain of 119 yards. Sahlin also was among the active toters with 47 yards gained on 11 tries. Capt Zimmer was injured early in his farewell game and did not keep pace with Jay and Vin as per his custom.

Considering the overwhelming supremacy of the Maroons the statistics were rather surprising in that each team made 10 first downs, and the Chicago advantage on yards from scrimmage was only 166 to 124.

Dartmouth attempted 18 passes, completed 4 for 63 yards and had five intercepted with results of which you have been informed. Chicago tried only four passes, completed two for a total of 42 yards. The other two were incomplete.

Line Is Strong.

During the season much praise has been bestowed on the Maroon backs with occasional suggestions that they were handicapped by the line in front of them. The linesmen certainly need make no apologies for their work yesterday. Every one of them played a whale of a game. Their charging was a bit better than they'd ever shown and their tackling was infinitely better. The way the linesmen followed the ball was impressive. Bob Deem recovered two fumbles that helped the Chicago cause before the affair became a rout while Ell Patterson and Walt Maneikis never let up. Merritt Bush and John Rice were a couple of rip snorters, too.

Along about the seventh minute of the first period the Maroons got their first scoring effort under way.

A little earlier Deem had recovered Clark's fumble on the Dartmouth 44 yard line, taking the play right into Green territory. But Chicago kicked after three plays failed to gain, Berwanger's punt going out of bounds on the Dartmouth 21 yard line.

Clark punted to Sahlin on the 50 yard line and Vin returned eleven yards to Dartmouth's 39 yard marker. Two plunges by Berwanger netted nine yards but he was stopped without gain when he sought to vary his technique with a run around his left end. On the fourth play, however, Nyquist made it first down on Dartmouth's 29 yard line.

Berwanger Continues Advance.

Berwanger danced hither and thither for 16 yards before he was pinned down thirteen yards from Dartmouth's goal. Sahlin failed on the first play thereafter. Berwanger followed with two plunges which totaled nine yards and then made it first down a yard and a half from the goal. Nyquist then dived over the center of the line for the touchdown.

Touchdowns—Nyquist, Berwanger [2], Cullen, Sahlin, Berg.

Safety—Hill.

Point after touchdown—Berwanger.

The second cluster of Maroon points came two and a half minutes after Nyquist's touchdown. Dartmouth after making first down through the aid of an offside penalty, was forced to kick. Hill dropped back to his 20 yard line and booted a low one right into the Chicago team. The ball hit Bush's chest and went sailing back over the Dartmouth end zone for a safety. This made the score 8 to 0.

The remainder of the period was uneventful, except that Dartmouth just before the end of the session got around to trying the first forward pass of the game. It was incomplete.

Runs 61 Yards.

Less than three minutes of the second quarter had expired when Berwanger put on his 61 yard waltz for a touchdown. Dartmouth punted to start the quarter. Berwanger kicked back and when Hill again elected to punt, Sahlin ran the ball back to Chicago's 39 yard line. On the next play Berwanger crashed through Dartmouth's right tackle, righted himself and through a great exhibition of wiggling, changing pace, sidestepping and what not, evaded would be tacklers who seemed to have him. He made the last 25 yards without the least danger of being tackled.

Two completed long passes, both by Stangle, one to Deckert for 22 yards and the other to Hill for 26 yards made Dartmouth a little happier during the remainder of the second quarter.

It was as a result of the second pass, Stangle to Hill and an eight yard gain on two plays that enabled the Green to make its farthest advance into Chicago territory during the first half. After Stangle had made the eight yards Deckert made it first down on Chicago's 16 yard line.

Dartmouth Is Stopped.

Berwanger broke through and slammed Hill for a loss, two more plays failed and Stangle, trying for an end run, didn't come close to a first down and the ball went to Chicago. Sahlin and Berwanger made a first down but the half ended as Berwanger made a quick kick.

The third period was scoreless and so was the first half of the fourth period. Then Chicago busted loose with the sensational work which gave them those 4 touchdowns during the last eight minutes of play.

Principia Junior College Holds Shurtleff to Tie, 12-12

Alton, Ill., Nov. 25.—(AP)—The Principia Junior college football team of St. Louis closed an undefeated season today by holding Shurtleff college to a 12-12 tie. Until today the Principia team had not been scored on.

ARMY MAKES IT NINE STRAIGHT; BEATS NAVY, 12-7

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Paul Johnson, a cadet who came to West Point from Ashland, O., brought victory to Army over Navy today, 12 to 7.

That run came just when the crowd of 79,000, sprinkled with the notables which every Army-Navy game attracts, had settled into their seats at Franklin field.

At the time it seemed the forerunner of the treatened avalanche of Army point, but Navy matched that touchdown before the end of the first period, when the red headed Walter Baumberger cut through his own right tackle and dashed 38 yards to Army's goal.

Army's second touchdown came in the middle of the second quarter, when Jack Buckler crowned a march that had started on his own 28 yard line with a gallop through the Navy team from the 26 yard line. These, with the extra point which Dick Bull, Navy's placement specialist, added to its touchdown, formed the scoring of the day.

Cadets Are Still Unbeaten.

Army still is undefeated this season, but it had its hardest test of the year this afternoon against a team which never, until the final play, was willing to admit it had met its superior.

It was West Point's ninth victory.

Before the game there was the usual display of ceremony this game always holds. Secretaries Claude A. Swanson of the navy and George H. Dern of the army were escorted to boxes on their sides of the field. Mrs. James Roosevelt and Mrs. Curtis Dall sat on the navy side, along with Gov. Albert Ritchie of Maryland. High ranking navy and army officers, cabinet ministers, senators, and congressmen also occupied boxes.

Academy Heads Meet.

Rear Admiral Thomas C. Hart, superintendent of the Naval academy, crossed the field to greet Maj. Gen. William D. Connor, superintendent of West Point. The latter returned the call and then the cadets marched into the field, deployed, roared forth cheers for both sides and quick stepped to their seats.

On their heels came the midshipmen, accompanied by a band and their undergraduate bugle and drum corps.

Harvey Jablonsky, the Army captain, won the toss and chose to kick off. Rankin came back almost 30 yards with that opening kickoff, and then Bill Clark began his great punting which was to be such a factor in the Navy stand, getting off a quick kick which was covered by Capt. Murray on Army's 20 yard line. Navy held and Buckler was forced to punt. In two plays, Navy came back across the center strip.

Navy Pass Fails.

On third down Larry Becht, Navy's quarter, elected to try a pass. Walkup, the receiver, fumbled but recovered for a 13 yard loss. Clark then sent a punt to Johnson, who went ten yards before reaching any Navy men. Then he bore a bit to his left end and popped free at midfield. Johnson was never touched. One Navy man began to close up a bit on the Navy 18 yard line, but Buckler, one of the convoy, bumped him and Johnson crossed the line standing up, after an 81 yard run. Bob Harbold came through from center to block the try for point.

Shortly afterward a forward pass from midfield, Rankin to Murray, was allowed for interference and brought a first down for the Navy on its 37 yard line. Then Walkup jammed through left tackle for five yards, but Navy was still two feet short of a first down when Rankin was stopped on fourth down, Army taking the ball on its 26 yard line.

A few plays later Buckler's punt went out of bounds at midfield. Army held again, Ralph Bucknam batting down a long pass, but Clark angled a punt out of bounds on the 4 yard mark. Buckler answered with an effort from his end zone which reached midfield, but in three plays Navy had its touchdown from there.

Navy Starts March.

Baumberger and Borries had gone into the game after that last Clark punt and they combined on the score. Baumberger reeled off five yards through the line, Borries added six more for a first down at the 38 yard mark. Then Baumberger took the ball and started to his right, put on an amazing burst of speed and was free. Driving straight ahead he outraced all but one of the Army secondary. Buckler, driving at him from behind, struck him just before the 5 yard mark was reached. The midshipman held his feet, however, and staggered over the goal line on his face, carrying the cadet on his back. Bull, rushed in for one play, kicked a placement and Navy led, 7 to 6.

Late in the second quarter Army marched to a first down on the Navy 41 yard mark and to another on the 34. Buckler and Legg jammed through to the 26, and on the next play Buckler danced through a big hole at left guard and crossed the goal standing up, in the corner, for the points which were to win the game.

Harvard Beats Yale, 19 to 6, with Passes and 90 Yard Run

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Crimson flares gleamed in the dusk this evening and Soldiers' field was a bedlam of singing and snake dancing undergraduates as Harvard riotously celebrated a 19 to 6 victory over Yale.

Denied the satisfaction of so much as a point in their last two meetings with the Blue, the resurgent Crimson forces today piled up the largest total registered by Harvard against the Elis since 1915. Fifty thousand attended.

It was the passing of Harry Wells and the running of Fergie Locke that ruined the day for the Elis, while the long punts of Capt. John Wells and Quarter Back Bob Haley equaled the spirals of Bill Keesling of Yale.

Locke Runs 90 Yards.

Wells' two long passes down the center made possible Harvard's first two touchdowns, which were scored in the first half. The third score came on Locke's 90 yard return of a kickoff in the third period. This run occurred just after Capt. Bob Lassiter had gone over for Yale's only touchdown at the end of a 32 yard march.

Locke's dash, occurring at a moment when Yale had thrown a big scare into its opponents, served to end once and for all the fears that had been aroused by the touchdown drive of the furiously fighting Elis.

Wells' long pass leading up to the first touchdown was made soon after the opening kickoff. Taking the ball from Haley on a reverse from a single wing formation to the left, Wells started towards his right and then drew back his arm as the Elis were beguiled into looking for a run.

Far down the field the ball sailed in a tremendous arc. Chet Littman raced to get under it. On and on he went until he was beyond the Yale safety man, who had frantically fallen back in the effort to cover the pass. Littman took the ball on the run on the Yale 10 yard line and went on five yards more before Keesling overhauled him on the 5 yard mark.

Outlook Is Changed.

That 45 yard pass instantly put an entirely different complexion upon the game, giving Harvard just the confidence it needed to get the jump and hold it over a Yale team that was generally expected to win. The touchdown came three plays later, after Vic Malin, Kilcullen, and Clare Curtin had stopped two rushes for a loss of a yard.

On third down, from a single wing formation to the right, Wells tossed another pass out to the side. Haley took it in the flat zone on the 1 yard mark, with no one to stop him, and went over for the score. Kilcullen broke through to block Dean's placement try for the extra point.

In the second quarter Wells went into action again. With the ball on Harvard's 44 yard line, Wells faded back on a punt formation on third down and launched another long pass.

Fred Crocker, who had just gone in at left end as substitute for Arthur Choate, went down the field and out toward the middle. Capt. Lassister, too late, strove to cover him.

Crocker Catches Pass.

Crocker took the ball a stride ahead of the Eli captain on the 14 yard line and for a moment it seemed that the latter might overhaul him. But Lassiter's clutching fingers could not quite get hold of the Crimson end and Crocker went on for a touchdown.

Right away Yale came back to reach the Crimson's 17 yard line, gaining 30 yards on an exchange of punts between Keesling and Dean and then marching 23 yards only to yield up the ball as they failed by a yard to make a first down.

Even after Locke's run of 90 yards had nullified their desperately earned touchdown late in the third period, they refused to reconcile themselves to defeat and their passing attack in the final quarter earned six first downs.

Alabama Schedules Nine Football Games for '34

University, Ala., Nov. 25.—(AP)—The University of Alabama today announced its 1934 football schedule, which includes seven Southeastern conference games in the nine contests listed. The schedule:

Sept. 29, Howard college, here; Oct. 6, Sewanee, here; Oct. 13, Mississippi State, here; Oct. 20, Tennessee, Birmingham; Oct. 27, Georgia, Birmingham; Nov. 3, Kentucky, Lexington; Nov. 10, Clemson, here; Nov. 17, Georgia Tech, Atlanta; Nov. 29, Vanderbilt, Birmingham.

STANFORD WILL PLAY FOR WEST IN ROSE BOWL

Stanford University, Cal., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Stanford university's football team has accepted an invitation to represent the west in the Rose bowl game at Pasadena New Year's day, Al Masters, general manager of the board of athletic control, announced late today.

The invitation came from the selection committee of the Tournament of Roses just after Stanford defeated California, 7 to 3, in Stanford stadium.

Masters said the invitation was immediately accepted and that he was informed Stanford will be given the privilege of selecting its eastern opponent for the contest. The privilege offer, when confirmed, will be considered later, he said.

Masters made the announcement after a meeting with C. Hal Reynolds and J. J. Mitchell, representing the football committee of the Tournament of Roses' association of Pasadena.

While no indications were forthcoming tonight as to the team Stanford will invite to be its opponent, it was understood the Cardinals favored Princeton. Masters said he would open negotiations immediately. Coach Claude E. [Tiny] Thornhill said he would like to send his team against Princeton, but would be satisfied with any other eleven selected.

It will be Stanford's fourth time as a Rose bowl representative. The Cardinals played Notre Dame in 1925, losing, 27 to 10. In 1927 Stanford tied Alabama, 7 to 7, and a year later defeated Pittsburgh, 7 to 6. Southern California has been the western representative the last three years.

HAWKEYES LOSE TO NEBRASKA IN HEAVY WIND, 7-6

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—The University of Nebraska's Cornhuskers today added the corn belt championship to their Big Six conference title by repulsing the University of Iowa Hawkeyes, 7 to 6, before 40,000 spectators.

The Cornhuskers scored their points during the second period, Quarter Back Bernie Masterson plunging across the Iowa goal to a touchdown and later place-kicking the extra point, while the Hawkeyes rallied in the fourth period Full Back Dick Crayne crossing the final chalk-line. Russ Fisher's try for the goal kick failed to clear the cross bar.

Gale Sweeps Field.

Distressing weather conditions bore down heavily on players and spectators. A gale from the northwest sent clouds of dust swirling over the field and through the concrete stands. Both touchdowns were scored when the offensive team had the wind advantage, but the Cornhuskers, although facing the gale during the final quarter, swept deep into Iowa territory and had the Hawkeyes backed up against their goal line when the battle ended.

Masterson and Lanoue did outstanding work for the Cornhuskers, while Crayne and Laws performed effectively for the Hawkeyes.

Nebraska's scoring opportunity came in the closing moments of the second period. Crayne's fumble of a pass from center was downed on Iowa's 27 yard line by Copple, Nebraska tackle, and the Cornhuskers promptly began a drive which did not end until Masterson had punched his way across the goal.

In two dashes around Iowa's wings, Lanoue sped 15 yards and Masterson followed with a center smash for 11 yards, carrying the ball to the Hawkeyes' 1 yard stripe. Three line plunges were repulsed by a sturdy Iowa forward wall, and Masterson fell back for a try at a field goal.

Masterson Goes Over.

The pass from center was high and Masterson, lacking time to kick, ran with the ball and swept around Iowa's right wing to a touchdown. His try for the extra point sent the ball spinning between the uprights.

Held scoreless until the fourth quarter was under way, the Hawkeyes took to the air lines in a drive which featured Hoover and Laws as the passers and Swaney and Laws as receivers. After Full Back Crayne had plunged to two first downs, Laws flipped a pass to Swaney for 15 yards and Hoover then shot a forward to Laws for twelve yards, the Hawkeye quarter back being downed on Nebraska's 1 yard line. The Husker forwards turned back two smashes at center, but Crayne slid off tackle to the touchdown. Russ Fisher's failure to make the extra point spelled defeat for the Big Ten team.

Cornhuskers Come Back.

Iowa's next kick-off carried over the Nebraska goal and the Cornhuskers responded with a rally. Masterson plunged for 12 yards and Lanoue broke loose around end for 35 yards.

Lanoue's punt carried out of bounds on Iowa's 5 yard line and Crayne's return kick slithered off his toe for only 20 yards, Masterson running back to the Hawkeye's 10 yard line as the game ended. Lineup:

PERRY REPEATS HIS VICTORY OVER JACK CRAWFORD

MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Fred Perry, English Davis cup star and holder of the United States title, today repeated his American victory over Jack Crawford in the finals of the Victoria state tennis championships, winning 6-4, 2-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Perry was much too steady and accurate for the Australian, French, and Wimbledon champion, who played brilliantly at times, but was forced into many errors on Perry's hard drives.

Perry defeated Crawford in five sets at Forest Hills last summer in the United States singles finals, keeping the Australian from the unprecedented feat of winning four major tennis titles in one year.

NOTRE DAME AND U. S. C. WILL MEET FOUR MORE YEARS

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—The Notre Dame-Southern California football series will be carried through 1937, it was announced this morning by Jesse C. Harper, Notre Dame director of athletics, after a conference with W. O. [Bill] Hunter, Trojan director of athletics. Games already had been scheduled for 1934 and 1935, and this morning the two athletic heads signed a contract for the following two years.

The announcement set at rest the rumor that U. S. C. was planning to drop Notre Dame from its schedule and take on another middle western opponent.

BAYLOR PASSES SO. METHODIST INTO DEFEAT, 13-7

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 25.—(AP)—In one of the most exciting finishes ever witnessed at this home of aerial football, the Baylor Bears of Waco stole the Southern Methodist university's style of play and won, 13 to 7, today.

Baylor's closing drive included seven successful passes which advanced the ball 56 yards. Then J. S. [Jack] Learce, the Baylor quarter back, who had done the spectacular tossing, bucked over for a touchdown. The defeat eliminated Southern Methodist from the conference race and advanced Baylor into a chance to win the title.

Southern California Speed Beats Notre Dame—Michigan Passes and Kicks to Title

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA RIPS A LARGE HOLE IN NOTRE DAME'S LINE, AND THROUGH IT DASHES THE FAST, ELUSIVE WARBURTON, WHICH MEANS BAD NEWS FOR THE IRISH ROOTING SECTION. No wonder Cotton, the nickname of the sprightly Trojan quarter back, ran the Notre Dame boys dizzy yesterday. Any good back could gain with such a gap to sprint through, but when the hole is made for one of Irvine Warburton's attainments the possibilities of the attacking team and the troubles of the defenders are multiplied. Warburton paved the way for the first U. S. C. touchdown with a 34 yard run to the 10 yard line, and in a few more plays was over the goal line. After the first score Notre Dame was a soundly whipped team. (Story on page 1, Sports.)

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

IRISH PLAY DESPERATELY, BUT SUPERIOR SPEED FORCES THEM TO SUFFER FIFTH DEFEAT OF SEASON. Ray Brancheau of Notre Dame eludes a couple of tacklers, and one of his teammates, anxious to afford interference, leaps over a Trojan so he can keep up with the ball carrier in a dash around end. Notre Dame failed to threaten the Southern California goal. (Story on page 1, Sports.)

CLOSEUP OF MICHIGAN-NORTHWESTERN CROWD, SHOWING DIFFERENT FACIAL EXPRESSIONS. An interesting study of the reactions to the warfare going on between Wildcats and Wolverines yesterday at Dyche stadium. Some of the spectators are motionless, others are gaping. All obviously were agreed Michigan was the better team in winning, 13 to 0, and thus clinching the conference title. (Story on page 1, Sports.)

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

NORTHWESTERN BACK IS RIDING FOR A FALL, AND NOT A GENTLE ONE. Ed Maroney, reserve ball carrier, has about as little luck gaining as the rest of the Wildcat backs. He is being lifted into the air by a group of Michigan tacklers, and you can bet that they did not lower him gently. (Story on page 1, Sports.)

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

MICHIGAN MAKES NORTHWESTERN ITS FIFTH VICTIM WHILE WINNING BIG TEN CHAMPIONSHIP FOR FOURTH STRAIGHT TIME. John Regeczi, Wolverine full back, knifes through the Wildcat line, but is tackled when it appears he is on his way for a long gain. The punting of Regeczi has been a factor in all of the Michigan successes this year, and yesterday, when the Wolverines won at Dyche stadium, 13 to 0, was no exception. Minnesota was the only team which Michigan was unable to defeat, that game ending in a scoreless tie. (Story on page 1, Sports.)

DARTMOUTH PLAYERS WEAR WORRIED LOOKS, BUT ONE CAN'T BLAME THEM WHEN THE MAROONS GO WILD. Vin Sahlin, fleetest of Chicago's backs, runs into the Dartmouth secondary after sifting through the line during 39 to 0 romp over eastern eleven yesterday at Stagg field. The Dartmouth players, chagrined and bewildered by the flashy Maroon attack, are wondering if a cyclone has struck them as they sprawl on the ground. It was Chicago's most decisive victory of the season. (Story on page 1, Sports.)

HARRISON IS EASY WINNER IN CITY HIGH SCHOOL CHAMPIONSHIP GAME. Stanley Ostrowski, an end, breaks away for a gain after catching a pass from Capt. Andy Puplis during game in which west side techs whipped Morgan Park, 32 to 0, at Soldiers' field yesterday. Morgan Park was defending champion and Harrison was the 1931 title winner.

WESLEYAN WHIPS M'KENDREE, 13-7, TO TAKE TITLE

Weger's 43 Yard Run in 3d Period Brings Victory.

Bloomington, Ill., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Illinois Wesleyan won the Little Nineteen conference football championship by defeating McKendree, 13 to 7, today before Gov. Henry Horner and a crowd of several thousand.

Paul Weger, sophomore half back, won the contest for Wesleyan late in the third quarter, when he ran 43 yards around his own left end, reversed his field and outsprinted the McKendree secondary to the goal line.

Wilson Runs 35 Yards to Score.

Early in the second quarter, Kenneth Wilson, McKendree right half back, ran back a punt 25 yards to the Wesleyan 45 yard stripe. A pass from Woodrow Fulkerson to Wilson was good for ten yards. Wilson then slipped off his own left tackle and scampered the remaining 35 yards to the goal. Capt. George Moorman kicked the extra point and McKendree led, 7 to 0.

The ensuing kickoff was carried back to the Wesleyan 40 yard line. From there Weger scampered 19 yards to the McKendree 41 yard line. A first down with Tony Kaska and Weger carrying the ball was followed by a pass ruled complete on the McKendree 12 yard line. Weger picked up eight and Kaska got the necessary yard for a first down on the McKendree two yard line. Kaska then battered his way over the goal line for the touchdown. E. Sweasy kicked the tying point.

McKendree Threatens.

McKendree threatened in the fourth quarter, twice reaching the Wesleyan 20 yard line by the use of passes, but the Titan forward wall braced, just as the Bearcats had done so often early in the game. Wesleyan made 21 first downs and McKendree 8.

Kenneth Wilson, picked up most of the yardage gained for McKendree while Fulkerson's passing and punting were exceptional. On defense Capt. George Moorman, left tackle, was outstanding for McKendree.

McKENDREE [7].		WESLEYAN [13].
Sampson	L.E.	R. Neuman [Capt.]
Moorman [Capt.]	L.T.	Blazine

Touchdowns—Wilson, Kaska, Weger. Points after touchdowns—Moorman, E. Sweasy.

BRADLEY, 7; MILLIKIN, 7.

Rudy Usnik, Bradley full back, launched the comeback with a 51 yard run after intercepting a Millikin pass on Bradley's 20 yard stripe. A few plays later a Bradley pass was ruled complete by interference on Millikin's 11 yard line. Lee Handley dashed around right end for seven yards, then made a first down on the one yard line. He finally raced around right end for the score. A fake play netted the tieing point, Lee Handley passing to his brother Gene over the goal line.

Millikin pushed its way to a touchdown in the first half. A steady march near the end of the first quarter took the ball to Bradley's five yard line. On the second play of the next quarter Weise dashed around left end for the score. Rolinaitis kicked the goal. Lineup:

MILLIKIN [7].		BRADLEY [7].
Davis	L.E.	Speich
Christman	L.T.	Daugherty

SOUTH DAKOTA WINS, 7-0.

Before a disappointing crowd of 600, Clinker, a substitute for Dunn at right half, ran for the only touchdown of the game in the third quarter and Groves kicked the extra point.

Thereafter Illinois college opened a spectacular passing attack that on two or three occasions threatened to score.

During the game each team missed several chances to score, the ball at various times being within four yards of counting.

CARBONDALE TRIUMPHS, 14-0.

Carbondale, Ill., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Two intercepted forward passes paved the way for the Carbondale Teachers to defeat the De Kalb Teachers, 14 to 0, in a Little Nineteen conference football game today.

In the second period Wolfenbarger intercepted a De Kalb pass and ran 25 yards to the De Kalb 35 yard line. Franks carried the ball over on an off tackle play. In the fourth quarter Williams intercepted a De Kalb pass in midfield and ran to De Kalb's 13 yard line, from where Dever went over.

Les Lindberg goes through Ohio State's line for five yards from punt formation in yesterday's battle at Columbus, O. The Buckeyes won, 7 to 6, but the Illini proved their right to the name "Fighting Illini" by coming back with a rally that promised to get them a tie and then staged a belated drive that saw their chances for victory fade when a place kick fell short. The teams were fighting for third place in the Big Ten race.

Illinois Loses to Ohio State in 7-6 Thriller

able to carry on for nine more yards.

The officials were in a panic. For the game was not over. The pistol had been accidentally discharged by a member of the Portsmouth High school band, which was over near the Illinois bench substituting for the Illinois band, which did not make the trip to the game.

It required nearly three minutes to clear the field. The dazed Illinois players went at it again. There still was time for an attempt at a field goal. Cook dropped back to the 25 yard line to kick it. He got it away all right, but it went to the left and missed by inches.

It's All Over.

Two bucks at center by Cramer, who was stalling for the watch to click off the last dramatic seconds, brought no gain. Then the thriller ended.

Most of the first three quarters had passed into history before the Buckeyes were able to put on the drive that netted them the seven points which brought their narrow victory.

Ohio took the ball on Beynon's punt on the 20 yard line. In two plays Heekin advanced the ball to Ohio's 40 yard line. At this stage Illinois started fighting and held. Kabealo punted to Beynon, who was downed on Illinois' 24 yard line.

Beynon punted right back to Cramer, who was brought down on the Illinois' 49 yard line. Cramer's pass was intercepted by Cook on the Illinois 44 yard line mark. Then on the next play Monahan rushed up and grabbed a pass from Beynon and was downed on Illinois' 43 yard line.

No Detours on March.

From then on, it was a straight march to the goal. Smith reeled off a run of 13 yards and Cramer drove over center for six. A shovel pass, Cramer to Heekin, made it first down on the Illinois 15 yard line. Smith drove on to Illinois' 7 yard line. The Illinois defense was cracking. Heekin took the ball from Cramer on a double pass. He went wide around right end for a touchdown and crossed the line standing up. Vuchinich kicked the goal.

These seven points looked as big as a mountain until about five minutes before the finish, when the Illinois fireworks began to explode.

Beynon Starts to Pitch.

Beynon had taken a punt from Kabealo and was able to run 14 yards before he was pushed out of bounds on Ohio's 37 yard line.

Beynon shot a bullet-like pass, but it was knocked down by Cramer. On the next play Beynon's pass to Cook was good for 15 yards and a first down on Ohio's 21 yard line. Another short pass, Beynon to Froschauer, was incomplete. Beynon dropped back to the Ohio's 40 yard line and heaved a pass into the waiting arms of Bob Wright, Roodhouse, Ill., sophomore, in the end zone. Wright was surrounded by four Ohio players, but grasped the ball and hung onto it until he tumbled over for the touchdown.

Cook poised nervously for the attempt at the extra point which was to decide another battle. He came up gracefully and touched the ball with his toe. It traveled straight and true for an instant, then was caught in a treacherous strong wind from the south. The ball went wide to the left. The precious point had slipped away from Illinois.

Buckeyes Threaten in Second.

Both teams were so far away from a scoring threat in the first quarter there wasn't even a chance for the rooters to become excited. The dads in the Dads' day crowd hardly had a chance to warm up their vocal apparatus until late in the second period. Then there was ned for some raucous shouting, for the Buckeyes came dangerously near a score.

Lindberg was doing the punting for Illinois and one of his shots went nearly straight up in the air and out of bounds on the Illinois' 39 yard line. There was another exchange of punts and Lindberg, who this time was standing in the end zone, sent the ball spinning to Cramer on Illinois' 41 yard line. The Buckeyes lined up for a pass, but when Cramer found all receivers covered, he decided to run. He wiggled and dodged down the field and it was first down on the Illinois' 26 yard line.

The Buckeyes could make only five yards on the next three plays.

Vuchinich then attempted a place kick, but the Illinois players swarmed all over him and the kick was blocked.

Illini Lead in First Downs.

Illinois clearly was superior in passing for it completed six out of 20 attempts for a total gain of 106 yards. The Illini had twelve heaves incompleted and two intercepted. Ohio tried three passes, completing one for had a decided edge, piling up 167 yards to Illinois' 116. Ohio made 10 first downs, all through rushing, while Illinois gathered 11, three through rushing, five through passes and three from penalties.

Ohio's Kabealo held a wide edge over Lindberg and Beynon in punting. The Buckeye punter kicked 13 times for an average of 42 yards, while Illinois' 12 punts averaged 26.5 yards.

Players Fight for Ball.

There was a fight among the players over the possession of the ball after game ended. The Buckeyes won this one also, but not easily. These boys from Champaign were fighting Illini all right, in the face of sinking into a tie for fifth place in the conference standing.

"We're away down there again," remarked the philosophical Bob Zuppke as he led his Illinois boys back toward home tonight, "but life's a struggle for respect, and I thing we've got the respect of most of the teams we've met this year," he remarked.

SILVER FOOTBALL.

WITH the conference football season ended with yesterday's games, balloting will begin at once for the Big Ten football player of greatest value to his team for the season of 1933. To this player will be awarded THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE Silver Football, presented annually since 1924, when it was first won by Red Grange of Illinois.

This Silver Football, actual size and sterling silver, has come to be regarded as the greatest individual honor which it is possible to bestow upon any player of the Big Ten. It is mounted on an ebony base, with a silver plate attached to the base, appropriately engraved with the name of the winner.

Also to the winner and nine other players, one from each university, will be awarded white gold footballs, watch fob size, signifying they were chosen by their teammates as players of greatest value to their respective elevens.

Lest any gridiron followers have forgotten the details, let us epitomize the conditions under which the Silver Football is awarded. First, players of each eleven vote for their choice among their own team, since they certainly must know best in whom they have had the most confidence during the year. They recognize the chap who has been most unselfish, who has subordinated personal acclaim to team spirit, and who has displayed the greatest qualities of leadership, initiative and sportsmanship. Remember, please, this award does not purport to honor the greatest player in the Big Ten, but the boy who has been of greatest value.

When these ten players have been named the choice passes on to the Board of Award. That body consists of 23 members. They are the ten coaches, ten officials who have worked in conference games, Commissioner John L. Griffith, Wilfrid Smith, TRIBUNE football expert, and Harvey Woodruff, who first suggested the idea of the Silver Football.

This Board of Award casts individual ballots for first and second choice among the ten eligible names. A first choice counts 2 points and a second choice 1 point. The player receiving the highest number of points is proclaimed the Big Ten player of greatest value to his team for the season and receives the handsome silver trophy as his perpetual personal property.

PREVIOUS WINNERS

1924—Red Grange, Illinois.
1925—Tim Lowry, Northwestern.
1926—Benny Friedman, Michigan.
1927—Ken Rouse, Chicago.
1928—Chuck Bennett, Indiana.
1929—Bill Glasgow, Iowa.
1930—Wesley Fesler, Ohio State.
1931—Clarence Munn, Minnesota.
1932—Harry Newman, Michigan.

In order that no member of the Board of Award, particularly coaches, may feel the need of voting for any particular candidate for reasons of policy, all individual ballots are confidential. No publicity is given to individual choices. The total number of points received by each candidate is published, however, unless that vote is so small it might reveal the source of votes or lack of votes. While the conscientious recording of opinion in the past indicates this secrecy is unnecessary perhaps, it is kept within the rules as a protection for members of the board.

This plan affords the best method we know to insure an absolutely fair and impartial choice. While naturally there must be differences of opinion on the subject, it is gratifying that the Board of Award takes such deep interest in its obligation. Several contests have been remarkably close. Some have been walkaways for one individual. No award, in our opinion, has been unfair, although on two occasion, we admit, our personal vote was not for the winning candidate. In after reflection, we were willing to concede that probably the majority was right.

Look over the accompanying list of previous winners and see if you are not willing to concede that every one of them was a valuable as well as a great football player.

As each conference eleven names its most valuable choice, that selection will be published in THE TRIBUNE. As soon as the roll is complete members of the Board of Award will be asked to cast their ballots. When the returns are in and the votes tabulated, announcement of the winner will be made.

Drake Battles Iowa State to 7-7 Deadlock

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Iowa State and Drake fought a 7 to 7 tie today as they completed their football season in the Bulldog homecoming game.

The Bulldogs started the scoring early in the second quarter on an intercepted pass from Allender. Several plays later Al Wieland sprinted 40 yards for a touchdown. Chuck Swan's place kick was good for the extra point.

Early in the fourth period Bill Allender intercepted a Drake pass. Then Iowa State began a drive which ended when Allender plunged through center for a touchdown. Amos Dana's place kick tied the score.

Three times the Cyclones threatened and once in the third period were on Drake's one yard line, but the Bulldogs held. Lineups:

Badger Fumble Gives Gophers 6 to 3 Victory

the Badgers again turned back a Minnesota march and in the next minute they were in deepest despair. A fumble followed by a faulty pass of a soaking wet ball from center started it. Dick Smith of the Gophers recovered the ball after that poor pass and in no time at all the great Pug Lund, best of the Minnesota backs, had gone over for a touchdown.

It didn't matter that the try for the extra point was blocked, for from thenceforth the contest ceased to be a football game except in one respect—punting, wherein the able Lund again obliged 100 of his townspeople from Rice Lake, Wis., who had dropped in to see his work, with another sterling performance.

From the moment that Lund went over for the touchdown it became not a matter of Minnesota against Wisconsin, or vice versa, but simply a case of both against the weather man. That party was in one of his most treacherous moods of the year today. At 11 o'clock this morning he deceived the potential customers with a large dosage of blue sky and sunshine and well nigh vernal temperatures. An hour later he called in the sun and dispatched a fine, irritating rain which continued for two hours and reached its crescendo at the very moment of the kickoff.

Then Came the Snow.

This went on well into the second quarter when he switched to a driving snow accelerated by a thirty mile wind out of the northwest. The wind continued to lash the field, the crowd and the athletes until the final gun, when it ran away, apparently satisfied at having spoiled what had started out to be a perfect football day.

If football games were only 30 minutes long, Wisconsin could have gone home with its only conference victory of the year and a deserved one at that, for as has been stated before it had a decided advantage in all around play through the first two quarters. Had it not been for that disastrous fumble it might easily have won in the full 60 minutes, for whenever the Gophers became tough the Badgers promptly went a shade tougher. As it is they finished their season with nary a Big Ten victory, having lost five games, with a tie against Chicago, their only consolation.

Gophers Complete One Pass.

Minnesota led in first downs, four to three, and in yards gained by rushing, 97 to 84. The Gophers completed one pass out of three attempted for a gain of eight yards and the Badgers got 15 yards by succeeding on two out of three. Lund averaged 34 yards with his punts against 28 for the Badger kickers, Schuelke, Fontaine, and Peterson. Minnesota fumbled five times and Wisconsin seven, the Gophers recovering four of their bobbles and the Badgers five of their seven. Lund led the ground gainers with 48 yards in 16 tries while Capt. Hal Smith was Wisconsin's best with 22 yards in eight attempts.

The Badgers' chance to score came after an exchange of punts. Lund, kicking into the wind, punted to Wisconsin on the latter's 31 yard line. After two Wisconsin plays had been stopped, Fontaine went around his right end for nine yards. With a yard to go, he punted out of bounds on the Minnesota 8 yard line.

Lund punted from the end zone to the Minnesota 36 yard line. Schiller got a yard off tackle and then on a reverse went around the Minnesota right end for seven yards. Fontaine was stopped, and on the fourth down Pacetti dropped back for a try at a field goal. With Fontaine holding the ball on the 39 yard line and the wind directly at his back, Mario booted it squarely between the posts to give Wisconsin a 3 to 0 lead.

Schuelke Fumbles, Recovers.

The Gophers weren't long in informing their public at the start of the second half that they intended to score. After the kickoff and an exchange of punts, the Gophers took possession on the Wisconsin 24 yard line, where Schuelke had kicked out of bounds. Lund gained eleven yards on a reverse through the left side of the Wisconsin line. He and Alfonse were stopped on the next two plays, however, and the Badgers took the ball on their own 13 yard line by knocking down a fourth down Minnesota pass.

Schuelke fumbled on the first play, but recovered on his own three yard line. He went back to punt on the next play, but the pass from center was poor and the ball squirted into the air. In the confusion Dick Smith broke through to recover for Minnesota. Lund went over left guard for the touchdown on the first play, but

Mooseheart Is Beaten, 13-0, by St. John's

St. John's Military academy of Delafield, Wis., defeated Mooseheart High school's football team, 13 to 0, at Wrigley field yesterday. It was the Cadets' fifteenth consecutive victory.

Capt. John Conrad, St. John's fleet left half back, put the Cadets in the lead shortly after the first period started by running 30 yards for a touchdown. Aldendifer, St. John's full back, scored the other touchdown in the last quarter on a 25 yard run.

Outweighed approximately 20 pounds per man, Mooseheart made only two threats, both coming in the second period. It was Mooseheart's third defeat of the season and ended its schedule.

Conrad's run was made in the second minute of the game. St. John's received the ball on Mooseheart's 40 yard line. Three attempts by Conrad, Flato, and Aldendifer brought the ball to the 30 yard line, whence Conrad broke loose to score.

Mooseheart received its first chance to score when a long pass, Shepardson to H. Hellman, and a 17 yard run by Lonchar brought the ball to St. John's 23 yard line. On several plays Mooseheart advanced the ball to the 6 yard line, but the heavy St. John's line held and Conrad punted. Lineup:

OXFORD RUNNERS BEAT CAMBRIDGE IN RELAY RACES

OXFORD, England, Nov. 25.—(AP)—With four Americans running on its team, Oxford university today defeated Cambridge for the first time since 1925 in their annual relay races. The score was four events to two with the 400 yard race ending in a dead heat.

Norman Hallowell, formerly of Harvard, helped Oxford establish a new meet record of seven minutes 56 2-5 seconds for the two mile relay. Hallowell ran the anchor leg on the Oxford quartet which had Jack Lovelock, New Zealand's mile record holder, as the No. 3 man. The winners' time clipped two seconds off the previous meet record set up in 1929.

C. F. Stanwood, formerly of Bowdoin, ran third in Oxford's high hurdle relay victory while E. Drake of New Jersey ran second for Oxford in the half mile which Cambridge won in 1:29 4-5. Stanwood helped Oxford to a low hurdle victory while Hallowell and R. M. Brown of California joined with Lovelock and A. B. Leach of England to give Oxford a triumph in the four mile event in 18:16 2-5.

F. M. Bourne, once with McGill university of Montreal, ran the third leg for Oxford in the one mile relay which Cambridge took by 2⅛ yards in 3:23 2-5. The time in the 400 yard dead heat was 39 seconds.

CHASE ME TAKES SIXTH STRAIGHT; MATE IS SECOND

Bowie, Md., Nov. 25. — (AP) — Chase Me, Mrs. John Bosley Jr.'s horse that has never lost, today beat Mate, Pomposity and nine other well known thoroughbreds to win the $5,000 added Bryan and O'Hara Memorial handicap.

The four year old, with six victories out of six starts to its credit, was a length ahead of Mate at the finish of the mile and three-sixteenths run.

Loyola and Fenwick to Battle Today

Loyola academy and Fenwick of Oak Park, undefeated elevens in the Chicago Catholic High School league, meet at Soldiers' field this afternoon. A crowd of 25,000 is expected to watch the teams battle for a claim to the league championship. The game will start at 2 o'clock.

Despite an official ruling last Thursday which gives Mount Carmel, second place winner in the east division, another chance at the sectional title, Loyola will claim the league championship if it is victorious today. Fenwick, it is reported, also will claim the title if it defeats Loyola.

Mount Carmel, relegated to second place in the eastern section when it was found to have used an ineligible player, John Fogel, against St. Rita, received its second chance at the title when league officials, in a secret conference, voted to wipe out the St. Rita loss and ordered the teams to replay the game.

Game to Be Replayed.

According to this ruling, Mount Carmel, if it defeats St. Rita in the replay of their contest which ended in favor of Mount Carmel several weeks ago, would meet Fenwick, the west division champion. Loyola finished the season on top in the eastern division with four victories and two ties, while Mount Carmel scored four triumphs, was tied by Loyola, and was handed a defeat because of the use of the ineligible full back.

Coach Len Sachs of Loyola sent the eleven through its last practice session yesterday. The starting backfield against Fenwick will include James McSheehy, full back; Thomas Comeford, quarter back, and Jack McCarthy and John Warner, half backs. McCarthy, 145 pound senior, is rated as one of the outstanding ball carriers in the league.

Loyola Scores 76 Points.

Loyola ended its east division schedule with a total of 76 points in its six contests. Its opponents' scored 30. Fenwick scored six consecutive victories in the west division, making 168 points to its opponents' 14.

Tony Lawless, Fenwick coach, plans to use Norris at full back, Cummins and McGrath at the half back positions, and Masterson at quarter back. This is the same combination that led Fenwick, a new member of the league, to the sectional championship. The probable lineups:

Alert Detroit Eleven Beats State, 14 to 0

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 25.—(AP)—University of Detroit's football team took advantage of a poor punt and a fumble to score a 14 to 0 victory over Michigan State today.

Doug Nott's passing arm, the Titans' principal threat all season long, was responsible for most of the 11 passes Detroit completed out of 20 attempts, but none of them figured directly in the scoring.

The faulty punt that paved the way for the first Detroit touchdown came in the first period. A fumble, followed by an irresistible running attack, gave the Titans their final touchdown in the third period. Earl McCracken went over for both touchdowns.

In the fourth period State drove from deep in its own territory to the Titan five yard line, only to be held for downs. Lineup:

ENGLISH JOCKEY CLOSES SEASON WITH 257 WINNERS

MANCHESTER, Eng., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Gordon Richards, England's leading jockey, today closed the 1933 season by failing to place any one of his six mounts at Manchester in the money, but his record of 257 winners stands as a new English mark, replacing the total of 246 set by Fred Archer in 1885.

The November Handicap, feature of the closing day of the flat racing season, went to an extreme outsider, A. Boatman's Jean's Dream, which won by a half a length from Free Fare, at the odds of 20 to 1. Bonsoldat was third, three lengths further back. Richards rode M. H. Benson's Mandritsara but was unplaced at the finish.

Twenty-eight of England's leading handicap horses ran the mile and a half of the handicap. All of the three first horses were lightly weighted, Jean's Dream carrying only 103 pounds as compared to top weight of 133 carried by Denbigh, which was second in the Cambridgeshire.

HARRISON TECH WINS PREP TITLE IN A ROMP, 32-0

Puplis Leads Attack on Morgan Park.

Capt. Andy Puplis, senior full back, wound up his Chicago Public High school football career by leading Harrison Tech to its second championship at Soldiers' field yesterday. Fifteen thousand watched Puplis' brilliant running, punting and accurate passing as Harrison Tech routed Morgan Park, 1932 champion. The score was 32 to 0.

Puplis, who will be graduated next February, is the only member of this season's squad who was a regular on Harrison's 1931 championship team. He drove through the Morgan Park line from the start of the game until he was replaced by a substitute late in the final quarter. He carried the ball 18 times for a total of 121 yards.

Puplis' first trips with the ball netted a touchdown early in the first quarter. He raced 32 yards to Morgan Park's 8 yard line and a minute later ran around right end to score.

Fans Claim Goal Posts.

Harrison rooters swarmed over the field when the final whistle was blown. Several made an attempt to tear down the south goal posts, but succeeded in removing only part of them. Then they raced to the north goal and were trying to uproot the posts when policemen broke up the celebration.

Shortly after Puplis had scored the first touchdown Harrison received another opportunity when Robert Christie, Morgan Park full back, fumbled on his own 20 yard line. The ball was recovered by Ted Balun, Harrison guard. On the first play John Zientek carried the ball 14 yards.

Puplis then gained three yards on a wide end run. Zientek drove through left guard for the touchdown. Puplis kicked the extra point. While play in the second quarter was always in Morgan Park territory, Harrison failed to score. The half ended with Harrison on the 9 yard line and the score 13-0.

Zientek Goes Over.

Harrison scored again in the third quarter. Balun and Joe Pilney, left end, blocked a Morgan Park kick on the 22 yard line. Puplis and Zientek took turns at carrying the ball, Zientek plunging two yards through center for the touchdown.

Puplis scored his second touchdown in the last quarter. A poor kick gave Harrison the ball on Morgan Park's 27 yard line. Puplis passed to Pilney for 10 yards. Three runs by Puplis brought the ball to the 9 yard line. On the next play Puplis dashed around right end for the touchdown.

Shortly afterward Puplis kicked to Morgan Park's 1 yard line from his own 40 yard line. Morgan Park punted back on the first down and the ball was caught by Stanley Ostrowski, Harrison right end, on the 15 yard line. With perfect blocking he raced down the field to score.

KENTUCKY DENIES SIGNING SASSE AS HEAD COACH

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 25.—(AP)—A report from Philadelphia that Maj. Ralph I. Sasse, former Army football coach, had been signed to a three-year contract at the University of Kentucky was denied today by Dr. W. W. Funkhouser, chairman of the Kentucky athletic council. It was pointed out that before a contract may be signed it must be passed upon by the entire council.

WARBURTON RUNS WILD IN 19 TO 0 U. S. C. VICTORY

Coast Blockers Open Gaps in Notre Dame Line.

tions had sunk from the heights of delirium to the depths of despair. Step by step, yard by yard, came those whirling, driving, crashing sons of Troy.

Warburton Races Over.

Wotkyns shot inside his left tackle for two yards. Warburton hit between his right guard and right tackle for three, Wunsch making the tackle. Warburton was dropped by Solari three yards from the goal and it seemed that Notre Dame after all would keep its goal line inviolate. Then came Warburton once more. This time he sped around his right end and held his feet until he had planted the ball an inch back of the valiantly defended Irish goal. The touchdown was made in the extreme right corner and for a second there was some doubt whether he had stepped out of bounds a foot from the line. Stevens kicked the extra point from placement.

The second touchdown came almost at the end of the third quarter at a time when Notre Dame still hoped to squeeze out a tie. After an exchange of punts Southern California got the ball on Notre Dame's 49 yard line. Wotkyns made a yard at right tackle and then came the most brilliant forward pass of the game. McNeish, who was on the receiving end of the toss that beat the Irish a year ago, faded back long enough for Bescos, left end, to cut across behind the scrimmage line to the right. Bescos raced straight down the field and caught the pass while traveling at full speed. Bonar and Brancheau had him covered, but it was a matter of too much height. Both nailed him as he came down out of the air with the ball in his hands on the eight yard line.

Pass Fools Notre Dame.

Griffith, who was playing quarter back at the time, smashed through center for five yards, but Wotkyns was stopped without gain, making it third down and three yards to the goal. Griffith observed that Notre Dame's right end had been charging in on the two first plays, so on the third down he called for a pass over that position. Griffith delayed long enough to permit Davis, Notre Dame end, to sift into the Trojan back field. Then he sneaked out to take a pass from McNeish behind the goal. It was a perfect piece of deception, not a Notre Dame man being near Griffith when he caught the ball.

The pass from center was low and Stevens was smothered before he could attempt to add the extra point.

Clemens Intercepts Pass.

The third touchdown resulted indirectly from Notre Dame's attempt to get away a touchdown pass shortly before the final gun. Clemens intercepted a toss from Pilney, which was intended for Young, and he raced ten yards with Young riding on his back to Notre Dame's 29 yard line.

Warburton bolted off right tackle for eight yards and then dove over center for a first down on the 18 yard mark. Bescos, attempting to gain on an end around play which Sparling made famous on this same field two years ago, was dumped by Leonard for a two yard loss. Propst, a substitute full back, followed beautiful interference around his left end for ten yards. Warburton sped through a yawning hole inside Notre Dame's left tackle for nine yards, putting the ball on the one yard line. There was only one thing to do and Southern California did it. They let Warburton have the honor of scoring the touchdown. He went straight through Notre Dame's left tackle. Stevens' kick from placement was wide. The statistics of the game, while not so one sided as the score, give you an idea of the Trojans' superiority.

"Southern California played the best game of the season," said Coach Howard Jones after the contest. "I wanted them to win, of course," he remarked, "but I said nothing about it in the meeting we had this morning on the way down here. I just asked them to put their hearts as well as their bodies into the game. I wanted the spirit that brought that 16 to 14 victory on this same field two years ago. The boys had it."

Injury Forces Out Elser.

The most popular young men in South Bend tonight were Warburton and Rosenberg, the Jewish guard. It was only when Dr. Walter R. Fieseler, of the Trojan medical staff, told the autograph hunters that they would have to keep away or his boys would develop pneumonia, that they were able to change to their street clothes.

Coach Jones admitted that Notre Dame received a bad break when Don Elser, 225 pound full back, was removed in the first quarter on account of an injury to his knee.

"His presence would have helped the Notre Dame offense tremendously," Jones said. "Elser is going to be one of the country's greatest players," he predicted. "Pilney also is outstanding and Young showed a lot of ability. Griffith and Warburton gave us the best quarterbacking we have had this season."

Johnny Baker, who kicked the field goal that gave the Trojans that historic 16 to 14 victor in 1931, was there to congratulate his former team mates. Other Trojan visitors were Tay Brown, captain of last year's eleven, and Ray Sparling, one of the finest ends the coast has developed.

Credits Trojan Blocking.

Effective blocking by Southern California was the great difference in the two teams as Coach Heartly Anderson of Notre Dame saw it.

"The Notre Dame attack bogged down when Elser left the game," he said. "We had been playing on better than even terms against the wind until then. Our blocking became weak when he left. Southern California's only weakness, the tackle positions, were offset by the fine play of the ends, Bescos and Palmer, and the defensive backs.

"Warburton was the best back we have seen this year," Anderson stated. "He was the spark plug of a great team. Roach, Wunsch and Brancheau were our best defensive players."

Elser is expected to be lost for the Army game. Hugh Devore, right end, received a leg injury which may keep him on the side lines next Saturday, too.

WHEN WARBURTON GALLOPS IT'S TOO BAD FOR NOTRE DAME

Notre Dame and Southern California were having quite an argument yesterday at South Bend until Irvine Warburton entered the game in the second period. From then on it was all Trojans. The fleet Warburton is starting on his 34 yard run to the Irish 10 yard line in the second quarter. A few seconds later he ran around end for the first touchdown. Warburton accounted for the Trojans' third score by leading a march from Notre Dame's 29 yard mark. In between the Trojans completed two passes for their other touchdown with the result that U. S. C. won, 19 to 0, for its third straight decision over Notre Dame.

Michigan Whips N. U., 13-0; Wins Fourth Straight Title

ever, when their turn came to kick with the wind, did not have the ability to take full advantage of the opportunity.

Michigan Passes Deadly.

Except for the wind the afternoon was perfect for football. The turf of the gridiron was firm, affording footing for the driving backs. Intermittently streaks of sunshine broke through the gray banked clouds massed by the driving wind. Favorable weather also was to Michigan's advantage. Renner completed five of the seven forward passes Michigan attempted.

Michigan's victory climaxed its campaign to retain the conference championship. Victors over Ohio State, 13 to 0, in the first game of the Big Ten season, the Wolverines later conquered Chicago, Illinois, Iowa, and Northwestern and played a scoreless tie with Minnesota. Only Illinois and Iowa penetrated its defenses. The three year record of the Maize and Blue shows only one defeat—that by Ohio State in 1931, from which Michigan recovered to tie for the title.

Give 'Em All a Hand!

It is difficult to single out members of the championship team for praise. Regeczi was all-important because of his kicking. Ward, of course, caught the touchdown pass from Renner, but Michigan men, always alert, never out of position, played with unity and determination to make the Wolverines supreme. For the most part the Michigan attack was fundamental, built on a foundation of accurate blocking and superb tackling. At no time was Northwestern able to challenge consistently the superiority of Michigan.

Northwestern opened with its only serious threat, made possible by obtaining choice of position at the opening kickoff, when the Wildcats defended the south goal. Receiving Ted Petoskey's kickoff, Walter Cruice's forward pass to Roy Augustson on the second play from scrimmage for 24 yards, the longest advance of the game for the Wildcats, carried to Michigan's 38 yard line. Ed Maroney and Ches Sutton hammered through for eight yards, but Sutton fumbled on the next play and Michigan recovered the ball on its 29 yard line.

Hajek's Kick Hits Bar.

After two punt exchanges Northwestern again started from the Wolverines' 43 yard stripe. Another pass, Augustson to Cruice, was the main advance. It placed the ball 32 yards from Michigan's goal. Five yards were gained in two tries, and then, after a forward pass failed, Chuck Hajek, Wildcat center, came back to try a placement from Michigan's 35 yard line. The ball struck the crossbar and bounded back into the end zone. This was the peak of Northwestern's attack.

With the change of goals for the second period Michigan swung into the offensive. Superior punting brought possession of the ball in midfield. Then Irwin Kopecky and Hajek, overeager, were offside on consecutive plays. Herman Everhardus ran wide to his left to Northwestern's 30 yard line. But Northwestern braced and forced Regeczi to punt after the Wolverines had lost eight yards in three plays.

Augustson's fumble, recovered by big Willard Hildebrand, Wolverine tackle, on the next play gave Michigan another chance on the Wildcats' 23 yard line. Again Northwestern's line rallied, and on fourth down Everhardus, standing on Northwestern's 25 yard line, narrowly missed a place kick.

A third time Northwestern withstood the Michigan assault, but just before the end of the half the fourth sortie of the Wolverines brought a score. From Northwestern's 41 yard line Everhardus raced inside Northwestern's right tackle for nine yards. A pass, Renner to Everhardus, made it first down on the 20 yard line. Everhardus ran to his left for one yard and position in front of the goal posts. Then, with only seconds remaining, he successfully place kicked from the 25 yard line. Time expired on the ensuing kickoff to the Wildcats.

Score in Five Plays.

Michigan chose to defend the south goal to start the third period. Five plays later the Wolverines had scored. On second down after the Wildcat kickoff Regeczi punted out of bounds on Northwestern's 5 yard line. Augustson's return kick passed over the east side line on his 26 yard line. Everhardus tried his left end, but lost five yards. Then Renner took Charles Bernard's pass from center, retreated to avoid the charging linemen, and fired the ball to Ward, who grabbed it over Maroney's head as he crossed the goal line. Everhardus place kicked the point for a 10 to 0 lead.

Still favored by the wind, Michigan played in Northwestern territory. Unable to gain by running, Petoskey came back from his end position and failed on a place kick with the ball on Northwestern's 31 yard line. Minutes later he was called back to try again, and, like Everhardus, his second attempt was successful. This time the ball soared accurately over the bar after being put in play on Northwestern's 28 yard line.

Too Late for Wind to Help.

Northwestern had the advantage of the wind in the final quarter, but Michigan's 13 point lead was more than sufficient. Once the Wolverines had possession of the ball on Northwestern's 30 yard stripe, where William Borgemann and Tom Austin blocked Augustson's punt, but nothing came of that. And later Northwestern advanced to Michigan's 30 yard line following an advantage in punting and a gain of 10 yards on two plunges by Augustson, but a first down forward pass by the same player was deflected by Borgemann and intercepted by Bernard. It was Northwestern's last opportunity.

Michigan made nine first downs to four for Northwestern. Three Northwestern first downs were accomplished by rushing and one by a pass. Michigan made distance three times by penalty, four times by rushing and twice by passing.

In five successful forward passes in seven attempts Michigan gained 82 yards. Northwestern tried 12 passes, completed two for 28 yards and had two intercepted. The others were incomplete. Michigan lost 25 yards by penalty, while Northwestern was assessed 45 yards on seven penalties. Each team had one major penalty of 15 yards for holding.

Declines to Put Forth Gopher Claim to Title

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 25.—(AP)—President Lotus D. Coffman of the University of Minnesota, who six years ago waived the claim of Gopher partisans to a Big Ten football championship, declined tonight to step into any potential argument over this season's rightful titleholder between Minnesota and Michigan.

"I think," he said, "we have had a good season and ought to be satisfied. I wouldn't do anything about the championship."

STANFORD'S PASS BEATS CALIFORNIA IN LAST QUARTER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Palo Alto, Cal., Nov. 25.—The accurate right arm of Sophomore Frank Alustiza passed Stanford university to a 7 to 3 victory over California today in their thirty-ninth annual game, played before a crowd of 90,000.

Stanford was trailing, 3 to 0, in the fourth quarter and the ball was on its own 44 yard line when Alustiza was called on to pass. His toss traveled about 15 yards to Alvin Norgard ,who romped to the goal line. Bill Corbus, Stanford's star tackle, then kicked the extra point.

Williams Kicks Goal.

The second period was half over before California battered its way to a position from which it attained the first score of the game, a field goal by Williams from the 25 yard line.

At that time the three points looked tremendously big, but the Stanford sophomores refused to be downed. They drove deep into California territory three times. Two passes over the goal line from inside the 20 yard zone found their marks, but were dropped because of the crush of California defenders. On a third occasion, a Stanford fumble, caused by a low pass from center, forced the Indians back out of the scoring zone and California quickly punted.

Bears Threaten Near End.

But the Stanford sophomores were not to be denied. Stanford finally began a drive with a demonstration of power that brought the spectators to their feet. Then came the pass, Olustiza to Norgard, for the points that brought victory.

California came back gamely, pounding its way to Stanford's 4 yard line in the closing minutes. Stopped in three attempts to puncture the line, the Bears resorted to a pass, but Hamilton intercepted it on his goal line and took it down the field in a dazzling run for 51 yards. A few seconds later the gun sounded. Lineup:

ST. MARY'S, 22; U. C. L. A., 14.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—St. Mary's withstood a desperate fourth quarter rally by University of California at Los Angeles to win, 22 to 14, at Olympic stadium today.

Coasting into the fourth quarter with a lead of 22 to 0 and a lineup of second and third stringers on the field, St. Mary's suddenly found the air full of forward passes. One of these, good for 80 yards, 30 by the aerial route from Reel, sub half back, to Lott, sub end, sent the latter on a 50 yard canter to a score. A minute later Murphy, sub Bruin quarter, intercepted a forward thrown by St. Mary's suddenly reinstated first string back field, and ran it 50 yards to a touchdown as 20,000 spectators roared in excitement. Further Bruin efforts were batted down, however.

George Wilson cruised behind fine interference to two touchdowns for St. Mary's in the first quarter. The Saints added two points when Wilton of U. C. L. A. fumbled in his own end zone. Kellogg, sub full back for St. Mary's, bucked over for the winners' third touchdown in the third quarter.

Horace Mann Basketball Team Beats Michigan City

Michigan City, Ind., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Michigan City High school's basketball team was beaten 28 to 12 by Horace Mann of Gary tonight in the opening game of the season.

40,000 See Unbeaten Tiger Eleven Whip Rutgers, 26-6

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Princeton and Rutgers met in Palmer stadium for the 32d time today and the unbeaten Tiger eleven emerged from the battle with a 26 to 6 triumph. Rutgers was the first team of 1933 able to score against Princeton.

As 40,000 spectators looked on the successors of those two teams, which in 1869 played the nation's first intercollegiate grid game, fought each other through 60 minutes of hard football. Rutgers did what eight other Princeton foes have been unable to do by scoring in the third period.

Truex Gains 20 Yards.

Arnie Truex, who alternated at left half back with Al Chizmadia, set the stage for the touchdown thrust by galloping 20 yards to the Scarlet's 37 yard line. Then Truex dropped back and tossed a 22 yard pass to Walt Winika, substitute right end, and Winika, staggering at the start when he nearly succumbed to a tackle, picked up speed and crossed the Princeton goal line.

Four long runs, three of them for fifty yards by the Kaufman brothers, Chick and Les, were too much, however, for the Rutgers team to overcome. The Tiger struck swiftly, sweeping across the Scarlet goal line three times in the first half. Lineup:

RUTGERS [6].		PRINCETON [26].
Heenan	L. E.	Smithies
Updike	L. T.	Dudley

N. Y. U., 7; CARNEGIE, 0.

New York, Nov. 25.—(AP)—New York university's aerial attack in the second period gave the Violets a surprising 7 to 0 triumph over the favored Carnegie Tech eleven at the Yankee stadium today in the eighth meeting of the rivals since 1926.

A crowd of 12,000 watched Charles Siegel elude Steven Terebus to receive Ed Smith's 28 yard pass on the Carnegie 5 yard line early in the second quarter and score the only touchdown of the battle. Smith added the extra point with a placement kick.

Carnegie penetrated New York university's territory several times during the contest, but was unable to sustain its drive, losing the ball on downs, fumbles, and interceptions of its passes. Carnegie fumbled seven times and its aerial attack faltered at crucial stages. The Skibos made ten first downs to New York university's four, and 155 yards by rushing to the Violets' 48, but they could not get past the New York university 14 yard mark.

WEST VIRGINIA WINS.

Washington, Pa., Nov. 25.—[U.P.]—Trailing by two touchdowns, West Virginia university today turned a desperate passing attack in the last ten minutes of play to defeat Georgetown university, 14 to 12.

The passing of Allen, the visitors' star quarter back, and the place kicking of Right End Onder were deciding factors in West Virginia's second victory of the season.

With the score 12 to 0 in favor of Georgetown and the local line breaking up almost every attempt, Allen stood on his 40 yard line and threw a long pass to Wilson, who was downed on Georgetown's 30 yard line. Two plays later he passed again to Wilson, who ran five yards for a touchdown. Onder placekicked the point.

With less than six minutes to play Allen repeated the tactics. He passed 43 yards to Onder, who was brought down on Georgetown's 18 yard mark. Allen and Saleski hammered the line for a first down. Then Thomas, left half, went off right tackle for the score. Onder's kick again was good.

BUCKNELL WINS, 38-6.

Lewisburg, Pa., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Bucknell today swamped Washington and Jefferson, 38 to 6, to run its home winning streak to nineteen.

Washington and Jefferson scored in the last minute of play when Blanke went 15 yards through a fourth string Bucknell line after a weak punt.

Verhey's 95 yard run after intercepting a pass in the second period was the feature play. Myers, Rhubright and Verhey shared scoring honors with a pair of touchdowns each.

COLUMBIA WINS, 16-0.

New York, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The Columbia football team today completed one of the most successful campaigns of Lion history by beating Syracuse, 16 to 0.

Columbia scored touchdowns in the third and fourth quarters, and added the other three points with a 16 yard goal from field by Newt Wilder.

Only one defeat, at the hands of undefeated Princeton early in the season, mars the Columbia record, while victories were scored over Cornell, Navy, Virginia, Lafayette, Lehigh, and Penn State.

Capt. Cliff Montgomery made both touchdowns, did all the forward passing and punting, held the ball for Wilder's field goal and for both tries for point, and directed the attack from his post at quarter back.

Lineup:

SYRACUSE [0].		COLUMBIA [16].
W. Singer	L. E.	McDowell
Vavra	L. T.	Jackel
Jontos	L. G.	Pinckney
M. Singer	C	Wilder

DUQUESNE, 26; GENEVA, 0.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Duquesne beat Geneva today, 26 to 0. Duquesne scored the first two times it got the ball in the first period. Half Back Deluca tossed a pass to Nussbaum good for 42 yards to count the first. He gained 52 yards in four plays and later plunged over the goal from the one yard line for the second score.

LAFAYETTE TRIUMPHS.

Bethlehem, Pa., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Combining an aerial attack with line plunging, Lafayette defeated Lehigh, 54 to 12, today in their 67th football meeting over a space of half a century. In the early years of their rivalry they played twice a year to compile the longest of all football records.

Dickinson Puts Michigan First and Ohio Second

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Michigan won the Big Ten conference championship, under the rating of Dr. Frank C. Dickinson of the University of Illinois, he announced tonight. His final ratings:

	W.	L.	Tied.	Pts.
Michigan	5	0	1	26.50
Ohio State	4	1	0	21.00
Minnesota	2	0	4	20.84
Iowa	3	2	0	20.00
Purdue	3	1	1	19.50
Illinois	3	2	0	18.00
Northwestern	1	3	1	14.00
Indiana	0	3	2	13.00
Chicago	0	3	2	12.00
Wisconsin	0	5	1	11.00

The Wolverines were rated national as well as Big Ten champions last year under the Dickinson rating system, the professor recalled. They also were conference champions in 1930. The 1931 championship was awarded to Northwestern by the Dickinson system.

"Michigan received 20 points each for defeating Chicago and Northwestern," Dickinson said, "and 30 points each for defeating Ohio State, Illinois and Iowa, all three first division teams. For the tie game with Minnesota, Michigan received 22.5 points.

Ohio State was awarded second place over Minnesota with victories over Illinois, a first division team; Northwestern, Indiana and Wisconsin, second division teams, and a loss to Michigan, a first division team.

Ties hurt Minnesota and shoved it down to third place, despite the fact it was undefeated. Iowa is rated above Purdue, principally because of its victory over the Boilermakers.

"Six tie games are almost a record and probably are due in part to other schools imitating the 'Michigan system.' I note there are six first division teams, more than any other year while I have been rating teams," Dickinson said.

GEORGIA DEFEATS GEORGIA TECH ON PASS, RUN, 7 TO 6

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 25.—(AP)—A sparkling aerial thrust brought Georgia a 7 to 6 triumph over Georgia Tech in their traditional football battle today before 35,000 spectators.

One of the largest crowds in southern football history looked on as Georgia scored on a surprising first period pass from deep in its own territory, a forward from Key to Grant which gained 80 yards.

Georgia Tech came back in the second period to score on a 45 yard drive, interspersed with two fine tosses, but the chance to equal the extra point made by Cy Grant of Georgia failed as Roberts fumbled the ball.

The game was hardly five minutes old when Georgia scored and kicked the point that was to bring victory. With first down on their own 20 yard line, Homer Key, a five foot five inch half back, dropped back, ran a few yards to the left, and tossed a 10 yard pass over the line to Cy Grant. Grant made good the place kick for the extra point and Georgia led, 7-0.

The lineup:

GEORGIA [7].		GEORGIA TECH [6].
Ashford	L. E.	Slocum
Shi	L. T.	Tharpe
Johnson	L. G.	D. Wilcox
McKnight	C	Pool
Brown	R. G.	J. Wilcox
West	R. T.	Williams
Wagnon	R. E.	Spradling
Griffith	Q. B.	Galloway
Grant	L. H.	Davis
Key	R. H.	Peterson
Chapman	F. B.	Phillips

Touchdowns—Grant, Martin.

Point after touchdown—Grant.

DUKE TRIUMPHS, 7 TO 0.

Durham, N. C., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Duke's powerful football team, with visions of a possible Rose bowl invitation waning before the heroic defense of a battling North Carolina State eleven, crashed over a last quarter touchdown today to continue in the undefeated ranks.

The 7 to 0 victory clinched the Southern conference and state championships for Duke, although South Carolina also finished the season undefeated in the conference. Duke, however, has one more conference victory than South Carolina.

MARYLAND WINS, 33 TO 13.

College Park, Md., Nov. 25.—[U.P.]—Maryland scored a surprising 33 to 13 victory over Washington and Lee today before a homecoming crowd.

The first period was all Washington and Lee, but Maryland came back to score 20 points before the half ended, and pushed over 13 more points in the last quarter.

FLORIDA, 14; AUBURN, 7.

Gainesville, Fla., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Uncorking an offensive that surprised its staunchest supporters, University of Florida scored a 14 to 7 victory over Auburn today.

Cicero Pros to Oppose McKerr All-Stars Today

The George McKerr All-Stars football team will play the Cicero Pros, Midwest league heavyweight champions last season, at Harlem and Chicago avenues, in River Forest, today.

CUYLER SIGNED BY CUBS; HAFEY DEAL SEEMS OFF

Outfielder Gets One Year Contract.

William Walker, acting president of the Chicago Cubs, yesterday announced that Kiki Cuyler had signed his 1934 contract. Cuyler, in his seventh year as a Cub, will play centerfield, flanked by the team's two most expensive chattels, Chuck Klein and Babe Herman.

The signing of Cuyler at this early date was looked upon as an answer to rumorsmiths who have been insisting that Cuyler, along with Pat Malone, has become the property of the Cincinnati Reds in exchange for Chick Hafey.

How Guessers Figured.

According to these guessers, the Cub management had decided that Cuyler had become too brittle to be a dependable performer and for that reason was being shunted off, despite his great popularity among north side fans and his great hitting, fielding, and base running ability.

The attack on Cuyler's durability was based on the fact that he had the misfortune to break one ankle year before last and the other last year, accidents which kept him out of the game in half of each season. Rumorsmiths seeking to dispose of Ki charged that he had lost his aggressiveness as a result of the two breaks and that for that reason his usefulness was looked upon as negligible.

Yesterday's signing of the star was looked upon as an answer to this line of reasoning.

Trade Not So Good.

There are many who would look upon an even trade, Cuyler for Hafey, as a poor transaction, disregarding the value of Malone, who still is a good pitcher, boasting one of the best six year records in the league. Cuyler last season batted .320 as compared with Hafey's .306. Cuyler has a lifetime batting average of .330 as compared with Hafey's .328.

Cuyler is 34 years old and Hafey will not be 30 until February, but Cuyler boosters, now that rumors of the trade have been slowed up, argue that Cuyler's age is offset by the difference between his health and that of Hafey.

TERRY PREFERS OTT.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Chuck Klein may be the pride of the Chicago Cubs, but Manager Bill Terry of the New York Giants wouldn't swap Mel Ott for him.

"I don't think he will help the Cubs as much as most people think he will," Terry said in an interview here today.

"He hit only .155 against us in the Polo Grounds all season," he added, "and I wouldn't consider trading Mel Ott for him."

NRA Code for Baseball May Be Discussed

Washington, D. C., Nov. 25.—(AP)—A code has been suggested for baseball clubs and recovery administration headquarters said today that if baseball wanted a code it should have one.

Publication of reports that there would be a pact regulating labor conditions and fair practices at the ball park brought from the recovery administration a statement that there is "no suggestion that the administration has any intention of compelling the submission of a code."

"Nor was there," continued the announcement, "any discussion that might be interpreted as a criticism of the form of self-government now obtaining in the baseball industry."

The industry apparently was brought into the NRA picture when a Washington baseball club official approached Assistant Deputy Administrator William P. Farnsworth of the NRA amusement division, to find out if a code had to be filed. Farnsworth said a code would be received with pleasure and given the same consideration all others get.

The question is expected to be taken up at the Dec. 12 winter meeting in Chicago of the big league leaders.

TEXAS CHRISTIAN OVERCOMES LEAD TO BEAT RICE, 26-3

Coming from behind after trailing Rice 3 to 0 at the end of the first period, the Frogs loosed a dazzling assortment of passes that riddled the Owl defense and gave Texas Christian touchdowns in all of the final three periods.

By virtue of today's victory, Texas Christian still has a chance to win the conference title providing the conference athletic committee rules against Arkansas at the annual meeting Dec. 9.

The Portsmouth Spartans and Chicago Bears, who fought it out last year for the National Professional Football league championship, with the Bears winning, will meet for the first time this season at 2 p. m. today at Wrigley field. First place in the western division of the league will be at stake, for the Chicagoans will take the field with a lead of only half a game over their Ohio rivals.

The return to Wrigley field, scene of a whole series of thrilling last quarter triumphs, is expected to put dynamite in the Bears' attack after a disastrous swing through the east in which they lost to Boston and New York and were tied by Philadelphia.

Corbett Likely to Be Ready.

The Bears hope to be at about 99 per cent strength, for the name of George Corbett, half back, is the only one on Trainer Andy Lotshaw's hospital list and Corbett's lameness was reported to be disappearing fast yesterday. The former Millikin player is a fine punter, good ball carrier, and effective tackler, and Lotshaw promises to have him ready when Coach George Halas says the word.

The return of Red Grange and Johnny Sisk to top form has won these players places in the starting lineup along with Bronko Nagurski, full back, and Carl Brumbaugh, quarter. Grange's defensive play has been one of the outstanding phases of pro football this season.

Watch Out for Presnell.

The Spartan back field is expected to be Glen Presnell, Ernie Caddell, Elmer Schaake, and Roy Lumpkin. Caddell, a former Stanford star, and Schooke, a product of Kansas university, will be making their first appearances in Chicago.

However, it is Presnell, the spark plug of the aggregation, whom the Bears will watch with both eyes this afternoon. Glen is playing his third season with Portsmouth, having previously put in a couple of seasons with a pro team in Ironton, O., his home. He is the leading ground gainer of the team, the best forward passer, and an exceptional kicker.

Lumpkin, former Georgia Tech star, will be in his usual position at full back. He is a 6 feet 1 inch 213 pounder who hits the line with tremendous power. This is his fourth season with Portsmouth. Like Nagurski and other husky athletes in pro football circles, Lumpkin is in the professional wrestling game.

May Use Cavosie at End.

Coach Potsy Clark also has such stars as Gus [Ace] Gutowsky, Fay [Mule] Wilson, and Gene Alford available for back field duty. Johnny Cavosie, normally a full back and a good one, was named to start at left end, but Clark may change his mind about that just before the kickoff.

Granville Mitchell, Earl Elser, and Harry Thayer, all linemen, will be making their debut before Chicago fans.

Sparta Meets Swedes; Seeks Fifth Peel Cup

BY OFFSIDE.

Whether the Sparta professional soccer team will establish a new record today will be decided when it meets the Swedish-Americans, amateur champions of the International league, at De Paul stadium, Sheffield and Webster avenues, for the Peel challenge cup. If Sparta triumphs it will be the fifth consecutive time it gained the title.

Sparta, one of the leading teams in the Chicago district for the last five years, is the favorite in the contest against the Swedes. Magyar will play the Vienna juniors in a preliminary game which will start at 1 o'clock.

The Ravenswood Scots will meet the Wieboldt Wonderbolts at Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue, in another important game on this afternoon's schedule. Two games will be played in the preliminary round for the national cup. Slovak will oppose Sloboda at Ogden park and Czecho Beseda will play Olympia at 47th street and Kilpatrick avenue.

The schedule:

PEEL CUP.

Swedish-Americans vs. Sparta, De Paul, Sheffield and Webster avenues, 2:30 p. m.

Harassed Hubby Joins Doc's Mat Mob for Peace, Quiet

WANTED—ABLE-BODIED MEN, BETWEEN the ages of 17 and 27, weighing 175 pounds or over, who desire the benefits derived from the wrestling profession. Steady work assured. Great opportunity to go hand in hand with me to gold and glory. Apply Doc Krone, ——— ——— ———.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Breathes there an unemployed male, sound of wind and limb, who has not to himself said, "My big chance!" on reading the above inspiring words in the metropolitan journals these last few days?

DOC KRONE.

According to their author, Dr. John Krone, there breatheth nary a one answering the above description. The doctor's headquarters have been besieged by eager youths hankering to join his new legion of home talent, for therein lies the true explanation of the advertisement.

The doctor's sudden disappearance from the realm of grappling some months ago led many a patron of the art to shake his head sadly and conclude that perhaps he had passed on to some happy field where Londoses bloom in profusion and the click of the turnstile goes on unceasingly. This is not so, however, for the doctor is still as hale and hearty as of yore and still concocting new schemes to revolutionize the great sport.

Be Patriotic, Folks!

His plea for new talent has local patriotism for its main purpose, and a worthy one it is, if the doctor is permitted to expound its merits. Is not, he questions, the wrestling public surfeited with now familiar importations from other cities? In the never ending craving for new faces and figures, not to mention novel methods of whinnying and grimacing, why should the flower of Chicago youth be overlooked?

Hence the doctor's search among the sheltered byways of our fair village for new exponents of an art which the doctor has overseen here, in one capacity or another, for 33 years. The doctor has taken his stand firmly, making it quite plain that he prefers to develop and glorify native genius rather than the outlanders who are foisting their frayed talents on a jaded populace.

The doctor also contends that there is economic virtue in his new platform, for his agents in Washington, D. C., have informed him that the government presently will levy heavy duty on out of town clutch artists. The doctor's system, of course, will escape this burden, for he will be purveying home grown goods against the foreign merchandise of his competitors.

Dr. Krone will present his first home talent entertainment at the newly remodeled Arcadia Gardens, 4400 Broadway, on Tuesday evening, and already has managed to round up several interesting specimens of the native rassler for display at that time. They will retail, the doctor adds, at remarkably reasonable rates.

Here's How It Goes.

A sample of the flood of correspondence which has swamped Dr. Krone in response to his public notice follows:

Sir: While your advertisement of this date does not dwell upon the more painful features of wrestling, I am well aware of same, having attended several of your productions. I have heard the thud of heads on the concrete floor outside the ring, I have heard the moans of the split hold victim and the crunching of bones in the deadly half nelson. I weigh 196 pounds, more than the combined weight of my wife and mother-in-law, but I am weary of being a backstop for platters, coffee pots, and kitchen chairs. You can sign me up for your new venture, for these two have kept me in perfect condition for whatever tortures you may offer. What have I to lose? DISILLUSIONED.

The doctor was considerably touched by this application, and has taken the matter under advisement, with every possibility that the writer will soon be traveling an easier and happier road.

Editor's note — One of Dr. Krone's aspirants to wrestling fame, probably out doing his road work, just rushed in with an announcement of Tuesday night's complete card, which follows:

Karol Zbyszko, Chicago, vs. Joe Wolf, Washington, D. C., heavyweights.

Rudy Hoffman, Chicago, vs. George Mack, Chicago, heavyweights.

First Round Wednesday in Field Hockey

Three games will open the national women's field hockey tournament, which will bring together the outstanding squads in the United States, at Dyche stadium in Evanston Wednesday. The meet will continue until Saturday, when the finals will be held.

A team composed of the leading players in the central west will oppose the northeast No. 2 squad in the first game at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning. In the second contest the northeast No. 1 team will meet Great Lakes, and in the third the United States touring squad will play southeast.

A squad made up of Chicago high school players will meet a team of north shore high school girls on Saturday at 2:45 o'clock.

The central west squad will have several Chicago district players in its lineup. They include Jay Purves, Susan Miller, Harriet More, Marjorie Street, Iris Boulton, Amy Bygrave, Phœbe Nelson, and Margot Atkin.

The tournament schedule:

Wednesday—11 a. m., northeast No. 2 vs. midwest; 1:30 p. m., northeast No. 1 vs. Great Lakes; 2:45 p. m., United States touring team vs. southeast.

Thursday—10:30 a. m., midwest vs. Great Lakes; 11:45 a. m., northeast No. 1 vs. United States touring team; 2:45 p. m., northeast No 2 vs. southeast.

Friday—11 a. m., northeast No. 2 vs. Great Lakes; 1:30 p. m., United States touring team vs. midwest; 2:45 p. m., northeast No. 1 vs. southeast.

Saturday—2:45 p. m., Chicago high school girls vs. north shore high school girls; 1933 United States all-stars vs. reserves.

ELKSVILLE BEATS ZEIGLER.

Benton, Ill., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—The Zeigler High school football team lost its final game of the season today to Elksville, 14 to 0.

BRUINS BATTLE HAWKS TONIGHT ON STADIUM ICE

Shore and Other Favorite Enemies Here.

The Boston Bruins, one of the two teams able to outpoint the Blackhawks in this season's meetings with the Chicagoans, tonight at the Stadium will try to take another decision from Coach Tom Gorman's greatly improved hockey performers.

Among the old favorite enemies in the Boston lineup is Eddie Shore, who demonstrated his value by holding out at the start of the season. With Shore absent the Bruins were a soft touch. As soon as he returned and skated into physical fitness the Bruins began to win.

In the first three Bruin games the team's opponents scored 13 points in accomplishing three victories. Two of these games were played without the services of Shore and the third found him not quite ready to show his best skill. Shore rapidly got into shape, however, and in their last three games, all of which were victories, the Bruins made nine goals while allowing one by the opposition. The Bruins were 2 to 0 victims in a game which was played with Tommy Cook and Mush March of the Hawks out of action because of injuries.

Fights Mark Series.

A fist fight or two is considered necessary to nearly every Hawk-Bruin encounter. Jack Barry and Doc Romnes had a set-to a couple of seasons back on the Stadium ice which embroiled both teams. In the last game of the 1932-'33 season, Manager Gorman and Manager Art Ross of the Bruins clashed after Gorman had swung at Referee Bill Stewart because of a disputed goal decision. Chuck Gardiner threw the puck at the referee and Art Coulter jammed his stick through the wire netting at the goal umpire, who had flashed the scoring signal which started the fracas.

This season when Lionel Conacher joined the Blackhawks he brought with him the remnants of a feud which has existed for years between himself and Joe Lamb. Last Tuesday at Boston Lamb jammed Conacher in the face and big Lionel countered with a left to the head which opened up Lamb's cheek. The mixup resulted in both being sent to the penalty coop. The referee evidently did not see it as the writers did for Lamb received only two minutes while Conacher was banished for five.

Stewart Star at Forward.

Another of Boston's aggressive players is the giant forward, Nels Stewart, twice winner of the Hart trophy, which is awarded yearly to the player of most value to his team. Stewart, weighing more than 200 pounds, is one of the rough and tumble school of hockey. In seven seasons he has compiled an average of 33 goals per season, a mark excelled only by Howie Morenz and Bill Cook.

Then there is Dit Clapper, high scoring right winger, who was a member of the Boston dynamite line with Dutch Gainor and Cooney Wieland which amassed 102 goals and 81 assists in 1929-'30 for a point total of 183, the league record.

Sheppard Faces Old Mates.

Manager Gorman recently signed Left Winger Johnnie Sheppard, who was declared a free agent a few days ago by the Boston club. Sheppard will be used in tonight's game as an alternate left wing with Donnie McFadyen and Doc Romnes on the second line, which has Tommy Cook, who is expected to return to the game at center, and Mush March at right.

The lineups:

BLACKHAWKS.		BOSTON BRUINS.
Gardiner	Goal	Thompson
Abel	Defense	Shore
Coulter	Defense	Smith
Gottselig	Center	Barry
Couture	Right wing	Clapper

AMERICANS WIN, 3-2

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 25.—(AP)—The New York Americans went on a third period scoring spree tonight and defeated the Ottawa Senators, 3 to 2. The victory, the Americans' first of the National Hockey league season, lifted New York out of the Canadian division cellar and pushed the Senators in.

The Senators were leading, 2 to 0, at the start of the third period, on goals posted by Syd Howe and Bill Touhey. Big Bill Brydge started the A's off with a goal on a pass from Normie Himes. Six seconds later Himes sifted through alone and tied the score, then Red Jackson put the game away, taking Rabbit McVeigh's perfect pass and coasting in close to beat Bill Beveridge, pudgy Ottawa goalie.

A crowd of 3,000 saw the game. Morris Roberts, subbing for the injured Roy Worster in the American goal, played a good game, while Himes and McVeigh led the New York attack. Jerry Shannon played brilliantly for the Senators, but couldn't score.

CANADIENS WIN, 1-0

TORONTO, Ontario, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The Canadiens of Montreal shut out the Toronto Maple Leafs, 1 to 0, in a National Hockey league game here tonight. It was the first defeat of the season for the Leafs and increased the Canadien lead in the international section to three points.

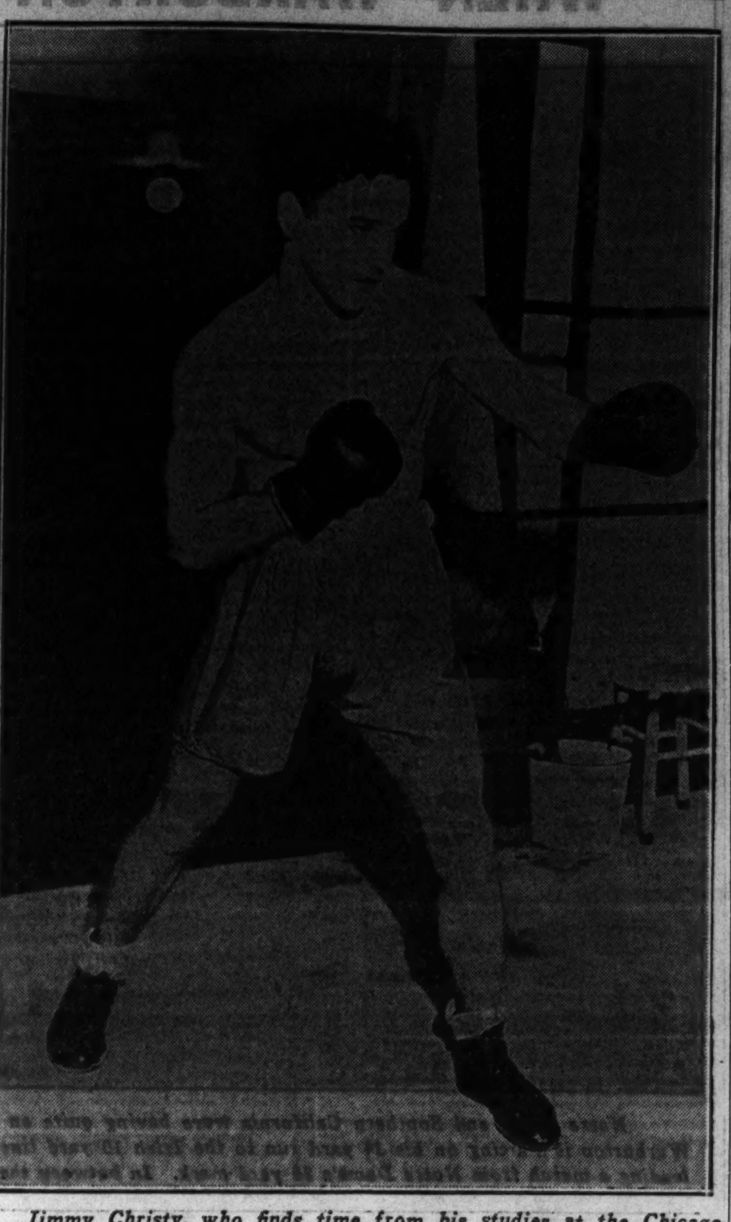
MAROONS, 1; RANGERS, 0

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Montreal Maroons took sole possession of third place in the Canadian section of the National Hockey league tonight by defeating New York Rangers, 1 to 0, while Ottawa was dropping a game to New York Americans.

The Maroon victory came near the end of the third period when Baldy Northcott took Graham's pass to beat Aitkenhead cleanly. Until this time the New Yorkers' goalie had performed miracles in turning aside the Maroons' thrusts. Contrasted to their former colorless displays the Maroons played heads up hockey and except for pot shooting around the nets would have scored oftener.

The Rangers played their usual smooth passing game with the Cook-Boucher line standing out.

AN ARTIST WITH GLOVES



Jimmy Christy, who finds time from his studies at the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts to do a bit of boxing, will appear in 126 pound finals of Catholic Youth organization tournament at Chicago Stadium Friday night.

Chicago's Star Bowlers All Take Shot at Joe Miller

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

Joe Miller of Buffalo, N. Y., has come to town looking for bowling matches, and he is being accommodated so thoroughly that he will have little leisure for the next fortnight or so. The national match game champion has been booked to roll as many as three outstanding Chicago bowlers in a day during his stay here.

Winner of a national elimination conducted last winter by the Bowling Proprietors' association of the United States, Miller is a bowler of real skill, and usually is capable of his best games when the going is toughest. He overwhelmed Stew Watson, Chicago elimination winner, in the finals of the national competition last spring.

Miller began his Chicago invasion yesterday in seven game matches against Charley Wass and Herbie Freitag. Today he is paired with John Sonheim at Schueneman's Logan Square alleys at 3 p. m., and at 7:30 p. m he will oppose Walter Enright at the Highland Recreation. Later on in his schedule he will engage in three matches a day.

City Tournament.

Stevenson Heating, which was led by J. Unhock with 630, shot into first place in class B of the 30th annual city bowling tournament at the Gold Coast alleys last night. The Stevensons collected a 2,689 total. Other leaders were' Voight's Blue Ribbons, 2,688; Hamer Auto Service, 2,642; Joe Gearys, 2,598; Pasteurized Milk, 2,596.

In class C, N. Merrick's 566 series helped the Milk Nut Loaf five take first place with 2,459. Other leaders were: Elks club league No. 7, 2,430; Pink Kleenex, 2,424; Cliff Dwellers, 2,419; Red Rose, 2,417.

Curtailed Program.

The men's Classic league will present a curtailed schedule tonight. Since the city tourney is being held on the Gold Coast alleys, the Baby Ruth-Budweiser match will be deferred until next Sunday afternoon and the Lorenz Knitting-Arlington Bowlers' Aid engagement will not be staged until Saturday evening at Petersen's, because members of the teams are competing in the Middle West tourney at Kansas City. The following matches will be rolled this evening:

Stevenson Heating vs. Olive Can at Madison-Kedzie, 3127 Madison street; Moulding-Brownell vs. A. J. Cermaks at Windy City, 2101 South Cicero avenue; Old Manhattan vs. Edelweiss at Harding, 2701 Milwaukee avenue.

Randolph Takes Rest.

Because of the Thanksgiving holiday there will be no bowling in the Randolph league this week, and in the meantime the leading Mineralites will have plenty of time to plot ways of building a new winning streak. After winning 25 in a row their record now is 28 won and two lost.

Close Race in Bruck League.

The John Conroys pulled away to a two game lead in the Bruck Major league, after having been tied with the Kruse Undertakers for first place. By taking three games, just as the Conroys did, Dutch Masters climbed into a second place tie with Kruse Undertakers with 24 won and 9 lost. The Conroys have 26 victories and 7 defeats. With a 210 average Eli Marcich remains on top in the individual race. The league will take a holiday until Dec. 6.

Tie in North End League.

Three victories while registering a 3,060 total gave Edelweiss a tie with the Birk Brothers for first place in the North End league. Harry Earle of the Nationals continues to lead the individuals with a 208 average. Tomorrow's schedule:

Birk Brothers vs. Michelobs at the North Town, 7 p. m.; Edelweiss vs. Birk's Superbs at the Willow, 7 p. m.; P. J. Westers vs. Fox's Deluxe at Kaadland, 7 p. m.; Tavern Pales vs. National Tea at the Lake View, 9 p. m.; H. B. Kaads vs. Luxor Cigars at the Gold Coast, 9 p. m.

Windy City Race Tightens.

A. Komrska shot 674 to boost his average to 209 and replace Joe Wilman as individual leader in the Windy City league. Another high series was Bud Wright's 719, which included season high game of 279. By winning two games while Corina Cigars were dropping a pair the Illinois Pies now are one game from the top in the team standings. Tomorrow's schedule:

J. M. Kralovecs vs. Vogel Brothers; Svehla Primas vs. Mineralites; Corina Cigars vs. Illinois Pies; Atlas Wet Wash vs. B. Pinkerts; Soper Brothers vs. Cicero Boosters; Rosedale Dairy vs. Rock Garden Tavern; Curtiss Buy-Jiminy vs. Blazek Tailors; A. J. Cermaks vs. Pilsen Olympia.

Here and There.

If evidence is needed that the Woodlawn Major league has expert bowlers, consider the 710 series Larry Dunn shot while helping the Club El Rado get 1,116, 936 and 1,114 for a 3,166 total, a new high for the year, and the 737 count by Tom Chyzy of the Oofondaliers, who had games of 256, 193 and 288. This was the best season series and the 288 high individual game. . . . A E. Kinkel shot high game of 231 and a series of 596 to lead the scoring in the men's Kleenex league. His work helped the Pink Kleenex to win two games from the second place Yellow Kleenex. . . . Among the prizes in the Traffic Club league is a new bowling ball to be awarded the man showing the most improvement over last year. The Steamers are setting a fast pace with 23 won and 7 lost.

About the Women.

High scores are reported in the Samuelson Women's Major league: A 961 game and 2,661 series by the Herrman Florists and 2,572 by the Green Rivers. Elsie Carlson cashed in with 611 on games of 211, 225 and 175 and Gertrude Anderson hung up high game of 254 while totaling 603. Other leaders were: Minnie Jenkinson, 571; Violet Whitney, 559; Grace Culver, 559 and Blanche McTigue, 555. . . . High game and high series of the season for the Women's Kleenex league was turned in by the Green Kleenex when they rolled 738 and 2,143.

Again three teams are tied for the leadership of the women's Classic league. They are Windy City, Garden Recreation and Petersens, each with 15 won and 12 lost. The individual leader still is Marie Warmbier with 181, and it appears that she will stay in front, just as she did last year. Her nearest competitors are Marie Polacki and M. Ebert with 172's.

K. C. Quintets Open Play with 8 Games Today

The Knights of Columbus Basketball league will begin its 21st season this afternoon. Eight games are scheduled, four in the west section at the Community clubhouse, 4711 Madison street, and four in the south section at White City, 63d street and South Park avenue.

The new season will be marked by a number of changes in the makeup of the league, the most important of which shifts St. Cyr, the champion, from the north to the west division. The St. Cyr team went through last season without a defeat, running up 21 consecutive victories. St. Cyr will meet Carroll in one of the games today.

Englewood and Loyola-Hyde Park, which fought it out for the sectional championship last season, will meet in the south division.

The schedules:

WEST DIVISION.

[4711 Madison street.]

Barry vs. Hennepin-Shields.
Damen vs. Setters.
St. Cyr vs. Carroll.
Hughes vs. Tonti.

SOUTH DIVISION.

[White City.]

La Rabida vs. Calumet.
Auburn Park vs. McHale.
Loyola-Hyde Park vs. Englewood.
Dowling vs. Aquinas.

C. Y. O. BOXERS MEET FRIDAY IN TITLE BATTLES

Expect 22,000 at Bouts in Stadium.

Fight Facts

Event—Third Annual Catholic Youth Organization amateur boxing tournament.
Place—Chicago Stadium, 1800 Madison street.
Time—8:15 p. m., Friday, Dec. 1.
Contestants—Thirty-two, 16 in each of classes A and B.
Bouts—Sixteen.

Thirty-two survivors of a field of 1,500 contestants who entered the third annual amateur boxing tournament of the Catholic Youth organization a month ago will fight for 16 championships—eight each in classes A and B—at the Chicago Stadium Friday night.

The tournament was the most open of any in C. Y. O. history because of the ineligibility of former class A C. Y. O. champions to compete this year.

Throughout the preliminary rounds in west, south, north, and Joliet districts and in the quarter-finals and semi-finals bouts were so hard fought that outstanding entrants were eliminated. Many youngsters who were competing in their first major tournament scored impressive victories.

Schultz and Fuscaldo Finalists.

Frank Schultz, Lady of Mount Carmel, and Henry Fuscaldo, S.S. Peter and Paul, are the flyweight finalists in class A. Schultz is more or less of a newcomer while Fuscaldo is a veteran, having fought in several big tournaments.

In the featherweight division there is Jimmy Christy, Our Lady of Mount Carmel, and Sammy Scoglio, Lady of Good Counsel. Christy is in possession of a Central A. A. U. title. Last year he was eliminated in the early rounds.

Perhaps the most evenly matched and the strongest candidates for welterweight honors are Nestor Bruggman, St. Jerome, and Bob La Monte of Lady of Pompeii. Both are experienced. They have won several minor titles. This is their first chance for a major amateur crown.

Wozniak vs. Luzak.

Raymond Wozniak and Stanley Luzak will meet for the light heavyweight title. Wozniak is from St. Alexander, Villa Park, and Luzak is from St. Wenceslaus.

The four other weight divisions in class A also are well fortified.

The 16 finalists in class B will be battling for their first title. Winners will be eligible to compete for major championships next year.

A crowd of 22,000 is expected to attend the final bouts Friday. This will gross a gate of $37,000. There already is $24,000 in the counting room.

The profits derived from the show will go into the fund to maintain and operate various activities of the C. Y. O., such as athletic and social programs and vacation schools.

Rich Rewards for Winners.

Winners of the class A matches will be generously rewarded. Besides receiving gold and silver belts, sent from Rome by Pope Pius XI, and college or high school scholarships, the champions will be awarded a trip to California.

The champion team leaves late next month for Pasadena to attend the annual Rose Bowl football game on Jan. 1. Then the boys go to Los Angeles to box the winners of a C. Y. O. tournament now in progress there. Later they meet a San Francisco squad at San Francisco, after which they return to Chicago.

Ceremony Before Show.

An impressive ceremony will precede the show at 8:15 o'clock Friday night. The Most Rev. B. J. Sheil, director of the C. Y. O., will be the speaker of the evening. He will administer the C. Y. O. pledge to the finalists who will be assembled in the ring before the bouts start.

The pairings Friday will be as follows:

Class A.

Frank Schultz vs. Henry Fuscaldo, 112.
Andy Scrivani vs. John Scanavino, 118.
Sammy Scoglio vs. Jimmy Christy, 126.
Phil Kenneally vs. John Barbara, 135.
Bob La Monte vs. Nestor Bruggman, 147.
Charles Wozniak vs. Tom Cahill, 160.
Ray Wozniak vs. Stanley Luzak, 175.
John Logan vs. Jules Bracks, heavyweight.

Class B.

James Poulos vs. John Sittipano, 112.
John Brown vs. Leonard Carroll, 118.
Arthur Palladino vs. Leonard Nuzzo, 126.
Anthony Spino vs. William Murphy, 135.
Tony Spota vs. Chester Bulecki, 147.
Richard Dene vs. William Cosen, 160.
Joseph Skovran vs. Carl Kohnr, 175.
Max Zona vs. Kurt Bartz, heavyweight.

SWIFT RESUMES DIVIDENDS ON 50 CENTS BASIS

Rising Prices Bring Back Profits.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

After a lapse in dividends of 18 months—the first interruption in 40 years—Swift & Co. yesterday notified stockholders that payments will be resumed the first of the year.

Directors have declared a quarterly dividend of 12½ cents a share, payable Jan. 1 to stock of record Dec. 9, thus placing the stock on a 50 cents annual basis. The last dividend of 25 cents a share was paid July 1, 1932.

The company's earnings report for the fiscal year which ended Oct. 28 will be released about Dec. 16, the company announced. While the company has made no interim reports this year, in accordance with its usual custom, it is understood operations were again placed on a profitable basis after the loss incurred in 1932.

Rising Prices Help.

The rising tendency of prices and the consequent halt in inventory losses worked in the company's favor.

Ordinarily operating on a narrow profit margin, earnings are sensitive to price fluctuations. As the downward price trend in 1932 brought a loss to the company, the trend this year brought favorable results.

The net loss of $5,338,000, after all charges, incurred in 1932 was the first deficit shown by the company since 1921 during the post-war adjustment of high prices' inventories. The resulting cessation in dividends was the first in more than 40 years. Despite the loss, however, the company remained in an exceptionally strong financial position with the cash assets of $56,000,000 amounting to more than twice the total current liabilities.

Dividend Rate Moderate.

The company's statement issued yesterday by J. E. Corby, secretary, was noncommittal regarding 1933 results. It did indicate, however, that the 50 cents' yearly rate adopted was regarded by directors as moderate.

"In resuming the payments of dividends," Mr. Corby said, "the directors believe it wise, under existing conditions, to follow a policy of moderation."

The last quarterly payment of 25 cents in July last year was half the rate in effect prior to that time. The former $2 rate was equivalent to 8 per cent on the $25 stock which was exchanged for the $100 stock early in 1930.

WEEK'S OUTPUT OF SOFT COAL UP 6.2 PER CENT

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Production of bituminous coal in the United States during the week ended Nov. 18 increased 6.2 per cent over the previous week.

The bureau of mines estimated the total output for the week at 7,655,000 net tons, a gain of 445,000 tons over the week ended Nov. 11. The output the same week in 1932 was 7,792,000 tons.

Cumulative production during the present year to Nov. 18 stands at 286,162,000 tons, against 262,271,000 tons in the same period of 1932.

Gains or decreases in individual middle western state productions for the week ended Nov. 11—the last date for which state figures are available—as compared with the week ended Nov. 4, follow:

Illinois, 777,000 to 863,000; Indiana, 300,000 to 354,000; Iowa, 53,000 to 57,000; Kansas and Missouri, 127,000 to 125,000; Kentucky [eastern], 609,000 to 549,000; Kentucky [western], 148,000 to 165,000; Michigan, 12,000 to 9,000; Ohio, 408,000 to 426,000.

RETAIL FINANCING OF NEW CARS FAR ABOVE YEAR AGO

Washington, D. C., Nov. 25.—(AP)—The commerce department reported today that preliminary estimates of the dollar volume of retail financing of new cars showed an increase of approximately 123 per cent for October as compared with October, 1932.

The department said that although the figures represent a decrease of 14.4 per cent from the previous month this year, the decrease is much less than for the similar period during previous years.

Downers Grove 1st National to Pay Additional 7½%

A third payment of 7½ per cent is being paid to depositors of the First National bank of Downers Grove which closed in June, 1931, Charles F. Knapp, receiver, said yesterday. Checks will be ready Tuesday. The amount to be distributed is aproximately $60,000 and brings the total paid so far to approximately $350,000, or 45 per cent of claims.

Utility Shares Rally in Dull Stock Market

New York, N. Y., Nov. 25.—Late developments in the big money battle left the stock market cold today. Trading was extremely dull and price movements for the most part were sluggish. Gains outnumbered losses by a small margin, but most net changes were fractional.

While the price of the dollar changed little, its future course naturally held the attention of the board room groups. But none admitted to knowing any more than before Mr. Smith flung his brown derby into the ring as a defi to the "baloney" dollar champions.

Utilities, Rails Favored.

However, brokers reported some switching from the recent favorites in the metal share and commodity groups into the rails and utilities. The latter group impressed tape watchers by its show of strength as compared with its prolonged stay in the doldrums. North American, Standard Gas, United Corporation, Columbia Gas and Public Service all came in for some fairly good buying during the abbreviated session.

Consolidated Gas surprised the community by easing only a small fraction in face of the decision of the New York public service commission to compel the company to make a cut of 6 per cent on electricity despite the increased costs of operation it is suffering on account of the NRA code.

Oil shares were under the shadow of additional uncertainties growing out of the controversy of the question of price fixing for the industry and leading issues of the group sold off from a fraction to a point.

Metals Drift Lower.

Metal shares continued their downward drift with American Smelting, Cerro de Pasco, McIntyre, Alaska Juneau, and other erstwhile favorites as the more notable victims of what selling came the department's way. Homestake once more went against the group's trend by rising some three points.

Word from Warm Springs, Ga., that President Roosevelt was unmoved by the latest attacks on his monetary policy and that the administration was progressing slowly with its gold buying program had no effect one way or the other with these shares so far as the course of trading indicated. The group has been backing away from its recent highs ever since the dollar began to brace up and today's selling showed little deviation from the mill run of other sessions, except perhaps that it was a little duller.

Market Leaders Quiet.

Market leaders like American Can and United States Steel were listless and final prices on most of them were within small fractions of last night's closing figures. News of rising operations from the steel centers failed to create a ripple in the high priced industrial share circle.

Week-end covering was in evidence in the liquor stocks, which have been under pressure for the better part of the week on prospective heavy taxation for the liquor business in Pennsylvania and elsewhere. National Distillers and Schenley rallied moderately.

MOODY'S INDEX SHOWS FURTHER RISE IN TRADE

New York, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Statistics appearing during the last week indicated a continued rise in business activity, according to Moody's index figures for freight carloadings, electric power production, and steel ingot output.

These figures are adjusted for seasonal variation—that is, if the change from the previous week should coincide with the normal seasonal change the index figure would be unchanged.

	Carloadings.	Electric.	Steel.	Combined.

THREE RECEIVERS IN ONE BANK TOO MUCH FOR JUDGE

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Referring to "this golden age of receiverships," Federal Judge Charles B. Faris today refused to appoint a third receiver for the failed St. Louis Joint Stock Land bank.

"Surely congress never intended, even in this golden age of receiverships, that there should be three receivers to liquidate one insolvent land bank," said the judge.

North Dakota Suspends First Bank Stock Sales

Bismarck, N. D., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Sale of First Bank Stock corporation stock in North Dakota has been suspended pending outcome of a hearing by the Minnesota commission, Secretary James Mulloy of the State Securities commission announced today. The Minnesota group several days ago suspended sale of the shares in that state, charging improper practices. Hearing on whether the ban should be made permanent was set for Dec. 4.

First Bank Pays 5 Cent Divivend.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 25.—(AP)—A quarterly dividend of 5 cents a share was voted today by the First Bank Stock corporation, payable Jan. 1 to stockholders of record Dec. 16.

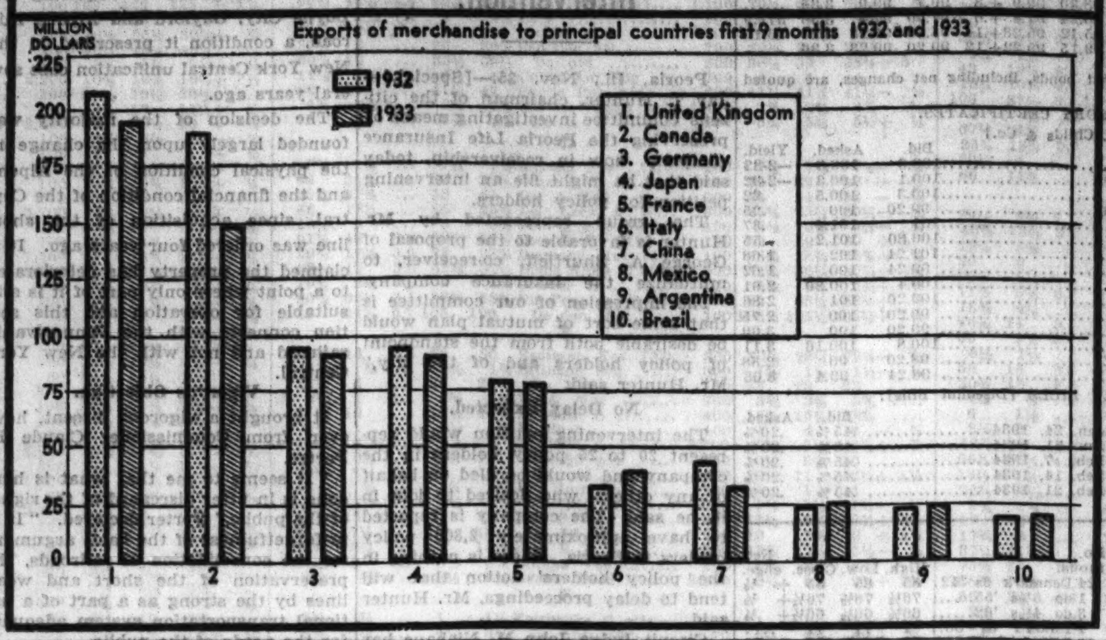
Exports to Leading Countries First Nine Months of 1933 Compared with a Year Ago



North Western Earns October Bond Interest

The Chicago and North Western railway earned interest on its bonds in October for the fourth consecutive month. The Pennsylvania, which also reported yesterday, showed a profit for the month of approximately $2,000,000 after provision for bond interest.

North Western's net railway operating income was $1,310,016 last month, before interest. This represented a gain of $34,634 over September and $295,965 over October, 1932. Cumulative earnings for the ten months ended Oct. 31, however, were $6,000,000 short of interest requirements for the period.

Pennsylvania Revenue Lower.

The Pennsylvania reported October net operating revenue of $5,731,675, a decline of $898,874 from October last year. The balance of $2,000,000 remaining after interest charges brought profit for the 10 months to $15,225,000, equivalent to $1.15 a share.

September gross of the Pennsylvania was $30,212,982 which was $700,000 below September but $442,559 above October last year. The slump in gross was attributed to industrial strikes, elimination of the emergency rate increases and larger expenditures last month.

The Southern Pacific company reported yesterday that its October net operating income was $2,488,464, compared with $1,864,026 in the same month of 1932. Gross revenues for the month stood at $12,765,548, a decline of $453,109 from 1932.

Wabash railway operating revenues were $3,232,912 for October, compared with $3,439,556 last year. Net operating income for October was $404,744, compared with $446,461 a year ago.

Reports of Other Roads.

Other roads reported October net railway operating income, compared with a year ago, as follows:

	1933.	1932.
Erie	$1,210,885	$1,695,226
Frisco	495,487	850,946
Lackawanna	233,183	593,607

Seaboard Airline	187,792	25,319
Mobile & Ohio	8,181	16,307
Boston & Maine	20,781	176,239

The first thirty railroads to report showed operating income of $27,663,213, a decrease of $3,553,208 from October last year.

PRESIDENT PICKS ANOTHER RAIL MEDIATION UNIT

Washington, D. C., Nov. 25.—(AP)—President Roosevelt tonight named a commission of three to handle the dispute between the Mobile and Ohio railroad and the locomotive engineers, conductors and firemen, and several other brotherhood groups.

It was the second board of mediation appointed by the President in two days to handle disputes between railroads and their employés. One was named yesterday to mediate a controversy between the Southern Pacific and brotherhood organizations.

The names of the board members were not given out. The Mobile and Ohio runs from St. Louis to Mobile, Ala.

COMMODITY PRICES DRIFT IRREGULARLY LOWER IN LAST WEEK

Commodity prices declined irregularly during the last week. A new all time record low was established on December butter and egg futures, heavy liquidation developing in the two products.

Prices of all commodities with the exception of sugar and rubber were lower for the week with barley, lard, and bellies showing the greatest loss, the latter selling at a new low for the season. Closing prices the last two weeks as compared with the low for 1933 to date follow:

DOLLAR STRONG AGAINST FRANC; YIELDS TO POUND

Gold Price Unchanged for Fifth Day.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 25.—The dollar was strong today against the French franc, but gave ground slightly against the British pound sterling.

Measured in francs, the dollar was worth 62.39 cents in gold at the close, an advance of one-tenth of a cent over yesterday's final quotation. The pound, however, rose 2 cents to close at $5.20. Meanwhile the United States gold price continued unchanged at $33.76 an ounce, indicating a gold value for the dollar of 61.22 cents, or more than a cent below the exchange price. The treasury's gold price was 90 cents above the world price at London.

Expect Stabilization.

The strength of the dollar against the franc was attributed to the widespread belief that the growing demands from important leaders for a sound money will lead the Roosevelt administration to some sort of stabilization.

Conflicting reports of the impending plans of the administration continued to becloud the situation. The silence of the President in the face of the blast from Gov. Smith was open to many interpretations. The most popular conclusion was that the administration is getting ready to answer its critics with a definition of its long term plans.

Black Denies Quarrel.

Meanwhile from Washington came denials from Gov. Black of the federal reserve board that there was a rift between the board and administration. Gov. Black is regarded as the leading sound money man left in the administration ranks since the recent exit of Messers Sprague, Woodin, and Acheson. His known views on the situation plus the critical attitude taken by the reserve advisory council had given rise to the reports that Black and other members had fallen out with the President.

ABBOTT VOTES SPECIAL BONUS FOR EMPLOYES

In view of the increased business of the Abbott Laboratories, the directors have voted a special Christmas bonus to employés. For all present employés who were with the company prior to Jan. 1, 1933, the bonus will be 15 per cent of October salaries: for those employed prior to July 1, 10 per cent, and for all others 5 per cent.

The directors also voted the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents, payable Jan. 3 to stockholders of record Dec. 16.

For the quarter ended Sept. 30 both the volume of sales and net profits surpassed those of the like period of last year. October was the best month in the history of the company. Since July 1 the number of employés has risen 28 per cent.

George M. Reynolds' Grain Board Seat Transferred

The Chicago Board of Trade membership of George M. Reynolds, former chairman of the Continental bank, has been posted for transfer to John F. Craddock, vice president of the bank. The seat belonging to the estate of William J. Farrell has been posted for transfer to Moses Eisemann, New York.

Home Life Insurance Co. Maintains Dividend Rate

Austin State Bank to Open Tomorrow

State Auditor Edward J. Barrett yesterday authorized the Austin State bank, 5645 West Lake street, to open tomorrow morning on an unrestricted basis. The bank, one of the oldest and largest of the outlying institutions closed by the moratorium, has been reorganized with $200,000 of new money and a 60 per cent deposit waiver.

The bank had approximately $1,700,000 in deposits when it closed at the beginning of the bank moratorium. Forty per cent of this amount, or approximately $680,000, will be made available upon reopening.

Capital Cut to $200,000.

The bank's capital has been cut from $500,000 to $200,000 through a reduction in the par value of each share from $100 to $40. Shareholders retaining their stock put up another $40 a share. Stock given up by holders unable or unwilling to put up the $40 a share was sold to business men in the neighborhood.

The principal officers of the bank will continue in office. Perley D. Castle is president, Charles S. Castle is chairman of the board, and Lester Castle is vice president and cashier.

Repossesses Stock.

Ninety-five per cent of the stock was formerly held by the now defunct National Republic Bancorporation. This stock was repossessed by the bank last spring as a preliminary to the reorganization work.

The bank was organized by the Castle brothers in 1891 when Austin was a suburb of Chicago.

State Auditor Barrett also announced that the Jersey State bank, Jerseyville, Ill., has been granted authority to reopen tomorrow morning.

USE OF CHECKS INDICATES RISE IN TRADE TOTAL

Business in the Chicago federal reserve district last week ran ahead of the preceding week and the corresponding period last year, as measured by the volume of checks cashed at reserve member banks.

Figures issued yesterday showed that debits to individual deposit accounts for the week ended last Wednesday aggregated $750,651,000 in 39 clearing house cities, an expansion of 7.6 per cent over the preceding seven days. In 37 cities where 1933 figures are available the debits last week totaled $749,021,000, a gain of 19.9 per cent over a year ago.

A conspicuous expansion was shown in Chicago, where debits totaled $491,980,000, against $375,001,000 in the same week last year. Des Moines, Ia.; Milwaukee, Wis.; Indianapolis, Ind., and Peoria, Ill., were among the other cities showing gains over 1933. Detroit ran behind last year, reversing the trend in the preceding week.

Grigsby Receivership Declared Helpful Move

John F. Ditzell, general sales manager of the Grigsby-Grunow company, in a letter to company distributors and dealers yesterday said that the equity receivership of the company would assure continued operation of the company on a sound basis. The company will bring out extensive new lines of radios and refrigerators in January.

Sixteen Idaho Banks Are Merged Into One

Boise, Ida., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Consolidation of the 16 Idaho banks of the First Security corporation into a branch banking system with a capital structure of $1,500,000 and deposits of $11,000,000 was announced here today on authority of M. S. Eccles of Ogden, Utah, president of the corporation. The change is effective Monday.

EXPORTS REACH HIGHEST TOTAL FOR TWO YEARS

Shipments Exceed Seasonal Gain.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 25.—A seasonal expansion, apparently aided by dollar depreciation, brought the value of merchandise exports in October to $194,000,000, the largest for any month since October, 1931, according to figures made public today by the commerce department.

The value of October shipments compared with $160,108,000 for the preceding month and $153,090,000 for the corresponding month last year. Imports also were larger for the month, increasing from $146,652,000 in September to $151,000,000. They compared with imports in October, 1932, amounting to $105,499,000 and were the largest for any month except last August since December, 1931.

Up 10 Per Cent Since August.

"Adjusted for normal seasonal variation, the increase in export value has maintained unchanged the rate of increase reported for September," said the department. "The adjusted index indicates that exports have advanced 10 per cent since August in addition to the normal seasonal improvement.

"The October level is 42 per cent of the 1923-'25 average. This is slightly below the adjusted figure for last July, when there was a marked increase in exports at a time which is usually seasonally low. Because imports usually advance in this season the adjusted import value index declined from 50 to 46 per cent of the 1923-'25 average.

Favorable Balance.

"The increase in exports during the last two months has occurred while the import movement leveled off after the rapid rise from May through August. Consequently the balance of merchandise trade has changed from a net import surplus of $23,500,000 in August to a net export surplus of $43,000,000 in October. This compares with an excess of merchandise exports of $48,000,000 in October, 1932, and $36,000,000 in October, 1931."

WIGGIN CALLED TO TELL OF FOX'S HOOVER CHARGE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 25.—[U. P.]—Albert H. Wiggin, deposed head of the Chase National bank, will appear next week before senate stock market investigators to answer the charge of William Fox that he brusquely ordered President Hoover to keep hands off of New York bankers in 1929.

Wiggin already has issued emphatic denial of Fox's story. But Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, refused to take cognizance of the banker's statement. Pecora said Wiggin would appear before the committee next week and could make his reply at that time.

Half a dozen prominent Republicans of the Hoover and Harding administrations have been drawn into Fox's story of what he describes as a conspiracy to ruin him in 1929 and 1930. The committee rejected Pecora's suggestion that Hoover and the others be invited to appear if they desired to answer the former film magnate. Senators decided, instead, to receive in writing all requests for an opportunity to testify but without pledging beforehand that the applicant would be heard.

There is some sentiment among committee members for an extension of the inquiry to justice department officials of the Hoover administration. Fox swore that he had been told in 1929 that department records had been altered.

TWELVE EXTRA DIVIDENDS PAID IN LAST WEEK

New York, Nov. 25. — Twenty-nine favorable dividend changes appeared this week, a total well above that for any week of the last two months, Standard Statistics company reports. Twelve extras were announced, nine dividends were resumed, four were increased, and four initial payments were voted. The total compares with fifteen in the previous week.

Unfavorable changes numbered five, comprising two omissions and three reductions, whereas a week ago eight dividends were omitted and one was cut.

Peanuts Might Be Base for Baloney Dollar

BY HOWARD WOOD.

If any politician or economist were to suggest peanuts as backing for the United States currency he would immediately become the laughing stock of the entire nation.

Such a proposition would be ridiculous not only because of the somewhat perishable nature of peanuts as a commodity, but because of the fact that the value of the peanut crop is so insignificant that the people of the United States would be unwilling to jeopardize anything as important as their national currency system to aid so small a fraction of the population as the peanut raisers.

* *

But would it be more ridiculous to tamper with the currency system for the peanut raisers than to tamper with it for the benefit of the silver producers.

The total value of the peanut crop in 1932 was $20,051,000. The total value of last year's silver production was $6,762,773. Peanuts, therefore, made up about three times as much of the national income as silver. Even the onion crop, worth $11,052,000, was almost twice as important as silver.

With the next session of congress only a few weeks away, it seems inevitable that the Rocky mountain states will attempt again to inject the silver issue into the monetary tangle. Already there have been advanced numerous proposals for bimetallism and symetalism, all of which have to do with the purchase of silver by the government as part backing for the currency, along with gold.

* *

Those who want silver back of the dollar don't emphasize the fact that this would help the silver producers. They prefer to talk economics, and to make glowing predictions about the beneficial effect that their plan would have on the currency problem and how it would build up trade with China, India, Mexico, and Peru.

It is noticeable, however, that the clamor for silver backed dollars comes principally from the Rocky mountain states and from the mine operators who produce silver.

It is logical to assume, therefore, that the people who expect to profit most by a silver currency experiment are the people who last year produced the $6,762,000 worth of silver.

* *

What about foreign trade? Those who propose raising the price of silver artificially by using it for currency backing frequently dwell upon the fact that "silver constitutes the money and hoarded savings of nearly half the world's population." The assumption is that with a higher price for silver the United States would open up this half of the world as a market for American goods.

This "half the world's population" consists largely of some hundreds of millions of Chinese, Indians and other Asiatics. If the United States were to sell goods to these people it would have to accept in return either their goods or their money.

It has been demonstrated that we don't want their goods. Therefore, the only thing we could accept in return for our goods would be money. Their money is silver. By pegging the price of silver at an artificially high level we would be taking silver from the Chinese and Indians at more than it was worth.

If we should open up these new markets for our goods, therefore, the net result would be to accumulate in this country a lot of silver that we don't need and which we couldn't sell except at a loss. We would have "stabilized" silver as the old farm board "stabilized" wheat—all for the benefit of the people who last year produced in this country a total of $6,762,000 worth of silver.

* *

Another experiment in opening up foreign markets has been begun with the recognition of Russia by the United States. Rosy predictions are being made about the half billion dollars worth of goods we expect to sell the Russians.

If we sell goods to Russia we must accept in return either Russian goods—which we don't want and probably won't take, money, which they haven't got, or I. O. U.'s, the United States government to furnish the credit.

Inasmuch as the Russians haven't any money to pay for the goods now, it's hard to see how they will get it when the I. O. U.'s fall due. In the past the Russians have solved such problems very simply by just repudiating their debts.

* *

There has been much criticism of late of Americans who have withdrawn their capital from employment in the United States and exported it to Great Britain. The proposed extention of United States credit to Russia would be just another exportation of a large amount of American capital. Taxpayers' dollars which should be working at home would be exported to Russia in order to help the Russians buy American goods that nobody can figure out how the Russians will ever pay for.

A simpler method would be to give the goods to the Russians free and save the expense of bookkeeping.

BANKERS SEEK A SOLUTION OF MONEY PUZZLE

Expect Slow Swing to Stabilization.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 25.—The protest against the government's present monetary policies, which became loud this week, has thus far been a matter principally of criticism by prominent individuals or professional groups of inflation as an economic panacea. The aroused sound money men have not yet, either as individuals or groups, advanced a monetary program of their own.

This has led to a general impression that most of those who denounce the course of the Roosevelt administration favor the immediate resumption of the old gold standard at the old parity of exchange. This is far from the case, it is declared.

Old Standard in Discard.

After what the dollar has been through, an attempt to return overnight to the former gold standard would be impossible, even if it were desirable, most bankers agree. Although the depreciation of the dollar has not had a corresponding inflationary effect upon prices, the effort to restore the dollar to its old parity would certainly involve drastic deflation, it is recognized.

Apart from the effects of such an attempt upon our own economy, the consequent sharp fall in the dollar value of sterling, francs and other foreign exchanges, it is asserted, might have serious consequences for other countries.

What these revisions are is in general fairly well agreed upon and has been set forth from time to time by such bodies as the league of nations gold delegation, the Bank for International Settlements and the preparatory commission of experts of the world economic conference.

Expect Gradual Change.

For reasons of political expediency, if not for economic reasons, most of the sound money party consider that any change from the government's present monetary course should take the form of a gradual merging of the present program into a stabilization program, rather than an overnight scrapping of the present plan. On this basis it is possible to outline certain steps which many, if not most, of the present critics of the administration's monetary policy would approve.

1. The conversion of the present machinery for depressing the dollar into an exchange equalization fund, having as its object the prevention of violent fluctuations in the foreign exchange market. Through the operation of this fund an effort to achieve over a period of time a de facto stabilization of the dollar.

2. International consultation and agreement with Great Britain, France and other countries looking toward a simultaneous return to the gold standard by all those countries which abandoned it in the last two years and the working out of new parities of exchange.

3. A settlement of the problem of international debts, particularly the war debts.

Reform Gold Standard.

4. The reformation of the gold standard. Most economists agree that the gold exchange standard must be scrapped and that the gold bullion standard must be universally adopted. This means not only that countries on the gold standard must keep their reserves in the form of gold and not in the form of deposits in gold standard countries, but also that gold must be withdrawn from public circulation and concentrated in the hands of central banks and that in the future no more gold coin will be minted or paid out to the public, redemption of currency being made only in gold bars.

In addition many economists would favor a universal lowering of reserve requirements of central banks, cutting down the ratio of gold to note issue from the prevailing rate of about 40 per cent to 25 per cent or lower.

5. The utilization in the various countries of profits accruing from the revaluation of their monetary gold holdings for purposes of credit expansion and economic reconstruction.

A program of this character would represent a considerable compromise from the views of many orthodox economists of a year or so ago. It would be even more distant from the demands of the more extreme inflationists, but, in the view of many bankers, it might constitute a meeting ground for the moderates in both parties.

New York, Nov. 25.—Bonds of all classifications moved higher on the stock exchange today, United States government long term issues rising 3-32ds to 16-32ds point, domestic corporation bonds fractionally to five points, and leading foreign loans 1 to more than 6 points. Trading was active for a Saturday, reaching $6,172,000.

Our government's bonds completed their third successive day of advancing prices with today's turnover amounting to $1,024,700 during the two hour trading period. Apparently cognizance is being taken, marketwise, of the necessity of a stable market when the treasury comes to refund its $727,692,500 of certificates due on Nov. 15.

Railroad bonds showed the best strength in the domestic corporation list with the obligations of the following ruling especially active and strong: The Erie, Illinois Central, the Lehigh Valley, Missouri Pacific, Northern Pacific, the Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, and the Southern Railway.

Leading gainers in the foreign group were Dutch East Indies loans, up 5⅞ @6½ points; French government 7½s, up 2¼; and the German issues, many of which were up a point or two on the day; United Kingdom loans closed unchanged to up 1½ points. Small gains accrued to a number of Latin-American issues.

On the Curb exchange domestic bonds finished generally higher with strength in German bonds featuring an otherwise irregular foreign group. Trading was fairly active for a Saturday.

Northwest Side Business Property Sold for $67,000

Sol Alexander, 1543 South Komensky avenue, yesterday sold the property at 3604 North Crawford avenue, consisting of seven stores, to Carl Urbach, a tenant in the building, for $67,000. Frank T. Sharp represented Mr. Urbach, and the firm of McInerney, Epstein & Arvey represented Mr. Alexander. Ten thousand dollars in cash and the warranty deed have been placed in escrow with the Chicago Title and Trust company. The terms provide also for a second mortgage of $20,000, a first of $35,000, and $2,000 earnest money.

The Radio Industry.

The radio industry has had two climaxes and anti-climaxes in its short span. It was first carried to its height by fresh public interest in 1922. Large profits and an apparently inexhaustible market encouraged the flow of capital into the industry. The result was overcapitalization, overcapacity, price cutting, receiverships, and the generally chaotic condition that often confronts a new industry after the first period of enthusiasm.

After this came reorganizations and consolidations. The industry started anew on a more solid foundation. But the public would not let such a condition exist. Vastly improved receiving and broadcasting equipment and a rising tide of prosperity swept the industry once more to dizzy heights. Again the same factors intervened to check growth. This time, however, the collapse was coupled with a general drying up of purchasing power.

The last reaction was more severe. Mortality was greater and the surplus of goods to be disposed of at sacrifice prices was larger.

The industry can look forward to replacement of from 4,500,000 to 6,400,000 sets. In addition there remains a large original market. It is estimated that although there are about 17,000,000 sets in use, including those in restaurants, automobiles, etc., there are 30,000,000 homes. Of course, not all homes are wired for electricity [probably about one-third are not] but there still exists a large market for battery sets, which even now contribute about 10 per cent of total sales.

The refinement of the midget radio opens up a new field—sales to the low income group, occupants of small apartments and those who want an additional radio. A general improvement in business conditions should help sell higher priced sets, which yield a larger margin of profit.

It should not be presumed that the industry is all set for a boom. Overcapacity will act as a drag on any future expansion. Midget sets have caught the public fancy, and, since the profit margin on them is low, it will require unusual prosperity to bring back the profits of yesteryear. Manufacturers were caught heavily loaded with inventories when prices began their downward toboggan in 1929 and have been liquidating since.

The foreign market, which contributed a substantial portion of total sales in the last four years, is dwindling as a result of quotas and prohibitive tariffs.

One bright spot that should not be overlooked is the market for automobile radios. Sales have steadily mounted during 1931, 1932, and 1933,

MUTUAL PLAN FOR PEORIA LIFE GAINS SUPPORT

Citizens' Group May Ask Intervention.

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Jay T. Hunter, chairman of the citizens' committee investigating means of preserving the Peoria Life Insurance company, now in receivership, today said that he might file an intervening petition for policy holders.

The group represented by Mr Hunter is favorable to the proposal of George A. Shurtleff, co-receiver, to mutualize the insurance company. "The impression of our committee is that some sort of mutual plan would be desirable both from the standpoint of policy holders and of the city," Mr. Hunter said.

No Delay Expected.

The intervening petition would represent 20 to 25 policy holders in the company and would be filed on behalf of any others, who desired to join in it, he said. The company is reported to have approximately 2,800 policy holders in Peoria. There is nothing in the policy holders' action that will tend to delay proceedings, Mr. Hunter said.

Circuit Judge John M. Niehaus has set a hearing for Tuesday morning for cause to be shown why Mr. Shurtleff's recommendation for mutualization of the company should not be approved.

One Receiver Fails to Sign.

Mr. Shurtleff was appointed co-receiver by Judge Niehaus to act with Charles V. O'Hern in administering the assets of the corporation. Mr. O'Hern, whom Ernest Palmer, state director of insurance, says he appointed receiver under the law of the state and whom the insurance head says has sole power to act, did not sign Mr. Shurtleff's report.

FRENCH PONDER MOVE IN BRITISH PROTEST ON TAX

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Nov. 25.—The British note demanding suppression of customs surtaxes against British goods has been received at the ministry of foreign affairs. While the French authorities refused to comment, it was learned they felt a serious commercial situation has been created, and it was realized a definite decision cannot be delayed long.

It is believed the French will either remove the surtaxes, in which case they would soon have to abandon the principle entirely against all countries; or apply them against the United States and certain other countries with depreciated currencies which have no surtax levied against them.

It is considered likely that France will attempt to bargain suppression of surtaxes against trade concessions. It is believed that if the British carry out their threat to retaliate, the French will yield, because they have done so twice already, in the cases of Belgium and Italy, which obtained the removal of 4 and 6 per cent surtaxes against semi-finished products by levying similar taxes against the French.

Kellogg Switchboard Wins Infringement Suit

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 24.—(AP)—Federal Judge Arthur J. Tuttle today ruled the Michigan Bell Telephone company and the American Telephone and Telegraph company had infringed on patents owned by the Kellogg Switchboard and Supply company of Chicago. William S. Sayres, standing master in chancery, was instructed to take further testimony so that Judge Tuttle may compute damages.

I. C. C. REVERSAL OF MERGER ORDER BRINGS PROTEST

Call It Proof of Power of Persistance.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 25.—Rescinding its former ruling, the interstate commerce commission today released the New York Central railroad from its obligation of acquiring the Boyne City, Gaylord and Alpena railroad, a condition it prescribed in the New York Central unification case several years ago.

The decision of the majority was founded largely upon the change in the physical condition of the Alpena and the financial condition of the Central, since acquisition of the short line was ordered four years ago. It is claimed the property has deteriorated to a point where only part of it is still suitable for operation and this section connects with the Pennsylvania railroad and not with the New York Central.

Vigorous Objection.

It brought a vigorous dissent, however, from Commissioner Claude R. Porter.

"It seems to me that what is here done is in utter disregard of the rights of the public," Porter declared. "It is in forgetfulness of the basic argument for the consolidation of railroads, the preservation of the short and weak lines by the strong as a part of a national transportation system adequate for the needs of the public.

Porter's opinion asserted the action of the majority in this case "is a perfect exemplification of the fact that if you will but prolong a controversy long enough and come back to the commission often enough your chances for winning out are excellent."

Two Others Dissent.

Commissioner McManamy joined in the expression of Commissioner Porter and Commissioner Meyer, in a separate dissenting opinion, objected to the majority's approval on the ground that there was no assurance that the Pennsylvania railroad would continue operations over the western portion of the road at present.

Following the original assumption by the Central of the obligation to take over the Alpena, its commercial value was placed by a board of arbitrators at $1,393,293. Upon reviewing the findings of the arbitrators the commission reduced the amount to $230,000.

Against this valuation engineers for the Central estimated at the time that it would require $383,395 to rehabilitate the Alpena's roadway and structures. The estimated cost of the same items is now placed by the Central at $454,583.

GAS SALES GAIN IN SEPTEMBER; REVENUES EASE

New York, Nov. 24.—Sales of manufactured and natural gas aggregated 86,416,800,000 cubic feet in September an increase of nearly 7 per cent over the corresponding month of the preceding year, according to Paul Ryan, chief statistician of the American Gas association.

In spite of augmented sales, however, revenues continued to lag, income for September amounting to $48,800,000, as compared with $49,874,100 in September a year ago, a decline of 2.2 per cent.

Most of the sales expansion of the industry was the result of pronounced increases in gas sales for industrial-commercial purposes, which averaged 14 per cent above the figures for September a year ago. Revenues from this class of business also gained, although not in proportion to increased volume, amounting to $14,532,900 in September, as compared with $13,706,200 for the same month of the preceding year, an increase of 6 per cent.

While sales of manufactured gas for domestic cooking, water heating, refrigeration, etc., continued to run about 6 per cent below a year ago, sales for house heating purposes registered a sharp gain, amounting to more than 22 per cent over the preceding year. Manufactured gas sales for industrial-commercial uses were also above those of a year ago by nearly 12 per cent.

Missouri Sues to Block Sears-Roebuck from State

Jefferson City, Mo., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Ouster proceedings against Sears, Roebuck & Co. were filed in the Cole County Circuit court today by Attorney General Roy McKittrick. The company's license in Missouri was revoked Nov. 18 by Dwight H. Brown, secretary of state, because of the alleged failure to pay $5,176 in fees which Brown declared were due the state since the corporation increased its working capital in Missouri.

NEW BOND FINANCING OF WEEK RAISED TO A TOTAL OF $1,264,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 24.—New public offerings of bonds and notes this week totaled $1,264,000, compared with $410,000 in the preceding week and no offerings two weeks ago. In addition, public offering was made of a few blocks of common stock.

The new bond and note financing consisted of $264,000 city of Springfield, Mass., 4 per cent bonds, due 1934 and 1953, and an issue of $1,000,000 Commonwealth of Massachusetts 1.87 per cent notes due Nov. 1, 1934.

On Monday the city of New York sold an issue of $70,000,000 of 4 per cent relief bonds, due 1 to 10 years, to a city-wide banking group at par. Of this amount, $35,000,000 was taken for investment by savings banks and insurance companies, and the remainder went to various city funds in exchange for short term obligations of the city held by these funds. No public offering of securities was involved.

The Daily Bond Buyer estimates next week's offerings of new securities of state and municipal governments at $12,350,000, compared with $78,400,000 last week, which included the $70,000,000 of New York City obligations. The largest item in the coming week's offerings is $6,808,000 of school district bonds of Los Angeles county, California.

DOLLAR REMAINS PRIME FACTOR IN LONDON MARKET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The British government's statement that the exchequer is closely watching the dollar's course, with a sharp eye on British export figures, was the week's most important development in London, although the fall of the French government, coupled with the consequent decline in the franc and the week-end dollar recovery, both came in for attention.

The impulses throughout the week failed to give the market impetus and trading was actuated, it it has been for many weeks past, by foreign monetary factors.

The primary consideration was the dollar. After erratic sessions from the beginning the dollar began to gain unsteadily toward the close until it was lifted at the finish by a stampede of bear interests trying to "get out from under."

That a big speculative interest in dollars still exists is undoubted; that it would be caught short if President Roosevelt announced stabilization was equally apparent and it was trying to cover toward the end of the week on American reports which to them meant danger.

The British government, it is now known, does not regard the dollar depreciation as a direct threat to the British export market for the simple reason that primary commodity prices have not tended to follow the dollar.

The London market foresaw the French cabinet crisis and immediately began to discount it. After the actual event, however, the franc weakened considerably.

LOCOMOTIVE CO. OFFERING HIGH SPEED ENGINES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 25.—The American Locomotive company is prepared to manufacture streamlined locomotives designed to put the railroads on a competitive basis with airplanes and buses, according to an announcement by the company. This was the first announcement of a commercial application of the streamline principle to steam locomotion.

The plans for the new engine call for a maximum speed of 120 miles an hour. This maximum is to be made by reducing both wind resistance and weight. Efforts to reduce the weight of passenger cars have been begun by the Pullman Car and Manufacturing company, which exhibited a light-eight vehicle at A Century of Progress Exposition.

The American Locomotive company's engine, designed by Otto Kuhler, consultant engineer, is offered in two types — fully streamlined and partly streamlined. The latter type was produced in an effort to provide streamlined engine which at the same time would resemble the standard form and therefore be more easily maintained with present shop equipment.

STORE SALES EASE, BUT HAVE GAIN OVER 1932

Chicago Showing Best in 7th Reserve Area.

Department store trade in the seventh federal reserve district for October suffered a recession of 1 per cent from trade in September, largely because of a sharp decline in Detroit, according to the monthly business conditions report of the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago. In the years 1923-32 an average increase of 7 per cent occurred from September to October.

Net sales, however, were still 7.4 per cent in excess of those of October, 1932. In September the margin of sales over those of the like month of 1932 was 10 per cent.

Chicago Showing Best.

Of the main cities Chicago showed most favorably in the yearly comparison. Net sales were 14.4 per cent greater than those of October last year, and for the first ten months of 1933, 3.1 per cent greater than those of the like period of 1932. Trade was 5½ per cent above that in September.

In the retail shoe trade sales fell 28 per cent, or more than seasonally, from those of September, but maintained a margin of 3 per cent over those of October, 1932.

The decline of 16 per cent from September to October in the retail furniture business was about the same as the 1927-1932 average. Sales were none the less 10 per cent in excess of those in October, 1932.

Chain Volume Over 1932.

Volume of trade in the chain stores were slightly less than in the preceding month, but 6 per cent above that of October, 1932.

In the wholesale distribution of goods, business fell 7 per cent from the level of September, though no change usually occurs. On the other hand, the net sales of all five groups—groceries, hardware, dry goods, drugs, electrical supplies—were superior to those in October last year.

MONEY REFORM GROUPS DRAW UP 5 POINT PROGRAM

San Francisco, Nov. 25.—(AP)—A campaign for government ownership, control and operation of the monetary system, as distinguished from control by privately owned institutions, was announced today by the United States monetary conference, a union of many organizations advocating changes in the money structure of the country.

The program was announced at the close of a three day convention attended by representatives of some 80 monetary reform groups from thirty states.

The program backed by the united groups is as follows:

1. Government ownership, control and operation of the monetary system.
2. A system that will provide for "equitable distribution of the wealth created from our natural resources by our labor and technology."
3. A system guaranteeing "that money shall always be stabilized and constantly possess the same debt paying and purchasing power."
4. A system that will furnish "an adequate supply of money to meet every requirement of production and distribution, and must be available at all times."

Illinois Protests Rail Coal Rates to Nebraska

Washington, D. C., Nov. 25.—(AP)—The Illinois coal traffic bureau today complained to the interstate commerce commission against rates on bituminous coal shipments as charged by 63 railroads from mines in southern Illinois to Nebraska. The traffic bureau said the rates were preferential to producers in other states and asked the commission to fix "reasonable" rates.

Chicago Bank Stocks Move Erratically in Last Week

SILVER FUTURES

Trading in silver futures yesterday was the smallest in a number of days, only 2,300,000 ounces being sold. The market showed an easy undertone, however, in sympathy with a decline of ¼c in bar silver in New York and $\frac{1}{16}$d in London, and futures finished .20@.23c lower. December closed at 43.30c; January, 43.54c; March, 44.05c; May, 44.60c; July, 45.10c; September, 45.60c.

GRAIN MARKET LACKS SUPPORT AND PRICES SAG

Recent Buyers Turn to Selling Side.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Uncertainty marked the grain trade yesterday and many of Friday buyers were active on the selling side. As the markets lacked aggressive support wheat broke sharply, May touching 86 cents at the close, the lowest level since Nov. 1; December closed at 82⅜ cents. Net losses for the day were 2½ to 2¾ cents.

While corn showed rather pronounced resistance to pressure it was unable to make headway in the face of the weakness in wheat and closed 1¼ to 1⅜ cents lower, May at 50¾ to 50⅞ cents. Oats lost ⅞ to 1 cent with May at 36 to 36⅛ cents; rye was off 2 to 2½ cents, May at 63½ cents. Barley lost 2¼ to 2½ cents, May closing at 45 cents.

Money Main Topic of Discussion.

Monetary conditions continued the dominating topic in grain trade discussions. Many traders expect to see higher prices ultimately, but none cared to express an opinion when the upturn would start.

Local handlers yesterday sold 16,000 bushels of corn to go to the Atlantic coast for export and there were intimations foreign countries had made bids for supplies.

With the American corn market apparently on a world parity as the result of the depreciation of the dollar, the trade's attention was drawn to the fact the harvest this year was far below normal domestic requirements and the export business, which has developed in the last week, was regarded significant.

Farmers are withholding corn from market over a wide area. George E. Booth of Lamson Brothers & Co., who returned Saturday from northwestern Iowa, said that section appeared to have a good crop and he found considerable grain in open cribs.

Iowa Farmers Hold Corn.

Farmers were holding this grain from market although they were unable to obtain loans from the government on it, he said. However, considerable grain in sealed cribs will be used as security for loans which permit the producer to hold the open crib grain.

Dust storms of unusual severity were reported Saturday in South Dakota and served to call attention to the unusually dry soil over at least 7 large wheat producing states.

Winnipeg wheat closed 1 to 1⅛ cents lower in Canadian funds, while Liverpool was ¼ cent higher to ⅛ cent lower. Trade in the latter market was extremely slow.

DENIES THAT RFC SUGGESTED M.K.T. FRISCO MERGER

New York, Nov. 25.—(AP)—A. A. Berle, railroad adviser of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, today denied reports that the RFC had proposed joining the St. Louis-San Francisco railroad with the Missouri-Kansas-Texas.

The reports, he said, had apparently arisen from a misinterpretation of a 200 page report presented by RFC statisticians to the corporation and other creditors of the road.

"So far as I am aware," said Berle, "the Reconstruction Finance corporation has never proposed any merger or favored any merger for any road.

"When a railroad goes into bankruptcy or receivership suggestions are made from all sides by various parties who have plans to propose. The Frisco is no exception. Suggestions have been made from various quarters of all degrees of responsibility for merger with the Rock Island, the M-K-T, Southern Pacific, Atchison and, in fact, any railroad in the vicinity.

"The RFC has taken the position that all of these, in justice to the investors in the railroad, should be thoroughly explored."

PASSENGER RATES CUT BY NORFOLK AND WESTERN

Roanoke, Va., Nov. 25.—(AP)—The Norfolk and Western fell in line with other southern railroads today by announcing a reduction in the base rate of passenger coach fares and Pullman charges and the elimination of the Pullman surcharge effective Dec. 1.

The new Norfolk and Western rates were fixed at two cents a mile in coaches and compares with the old rates of 3.6 cents per mile, a reduction to three cents per mile in Pullman fares and elimination of the surcharge. Some runs are exempted in the order.

COTTON CLOSES LOWER AFTER STRONG OPENING

Highest prices of cotton were made at the opening and lowest around the close yesterday. Trading was not heavy at any time, and while offerings were not pressing, the buying power was affected by the stock and grain market and by the disposition of the trade in general to go slow.

Liquidation of December contracts was limited and trade gave more attention to the deferred deliveries. A large part of the business was evening up for the week.

At the close cotton futures in Chicago were 6 points lower, and in other markets 3 to 7 points lower. Spots in New York were unchanged at 10.10 cents, with New Orleans 5 points lower at 9.85 cents, Galveston and Houston 5 points off at 9.80 cents. Prices:

BUTTER ADVANCES AGAIN; EGG FUTURES CLOSE FIRM

Butter futures gained again on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, closing ⅝@½c higher. Eggs were unchanged to ¼c higher.

Butter statistics improved somewhat, the four markets taking out 160,000 pounds less than last year. Withdrawals in Chicago were heavy, which gave rise to a belief that the Dairy Marketing corporation was beginning to move its accumulations.

Eggs opened firm, new buyers entering, but the market dropped back as selling continued fairly broad. Covering was active. The four markets took out 14,000 cases more eggs than last year, and receipts were light.

Sales: Butter, 46 cars; eggs, 109 cars. Deliveries: Eggs, 15 cars. Prices follow:

GRAIN TRADERS

Send for our bulletin of November 27 which shows $1.74⅝ a bushel on all grain trades showing a profit since April 10 of this year. Since April 10, our total losses on all trades showing a loss were only 14⅝ cents. This bulletin, which also gives the probable price range for wheat for the next four months, is free for the asking.

We trade for our own account on every recommendation we make and publish a photostatic copy of broker's invoices in our next bulletin after trade is completed. We have done this for the past six years.

Profitable Grain Trading, a new book of 256 pages with 60 charts, is just off the press. Price $3.50.

EXPECT WORLD WHEAT EXPORT QUOTAS TO STAND

Delegates to Conference Gather in London.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The belief that international wheat export quotas set by leading producers last summer are definitely fixed and will undergo no change at meetings next week of the world wheat advisory committee was expressed tonight in American delegation quarters.

"Of course nobody is satisfied," said one American, "the United States certainly is no more pleased than any other nation with 200,000,000 bushels of wheat on hand and an export limit of only 47,000,000 bushels, but sacrifices must be made all around."

Efforts will be renewed, it was indicated, to bring soviet Russia into the world agreement under which the powers set 560,000,000 bushels as the tentative figure for wheat exports.

Consider Crop Changes.

In their review of market and crop developments since their meeting two months ago members of the committee will consider changes in crop prospects in the southern hemisphere, Russia's continued refusal to enter the pact because of an insufficient allotment, and Premier Mussolini's recent decree banning wheat imports and providing that millers use only Italian domestic supplies.

These changes in the situation were seen as complications in the problem of holding down exports and thereby maintaining a certain price level for the grain.

A possibility was foreseen that Argentina might seek an increased allotment, but Canadian and American delegates were represented as believing changes in the agreed limits might be harmful.

Smaller Crop May Help.

It was said that the situation in Australia, where wheat estimates have now been reduced to 165,000,000 bushels might have eased the situation, although an improvement in the Argentine crop was held to offset this probable advantage.

It was recalled that Frederick E. Murphy of Minneapolis, an American representative in the international parleys last summer, said the negotiations were based on a prospective Australian crop of 174,000,000 bushels.

Delegates questioned today declined to express a view as to whether the export agreements could work without the soviet union's adherence.

Under the plan drawn up at the world economic conference Russia would have been permitted to export 37,000,000 bushels, but that project and a conditional offer increasing the Russian allotment 22 per cent if world demand justified going beyond the 560,000,000-bushel limit were rejected.

It was agreed then that the United States and Canada would share any possible extension in the world quota.

It was expected that the committee will be summoned to meet here regularly every two months.

LIVE STOCK MEN LOSE FIGHT ON FREIGHT CHARGE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 25.—(AP)—The Interstate Commerce commission today dismissed the complaint of the Chicago Live Stock Exchange against rates charged by several railroads for shipments of live stock from the Chicago yards to points west of the Mississippi river and destinations in Wisconsin and Illinois.

The rates consisted of the regular rates prescribed in the famous "live stock case" which became effective Jan. 25, 1932, plus a separate charge of $2.70 per car.

It was the separate $2.70 charge which was particularly assailed. The commission found this charge had been assessed since 1894.

LARD PRICES PUSHED DOWN BY SCATTERED LIQUIDATION

Scattered liquidation in lard, particularly in the near deliveries, pushed prices down yesterday. The close was around the lowest, with net losses on nearby deliveries of 15 to 17½ cents and on the more deferred of 5 to 17½ cents.

Cash lard prices were lower, with a fair trade at 5.05 cents for regular, a drop of 20 cents; loose, also off 20 cents to 5.00 cents, and leaf, off 12½ cents to 4.87½ cents. Liverpool was 1 shilling up on spots and 9 pence higher on January.

Bellies futures trade was dull and closed 7½ to 12½ cents lower. Cash lots were 30 cents lower at 5.50 cents. Pork loins were easy at 6½ to 8 cents.

There were exports of 777,300 pounds of lard and 116,500 pounds of bacon.

Packing in Chicago since Nov. 1 aggregated 607,000 hogs, compared with 460,000 for the same time last year. Prices follow:

HOGS SAG AGAIN WHEN PACKERS BUY SPARINGLY

Top Sale Falls to $3.95; Cattle Rally.

Hog prices again sagged below the $4 line yesterday, when large local packers bought sparingly of the small receipts. Losses of 5 to 10 cents were registered against the high point of the early market on Friday, but the bulk sold about in line with the close that day. Top sales were down to $3.95, within 5 cents of the lowest level since April 29, and 65 cents under the top to government buyers 12 days ago.

Most of the receipts were 200 to 260 pound averages that sold at $3.90 and $3.95, the packing sows in the run going at $3.10 to $3.35. The general average was down 5 cents at $3.80.

Prices Shift Sharply.

Cattle and lamb markets during the last week fared well, but hogs have been fluctuating sharply under the influence of conflicting factors. Hog prices fell sharply early in the week, but farmers balked at selling top grades below the $4 line, and shut down on shipments after the middle of the week. There was a bulge in the market later, but this flattened out again before the close.

Packing houses are following the market cautiously, awaiting developments from the announcement recently made by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace that he intended again to become a buyer of live hogs in place of pork on contract from the packers. The scheduled increase of the processing tax to $1 per cwt. next Friday also contributed to the uncertainty.

Average Down 45 Cents.

During the latter half of the week Chicago handled only 54,400 hogs, against 99,500 the first three days. Hogs during the week averaged $3.90, showing 45 cents decline from a week earlier. Only one week has had a lower average since the middle of April. Low eastern demand and the stagnant condition of the wholesale pork trade were the outstanding bearish factors.

The cattle market closed yesterday at the highest point in two weeks, and, for the most part, 50 cents above the close of the preceding week's demoralized trade. Some of the heavy steers that touched the lowest price level for this century a week ago were up as much as 75 cents in places. Cows advanced 35 to 50 cents. Canner cattle, the kind the government beef contracts call for, gained 50 cents. Calves recovered 50 cents.

Cattle Receipts Off 34 Per Cent.

The rally was attributed entirely to the influence of receipts. Offerings dropped 34 per cent, the decrease from a week ago representing a fall of 16,550,000 pounds. Total arrivals were within 4,000 of the smallest weekly run since March. So far this year the increase in the tonnage of beef handled in federally inspected packing plants amounts to about 13 per cent.

The improvement in conditions in the cattle alleys spread to the stocker and feeder division, which has been a lifeless section of the yards for a time.

The lamb market yesterday closed around $7.25 for top kinds, or 10 cents above the final trade of the preceding week. At the high point on Thursday the top grades at $7.50 stood highest since Nov. 8 and highest for November in three years. The week's average advanced 30 cents to $6.70, showing 21 per cent gain over a year ago and 15 per cent gain over two years ago.

Dressed lamb carcasses are worth a little less than they were at this time last year, but the sharply higher level of the wool market warrants the price paid for the live lamb, according to buyers. Wool at current price levels comprises about 35 per cent of the lamb price.

WOOL PRICES

The Boston wool market was again quite active during the last week and prices on the principal lines of domestic wools were very firm to higher than in the previous week. Demand was strong on 58s, 60s, half blood and finer quality wools. On lower grades, the call was rather scattered, but prices tended higher. Some spot foreign wools were bought for re-export at prices higher than domestic manufacturers were willing to pay but materially lower than prices at which similar wools could be imported.

FARMERS SAY THEY PAY HOG PROCESSING TAX

Assert Consumer Does Not Absorb It.

Who pays the processing tax on hogs and pork? Under present arrangements the government collects the tax from the packers. By distributing it over the various cuts of pork the packers were to pass the burden on to the consumer through a rise in the price of the meat. Farmers complain, however, that the packers, finding the consumer unable or unwilling to shoulder this new tax, have put it back on the hog raisers.

Farmers say they now are indirectly footing the entire bill for the cut production program through a decline in the market for their swine the equivalent to the tax levied by the government. They call attention to the actions of the hog market since the tax was levied to substantiate their claim.

Here's How Some Object.

Here is how some are objecting to the tax: "What is the good of the program to reduce production if the farmer is to take money out of one pocket and put it into the other?"

An Illinois farmer says: "By taxing the hogs $2 per cwt. after Feb. 1 the government is taking away from the farmer through the hog market a sum equal to what he intends to pay him for signing a contract to reduce his crop. We know that the consumers are supposed to be paying this tax, but they are not doing so."

"There is every evidence that the hog market is not able to stand the tax imposed by the government," according to another farmer, who operates 600 acres of land in Dubuque county, Ia. "The consumer is not in a position to eat much pork unless it is cheap, particularly when beef and many other foods are so low. It seems that the only alternative now is to peg prices within reason for a few months. Farmers, I believe, as a whole, are not in favor of fixed prices for their live stock, but it is better that way than being taxed to death."

Gives Concrete Example.

Another Illinois producer says: "Whoever thinks the hog raiser is not paying the tax on hogs through a lower price is fooling himself. I sold my prime 273 pound butcher hogs from pure bred stock at $4 last week, the top of the market on the day they were marketed. These hogs would have brought $5 just prior to the announcement of the tax on hogs and pork. As for signing the contracts to reduce our corn and hog production, we would be fools if we refused. It is the only way we have of getting back some of our tax money that the packers are taking out of the hog market to pay over to the government. No matter whether we sign or not, we stand the expense of it through our market for hogs.

"Many in our section of the state are wondering how the government will obtain the additional funds when it is realized that the hog trade cannot hold up under the tax. It broke badly when taxed 50 cents. What will happen to our market when the tax reaches $2?"

NEW DODGE SIX

NEARLY HALF OF CHICAGO STREET SIGNS MISSING

Motor Club Suggests Names on Curbs.

Street names are missing from 7,200 of the 18,000 street intersections in Chicago. Natives as well as visitors not infrequently find themselves lost in unfamiliar neighborhoods. Messengers and delivery men are working under handicaps.

Existing street signs are not the best, but they are better than none. But even these little names on old iron plates too high to be read from an automobile are fast disappearing and are not being replaced.

Commissioner of Public Works Hewitt last week said he was hoping that federal easy money might be used to label hundreds of miles of thoroughfares and byways in the city. However, he is not optimistic about the outcome of this appeal for government aid because a large portion of the expense would be for materials rather than for wages.

Study Two Suggestions.

"We have two suggestions we're studying," said the commissioner. "One is to erect wooden signs on the corners. The other is to paint the names on curbs at intersections. I believe we could get the labor from the government unemployment relief fund, but I don't know where we could get the money for the materials. Even for the paint, the cost outside of the labor is considerable, since the men would have to be furnished with stencils."

The Chicago Motor club urges that the council set aside from $50,000 to $75,000 in the 1934 city budget to provide for street signs. This would be sufficient to label the main thoroughfares.

Last winter, $50,000 for this purpose was appropriated from the wheel tax. Col. A. A. Sprague, then commissioner of public works, appointed a committee to make recommendations on types of signs. The recommendations were made but the signs were not erected. The money reverted to the wheel tax fund.

$40 Per Corner.

For the loop and for other major business districts the committee favored a four sided sign with the name painted on panels of glass illuminated from the rear by street lamps. These were priced at $20 a set, making $40 the cost of labeling one intersection with two of these sets.

For residential neighborhoods, the committee favored a metal name plate. Using two of these at each intersection would cost $25 per intersection.

"Some more economical method of labeling our streets should be adopted until we can afford the more expensive equipment," said Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club. "I believe that paint on the curbs is the answer. Large letters on the vertical side of the curb can be read by motorists even at night because they are low where the headlights would strike them.

"To use the metal plates on 7,000 intersections would cost $175,000. This is lots of money to take from the wheel tax. After all, motorists are not the sole beneficiaries of street signs."

NEWS AND VIEWS

The 1934 line of General Motors will employ individual spring suspension of the front wheels. The announcement was made last week in New York by Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of the corporation.

The present front axle and spring assembly will be absent from the new cars. Each front wheel will have it own mounting and spring. This will reduce the tilt to the front end of the automobile when one wheel rides over a bump or hole.

Engineers have been developing this improvement for several years and its introduction on the 1934 models was not a surprise to those in the industry. Mr. Sloan said the new front wheel assembly has been under test in the General Motors research laboratory and on the proving grounds for two years.

Maj. Alexander P. De Seversky, noted aeronautical engineer and designer, has been employed as consulting engineer for the De Soto Motor corporation, according to announcement today by Byron C. Foy, president.

Appointment of O. L. Arnold as Chicago regional manager and O. L. Waller as Chicago zone manager for Pontiac was announced last week from Detroit by General Sales Manager A. W. L. Gilpin.

Mr. Arnold comes to the Pontiac organization from the B. O. P. Sales company, where he was regional manager of the western region with headquarters at Detroit. Mr. Waller also comes from the B. O. P. Sales company, having been Minneapolis zone manager.

The latest Dodge Brothers sales report issued by A. van Der Zee, general sales manager, shows that his dealers' retail sales for the week ending Nov. 11 amounted to 3,512 passenger cars and trucks, an increase of 514 per cent over business recorded for the corresponding 1932 week.

Studebaker announces the appointment of a new dealer in Highland Park—Mather, Inc., 386 Park avenue. Mr. Mather was formerly connected with Studebaker Sales company of Chicago.

Several important changes in executive personnel have just been announced by the Willard Storage Battery company of Cleveland. C. H. Gibney, who has occupied the office of controller and assistant treasurer for a number of years, has been elected vice president and secretary.

Harry G. English, who came to the Willard credit department in 1918, succeeds Mr. Gibney as assistant treasurer. Harley A. Gardner has been recalled from South Africa, where he has been doing special work for Willard, to become assistant credit manager.

Operations in the Kenosha plant of the Nash Motors company were resumed last week. C. W. Nash, chairman of the board, announced that the departmental dispute which caused the closing of the factory Nov. 9 and the layoff of more than 3,000 men, has been settled to the satisfaction of all concerned. The company will proceed at once, he said, with its 1934 motor car program, which early this month had doubled the employment in Nash factories in Wisconsin.

Mr. Nash's announcement was indorsed by Dr. John A. Lapp, regional chairman of the national labor advisory board, and by James Mullenbeck, federal mediators, who have been helping with the negotiations between the company and its employés.

DETROIT PROVES RIGHT TURN ON RED LIGHT O.K.

Has Lower Death Rate than Chicago.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 25.—In this motorized center of the automobile manufacturing industry traffic is expedited by an ordinance that permits a right turn against a red light after coming to a stop.

Chicago traffic doesn't enjoy the convenience of this maneuver because the city's engineers envision this right turn against the red light as a death trap for pedestrians. But experience here indicates that the forebodings of Chicago's experts are without foundation.

"The red light should mean stop and nothing but stop," Leslie Sorenson, engineer for the Chicago department of public works, recently replied to a suggestion that Chicago might adopt the turn regulation used in New York as well as Detroit. "To make the turn into a flow of cross-traffic, intersections should be equipped with a special light, a green arrow pointing to the right when the red is aglow."

Others Against Plan.

He waved aside as inconsequential the fact that his rule for red is violated by markers on safety islands, street car loading platforms, and even by tail lights of automobiles.

"We'd kill too many pedestrians," Capt. David Flynn, head of the Chicago police traffic division, greeted the suggestion.

"Without special lights to authorize the movement," said George Barton, traffic engineer for the Chicago Motor club, "there would be a serious increase in the motor toll."

The statistics in Detroit, where the right turn against the red is operated without any special equipment, contradicts this Chicago school of traffic engineering. With more automobiles per population, Detroit has less motor fatalities per population than does Chicago.

With a population of 1,600,000, Detroit has one automobile for every four and a half persons, while Chicago, with 3,375,000 population, has one car for every six and a half persons. Yet the traffic fatalities for the first nine months of 1933 in Detroit were 15.8 per 100,000 population as compared with Chicago's 21.3. This would indicate that driving and walking across streets is considerably more dangerous in Chicago than it is in Detroit.

More Fatalities on Green.

"A couple of years ago," said Inspector Edward A. Mitte, head of the Detroit police traffic division, "there was some agitation to abandon the right turn on the red light because it did not conform with the Hoover code for uniform traffic regulations. So we compiled some statistics on the facts.

"We found that more pedestrians were killed and injured by cars turning right on the green light than there were by cars turning right on the red light. We found that it was more dangerous to turn right on the green, allowing generously for the fact that more cars get around the corner on the green.

"No matter when the motorist makes the turn he must cross two pedestrian paths. If he turns on the green it will be at a higher speed because he has not made a preliminary stop. Furthermore, in turning on the green the motorist is approaching from the rear the pedestrian who has been waiting at the curb to get the light to cross.

Increase Traffic Capacities.

"The right turn on the red also increases the traffic capacity of our intersections. The crowd of cars held at an intersection awaiting a green light doesn't include those that are about to turn right."

A tour of Detroit in THE TRIBUNE roadster indicated that the right turn on the red is not the only factor responsible for this city's accident record being lower than Chicago's. There are more wide streets and fewer pavements with dangerous chuck holes. Furthermore, Detroit has more miles of "progress" signal lights, stop and go signals arranged to maintain traffic at a uniform speed such as the system in operation in La Salle street and to be installed in Michigan avenue this winter.

In making the right turn against the red the driver waits for an opening in the cross-flow of traffic. The drivers moving with the green light have the right of way. The maneuver is similar to turning right from a side street into a boulevard with stop signs.

Used on Some Streets.

In Chicago the right turn against the red is operated with legal authority at several places and without legal authority in a few places. In Sheridan road north of Devon avenue an ordinance of the north shore park district permits the movement, but there are few motorists aware of the ordinance and there are no signs to advise them.

Westbound traffic in Monroe street turns north into Michigan avenue against either light. Westbound traffic in Devon avenue turns north into McCormick road on an auxiliary green arrow light such as City Traffic Engineer Sorenson recommends. A similar light is to be installed for east bound Foster avenue traffic at Sheridan road.

"From my observations in Chicago," said Inspector Mitte, "the right turn on the red would operate effectively there except at places with extra heavy pedestrian movements, such as in the loop. In Woodward avenue, here in Detroit, there are too many shoppers to permit turns either with the green or the red. A heavy pedestrian movement prohibits right turns on the green just as much as it prohibits right turns on the red."

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

TOOTS TRIBUNE HORN.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—Your review in yesterday's paper of the leadership taken by THE TRIBUNE in the fight against prohibition reminds me that you might also toot your horn for your campaigns in behalf of the motorists.

Outstanding among these is your many years of fight for elevated highways about to be realized. Latest reports indicate that your campaign for a progressive traffic light system in Michigan avenue is about to be another success. We already have the widened arterial highways in the country as the result of your editorial effort. R. R. RENIFF.

UP TO OFFICIALS.

Chicago, Nov. 22.—As the elevated highway proposal now stands, the motorists will enjoy this improvement IF—and it's a big if—if Gov. Horner, Mayor Kelly and President Whealan of the county board will give their honest support to the project.

The public officials will need the united support of the motorists if they are to carry out the program because there will be a lot of petty politicians seeking to divert the money to pet local improvements of special benefit to their patrons. R. N. F.

LINCOLN, BELMONT AND ASHLAND.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—In your issue of Nov. 5 you ran a story headed "Lincoln-Belmont-Ashland Corner Unsafe."

As a merchant in that district I consider this article exceedingly unfair, since investigation proves it to be an exaggeration and because it is hardly right to run down a district arbitrarily when there are so many others in which you can find worse traffic conditions.

I know it to be a fact that the traffic system we have on the Lincoln-Belmont-Ashland corner now has been installed after a great deal of expert consideration, and, although some minor improvements could be made, the system we have now is the best since Ashland avenue was widened. C. W. HAAKE.

CERTIFICATE OF TITLE.

Glen Ellyn, Ill., Nov. 16.—In reading THE TRIBUNE I noticed that the legislature has found another method of extracting money from the already overtaxed automobile owner.

For but 50 cents, in addition to the state automobile license fee for 1934, Secretary of State Hughes is going to send us a "certificate of title." This will prove to all interested that the automobile we drive really belongs to us. It sounds a bit silly that after driving one car, bought and registered in this state for five consecutive years, we must now contribute this extra sum "to halt organized theft of automobiles."

It seems to me that if the state is so deeply interested in preventing these thefts and "lowering automobile insurance," they could easily render this service to the state's million and a half car owners without plastering us further. HARRY GOELZ.

CALIFORNIA LICENSES.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—I cannot understand why thousands of Chicago residents are allowed to get by with a $3 California automobile license in this city.

In justice to honest motorists, I think that at this time there should be a comprehensive check-up on all cars bearing a California or Indiana license, and all those found to be used illegitimately be ordered to obtain their 1934 license from the state in which they reside. R. E. LARSON.

DEAD SIGNAL LIGHT.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—The orange light in the stop light located at the southeast corner of 26th and Crawford avenue has not been operating for over a month.

I called this to the attention of an officer about two weeks ago but nothing has been done about it. I would appreciate THE TRIBUNE using its influence in correcting this dangerous condition. W. D. MALCOLM.

FOODS BUYING LIMITED.

Current buying of canned foods is for immediate needs, as prices for future shipments have not been named yet in many items. It is reported that California canners have disposed of their entire carry over from last year, and more than one-half of the 1933 pack.

WOODLAWNBANK HOPES TO PAY ABOUT 35 PCT.

Early Dividend Held Unlikely.

[This is the 13th of a series of articles analyzing the condition of closed banks on the south side with a view toward furnishing depositors with information on which to base their hopes of dividends.]

BY HERBERT VEDDER.

Heavy with dubious securities and slow real estate, assets of the Woodlawn Trust and Savings bank receivership offer no hope of an early dividend without aid from the federal government or "slaughtering" stock and bond resources by selling them at an average of 30 cents on the dollar.

Receiver H. C. Vernon is not willing to resort to the latter alternative. Nor does he believe the 20,000 depositors would favor such a move in order to obtain a dividend of but 10 per cent, when there is a prospect of definitely appreciated value by holding the securities. When or how much cash may be released through government help cannot be prophesied.

35 Per Cent Eventually.

Although the outlook is anything but good for payment of the bulk of the $2,000,000 owed depositors, an analysis indicates that it is not unreasonable to expect an ultimate return of 35 per cent. The figure might reach 50 cents on the dollar, with luck in the course of liquidation, but it is difficult to see how it can possibly be more. Involved holdings and variable factors in business render appraisals liable to serious error, but the succeeding analysis will show the basis for this estimate.

All efforts of the receiver since the bank closed, June 22, 1932, have been directed toward paying bills and claims given a preferred status. Obligations totaling $800,000 have been wiped out. Expenses have been $82,716.50, almost balanced by an income of $78,319.61 aside from liquidation of assets. Total receipts are $895,000 as of Sept. 30, with $12,819.95 in cash remaining.

Sale Increases Cost.

Sale of collateral on a half million dollar loan by the Continental Illinois National bank at the time of the Woodlawn bank's closing, accounts for $205,000 of the $250,000 loss in conversion of assets to cash to date. Even so, an obligation of $211,000 remained to be paid. Other debts paid by Mr. Vernon: $80,000 to the RFC, $86,000 to the federal reserve bank on deposits and rediscounts, $75,000 to the state treasurer, $36,000 to sinking fund accounts, $80,000 to trust accounts, $53,000 return of prepayments on security sales, and $33,500 to other preferred claims. In addition to this $655,000, another $144,000 has been paid to collections.

The one obligation outstanding is a debt of $449,889.95 to the United States postal savings bank. This, however, is secured by United States and municipal bonds held in Washington and valued at $474,923.28 on the books of the Woodlawn institution.

Remaining in the stock and bond account of $1,284,735.39 [book value] are bonds carried at $741,499.15 and stocks at $67,000.

Market Value $265,000.

The present market value of the former is approximately $240,000, while the stocks may be worth something less than $25,000. Dumping these sucurities now would net enough for a 12½ per cent dividend, but hope is held that these may appreciate as much as half their present value, despite a number of debenture bonds [a company's unsecured notes.]

The receivership has notes aggregating $357,072.05. Mr. Vernon expects little more than $5,000 in the next few weeks, although he lists $120,000 as "good, but slow." Notes valued at $66,000 are in the hands of attorneys for collection, but not more than $10,000 is expected from this source. If this $130,000 is realized, it will mean 6 per cent to depositors. Of the remaining notes $98,000 are classed as doubtful and $69,300 as worthless.

There is $298,549.18 in real estate mortgages. These are on city property, most of it improved, and all would pay out in a normal market, according to Mr. Vernon.

Most Realty in Default.

Real estate bonds, many of them "repurchases" from customers, are carried at $581.537.88. Generally speaking, all are in default. A bondholders' committee is working on reorganizations, but is meeting with difficulties in the new securities act which considers reorganizations in the same light as new issues. The bonds are on the larger sort of buildings, in contrast with the bungalows and small flats represented by mortgage holdings, and are less marketable.

Reducing the foregoing analysis to cold figures, which are approximate at best, one sees an estimated collection of between $750,000 and $1,100,000. Deposits liabilities are slightly more than $2,000,000, and there will be receivership expenses to reduce the net value of liquidation to the depositors. It would seem from this that 35 per cent is a reasonable dividend expectation—that 50 cents on the dollar is an outside high figure unless there is a real estate boom or collection on doubtful assets, or both.

"Pageant of Brides" Reveals Wedding Gowns of Six Decades

Romances and weddings of bygone years will be relived Friday evvening in a "Pageant of Brides" to be presented at the Woodlawn Park Methodist Episcopal church, 64th street and Woodlawn avenue. More than forty wedding gowns, several more than half a century old, will be modeled. The church will be specially decorated and given the atmosphere of a formal evening wedding. Above are a few of the treasures uncovered in old trunks and attic corners of Woodlawn. In the center is Miss Evelyn Gilbert dressed in a bridal gown of 1872. Left to right: Mrs. Helen Jackson (1915), Mrs. J. W. Hopkinson (1884), Miss Katherine Mottier (1905), Miss Gilbert, Mrs. Winfield Elliott (1933), Mrs. F. J. Zavodil (1880), and Mrs. Merritt Parkinson (1932).

ST. FELICITAS OPENS 5 DAY BENEFIT FETE

A charity event, the first annual "roundup" opened last night at St. Felicitas church, 83d street and Blackstone avenue, and will continue every evening through Wednesday. Each day has a special designation, and this evening is "Celebrity night," when stage and screen actors are to appear. "Rube Appleberry" of W-G-N also is to be on hand this evening.

C. M. LABBE.

Sports night will be celebrated tomorrow, when radio announcers, members of the Chicago Bears and Cardinals, and a number of baseball stars are to appear. Among the latter who have accepted invitations are Guy Bush, Gabby Hartnett, Ray Schalk, Fred Lindstrom, Oscar Melillo, Joe Benz, Jimmy Archer, and Jack Quinn.

Clarence M. Labbe is general chairman. Those on his committee are Harry P. Farrell, the Rev. George Parker, Emmett Mackey, Peter Mackey, Joseph Zacharias, George Kruger, James Bowe, Charles McBride, Representative Ryan and Pat Kelly.

OUR TOWN

PARAGRAPHS ABOUT FOLKS YOU KNOW

TWO south side boys are looking forward to playing football before President Roosevelt Friday when Georgia Military academy of College Park, Ga., meets the Warm Springs [Ga.] High school eleven. John J. D'Arcy Jr., 7825 Langley avenue, and Robert Randall, 7410 Rhodes avenue, are the lads. Both are linemen for the cadets who will be playing their second game in two days—Lanier High school being scheduled for Thursday. The President has said he plans to see the game Friday.

* *

Hearty congratulations to Mrs. Lisette Petrie, who passed her 90th milestone Friday. She has lived in West Pullman since 1893 and her home is at 12142 Parnell avenue. Four of her eight children are living, and there are 14 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren. A daughter, when asked about Mrs. Petrie's health, burst forth, "O, marvelous!"

* *

JUDGE PHILIP L. SULLIVAN, elevated to the federal courts, was the speaker of the south shore affair. Afterward, he sounded a note which all Our Towners might well remember. Though interested in "cleaning up a lot of matters," he warned that there will be much work to be done by the courts long after he is gone, that fighting crime must be a permanent campaign of all citizens.

* *

Jean Fairbanks, 5436 Hyde Park boulevard, is making a mark for herself in her first year at National Park seminary, Forest Glen, Md. Her sorority, Alpha Epsilon Pi, selected her as one of its two junior ushers in the guard of honor at formal senior functions during the year. Jean also played in a recent hockey tournament.

ALWAYS the model genial and affable host, John G. Rietz, 7936 Indiana avenue, confessed he was not at his best last Saturday night at the sumptuous party during which he was installed president of the Chatham Lions club. Sorry, we can't agree that he was deficient. But John confessed that it bothered him not to know every one at the affair by name. It seems he gave a lawn party last summer for the club members and guests—and knew every one of the more than 80 persons on hand. John is the sort of man we need more of—loyal, possessed of natural, genuine neighborliness and interest in his fellow men. Perhaps that's why the Lions now have 60 members,

* *

Frolicking with the Chatham Lions at their recent party were Bill Donne and his charming blonde wife. Bill has been kept close to his desk ever since being appointed Home Owners Loan corporation manager for Illinois. All work and no play is bad business—and Bill said it was just about his first night off. Many's the time the Missus has driven downtown after midnight to pick him up from work.

* *

YES, we must confess to a bit of laboratory work. These parties are perfect occasions to renew old business acquaintances and pick up new ones, not to mention the good times. In this connection, the South Shore Chamber of Commerce deserves a gold medal for its recent fall dinner dance. It is hard to remember a nicer, more informal time than that staged by President E. J. Ryan, Floyd Phillips, and their aids.

* *

A rose to Albert Pahnke! The genial aluminum man of 8015 Oglesby avenue, is the finest dancer we have seen among middle aged men—and he could give some of the young bucks a lot of "pointers." Cheering from the side lines was his sweet wife when he was drafted as a dancing partner by one of the entertainers. Nor can we omit mention of Art and Helen Clemensen, with their usual blossoms, and more charming than ever—if possible.

FATHERS, SONS TO BE FETED AT CHURCH BANQUET

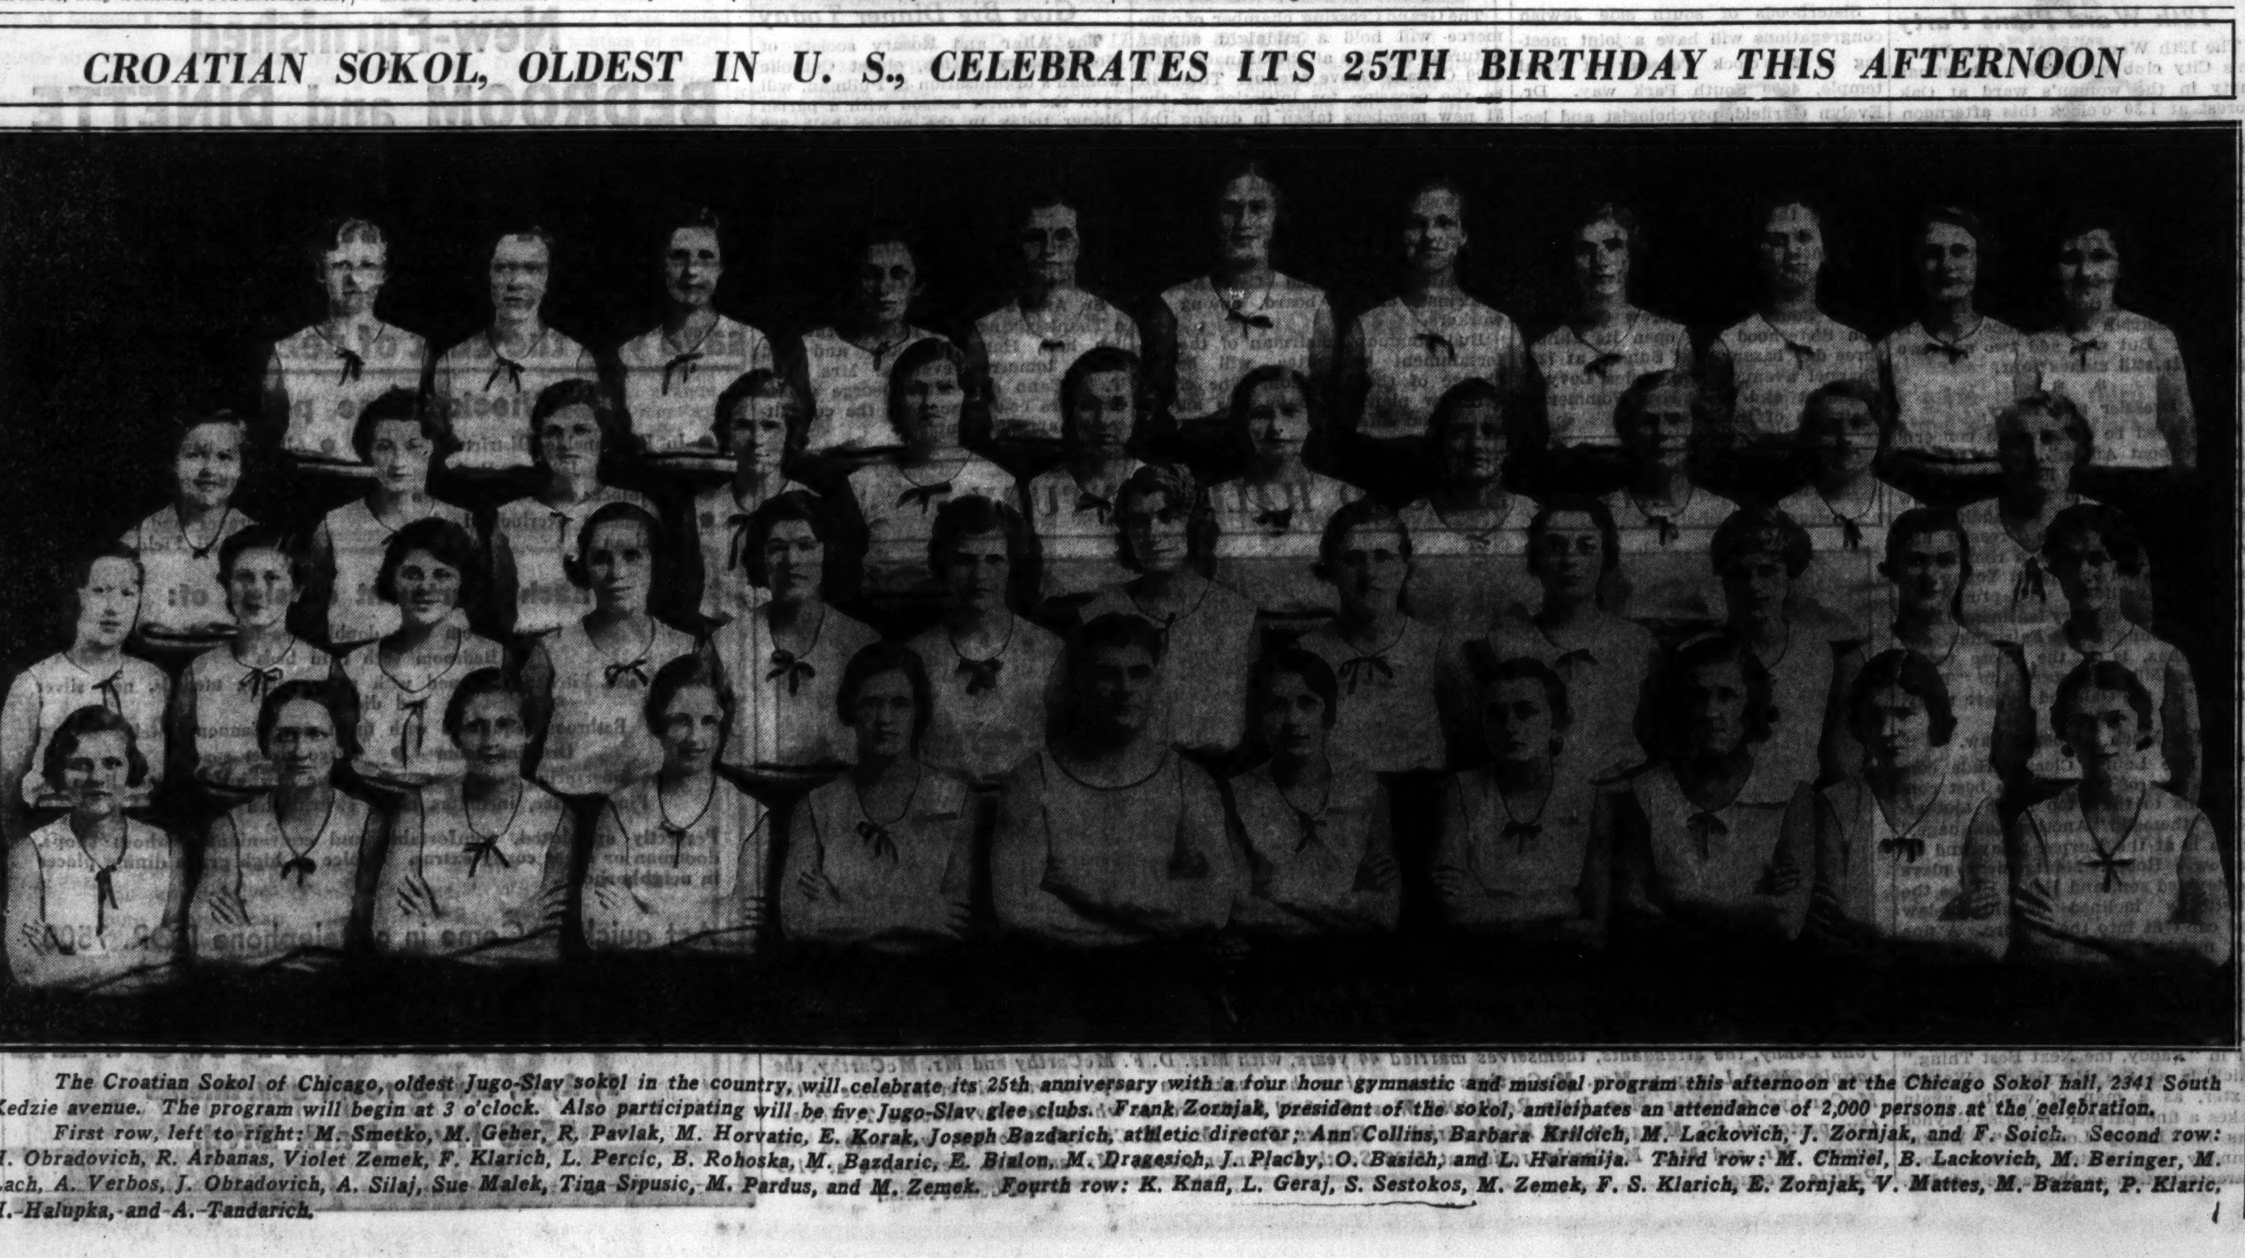
Fathers and sons of Nazareth Evangelical Lutheran church, 5945 South Spaulding avenue will be feted at the annual banquet given in compliment to them next Tuesday evening by the Nazareth Lutheran Men's club.

THE REV. HERBERT KOHN.

Johnny O'Hara, baseball broadcaster will talk on "Sidelights of Big League Ball Players," and Prof. Walter E. Bauer of Valparaiso university also will speak. Entertainment will be furnished by several comedians and by the Melody boys of station WWAE.

The Rev. Herbert Kohn, pastor, is working on arrangements.

CROATIAN SOKOL, OLDEST IN U. S., CELEBRATES ITS 25TH BIRTHDAY THIS AFTERNOON



The Croatian Sokol of Chicago, oldest Jugo-Slav sokol in the country, will celebrate its 25th anniversary with a four hour gymnastic and musical program this afternoon at the Chicago Sokol hall, 2341 South Kedzie avenue. The program will begin at 3 o'clock. Also participating will be five Jugo-Slav glee clubs. Frank Zornjak, president of the sokol, anticipates an attendance of 2,000 persons at the celebration.

First row, left to right: M. Smetko, M. Geher, R. Pavlak, M. Horvatic, E. Korak, Joseph Bazdarich, athletic director; Ann Collins, Barbara Krilcich, M. Lackovich, J. Zornjak, and F. Soich. Second row: H. Obradovich, R. Arbanas, Violet Zemek, F. Klarich, L. Percic, B. Rohoska, M. Bazdaric, E. Bialon, M. Dragesich, J. Plachy, O. Basich, and L. Haramija. Third row: M. Chmiel, B. Lackovich, M. Beringer, M. Lach, A. Verbos, J. Obradovich, A. Silaj, Sue Malek, Tina Sipusic, M. Pardus, and M. Zemek. Fourth row: K. Knafl, L. Geraj, S. Sestokos, M. Zemek, F. S. Klarich, E. Zornjak, V. Mattes, M. Bazant, P. Klaric, H. Halupka, and A. Tandarich.

SPECIAL MUSIC TO BE FEATURE OF CELEBRATION

Expect Attendance to Set Record.

Two of the largest religious observances of Thanksgiving on the south side will be the community services at 11 o'clock Thursday morning under the auspices of the South Shore and Hyde Park-Kenwood Church councils. Record crowds are expected.

Protestant and Jewish congregations will join hands in both services, and a precedent will be established when Temple Isaiah Israel, 5035 Greenwood avenue, is host to the Hyde Park-Kenwood worshipers. In addition to the dozen churches and the Hyde Park Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., which are members of the council, Woodlawn congregations have been invited to attend the celebration. The South Shore congregations will assemble in the Jeffery theater, with at least eight churches represented.

Dr. Gilkey to Preach.

Dr. Charles W. Gilkey, dean of the University of Chicago chapel, will preach at the Hyde Park gathering. A fifteen minute organ recital by Harry Coopersmith, assistant organist at Isaiah Israel, will precede the services. Music will be by the temple choir, including Eva Gordon Horadesky, Frida Savini, Joseph Sonnenschein, and Louis Jaconson. Dr. Douglas Horton of the United Church of Hyde Park is chairman of the program.

Cheltenham will have its second annual community observance at 10 o'clock Thursday morning in the South Shore Baptist church, Coles avenue and Cheltenham place. The Rev. Alfred E. Lindberg, pastor of the host church, will give the address. Dr. Reuben C. Teslow of Trinity Lutheran church, is training a community chorus for the service, while the devotionals will be in charge of Dr. O. J. Lundberg, pastor of South Shore Methodist Episcopal church. The offering will be for the Swedish National sanitarium in Denver, Colo.

The South Shore sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Vernon Cook, minister of the Avalon Park Community church. Music will be furnished by the South Shore Community church choir, while Chester Fisk, minister of that church, will give the invocation. President Roosevelt's Thanksgiving proclamation will be read by Dr. M. Russell Boynton of Bryn Mawr Community church.

Rabbi Fox to Take Part.

Dr. G. George Fox, rabbi of South Shore temple, will offer the prayer, while the benediction will be pronounced by the Rev. James Pennewell, new pastor of St. John's Methodist Episcopal church. Dr. John Gardner of Essex Community church will make announcements. Parkside Baptist and South Shore Presbyterian churches also will participate in the observance, while an invitation has been extended to the South Side Hebrew congregation.

Maunder's cantata, "A Song of Thanksgiving," will be presented at 5 o'clock this afternoon by the combined choirs of St. Paul's Episcopal church, 50th street and Dorchester avenue. Included will be the men's and boys' organizations and the St. Cecilia Women's choir. Charles H. Demorest, organist and choirmaster, is the director.

Robert Jacoby, boy soprano; Margaret Peck, soprano; Allene Tasker, mezzo-soprano; Marshall Batchelder, tenor, and Roy Archer, baritone, will sing solos.

ST. COLUMBANUS PARISH WILL HOLD PARTY TUESDAY

The Altar and Rosary society of St. Columbanus parish will have its 18th annual Thanksgiving party and entertainment at 8:30 o'clock Tuesday evening in the church hall, 71st street and Calumet avenue. Mrs. C. H. Connor is chairman of the committee in charge.

Linnea Aid Society Opens Clothing Relief Station

The Linnea Aid society has opened a relief station for the distribution of clothing, furniture, and other articles at 420 East 75th street. The station will be open every Tuesday and Wednesday from 10 to 4 o'clock. Mrs. Erik Johnson, 902 West 68th street, and Mrs. Jacob Malmfeldt, 6349 South Komensky avenue, are in charge. A drive for discarded clothing and household goods is being conducted by members. This is the fourth consecutive winter that the society has maintained a station for the assistance of the unemployed.

St. George's Men's Club to Serve Turkey Dinner

The Men's club of St. George's Episcopal church is sponsoring a turkey dinner Tuesday evening, Nov. 28, in St. George's church hall, 847 East 76th street. This club has established a reputation for its "men served" dinners. The committees in charge include the Rev. Charles E. Williams, rector; Charles Shattuck, Elmer Sell, Frank Bradley, Coy Casper, Willard Williamson, Edward Oehme, Chalmers Nesbitt, George Shields, Frank Jones, Jack Williams, Sherman Quinn, Frank Michaud, Charles P. Bowman, Ernest Kendall, Lester Olson, and John A. Chase.

WILLING WORKERS CLUB TO MARK 30TH BIRTHDAY

Victorian Program to Be Held Tonight.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

In the Victorian manner members of the Willing Workers Woman's club will celebrate their thirtieth birthday this evening at the Standard club. Dressed in the satins and taffetas, the plumes and brilliants of the gay nineties, they are gathering at 8:30 to dance the two step and the polka and hear a program reminiscent of that bygone day.

Ransacking trunks and old fashioned "highboys" for costumes this past week, the Willing Workers have found reminders of their 30 years of charity activity. One of the large organizations of recognized standing, the club has filled and refilled its coffers to give aid to those afflicted with tuberculosis.

Help the Sick and Needy.

One afternoon in 1903 Mrs. Pauline Kohn invited 14 of her friends to her home and suggested to them a far reaching and constructive program of philanthropy. For six years the new organization divided its attention among the crippled, the blind, the tubercular, and the poverty stricken. Then in 1909 by a unanimous vote it decided to concentrate its efforts on the care of the tubercular.

Every year this program has developed until now 40 families, representing more than 200 persons, are supplied daily with milk, eggs, and cream as advised by the Jewish Tuberculosis service. Twice a year shoes, stockings, and underwear are provided. In every case the patients and their families are taught to help themselves. Not only are they given the proper food but also the proper diet lists, hygienic sleeping quarters, and other aids to healthy living.

Care for Home Cases.

A large proportion of the Willing Workers' service is given at the Winfield sanitarium located just outside the city limits. At a cost of $28,000 the children's pavilion was added several years ago. An addition to the X-ray room equipment of the dental offices, the maintenance of a diet kitchen, and electric refrigeration are among the club's recent achievements at the sanitarium.

Visiting nurses from the social service department and dispensary care for home cases recommended to the club and doctors give frequent medical examinations. In this way many of those who otherwise would have to be given sanitarium care are brought back to health at home.

Mrs. William Sultan is the president of the Willing Workers. Chairmen of the "gay nineties" party tonight are Mrs. Edward Don and Mrs. H. E. Young.

VIENNA CHOIR IN CONCERT AT SINAI TONIGHT

The Vienna Boys' choir, now on its first American tour, will give the second concert of the new winter series at Sinai temple, 4600 South Park way, at 8:15 o'clock this evening. Founded by Emperor Maxmilian in 1498, the organization has developed continuously.

The Sinai lecture series will present R. D. Blumenfeld, English journalist, at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow. Mr. Blumenfeld will speak on "Behind the Scenes in Political Europe."

Dr. Edward N. Schoolman will talk on "Superstition and the Fear Ridden" at 8:15 o'clock Friday in his phychology lecture series at Hirsch center, 4622 South Park way.

60 House of Happiness Residents to Be Guests

Sixty boys and girls from the House of Happiness, 3052 Gratton avenue, will be guests of the Adventurer's club at a Thanksgiving party Thursday. The day's program will begin with a motion picture show at 9 o'clock that morning, with a turkey dinner at the club and games and entertainment following.

Isabellan Circle to Hold Memorial on Thanksgiving

Calumet circle No. 22, National Circle Daughters of Isabella, will hold its annual memorial mass for deceased members at 8 o'clock Thanksgiving morning at St. Anselm's church, 61st street and Michigan avenue. Miss Florence Cotter, 7821 Princeton avenue, is in charge of arrangements.

150 Help to Mark Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary

MR. AND MRS. RASMUS PETERSEN.

Surrounded by flowers Mr. and Mrs. Rasmus Petersen, 7319 Yates avenue, were recent celebrants of their golden wedding anniversary with 150 friends and relatives. Mr. Petersen is 75 years old and his wife two years younger. Both were born in Copenhagen, Denmark, and have lived in Chicago 40 years. They have seven children and sixteen grandchildren. The six daughters are Mrs. Esther Londelius, Mrs. Dagmar Alfrin, Mrs. Agnes Williams, Mrs. Ingeborg Christensen, Mrs. Valborg Gonsel, and Mrs. Olga Honsen. Iner Petersen is the one son. All but Mrs. Alfrin and Mrs. Gonsel live on the south side. Mr. Petersen has been employed at the South Shore Country club for 25 years.

HOSTESS

Mrs. Edward Don will be one of the hostesses this evening for the "gay nineties" party the Willing Workers Woman's club is to hold at the Standard club.

CITY PARKS DEPT. PLANTS 445 TREES IN WEST KENWOOD

Planting of 445 trees in the district bounded by 43d and 49th streets, Normal avenue and Halsted street, was begun on Wednesday by the city department of parks and forestry. The planting was carried out at the request of the West Kenwood Improvement association through Larry Kean, president, and Kirton Holloway, treasurer, as part of its community program. Every property owner who receives one of the trees has promised the association not only to tend the tree, but to keep his lawn and parkway in order, according to Mr. Kean. They are Chinese ash trees and are city grown. The association has appoined a captain in each block to supervise the care of the trees, Mr. Kean said.

The Grand Crossing chamber of commerce will hold a midnight supper Saturday evening at the Granada café, 6800 Cottage Grove avenue. This will be the occasion for initiation of the 51 new members taken in during the drive instituted by Milford E. Henkel when he became president in July.

Dr. A. M. Sorensen and Fred Nielsen were captains of the opposing membership teams. The Neilsen team will give the party, since it was beaten, 26-25, in the contest, despite having Mr. Henkel and Carl Adams, chairman of the board, among its workers.

Bud Singman, chairman of the entertainment committee, will be in charge of the initiation. The chamber now plans to make this supper an annual affair.

Neighborhood Theaters

An interesting detective story is at the Tower this week and at the Jeffery and Grove Wednesday and Thursday. "Bureau of Missing Persons," taken from the book, "Missing Men," was rated one of September's best by Mae Tinee. Bette Davis, the girl who reports her "husband" missing, and Pat O'Brien, a detective, are the principals. Good ones they are, and perhaps you have already guessed that romance lurks in this situation. Able support includes Lewis Stone, captain of detectives, Glenda Farrell, and Allen Jenkins. Today through Tuesday at the Jeffery and Grove is "Lady for a Day," another September best, in which May Robson and Warren William shine as stars really should.

* *

Jack Pearl at Tivoli.

Miss Modesty, Jack Pearl, is prevaricating over the Tivoli screen this week in "Meet the Baron." The not-so-hot story is that of a cleaning and pressing man who is mistaken for the Baron Munchhausen. Lest there be any false impressions, it should be known that Henry Kolker and not Pearl is the real baron. Jimmy Durante, Zazu Pitts, Ted Healy, Edna May Oliver, and Ben Bard [Sharlie] support the star.

* *

Connie Sings and Dances.

Constance Bennett sings and dances with eclat—and, generally speaking, is more lovely than ever before—in "After Tonight" which is at the Avalon this week. This is a spy picture of war days, and the blonde star is a Russian secret service agent, with romances between times. Gilbert Roland, of the Austrian intelligence, also is romantic. But why add two and two again? It still makes four.

* *

Dressler and Beery.

Little need be added here concerning "Tugboat Annie" except to pass the word along that it will be at the Oakland Square and Shore tomorrow through Wednesday. In addition to that great pair, Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery, there is a romance of youth portrayed by Robert Young and Maureen O'Sullivan. "Captured," a war prison camp story featuring Leslie Howard, young Doug Fairbanks, and Paul Lukas, is at the Shore today. Claudette Colbert is starred in "Torch Singer" at the Oakland Square today.

* *

Too Much Mother-in-Law.

The late Louise Closser Hale contributes one of the screen's best contributions to the "too much mother-in-law" theme in "Another Language," which is at the Harper today and tomorrow. Robert Montgomery plays the devoted son, and Helen Hayes the artistically inclined daughter-in-law who can't fit into the picture. A fine cast making a fine movie of a fine play.

* *

Janet Gaynor in "Paddy."

A winsome Irish lassie is Janet Gaynor in "Paddy, the Next Best Thing," which is at the Maryland. Warner Baxter, as a man of wealth, again makes a fine partner for Miss Gaynor—as in "Daddy Longlegs." Walter Connolly contributes another good characterization as the lassie's daddy.

ENTER SECOND HALF CENTURY

A bride and groom of half a century ago and their attendants were guests at a breakfast given in celebration of their golden wedding anniversary Sunday at the Stevens hotel. Left to right, Mr. and Mrs. John Lenny, the attendants, themselves married 44 years, with Mrs. D. F. McCarthy and Mr. McCarthy, the couple. Mrs. Lenny is Mrs. McCarthy's sister. After the breakfast a reception was held at the home of the McCarthys' daughter, Mrs. Jetta Reid, 1055 West Garfield boulevard, at which the Rev. George T. McCarthy, pastor of SS. Margaret and Mary parish in Rogers Park, Mr. McCarthy's brother, was among the guests. Mr. and Mrs. McCarthy reside at 5632 South Carpenter street. Mr. and Mrs. Lenny live at 8129 Prairie avenue.

HYDE PARK JUNE SENIORS ELECT NEW OFFICERS

Havner and Miss Ivry Are Leaders.

The June graduating class of Hyde Park High school has elected Robert Havner its president and Miss Annette Ivry vice president. Havner, an athlete, has been active in the Aitchpe tripe of letter men. Miss Ivry was president of the Junior Girls' club for two semesters and now is a member of the Weekly staff. Miss Helen Smith was elected secretary and Angus Thuermer was named treasurer.

Committee chairmen of the February seniors were announced last week by Henry Pohlzen, class president. Miss Beatrice Robbins is in charge of printing and Miss Frances Protheroe is program chairman. The senior assembly will be arranged by Robert Rigg, while Miss Marguerite Katz is entertainment chairman. Stanley Kline heads the color and motto committee, with Arnold Handler the ring and pin chairman. Miss Helen Faems is gift chairman.

Schiff Speaking Chairman.

Members of the speaking committee, which for several years has been a liasson group to tell the community of the scope of school courses and outside activities, also were named last week. Max Schiff is the chairman.

The speakers and their fields: Miss Aureola Stevens, dramatics; Miss Beatrice Robbins, the Weekly; Fred Gross, Sigma Epsilon honor society; Ambrose Richardson, annual; Angus Thuermer, R. O. T. C.; Henry Pohlson, senior sponsors; Miss Belle Schlager, clubs, and George Halcrow, athletics.

Student support assured in a referendum vote, the school annual will be published as usual this year, despite certain doubts arising out of questions as to the effect of the economy program. Work on the Aitchpe, the name of the publication, has begun, under the direction of Donald Bowman, editor, and Moses Berkman, business manager. Miss Mary L. Leitch is faculty adviser.

Miss Bobette Wilson and Miss Betty Eckhause are co-feature editors. Ambrose Richardson, art editor, will be assisted by Bruce Hantover, Miss Beth Shorten, Miss Frances Keith, Miss Mary Robinson, Miss Matina Cunag, and Arthur Balch. Joe Marshall and Irwin Rifas will write boys' sports, while Miss Bernice Wulz will take care of girls' athletics.

Activities Chairman.

Activities will be covered by Miss Virginia Endress and Miss Edna Hogle. Classes will be handled by Miss Esther Teufel, assisted by Miss Ruth Philbrook, Miss Louise Paul, and Miss Clara Smith. Howard West is photography editor.

Pohlzon, the 4A class president, is chairman of a cleanup committee which will work toward a more orderly appearance of the halls, rooms, stairways, and grounds. Particular coöperation is being obtained from the Weekly, art classes, and English and civics teachers.

The Six Up club, boys at least six feet tall, has chosen Marvin Frank as president. Robert Harris is vice president, Harry Moses is secretary, and Mervin Levy is treasurer.

RETIRES

Miss Minnie M. Batterton, whose retirement as eighth grade teacher at Cook school after 42 years of teaching took effect Nov. 17.

TEACHER AT COOK SCHOOL WINDS UP 42 YEAR CAREER

Lincoln Friend of Her Family.

Miss Minnie Batterton, 1733 West 106th place, wound up a teaching career extending over a period of 42 years when she retired Nov. 17 as eighth grade teacher at the Cook school, 82d and Bishop streets. She had taught 14 years in schools near Springfield, Ill., and outside of Chicago before entering the Chicago system 28 years ago.

In compliment to her the Cook school faculty gave a luncheon at the school the day before her retirement. Tribute to her record was paid by C. Lauron Hooper, principal, and a wrist watch was presented to her. Members of the Parent-Teacher association under the leadership of Mrs. Andrew Graham, president, served the luncheon.

Lincoln Family Friend.

Scion of a pioneer family of Illinois, Miss Batterton was born near Springfield and went through high school there. Lincoln was her grandfather's attorney and friend and frequented the Batterton home. Mrs. Batterton's mother, who died last year at the age of 92 at her daughter's home, and who was affectionately known to the community as "Mother Batterton," spoke often of Lincoln's visits in her girlhood.

While still in her teens Miss Batterton began teaching, first in schools near Springfield, and then at Barrington. She was principal of the Kenilworth school when her opportunity to teach in Chicago came. Then she taught successively at the Drummond, Burke, Wadsworth Fiske, and Cook schools.

History Favorite Subject.

Always she taught the upper grades, and American history was her favorite subject. Although she never went to college, she took numerous extension courses in her special field.

When questioned as to her future plans, Miss Batterton hinted at authorship but refused to be specific. "If I should say something, and then not carry it out, how foolish I should feel," she explained. Her sister and her nephew live with her at her Washington Heights home.

W. F. HENDERSON NAMED CHAIRMAN OF S. W. SCOUTS

300 Leaders Attend District Dinner.

Dr. W. F. Henderson was elected chairman of the southwest district of the Chicago council of Boy Scouts at its annual meeting Tuesday evening at Ogden Park fieldhouse, 65th street and Racine avenue.

Dr. Henderson, who formerly was chairman of the Ridge community in the district, is the first chairman of the united south central and southwest districts, which were combined last summer, including the entire southwest territory, in a single district.

Dr. Henderson's election followed dinner at which more than 300 scoutleaders, representing the 100 institutions which sponsor scout troops in the district, were present. Dr. Allen D. Albert, assistant to President Dawes of A Century of Progress exposition and a member of the national council of Boy Scouts, spoke.

Other Officers Named.

Others elected were W. A. Stambach, vice chairman, and A. J. Clauter, district commissioner. Community chairmen elected include T. S. Miller, Ridge community; Andrew Metz, west end community; E. W. Weast, triparks community; G. E. Reynolds, Englewood, and the Rev. Jesse D. Hickman, McKinley Park.

Other chairmen elected were Terry R. Rose, activities committee; Charles Russell, troop organization; K. W. Jarvis, leadership training; Harvey G. Ellerd, finance; Nelson Brewer, camping; Raymond S. Blunt, publicity; Dr. A. D. Krause, cubbing.

C. R. Bond was placed in charge of sea scouting, and K. T. Wood, of courts of honor. Col. R. L. Staggs was made head of the health and safety committee. I. R. Dalleck, H. D. Freeman, the Rev. Nicholas Kramer, D. K. Penny, J. J. Hurley, R. E. Maysack, J. F. Brandt, C. M. Olsen, W. A. Holton and C. W. McCumber were made members at large.

Honor Awards to Be Made.

Honor awards will be made to Boy Scouts of the western division of the South Shore district south of 79th street at a court of review at 7:45 o'clock Tuesday evening at Palmer park, 111th street and Indiana avenue.

St. Aidan's Episcopal church of Blue Island has organized a Boy Scout troop which is number 782 of the south shore district. William T. Hanify is scoutmaster. Another new district group is troop 705 of Bethlehem Evangelical Lutheran church, of which Milton H. E. Schroeder is scoutmaster.

Grand Chapter of Theta Beta Delta Hostess Today

The Grand chapter of Theta Beta Delta sorority will be hostess to sister chapters and friends of members at a musical tea at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the red lacquer room of the Palmer house. Miss Marie Lynch, 7916 South Loomis boulevard, is chairman, assisted by Miss Lucille Ralston, 6541 South Albany avenue, and Mrs. James Hipskind of Harvey, grand president.

Lindblom Grid Mothers to Hold Party Tuesday

The Lindblom Football Mothers' club will hold a card party at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening at the Southtown ballroom, 6319 South Ashland avenue. Proceeds will go to buying members of the football team a gift. Mrs. E. G. Weimer, 5716 South Sawyer avenue, is chairman of the affair, assisted by Mrs. H. L. Haaker, 6936 South Laflin street.

HEADS BENEFIT

A card party benefit will be given for the building fund of Our Lady of Peace church at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening in the parish auditorium, 79th street and Jeffery avenue. Mrs. Walter Riley (above) is chairman. Among those assisting her are Mrs. Thomas Broderick, Mrs. W. W. Hallinan, Mrs. E. J. Donnellan, Mrs. J. W. McCarthy, and Mrs. L. J. Donegan.

FENGER TO HOLD BIG RALLY FOR PULLMAN GAME

Pep Meeting Night Before Thanksgiving.

A monster indoor pep meeting, the first such gathering in the history of the school, will be held at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening in Hill Memorial auditorium of Fenger High school. This rally is to spur the Spartans on to a victory over their traditional rivals, Pullman Tech, in the annual Thanksgiving game to be played at 11 o'clock Thursday morning on Allied athletic field.

To beat Pullman Tech would be to erase the disappointments of the 1933 season and make it a complete success. The Turkey day game is one which piques the interest of the entire south end community and arouses no end of argument, both before and after the battle.

Lindell One Speaker.

Short pep talks will be given by Coach Douglas Fessenden, Principal Frederick W. Schacht, Ald. Arthur Lindell [9th], and George Foster, teacher-sponsor of the Fenger Booster club. Music and entertainment will be furnished by the school band and glee clubs, the latter offering excerpts from the school's recent minstrel show, "Cotton Pickers."

Admission to the rally is by ticket only, tickets being distributed by the football team, Parent-Teacher association, school Hi-Y, and selected students.

Arrangements are in charge of Anne Boroian, first girl to be athletic commissioner in the mayor's cabinet; George Berger, and Louis Malnassy of the Fenger News; Coach Fessenden, and Mr. Foster.

A six page football extra was issued Thursday by the Fenger News. In addition to the regular four page publication, there were pictures and stories about members of the team. Malnassy and Berger, sports editors, and Nubar Kabian, page editor, were in charge of the extra.

Raffin New President.

Bruno Raffin, full back on the grid team, has been elected president of the 4B class. Miss Virginia Fieldhous, an honor student, is the vice president and Miss June Zaleski is treasurer. The secretary is Miss Margaret Felkamp, who has been a student office secretary at the school for two years.

Committees have been announced for the February graduates, with Jack Nelson as chairman of the cap and gown committee.

The motto committee—Stephen Gasperic, chairman, Don Sutcliffe, Harold Nelson, Miss Mildred Wall and Miss Margellan Gault.

Flower committee—Miss Marie Rosser, chairman; Frank Slivon, Rinaldo Sciacera, Miss Algenia Cathcart and Miss Ruth Johnson.

CELEBRATE GOLDEN DAY

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM E. JUNG.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Jung, 6438 South Paulina street, their five children, 11 grandchildren and a few old friends joined forces Wednesday evening to celebrate the couple's 50th wedding anniversary. A family dinner was followed by an informal reception. Both Germans by birth, they came to Chicago in their youth. Mr. Jung, who is 74 years old, before his retirement was a cabinet maker in the employ of the Rock Island railroad. Mrs. Jung is 71 years old. Their children are William, 6510 South Keating avenue; George, 6328 South Lincoln street; Edward, 6421 South Wood street; Mrs. Anna Elliott, 6438 South Paulina street, and Arthur, 2430 West 59th street.

TO BE BRIDE

Miss Geraldine Juanita Gladstone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Gladstone, 6358 South Sangamon street, will be married Saturday evening to Herbert Glenn Carroll, son of Mrs. Rose Carroll, 7615 Calumet avenue, at St. George Episcopal church, 76th street and Drexel avenue.

BETHEL CHURCH TODAY TO MARK 34TH BIRTHDAY

Choir a Feature of Both Services.

Bethel Evangelical church, 114th and State streets, will celebrate its 34th aniversary at services today. The Rev. John Goebel, pastor, will speak at this morning's service at 10:15 o'clock and at 7:30 o'clock this evening the Rev. G. A. Kienle, superintendent of the Evangelical hospital, will be the speaker.

The choir under Mrs. Margaret Springe's direction will furnish music at both services. In the morning Albert Neumann, cornetist, will be soloist, and this evening George Roetzheim will play the cello.

Invited to Reunion.

Former members of the church have received invitations to return for the celebration. Among the 500 members of the present congregation Henry Brueggemann is the only surviving charter member.

He was one of the group of 12 or 13 who first held meetings in 1899 in a hall on Michigan avenue. In two years the congregation had expanded sufficiently to finance the erection of a small brick chapel at the rear of the present church. This building is now used for Sunday school classes.

First Unit in 1905.

In 1903 a pastor's house was built next to the present church, and in 1905 the first unit of the church, a stone one story basement, was erected. The auditorium was erected in 1917, completing the Gothic brick and stone structure. Through the efforts of the Sunday school a pipe organ and later chimes were installed.

The Rev. Theodore Keltlehut was the first pastor of the church, and he was succeeded by the Rev. Mr. Goebel 28 years ago. Otto Ziebell is president of the church council. The church is the oldest of the denomination on the far south side.

Church Organist Will Give a Recital Tuesday

Fred Farrell, organist and music director at Drexel Park Presbyterian church, 64th street and Marshfield avenue, will give an organ recital at 8:15 o'clock Tuesday evening at the church. Assisting him will be the Terzetto singers, ensemble of 15 young women under Patricia Traub's direction. Carl Sommer, narrator, who will give a brief description of each number on the program before it is presented. There will be no admission charge.

UNCOVER NEW RACKET.

A new kind of racket—automobile kidnaping—was uncovered at Vancouver, B. C., when police arrested five young boys and charged them with auto theft.

ABILITY—SERVICE—RESPONSIBILITY

To provide worthy and satisfactory service at all times has been our consistent objective for more than a third of a century of better dry cleaning. During that time we have satisfactorily met the demands of a most exacting and discriminating clientele—men and women who expected and received careful workmanship, extra service at reasonable prices. To the thousands who have patronized us year after year, and to the many who are turning to us in search of quality, we renew our code of ability, service and responsibility. To maintain an organization of competent workers, to improve our methods and equipment, to insure satisfaction to every customer—in short to ACKNOWLEDGE PUBLIC CONFIDENCE AND GOOD WILL AS THE CHIEF ASSETS OF OUR BUSINESS is our constant aim.

RITUAL DANCING AT CHURCH TO EXPRESS THANKS

Festival Today in Unitarian Chancel.

BY JOHN ASTLEY-COCK.

THE REV. VON OGDEN VOGT.

Ritual dancing has always been the handmaid of religion. From the corybantic excess of the Greek cult to the staid conventionalism of the church procession the human body in motion always has served to express religious emotion.

The Thanksgiving dance festival which is being given this afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Unitarian church, 57th street and Woodlawn avenue, is of more than passing interest.

With the possible exception of the acolytes' stately posturing in the Easter dance at Seville cathedral, interpretative dancing is seldom seen today within the precincts of a chancel.

Two Artists Give Aid.

For this performance two artists have collaborated, the one in words and the other in gestures. Dr. Von Ogden Vogt, in his compilation of graphic narrative, and the five dances staged by Miss Erika Thimey have produced a unique expression of the spiritual aspect of the civil feast of Thanksgiving.

"The keynote of this mimetic dance," said Dr. Vogt, "is the duty of every man to relieve the needy in recognition of the benefits which he has received from God."

To this end Dr. Vogt has selected passages from the Psalms and the major prophets, interspersed with comment of his own composition, successively illustrating the concepts of five dances, bearing the titles "Tears," "Bliss," "The Vine," "The Tree," and "The Reaper," performed by four principals with a group of sixteen to the accompaniment only of organ and percussions. At stated intervals choir and congregation participate with hymns and hallelujahs.

Finds Dance Only Way.

There is nothing new, of course, in the idea of interpretative dancing. What is novel in this "dance of Thanksgiving" is the apt welding of text and pantomime due to the genius of Dr. Vogt.

"I feel that the inner message of Thanksgiving," he remarked, "cannot be more graphically illustrated than by the plastic symbolism of the dance."

The setting for this dance is perfect. The nave and chancel of the church create an atmosphere to which players and auditors instantly respond. Isaiah's utterances would seem incongruous in a theater. From the pulpit, where the pastor speaks as narrator, they lack nothing in their familiarity and gain added weight from the insight displayed by the dancers.

Under the direction of the Union Tour of Reform Hebrew congregations, Rabbi Julius Gordon of St. Louis will speak this morning at Congregation Anshe Mayriv. At Isaiah Israel temple Rabbi Julius Mark of Nashville, and at Sinai Dr. David Philipson of Cincinnati will be the speakers. All of these visiting rabbis will speak on the challenge of Hitlerism to civilization.

* * *

Dr. J. R. P. Sclater, pastor of Old St. Andrew's church, Toronto, Canada, will speak tonight at the Chicago Sunday Evening club. Of English parentage, Dr. Sclater was educated at Cambridge and became pastor of the New North church at Edinburgh, a pulpit made famous by John Kelman and Henry Drummond. In Canada he has been the moving spirit in the United Church movement bringing together Presbyterian, Methodists, and Congregationalists.

The Central church, under the direction of Dr. Frederick F. Shannon, is holding its Thanksgiving service this morning. Dr. Protheroe, who has charge of the music, has arranged a program of chorus numbers not only applicable to the season but also in keeping with the subject of the pastor's sermon, "Thanksgiving in the Midst of Plenty—Plenty of What?"

Solemn requiem mass for deceased members of the Holy Name society will be celebrated in the Holy Name cathedral at 9 o'clock Thursday morning, Nov. 30, Thanksgiving day.

Youth of Church Will Give Play Two Nights

The Young People's society of Green Street Congregational church, 56th and Green streets, will present the three act comedy, "The Deacon Entangled," at 8 o'clock Friday and Saturday evenings. In the cast are Miss Grace Tress, Jiss Vera Kepler, Miss Florence Van der Ploeg, Miss Esther Elding, Charles Constanzer, Art Stewart, Francis Coan, Edward Iverson, and Irwin Mathes. Charles Bartlett, assistant pastor, is coach. Proceeds go to the church.

Woman Lawyer to Talk on Illinois Civil Status

"What Every Women Should Know" is the title of an address to be given by Mrs. Rebecca Liss at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow before the Hyde Park League of Women Voters at the First Unitarian church house, 57th street and Woodlawn avenue. Mrs. Liss, an attorney, will discuss the civil status of women in Illinois. Mrs. David Shillinglaw will conduct a primer lesson, "How the Board of Cook County Commissioners Function."

Choir Concert.

The United Lutheran church choir of Oak Park, under the direction of Arnold L. Schultz, will give a concert during a 5 o'clock vesper service this afternoon in the Immanuel Lutheran church, Elmdale and Greenview avenues, Oak Park. The choir is composed of 100 voices.

GUILD PREPARES FOR PREMIERE

The Chicago premiere of Elmer Rice's play, "The Subway," will be the initial production of the Players' guild, newly organized repertory group at Lincoln center, 700 Oakwood boulevard. The play will be given tomorrow, Tuesday, and Wednesday in the Chicago Woman's club theater, 72 East 11th street. In the photo above Mr. Rice is shown at a rehearsal while he was here on a speaking tour. Left to right are Ben Phillips, director (with manuscript); Miss Marie Reese, and Mrs. Joseph Lederer.

LEADS IN PLAY

MISS HELEN MARIE BRADY.

Miss Helen Marie Brady has the title rôle in "Carrie Comes to College," the musical comedy which will be presented by young people of St. Cecilia parish at 2 o'clock this afternoon and tomorrow and Tuesday evenings in the school auditorium, 45th place and Wells street. Also in the cast are Charles Gill, tenor of station WAAF, Miss Celia Noone, Bud Cronin, John Brennan, Miss Ann McCarthy, Henry Jessen, Joseph Meegan, Miss Kathryn Halpin, James Kelly and Chester Krause, and a mixed chorus of 40.

Discuss New Economics at Hamilton Pk. Tomorrow

"The Need of a New Economic Philosophy" will be the theme of the next meeting of the Hamilton Park discussion group at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening at Hamiltan Park fieldhouse, 72d street and Normal boulevard. R. H. Wetherbee will review Rugg's "The Great Technology," and Coyle's "Necessary Changes in Public Opinion."

St. Barnabas Women to Give a Party Tomorrow

St. Barnabas' Woman's club will hold its annual Thanksgiving card party at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening at the school hall, 101st place and Longwood drive. There will be table and door prizes, and refreshments. Mrs. J. J. Kirz, president, is working on arrangements with Mrs. William J. Gedhl and Mrs. J. E. Lynch, chairmen.

CHECKER MEET TO OPEN TODAY IN SOUTH PARKS

Bessemer Park Leads in Photo Contest.

The last event on the 1933 calendar of competitive activities among the south park playgrounds will be the intermediate boys' checker tournament at 3 o'clock this afternoon in two sectional eliminations at Mark White square, 29th and Halsted streets, and Bessemer park, 89th street and South Chicago avenue.

All remaining finals are to be played next Saturday, including junior and senior boys' and girls' checkers in which the eliminations were held yesterday. The place for playing the finals has not been named. It will be chosen to make for the least traveling by the remaining contestants.

Bessemer Tightens Grip.

Table tennis, in its maiden appearance on the south park schedule, will be concluded in final rounds at 2:30 o'clock Saturday at Hamilton park, 72d street and Normal boulevard. There are 16 survivors in both the men's and women's divisions.

Bessemer park took a tighter grip on its lead in the race for supremacy among the 20 playgrounds by taking a lion's share of honors in the recent amateur photographic exhibit. In class A, where all work was done by the exhibitor, Bessemer made a clean sweep of the enlargement division. Jay Dallman was the winner, with Frank Levstik taking both second and third. Don Melton won both first and second in the contact prints division, while Arnold Ward put Mann park in the scoring column with a third place.

Wins First and Second.

Where work was done by some one else, although the exposure was made by the exhibitor, David Anderson of Gage park won both first and second, with Jay Smith of Sherman placing third in the enlargement division. Miss Muriel Helworth, of Mark White square, only feminine winner, was first in contact prints. Smith was second and Bill Butkins of White was third.

The show was the largest in its history, with 76 different exhibitors and 1,093 photographs representing the best work of nine parks participating in the activity. Last year there were but seven parks, while in 1932 there were six parks entered in the competition.

ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH TO CELEBRATE OLD SETTLERS' NIGHT

Old Settlers' night will be observed tonight at St. George's church, 39th street and Wentworth avenue, as an incident of the annual indoor carnival of the parish. Former members of the parish and their friends are being invited to return for the event. Games with prizes for young and old, dancing, and refreshments will be provided by a committee headed by Anton Loritz, 4248 Wentworth avenue. Owen P. Hynes, 3928 South Wells street, is secretary of the affair. The carnival has been held on three successive Sunday evenings and will be concluded Wednesday with a special Thanksgiving eve program. The Very Rev. Msgr. Bernard Springmeier, pastor of the church, and the Rev. Edward Leiser, his assistant, are working on arrangements with the committee.

Little Flower Societies to Give Party Tuesday

The Altar and Rosary society of Little Flower parish, 80th and Honore streets, will hold a Thanksgiving card party and entertainment Tuesday evening in the parish hall. Turkeys will be among the prizes and refreshments will be served. Proceeds will go to the parish's school and camp fund. James Hurley, general chairman, has appointed Mrs. John Howe, Mrs. Michael Kelly, Mrs. James Kane, Mrs. Edward Gallagher, Mrs. F. S. Bastick, Patrick Ford, William Lauer, Joseph Greene, Martin Sexton, and Charles Fiddymint to assist him with arrangements.

St. Dorothy's Jr. Circle to Give 1st Party Friday

St. Dorothy's Junior circle, Daughters of Isabella, will give its first card party at 8 o'clock Friday evening in the parish hall, 78th street and Eberhart avenue. The proceeds will be used to give unfortunate children a happier Christmas. Miss Eileen King, 7748 South Park avenue, is chairman. Miss Geraldine Garvey, 7925 Vernon avenue, is co-chairman and Miss Dorothy La Manita, 7315 Calumet avenue, is president of the circle.

Country Towns Association to Celebrate 1st Anniversary

The first anniversary dinner of the Suburban Area and Country Towns association of Cook county will be held Dec. 13 in the Olympic ballroom, 6148 West Cermak road, Cicero. The committee appointed by President Walter P. Saunders of La Grange to take charge of the event includes Jacob E. Dittus of Maywood, secretary; Mayor Charles H. Bartlett of Evanston, Mayor William A. McKee of Park Ridge, President Charles F. Baumrucker of River Forest, President Joseph Imburgio of Melrose Park, and W. F. Walkowiak of Summit.

The association was formed at Oak Park a year ago and the dinner meeting will provide an opportunity for reviewing the year's accomplishments and setting forth future aims.

Coöperation Is Objective.

The organization has for its object the promotion of coöperation among its membership and coördination of government functions of municipalities in the area so far as inter-municipal relations are convenient and desirable; promotion of legislation desirable for the mutual welfare of its membership and opposition to all legislation designed to violate the political integrity of its members and communities similarly situated, and the preservation of the rights of suburban communities to home rule on matters of purely local concern.

Officers and members of the executive committee are: Walter P. Saunders, president of La Grange, president; Mayor Bartlett of Evanston, President H. W. Tolsted of Maywood, Mayor Frank Kasten of Blue Island, Trustee George W. Mulroney of Elmwood Park, and Mayor McKee of Park Ridge, vice presidents; Jacob E. Dittus, village attorney of Maywood, secretary; Mayor George R. Gold of Forest Park, treasurer; President Baumrucker of River Forest, President William B. Moulton of Winnetka, Mr. Walkowiak, Summit, D. A. Nietfeldt, of Homewood, Mayor J. W. Mahaffay of Palos Park, Mayor Joseph Cerny of Cicero, Mayor Frank W. Bruggemann of Harvey, President Willis McFeely of Oak Park, Mayor Frank Novotny of Berwyn, and President Julius D. Flentie of Arlington Heights.

Accomplishments Cited.

Among the accomplishments cited by the association are:

Preservation of home rule and keeping municipalities and various governing bodies intact against the urgings of political economists.

Carrying on a constructive program for the improvement of present conditions under which affairs are conducted in various municipalities.

Carrying out the collection of special assessment delinquencies in various municipalities rather than returning them to the county collector, resulting in a saving to home owners and taxpayers and in larger collections.

Securing permission to collect the last half of 1931 taxes by the townships, thus making tax money available at once to the various tax bodies.

Conducting a campaign of publicity to keep local taxpayers in close touch with all legal measures, past or proposed, effecting them.

Back Horner Crime Drive.

Effecting the first successful effort on the part of officials of municipalities in the area to coöperate for the mutual benefit of all their constituents.

Having been the first organization to back Gov. Horner in his state-wide plan to curb major crimes by proceeding to organize a police clearing bureau for coöperative efforts among all policing bodies of Cook county.

Enabling civic organizations to combine an a definite program for municipal betterment.

Causing the state legislature to realize that the country towns of the county have problems similar to those of counties down state.

The association has pointed out that Mayor Novotny of Berwyn is the president of the Illinois Municipal league, and has called attention to figures showing the population of the Cook county country towns to be 605,000, and occupying an area of 722 square miles of the 933 square miles in the county.

FIRST DISTRICT P.-T. A. BOARD TO MEET TUESDAY

Plan Review of Events to Date.

Parent-teacher activities on the south side since the opening of school will be reviewed at a board meeting of District One, Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, at 1 o'clock Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Herbert H. Siddall, district director, 1119 West 103d place.

Reports of the five council presidents and 18 district assistants in charge of various phases of parent-teacher work will be submitted. Plans for the district round table conference and concert to be held March 7 at the Stevens hotel will be perfected.

Miss Dorothy Sabel of the Avalon Park library branch will speak to the Avalon Park association at 1:15 o'clock Tuesday in the school gymnasium. There also will be a reading by Mrs. John Quinstra and a program by pupils. A social hour and refreshments will follow the meeting.

Those attending are asked to bring a can of food which may be used in filling Thanksgiving baskets to be given by the school.

A review of previous lessons will be given the parent education class of Dixon association at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow by Mrs. L. V. Radkin.

The development of organized entertainment for boys and girls has been adopted by the Dixon association under the leadership of Mrs. H. E. Landes, leisure time chairman. One Camp Fire Girls group and two groups of Blue Birds [junior Camp Fire Girls 6 to 10 years old] meet Monday afternoon under the direction of Mrs. G. D. Bone, while a handicraft club for boys of all ages is conducted each Friday afternoon by Frank Moore. All gather in Republican headquarters, 8114 Cottage Grove avenue.

With a total of 412 persons on the roll, the Ruggles association membership drive last week was pronounced "most successful" by Mrs. A. C. Heeren, president of the organization. Mrs. Del Hamelin, 7719 Wabash avenue, conducted the drive. Parties were given the three rooms bringing in most parent members.

Plans for the next open meeting of South Central council of District 1 of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers will be discussed in a board meeting at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon at the home of Mrs. James E. Grant, 7731 Stewart avenue, council president.

The parent education class of the Kershaw association will be held at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow at the home of Mrs. Willis Moorhead, leader, 6526 Lowe avenue. "The Diet and Eating Habits of Children" will be the topic. Mrs. Elizabeth Hestler, recreation chairman, sponsored a tour of Chinatown Monday. Mrs. Charles Schneider reports the collection of 153 books during Book week.

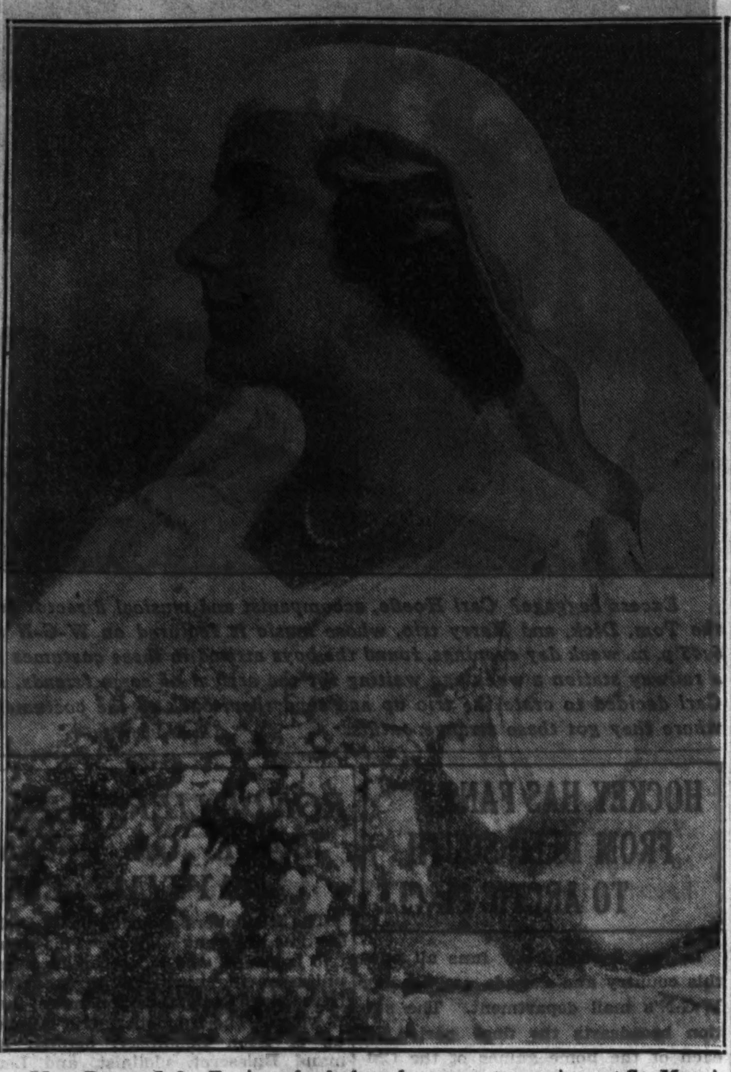
The Yale Mothers' chorus recently was reorganized and Mrs. Fletcher Robertson elected president; Mrs. Ashton Walker, secretary; Mrs. Mabel Dowling, treasurer, and Mrs. Charles Soyland, publicity chairman. The association collected 285 books during Book week.

Mrs. Anna J. Peterson will talk on "Thanksgiving Dishes" at 1:45 o'clock tomorrow before the homemaking group of the Morrill association. Costume jewelry will be displayed.

"Physical Development, Inheritance, and Environment" will be the topic of discussion by the Wentworth association's parent education class at its meeting at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday in room 114. Mrs. Nels Christensen will preside. The mothers' chorus will rehearse at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday at the home of Mrs. John Pritchard, 7114 Lowe avenue.

Mrs. William Kahlke will conduct a session of the parent study class of the Barnard association at 1:15 o'clock Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Frank White Jr., 1713 West 105th street. Members are being invited to join the mothers' chorus at its rehearsals at 1:15 o'clock Wednesdays at the home of Mrs. W. O. Davies, 10217 Charles street. Mrs. Harvey Smith, summer round-up chairman, has announced the completion of her work. Mrs. Walter Haegstedt, child hygiene chairman; Mrs. Stanley J. Siebert, and Mrs. J. G. Hope assisted her.

BECOMES A BRIDE



Mrs. Rocco John Fazio, who before her recent marriage at St. Mary's of Mount Carmel church, 67th street and Hermitage avenue, was Miss Concetta Anna Vacca, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Vacca, 6744 South Marshfield avenue. Dr. and Mrs. Fazio reside at 1643 West Marquette road.

RIDGE LEADERS TO DISCUSS NEW RUM PROBLEMS

Civic Council Meets Tomorrow.

The Ridge district, wet or dry? That will be one of the topics of the Ridge Civic council's session at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening at Ridge Park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive.

What fate is in store for the territory now that the 18th amendment has been repealed will be reported by Norman H. Beck as the result of the study made by him and a special committee of the council on the status of the district.

Face Three Problems.

Three distinct problems face the territory, it has been brought out. The district bounded by 87th and 95th streets, Vincennes and Western avenues, was dry by ordinance of the city council before the advent of prohibition. A single block bounded by 88th and 89th streets, Paulina street and Hermitage avenue was excluded from the dry ban.

To the south, the district between 95th and 107th streets, Vincennes and Western avenues was prohibition territory by the terms of the charter of the old village of Washington Heights.

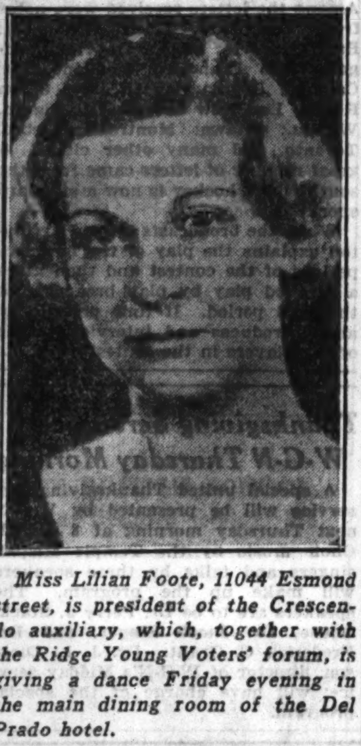
Similarly, the old village of Morgan Park, extending south to the city limits, was local option territory and the inhabitants voted for the dry régime. Vincennes avenue and the territory extending on either side for 125 feet was the only wet belt south of 95th street to the city limits.

Donne To Speak.

William G. Donne, Illinois manager of the Federal Home Owners' corporation, will speak on the operation of his organization, and the tax legislation committee will give a report that is anticipated to be unfavorable on house bill No. 957, providing for the consolidation of parks in Chicago.

Vincennes avenue will be urged as the route of a new elevated highway under the plan pending before the city council in a combined report of the streets and transportation committees, of which Herman Ordas and William Bethke respectively are chairman. Vincennes avenue has not been mentioned in recommendations for a southwest elevated highway made so far before the council, it is understood, and Ald. O. E. Northrup, as a member of the Ridge Civic council, is expected to bring its recommendation of Vincennes avenue before the council.

PLANS DANCE



Miss Lilian Foote, 11044 Esmond street, is president of the Crescendo auxiliary, which, together with the Ridge Young Voters' forum, is giving a dance Friday evening in the main dining room of the Del Prado hotel.

ARCHBISHOP OF PANAMA TALKS ON S. SIDE TODAY

The Very Rev. John J. Maiztegui, newly chosen archbishop of Panama, will preside at services of the Perpetual Novena of Sundays in honor of St. Jude at 3 o'clock this afternoon in Our Lady of Guadelupe church, 9049 Brandon avenue. Known as Father John, the archbishop formerly was pastor at this shrine of St. Jude, and now is visiting with the Rev. James Tort, present minister. He will leave this week for Panama to be invested of the Pallium at the feast of the Immaculate Conception Dec. 8.

Brookline Presbyterians to Hear Two Musicales

Two musicales by artists in the community will be presented at Brookline Presbyterian church, 73d street and Maryland avenue. The first will be given at 8 o'clock this evening, and the other next Sunday evening. The hour's program will include both vocal and instrumental music. Mrs. Julia Polglase and Miss Anne McIlhenny, organist, have arranged the musicales. Dr. Charles M. Rausch is minister of the church.

THANKSGIVING PLAY AT SCHOOL

Little Priscillas and John Aldens with sturdy red men of the fourth grade at Brownell school, 6509 Perry avenue, as they appeared in the Thanksgiving play presented before the Parent-Teacher association recently. Seated, left to right: Ted Mazurek, Meyer Rubin, Kenneth Kluth, Betty Sell, Alice Powell, Annetta Giddeis. Standing: Harold Dorfman, Joe Carroll, Roy Aikens, Shirley Martin, Kenneth Oglesby, George Powell, Paul Wurffel. Miss H. S. Schramm, their teacher, directed the play.

BAKER AND NOLAN TO BE M. C.'S FOR CHARITY REVUE

Impressive Talent Array Is Presented.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

BOB NOLAN.
[MCA Photo.]

Bob Nolan of W-G-N and Phil Baker, the NBC jester, have been designated to alternate as masters of ceremony for the third annual Chicago Radio revue for charity which will be held Monday evening, Dec. 4, at the Chicago Stadium. Bob Nolan is heard over THE TRIBUNE station Saturday evenings with "Kemp's Kapers," from the Blackhawk. The revue will have the most impressive array of talent ever appearing on one Chicago stage. Look at this lineup:

W-G-N—Clara, Lu, 'n' Em, Uncle Quin's "Scalawags," Bob Nolan, Tom, Dick and Harry, and Ireene Wicker, the Singing Lady; the orchestras of Wayne King, Jan Garber, Hal Kemp and Clyde McCoy, and Announcers Quin Ryan, Bob Elson, Pierre Andre, and Russ Russell.

NBC—Phil Baker, Wendell Hall, the Commodores, Neil Sisters, Merriemen, Irene Beasley, King's Jesters, Wiener Minstrels, Marion and Jim, Irene Rich, and the Northerners. Orchestras—Phil Harris, Benny Meroff, Carlos Molina, and Ted Weems. Announcers—Bob Brown, Charles Lyon, Everett Mitchell, Don McNeill, and Hal Totten.

Columbia—Myrt & Marge, and Bobby Brown, Skippy and Sooky, Al and Pete, Gene and Charles and Virginia Clarke, the Norsemen, Olga Vernon, and Jerry Sullivan. Orchestras—Clarence Wheeler, Vincent Lopez, and Ace Brigode.

PHIL BAKER.
[Kesslere Photo.]

KYW—Drs. Pratt and Sherman, Uncle Bob, the Cadets quartet, Marjorie Maxwell and Haloween Martin. Orchestras—Rex Maupin and Harry Sosnik.

WLS—National Barn Dance, Hal O'Halloran, Westerners, Uncle Ezra, Mac and Bob, Little Georgie Goebel, Three Little Maids, Lulu Belle, and Sware Dancers.

WAAF—Cavaliers, Estelle Barnes and Three Flats.

WJJD—Art Linnick and Pickard family.

WCFL—Irish Hour cast.

Tickets are on sale at the Stadium ticket office, THE TRIBUNE public service office, 1 South Dearborn street, and Marshall Fields.

Air Aces and Aviation.

Flying appears to be gaining in attraction for Chicago radio stars. Wayne King has long owned a plane and uses it to hop to his north woods retreat. And he has flown as far as Denver, carrying a passenger. Noble Cain, NBC production man and choral leader, flies his own plane and had the misfortune to crash last summer. Gene Kretzinger, CBS harmonizer, has a pilot's license, as does Red Ingle, Ted Weems' violinist. Ingle goes up every other day or so. Bob Brown, NBC announcer, is also a flyer. And Albert Spalding, the violinist, who broadcast his nework program locally the past week, was a wartime pilot and has been flying ever since.

Weems for Lopez.

The Sunday NBC hosiery show now featuring Vincent Lopez and Alice Joy will become a variety revue beginning Dec. 10, with Ted Weems' orchestra and singing ensemble the backbone of the program. There'll be notable radio and concert singers, instrumentalists, comedians and celebrities as guests on the hour.

Two young fellows who have done rather well in radio are taking Horace Greeley's advice. Rudy Vallee goes west early next month. Beginning Dec. 14 his broadcasts will be heard from Los Angeles. Rudy will make a picture version of "The Scandals" in which he appeared on the stage. Lanny Ross of the "Show Boat" hour also joins the film colony early in December. . . . And Rosemary Lane, who appears with Fred Waring, is following the footsteps of her older sister Lola shortly to make her bow in the talkies.

$6,000 a Week for Mae.

Mae West has invited Mr. Mike to come up to see her sometime. The fee agreed upon is reported to be $6,000 a week. The first engagement is due early next month.

Eddie Cantor's first broadcast of the season provided a swell argument against studio audiences. The Cantor antics kept his studio crowd roaring their laughter into the microphone while the radio audience wondered what it was all about. For every listener laugh there were about five by his studio well wishers.

Lum and Abner, the radio rustics, have been making a hit in New York. [They'll make an appearance in Chicago shortly.]

Lum [Chester Lauck] explains it this way: "There are more hicks in the big cities than will be found in any like area in any part of the land."

Like Will Rogers they make their audiences feel that they are smarter than their entertainers, a stunt that invariably clicks.

Donald Novis' Biggest Thrill.

Success has not hurt Donald Novis, one of the best of radio tenors. After getting a great ovation from a full house at the Chicago theater the other day he confessed that he had never received a thrill—never expected to receive another one comparable to winning the A-K national audition five years ago. He didn't sleep for 48 hours after winning the award. Novis auditioned for a beer account Wednesday.

Enric Madriguerra is back on the air with his great tango rhythms.

Hal Kemp and his orchestra will provide the music for the Junior prom at the University of Illinois on Dec. 21.

Glen Gray's Casa Loma orchestra which goes on CBS for a cigaret company next week comes to network radio from Detroit by way of Toronto. Nucleus of the orchestra was formerly with Jean Goldkette.

D'Orazi, the Singing Cartoonist.

Tony D'Orazi, W-G-N's Cartoonist of the Air, is now singing with Jan Garber's orchestra. It came about this way. Tony recently sketched Jan for his W-G-N class. Tony told Jan that he used to sing with Vic Meyers' orchestra in Washington. [Meyers is now lieutenant governor of the state.] Vic and Jan are old friends. So Jan invited Tony to do some novelties with his orchestra at the Trianon.

CHARLIE AGNEW'S SINGING ENSEMBLE

The blended melody of twelve male voices with that of one girl features the broadcasts of Charlie Agnew and his orchestra over W-G-N. Charlie was one of the first orchestra leaders to headline ensemble singing. Choral singing is presented every night by Agnew at the Stevens hotel for the dancers and W-G-N listeners. Left to right: Stanley Jacobsen, also featured as a soloist; George Snurp, Earl Hoffman, Rene Collins, Stanley Williams, Fritz Holtz, Dusty Roades, also a soloist; Bud Wallen, Bobby Warner, Ralph Pierce, Emrie Ann Lincoln, and Jack Wuerle. Agnew is shown in front of the ensemble. Hunter Kahler, the pianist and arranger, is not in the picture. [Acme P. & A. Photo.]

JOEY OF W-G-N CIRCUS READY TO GO PROFESSIONAL

Joey of the circus goes professional this week. The young hero of the Tiptop circus, heard at 5:15 weekdays from W-G-N, is making his debut under the big top as a full-fledged performer, with professional name and all.

Just exactly one month from the day he left the orphanage the youngster blossoms out as a young aërialist and casts aside the simple orphanage appellation of Joey to become "Wallace the Great" of the flying rings.

Meanwhile little Cornelius Peoples Jr., who plays the part of "Wally," is the wonder and envy of his eighth grade classroom, for coincidental with his aërial debut he appeared at school with a sprained ankle. His classmates are absolutely positive Cornelius suffered the injury in one of his exciting exploits in the sawdust ring.

Cornelius, however, shyly admits that the injury came as the result of scampering downstairs a step or two ahead of his feet. The doctor has prescribed crutches for the next four weeks.

JACK RUSSELL, CARL MOORE TO NEW AIR OUTLETS

JACK RUSSELL.
[Bloom Photo.]

Carl Moore, the Arkansas batoneer, long on W-G-N moves into the La Salle hotel, with a CBS outlet when Clyde Lucas and his sensational orchestra leave for Houston next week. . . Handsome Jack Russell, who played with the late Texas Guinan during her last engagement here at the Fair, is heard nightly from the Terrace Garden where he replaced Benny Meroff who is making a theater tour around the town. . . Ace Brigode is featuring Joe Roberts, former W-G-N bandmaster, as a singer at the Merry Garden. . . Clyde McCoy, of the Drake and W-G-N will celebrate his 30th birthday Dec. 29.

Capt. Paul Gets Flock of Congrats on Birthday

A flood of letters, telegrams, and phone calls of congratulation and several gifts were received by Capt. Paul Fogarty, director of W-G-N's "Keep Fit club" last week, when Organist Leonard Salvo gave away the secret of Capt. Paul's birthday by playing the "Happy Birthday" tune.

Joseph Vito to Be Soloist with Chicago Symphony

Joseph Vito, harpist, who is featured with the W-G-N Concert orchestra on the Sunday evening concert programs, will be the soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra on its concert at Orchestra hall next Tuesday.

COL. M'CORMICK GIVES 2D TALK ON 'FREEDOM OF PRESS' TONIGHT

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, will deliver the second half of his address on "Freedom of the Press" at 10:30 o'clock tonight over W-G-N and a National Broadcasting company network. The first part of the talk was given over the same network last Thursday evening. Col. McCormick is chairman of the "Freedom of the Press" committee of the American Newspaper Publishers' association. He will speak from the studios of W-G-N.

WAYNE KING'S 'BLUE HOURS' IS GREAT MELODY

When Wayne King, whose music is featured nightly on W-G-N, writes a song—it's a good one—or rather, when Wayne King decides to have a song published, it's a good one. Wayne writes many more songs than he offers for publication, but he discards them until he hits upon the melodic combination that suits him as a dance maestro, and as a lover of music. He has already had many successes, but his new tune "Blue Hours" is considered one of the best ever to come from his pen. A reflective bit of melody, the song is an ideal composition for interpretation by his own orchestra.

4 SOLOISTS WILL BE PRESENTED BY DUMONT TONIGHT

Orchestra and Paulists at 8:30 O'Clock.

Four soloists will be presented by Director Adolphe Dumont of W-G-N concert orchestra tonight during the one hour program to be heard between 6:45 and 7:45 p. m. At 8:30 p. m., the orchestra will combine with the famous Paulist choir for a 45 minute concert in which three vocal soloists and two instrumental soloists are to be featured.

Berenice Taylor, W-G-N's soprano prima donna; Joseph Vito, the concert harpist; Joseph Schotta, flutist of the orchestra, and David Filerman, cellist, are to be the featured artists. Miss Taylor will sing "The Maid of Cadiz," from Bizet's "The Pearl Fishers," and Grieg's Ich Liebe Dich." Mr. Vito will offer "Mazurka de Concert" and "Paraphrase on a Welsh Air," and will double with Mr. Schotta and the orchestra in "Munetto." Mr. Filerman's solo will be Popper's "Serenade."

Other numbers by the orchestra will be:

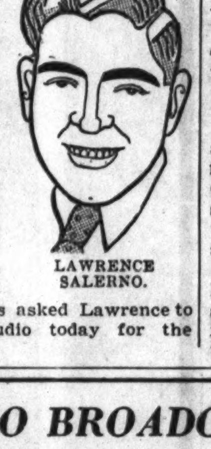
Overture, "Robespierre" .... Litolff
"First Hungarian Rhapsody" .... Liszt
"Two Hungarian Dances, Nos. 3 and 1" .... Brahms
"Farandole" .... Bizet
"Flight of the Bumblebee" .... Rimsky-Korsakov
"Dance of the Bouffons" .. Rimsky-Korsakov
"Mazurka" .... Glinka
"Roses from the South" .... Strauss

Soloists and their offerings on the program with the Paulist choir are: William Jordan, the counter tenor, who will sing "Sweet and Low"; Billy Callahan, "Songs My Mother Taught Me," and Walter Curran, "The Nightingale." The instrumental feature will be "Tarantelle," by Saint-Saens, played by Joseph Schotta, flutist; Oliver Thomas, clarinet soloist, and the concert orchestra. The numbers to be offered by the entire Paulist choir are:

"Veni Jesu" .... Cherubini
"Ave Maria" .... Arcadelt
"The Birds" .... Prothcroe
"Star of the Sea" .... Tozer
"Brunette" .... French Folk Song
"My Old Kentucky Home" .... Foster

The orchestra will play "Carillon" and "Prelude in G Minor," by Rachmaninoff.

SALERNO TO BE SKETCHED TODAY BY TONY D'ORAZI



LAWRENCE SALERNO.

Here's the drawing of Lawrence Salerno, W-G-N baritone that Tony D'Orazi, W-G-N's "Cartoonist of the Air," will sketch during his broadcast from 1 to 1:15 o'clock this afternoon. Salerno and Tony were prevented from presenting their dual broadcast last week and after receiving hundreds of letters from his students, D'Orazi has asked Lawrence to come to the studio today for the sketching.

YES, IT'S TOM, DICK, HARRY

Excess baggage? Carl Hoefle, accompanist and musical director for the Tom, Dick, and Harry trio, whose music is featured on W-G-N at 6:45 p. m. week day evenings, found the boys attired in these costumes in a railway station a week ago waiting for the arrival of some friends, so Carl decided to crate the trio up and send them back to the costumers where they got these strange outfits. [Acme Photo.]

HOCKEY HAS FANS FROM DEEP SOUTH TO ARCTIC CIRCLE

Letters from hockey fans all over this country and Canada are flooding W-G-N's mail department. The station broadcasts the final period of each of the home games of the Chicago Blackhawks of the National Professional Hockey league. The contest tonight between the Boston Bruins and the Blackhawks will be broadcast by John Harrington, starting at 9:45 p. m.

W-G-N inaugurated the hockey broadcasts three weeks ago. During the first broadcast Announcer Harrington asked for mail, and hundreds of letters came back in response. Among the letters received were notes from Vancouver, British Columbia; Banff, Alberta; Salem, Ore.; Los Angeles; San Francisco; Medicine Hat; Calgary; Regina; Moose Jaw; Baton Rouge, La.; New Orleans; Hutington, W. Va.; Ottawa; Montreal; Quebec; Toronto, and many other cities. A great number of letters came from the south where hockey is now a standard sport.

When the broadcasts open, Harrington explains the play of the first two periods of the contest and then gives a detailed play by play broadcast of the final period. If time permits he also introduces and interviews some of the players in the contest.

Thanksgiving Service on W-G-N Thursday Morning

A special united Thanksgiving day service will be presented by W-G-N next Thursday morning at 8 o'clock Choir music by the Temple Mizpah singers and talks by three speakers will make up the program. The speakers are to be Dr. Perry J. Stackhouse, Dr. Jacob Singer, and Dr Frederick C. Grant. Dr. J. L. Dickson, director of W-G-N's Midday service, will have charge of the special program.

RONDOLIERS ARE BACK ON W-G-N DAYTIME BILL

The Rondoliers are back on W-G-N's daytime program schedule. This string trio is one of the oldest broadcasting units on the air. The three artists have played together for more than 13 years. The Rondoliers trio is made up of Leon Benditzky, pianist; Armand Buisseret, violinist, and Leon Lichtenfeld, cellist.

The three men started their radio work more than thirteen years ago when they played as a house unit in the Drake hotel dining rooms. Later they became associated with W-G-N for studio music, and since that time have been heard consistently over THE TRIBUNE station, both from the studios and from remote control spots around the city.

During the past summer they played for diners at the Blackstone hotel, a post they still hold in addition to their special work from the W-G-N studios.

PROGRAM BASED ON 'WAKE' TO BE OPENED ON W-G-N

One of the most read features of THE TRIBUNE, the "Wake of the News," conducted by Harvey T. Woodruff, is making its bow on radio. W-G-N is arranging a program of famous "'Way Back When" recollections and combining them with musical settings for a new program which is to be heard at 9:45 o'clock five nights each week.

Harvey Woodruff has concluded his famous "Wakes" with "'Way Back When" paragraphs for several years and a great collection of memories has resulted. The program and musical departments of W-G-N have searched the dusty old music files for tunes which were popular during the days from which each "'Way Back When" is selected and these tunes should furnish an entertaining new feature.

Bears vs. Portsmouth on W-G-N Schedule at 2 P. M.

The Chicago Bears pro football team returns to Chicago today and W-G-N will broadcast the battle between the Bears and Portsmouth Spartons from Wrigley field this afternoon. The contest will start at 2 p. m. and W-G-N will open its broadcast two minutes in advance of the kickoff with Bob Elson at the microphone at the field. Next Thursday the Bears and Cardinals will clash in their annual Thanksgiving day contest starting at 11 a. m. and W-G-N's broadcast of this game will start five minutes before the kickoff.

Ralph Ginsburgh to Play a Night and Day Medley

Ralph Ginsburgh, director of the Palmer House ensemble, will present a medley of popular "night and day" songs over W-G-N on his 1:15 program today. Mr. Ginsburgh has selected for the overture "Morning, Noon, and Night," to be followed by "The Night Shall Be Filled with Music," "At Dawning," "Lady of the Evening," "Night and Day," from "Gay Divorce," and "When Day Is Done."

NEW ENSEMBLE IS COMPOSED OF EXPERT PLAYERS

Stevens Concerts Gain in Popularity.

Margaret Conrad's Stevens Hotel ensemble, whose music is featured exclusively over W-G-N every day, is composed of some of the finest feminine musicians in the profession. The six girls have been playing together for several months and their concerts are gaining in popularity daily since their introduction to W-G-N's broadcast schedule two weeks ago.

Miss Conrad, the director, has studied violin for 15 years, having studied with such famous masters as Leon Semetini, Jacques Gordon, and Otto Kar Sevcik. She started her musical career under Cemetini at the Chicago Musical college, and in 1925 won a scholarship with Mr. Gordon, concert master of the Chicago Symphony. In 1926 she won another scholarship with Prof. Sevcik.

Her Musical Career.

Miss Conrad has appeared in many recitals throughout the country. She was director and first violinist of the Chicago Chamber Music players, which she organized two years ago, and was a soloist with the Columbia Symphony orchestra. She is a member of the Columbia School of Music, the Musicians Club of Women, the Gordon club, and the Mu Phi Epsilon honorary musical sorority.

Marian Carlisle, pianist of the ensemble, is from Brookings, S. D. She is a pupil of John Sample, and has appeared on the concert stage as a soloist and as co-star with many leading vocalists. Miss Carlisle has a fine soprano voice, which probably will be heard with the ensemble on its broadcasts starting next month.

Records of Artists.

Lois Bichl, 'cellist, comes from Pittsfield, Mass., and has appeared as soloist with the Chicago Business Men's orchestra and also with the Chicago Symphony. Lucille Johnson, violinist, is a pupil of Ludwig Becker, while Ethel Schfertzler, violinist, formerly of Toledo, O., studied with Leon Semetini.

Eleanor Tanner, bass, is a member of the Civic orchestra and has played for the last three years with the Chicago Women's Symphony.

HAL KEMP TELLS OF DANGERS IN MAESTROS' LIVES

Hal Kemp declares there are hazardous moments even in the life of an orchestra leader. Hal and his orchestra are featured daily over W-G-N.

Once in Dallas, Tex., when Kemp was standing in front of his orchestra waving his baton with that loose, free handed movement, beating time, the slim stick slipped out of his hand and lodged in his right eye. The sharp point of the baton just missed the eyeball and penetrated more than an inch.

On his recent tour, Kemp played at Milwaukee. After the dance Kemp and his boys were surrounded by the dancers seeking autographs and the gathering nearly resulted in a riot. Kemp and some of the boys were buffeted by the crowd and it took four policemen to clear the way for the orchestra men to escape from their well wishers with their instruments intact.

Toronto Pastor to Talk from U. of C. Chapel Today

The Rev. J. R. P. Sclater of St. Andrew's church of Toronto will be the guest speaker at 11 o'clock this morning on the University of Chicago Chapel Services which are broadcast over W-G-N.

Fred Allen Says

Dear Larry: Radio City opened its studios last week. Thousands of people gathered to see Roxy throw out the first Hill Billy. . . . The fluctuation of the dollar has stopped a Merchant of Venice revival in London. Shylock can't tell what his pound is worth these days. . . . If the price of gold goes any higher we'll have to take our goldfish out of the bowl and put them in bird cages. . . . Report that Mae West is signed for a radio series—"Why don't you tune in and hear me sometimes?" Cordially.

FRED ALLEN.

"Prices are going up—
SO WE BOUGHT OUR PLYMOUTH NOW!"
Plymouth

You may never get so much for your Dollars Again!

YOU HEAR it everywhere . . . "We didn't wait until spring" . . . "We decided it's a good time to buy" . . . "Yes, we bought a Plymouth, before prices go up!"

It's just common sense. On every hand, prices are rising. Food, shoes, clothing—they are all costing more. Why don't car prices go up?

The answer is, they will—and soon!

Plymouth's Price is still Down!

So if you act quickly—you can get a Plymouth at rock-bottom price. For $445 F. O. B. factory, Detroit, you can buy a car with the smoothness of Floating Power engine mountings that absorb all vibration—the safety of hydraulic brakes and a safety body of steel reinforced with steel.

You get a car with a thrill in every mile—a car that delights women by the amazing ease of its handling—a car that will flash out at every light, keep you ahead of any traffic—a car that will make you proud to say, "Let's go in my Plymouth!"

Ask Your Dealer for a Demonstration

Go SEE what you get in Plymouth! Go have a demonstration from any Dodge, De Soto or Chrysler dealer. Go look under the hood—and discover the 20 to 30 points where Plymouth outmatches its competition in quality that makes bigger value and longer life!

Then you, too, can say, "We beat the price rise! We bought at the bottom! We're money ahead—because we bought our Plymouth before the price rise!" But the time to buy is now.

Clever Hostess talks about coffee

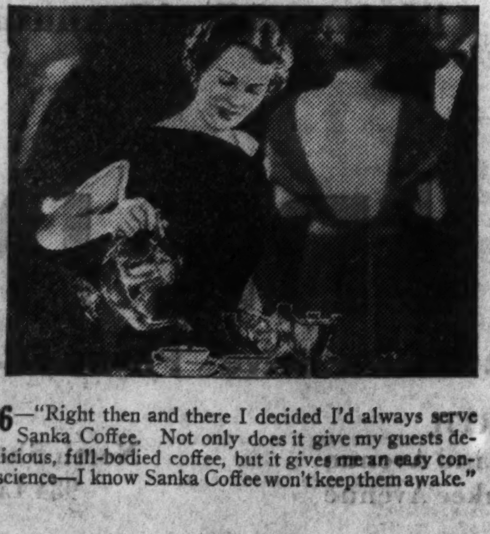
1—"You like this coffee? I'm so glad. To me it's the finest flavor I've ever encountered. I drink it now because of its excellence but there's a little story behind my introduction to it . . .

2—"Several months ago, my nervous system and I had a falling out. I wasn't sleeping right, and was rapidly becoming as fluttery as an old hen. I decided to go to my doctor and find out what was the matter.

3—"The doctor said that caffein was behind my trouble. 'You mean that I have to give up coffee?' I asked him. 'Not for a minute,' he said. 'Just change your brand to Sanka Coffee—97% of its caffein is removed.'

4—"I tried Sanka Coffee that very evening — and promptly fell in love with its rich fragrance and its flavor. And that night for the first time in several months, I slept like a baby.

5—"Next morning, I felt fine enough to plan a party. 'But young lady,' I said to myself, 'Supposing some of your guests also suffer from caffein. What do they think about your parties after a sleepless night?'



6—"Right then and there I decided I'd always serve Sanka Coffee. Not only does it give my guests delicious, full-bodied coffee, but it gives me an easy conscience—I know Sanka Coffee won't keep them awake."

Try Sanka Coffee. Make it good and strong, the way connoisseurs like it. Inhale it. What fragrance! Taste it. What flavor! Drink it. And learn that it is one coffee that will not keep you or your guests awake! Sanka Coffee is a product of General Foods.

TURKEY
For your Thanksgiving Dinner

WHEN the royal bird . . . done to a golden brown . . . still sizzling . . . and spreading distinctive roast-turkey odors . . . is placed on the table . . . and that first slice is cut . . . and the white-meat, not dry, crumbly or stringy, but firm and tender and succulent, is revealed . . . then you will appreciate how wise you were to have picked one of these turkeys . . . raised and fed to plump perfection in the bracing air of the north. For choice northern turkeys become large and plump and firm without losing their marvelous tenderness.

All LAND O'LAKES Turkeys are raised in the far North states (famous for producing the finest birds) where the brisk healthful climate makes them flavory and tender. Every one is especially raised, and fattened on special feeds, to be at his best for the holidays. And every one of these prize turkeys bears on his wing the seal you see reproduced on this page, the LAND O'LAKES trademark. This seal on your turkey is certain assurance that you will feast on a young . . . tender . . . juicy turkey. Ask for a LAND O'LAKES Turkey at your market. And look for the seal on the wing.

4 ways to stuff him!

PLAIN STUFFING
1 onion, cut fine; ¾ cup butter; 10 cups soft crumbs; 1 cup water; salt and pepper; poultry seasoning. Saute onion, add bread. Pour water gradually. Add seasoning. Mix well.

CHESTNUT STUFFING
1 cup butter; 6 cups chestnuts, cooked; 3 cups bread crumbs; 1½ cups hot water; ¾ tsp. pepper; 3 tsps. minced parsley, 2 tsps. grated lemon rind; 2 tbsps. salt; 1 cup seedless raisins if desired. Melt butter, add cooked chestnuts and bread crumbs. Stir in hot water. Add parsley, lemon rind, salt, pepper, raisins and mix well.

RAISIN AND NUT STUFFING
6 cups bread crumbs; 1 cup seeded raisins; ⅔ cup melted butter; 1 cup hot water; 1 tbsp. salt; ½ tsp. pepper; ½ tsp. sage; 1 cup English walnut meats, broken in pieces. Combine bread, raisins, melted butter with water. Add salt, pepper, sage and nut meats. Mix well.

OYSTER STUFFING
½ cup butter; 6 cups bread crumbs; 2 giblets (cut pieces); 2½ cups oysters (with liquor); ½ cup lemon juice; 1 tbsp. salt; 1½ tsp. pepper; 2 tbsp. parsley (minced). Melt butter. Add bread, giblets, oysters with liquor, mix well. Add lemon juice, salt, pepper, parsley.

HOW TO ROAST
Use any desired stuffing. Dot with butter. Skewer or sew up openings. Place in covered roasting pan and put in a hot oven (500° F.) to sear quickly. When well seared, cover pan, reduce heat to 350° and cook till the breast is tender. If cooked in open pan, baste well as soon as it begins to brown, add a little fat if necessary. Repeat the basting every 15 minutes. Allow 15 or 20 minutes per pound for roasting.

HOW TO MAKE THE GRAVY
Take ¼ cup fat from pan in which turkey was roasted. Put in frying pan. Add giblets which have been cooked and minced. Cook one minute. Add ¼ cup flour and stir till well blended and brown. Add 2 cups stock in which giblets were cooked. Stir over low fire till smooth and thick.

GEE-JERRY- I JUST CAN'T SLEEP THINKING ABOUT THAT $5,000.- REWARD WE EACH GOT- I'LL BET WE'RE THE RICHEST KIDS IN THE WORLD TODAY- WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO WITH YOUR MONEY?
I'M GOING TO SAVE MINE- I'M NOT GOING TO BE FOOLISH AND SPEND IT ALL RIGHT AWAY-
EXCITED? WELL, WHY SHOULDN'T CHESTER AND JERRY BE? WOULDN'T YOU BE EXCITED TOO IF YOU HAD CAPTURED THE WORST BAND OF DESPERADOES IN THE WEST? AND SENT THEM TO JAIL AND RECOVERED THEIR LOOT, AND HAD A PUBLIC CELEBRATION FOR YOU AND RECEIVED A $5,000. REWARD?
I DON'T WANT TO SPEND MINE EITHER- GEE, WOULDN'T IT BE GREAT IF WE WENT INTO PARTNERSHIP AND STARTED A BUSINESS-
SAY- THAT'S A SWELL IDEA- IF WE BOTH PUT OUR MONEY TOGETHER AND SAVED IT TILL WE WERE TWENTY-ONE- I'LL BET WE'D BE WORTH A FORTUNE-
WE COULD START A BIG COMPANY AND NOT HAVE ANYBODY BUT JUST KIDS IN IT- FROM THE PRESIDENT ON DOWN, ALL KIDS-
BOY! I'LL BET WE COULD SHOW UP A LOT OF THE GROWN-UP COMPANIES- WE'D SHOW THE WORLD THAT KIDS ARE JUST AS SMART AS BIG PEOPLE, IF THEY HAVE A CHANCE-
I THINK WE OUGHT TO START A RAILROAD COMPANY- THEN WE COULD HAVE A PRIVATE CAR AND TRAVEL ALL OVER THE COUNTRY-
NO- LET'S START A CANDY COMPANY- IT'D BE MORE FUN FOR KIDS TO WORK IN A CANDY FACTORY-
WAIT! I'VE GOT THE IDEA- WE'LL START A BANK- THEN WITH ALL THE MONEY WE'LL HAVE, WE CAN BUY RAILROADS AND CANDY FACTORIES OR ANYTHING WE WANT-
GEE- THAT'S GREAT- WE'LL START A BIG COMPANY- AND I'LL BE PRESIDENT-
YOU BE PRESIDENT NOTHING- I'LL BE PRESIDENT- AND YOU BE VICE-PRESIDENT-
ALL RIGHT- WE'LL HAVE TWO PRESIDENTS- BOY- WHAT A COMPANY THAT'LL BE- ALL WE HAVE TO DO IS SAVE OUR MONEY-
DO YOU KNOW WHAT- IF WE PUT YOUR $5,000.00 AND MY $5,000.00 OUT FOR SIX PER CENT COMPOUND INTEREST- IN FIFTEEN YEARS- LET'S SEE- I'LL GET THIS QUICK, I'M GOOD AT FIGURES- IN FIFTEEN YEARS- ONE DOLLAR AT SIX PERCENT WOULD BE WORTH $2.40- SO THINK HOW MUCH OUR MONEY WOULD BE WORTH-
HOW MUCH?
$2.40 TIMES TEN THOUSAND EQUALS $24,000.00 THINK OF IT-
YES- BUT WAIT- SUPPOSE WE DID IT THIS WAY- THERE'S A HUNDRED PENNIES IN A DOLLAR- $10,000.00 EQUALS ONE MILLION PENNIES- NOW IF WE PUT ONE PENNY IN THE BANK THE FIRST DAY, AND DOUBLE IT EACH DAY- TWO PENNIES THE SECOND DAY- FOUR PENNIES THE THIRD DAY- EIGHT PENNIES THE FOURTH DAY- M-M-M- LET'S SEE- M-M- GEE- BY THE END OF TWO WEEKS WE'D HAVE OVER $4,000.00 SAVED UP-
BUT THAT ISN'T ALL- LISTEN- AT THE END OF 21 DAYS, WE'D HAVE 'WAY OVER A MILLION DOLLARS-
A MILLION DOLLARS- WHEW! YOU WOULDN'T THINK THAT WAS POSSIBLE-
AND IF WE KEPT IT UP FOR A MONTH- WE'D HAVE OVER $10,000,000.- BUT IF WE STARTED WITH TWO OF OUR MILLION PENNIES INSTEAD OF ONE, WE COULD HAVE $21,000,000.- THINK OF THAT!
OH, GEE- IT JUST MAKES ME DIZZY TO THINK OF IT- LET'S GO TO BED AND FIGURE IT OUT IN THE MORNING
AND SO THIS GIGANTIC PARTNERSHIP WAS FORMED- AND THE TWO BOYS FINALLY DRIFTED OFF INTO SLUMBERLAND, TO DREAM CONTENTEDLY OF FORTUNES SO LARGE THEY COULD NEVER BE COUNTED-
LOOK AT THOSE TWO LITTLE SLEEPY-HEADS- WHO'D EVER THINK THEY WERE THE ONES TO CAPTURE THE TOUGHEST BAND OF OUTLAWS IN THE COUNTRY? YES, SIR- THERE'S A REAL GUMP FOR YOU, CHARLIE-BETTER LET THE LADS SLEEP, ANDY- THEY'VE HAD A MIGHTY BIG DAY FOR A PAIR OF LITTLE FELLOWS LIKE THEM-

Little Orphan Annie
WHY, IT'S UNTHINKABLE- A MAN WITH MY BRAINS, BREAKING ROCKS-THEY ACCUSED ME OF VAGRANCY, AND RESISTING AN OFFICER- WHY, IT WAS ALL A TERRIBLE MISTAKE- I TELL YOU I'M NO MORE GUILTY THAN YOU ARE----
909
SURE- NONE O' YOU BIRDS IS GUILTY- GWAN, CICERO- CUT OUT TH' SPIELIN' AND GET TO WORK-
I WONDER WHAT CAN HAVE BECOME OF MR. CHIZZLER-
THAT CHEATER SURE GOT AWAY WITH PLENTY- SOME CROOKS NEVER SEEM TO GET CAUGHT-
I'M NOT SO SURE, ANNIE- FATE IS PRETTY JUST, AS A RULE- PERHAPS, RIGHT NOW, MR. CHIZZLER IS PAYING FOR THE SHAMEFUL WAY HE TREATED US-
MAYBE YOU'RE RIGHT, "UNCLE" DAN-
HELLO, DOCTOR- COME RIGHT IN-MY-MY- YOU DON'T LOOK MUCH LIKE AN INVALID-
WELL, I'VE LOST A CUSTOMER- YOUR THROAT IS HEALED- OF COURSE, YOU SHOULD NOT TRY TO SING, FOR SEVERAL YEARS- BUT, OTHERWISE, YOU'RE AS GOOD AS NEW-FINE- TELL ME WHAT I OWE YOU, AND I'LL PAY YOU NOW-
GOOD DOCTORS COME HIGH- BUT THEY'RE WORTH ALL THEY COST- WE'RE ALMOST BROKE AGAIN NOW, BUT WHAT OF IT?
WE CAN'T STAY HERE MUCH LONGER, ANNIE- WHAT SHALL WE DO NOW?
WELL, ALL OUR BILLS ARE PAID- I FEEL LIKE A MILLION BUCKS- SHUX- WE'LL GET ALONG SOME WAY- WHEN WE HAVE OUR HEALTH, NOTHIN' CAN STOP US-
WHILE HALF AROUND THE WORLD FROM ANNIE---
IT'S A PIRATE JUNK- THEY ARE CUTTING ACROSS OUR BOW- EVIDENTLY THEY INTEND TO BOARD US-
CEASE FIRING- THEY'VE HAD ENOUGH- GET BACK ON OUR COURSE AT ONCE, CAPTAIN-IT'S LUCKY WE'RE ARMED- THESE WATERS ARE INFESTED WITH PIRATES-

DICK TRACY
by Chester Gould
TRYING TO BE A SMART ALEC DETECTIVE LIKE YER FLATFOOT FOSTER-FATHER, TRACY, EH? YOU WOULD TRY TO PULL A CAT ON US, EH?
OUT-MANEUVERED BY THE CUNNING CROOKS, JUNIOR SUDDENLY FINDS THE TABLES REVERSED AND HIS PLIGHT EVEN MORE PRECARIOUS THAN BEFORE..WHAT WILL BE THE DESPERADO'S NEXT MOVE?
HM! DID YOU THINK FOR A MINUTE A LITTLE SAP OF A KID LIKE YOU COULD TAKE IN "CONFIDENCE" DOLAN? HAH! THAT'S A HOT ONE!
HE'S A SMART LITTLE BRAT, SANDY. WE'VE GOT TO GET HIM OUT OF THE WAY-ENTIRELY OUT OF THE WAY, UNDERSTAND? WE CAN'T TAKE ANY CHANCES-HE'S TOO WISE.
COME DOWN IN THE BASEMENT, DOLAN-I'VE GOT AN IDEA. IT'S PRETTY RAW-BUT IF YOU REALLY WANT TO GET THE KID OUT OF THE WAY-
THAT'S WHAT I SAID-OUT OF THE WAY!
THERE'S AN OLD HOT WATER HEATER-IT'S BEEN ABANDONED FOR TWO YEARS..IT'S HEAVILY INSULATED TO KEEP IN THE HEAT.. BUT IT WOULD ALSO KEEP IN SOUND! GET IT?
YEAH-I THINK SO.
YOU SEE BY KNOCKING OFF SOME OF THESE RIVETS-THE BOTTOM COMES OUT.
I'LL HURRY UPSTAIRS AND GET THE KID!
YEAH-GET 'IM-QUICK! I WANT TO GET THIS THING OVER WITH.
MEANWHILE DICK TRACY LISTENS TO DONNIE GIDLEY RETELL WHAT HE KNOWS ABOUT THE BABY CARRIAGE FILLED WITH BONDS......
AND THE FELLOW GAVE ME A DIME AND ASKED ME TO PUSH THE BABY BUGGY DOWN TO THE NEXT CORNER WHERE HIS WIFE WAS WAITING-I DIDN'T KNOW THE BUGGY HAD BONDS OR WHATEVER IT WAS IN IT.
AND OF COURSE THE TRUCK HIT YOU WHILE YOU WERE CROSSING THE STREET.
WHAT KIND OF A LOOKING MAN WAS THIS FELLOW WHO ASKED YOU TO PUSH THE BABY CARRIAGE?
HE HAD KIND OF ROUND EYES AND HIS HAIR HUNG DOWN ON HIS FOREHEAD.
THAT DESCRIPTION TALLIES EXACTLY WITH THE FINGERPRINTS ON THE STOLEN BONDS-THAT MAN WAS "CONFIDENCE" DOLAN AND IN KIDNAPING JUNIOR FROM THE HOSPITAL, THE THIEVES MADE A MISTAKE, THINKING THEY WERE GETTING DONNIE, WHOM THEY WANTED TO KEEP FROM TALKING.
WE MUST LOCATE "CONFIDENCE" DOLAN IN ORDER TO FIND JUNIOR!
ALL RIGHT-LET'S GET HIM UP IN THERE!
OW! WHAT ARE YOU DOING? OUCH!
PUSH 'IM UP IN THERE-COME ON!
NOW GIVE ME THAT BLOW TORCH...I'M GONNA SOLDER THE BOTTOM BACK IN THIS TANK. WHEN THEY FIND THIS KID WE'LL BE THOUSANDS OF MILES AWAY FROM HERE AND THE BRAT WON'T BE ABLE TO TALK.

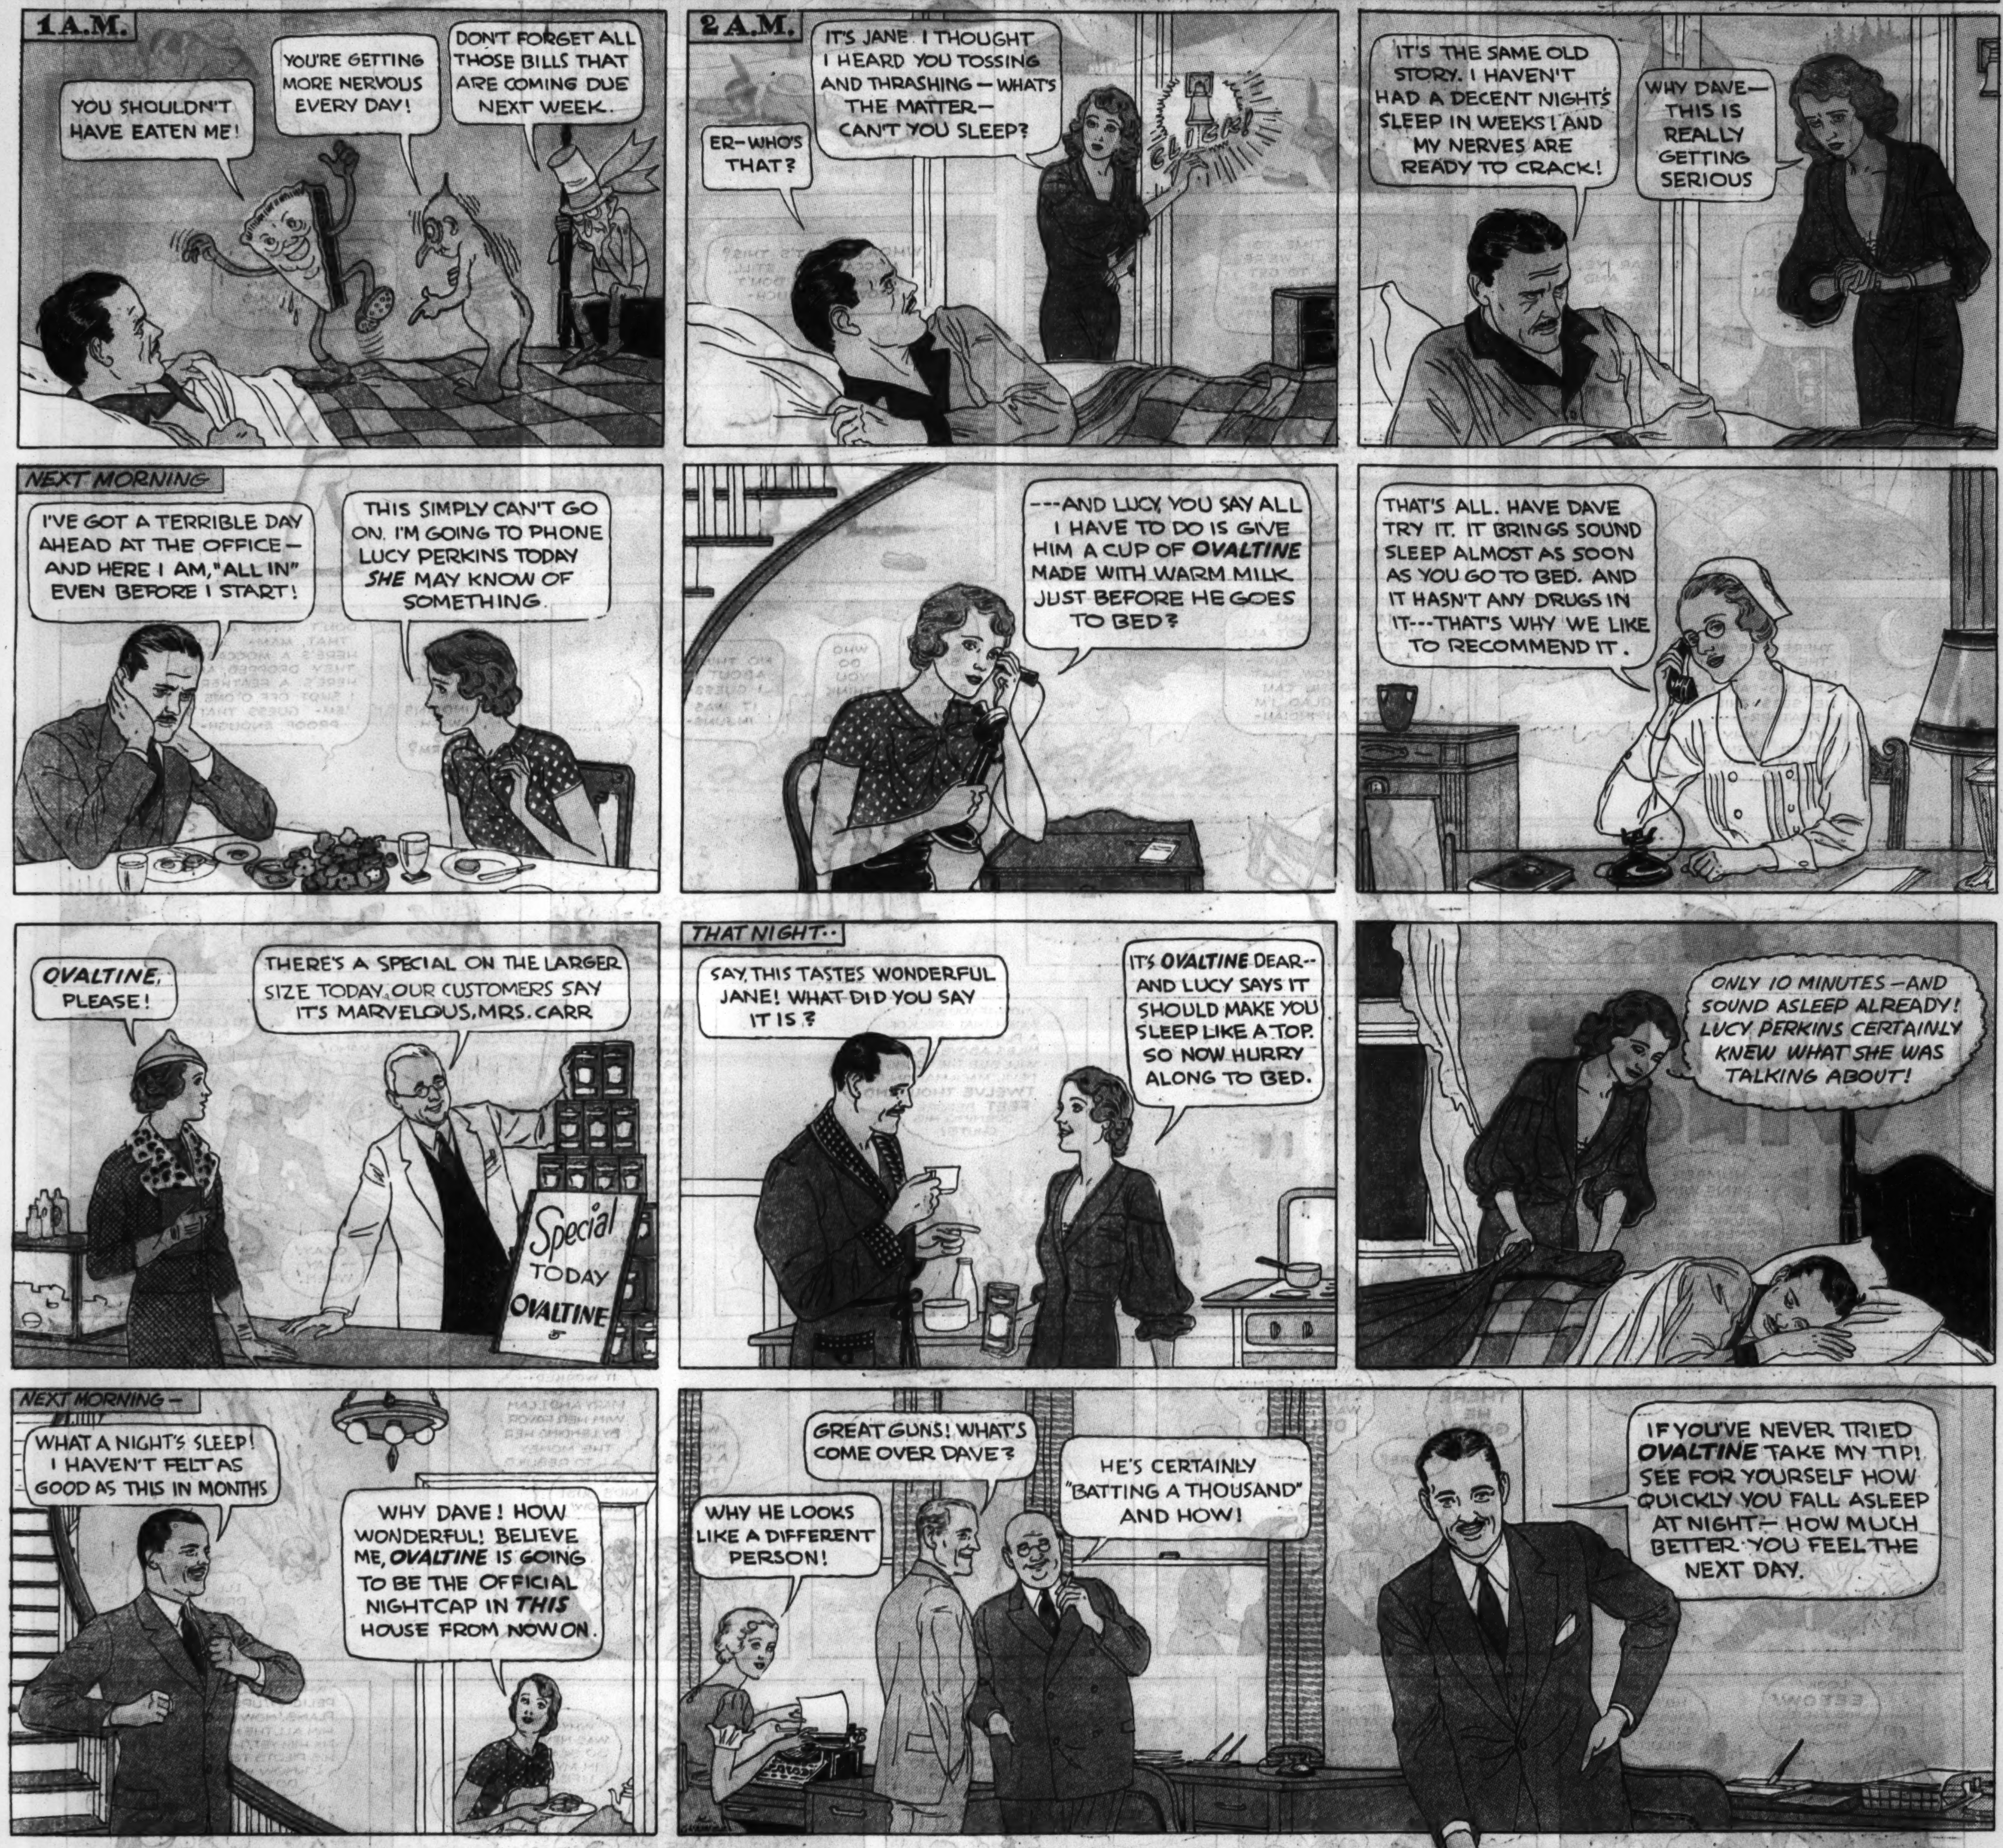
HIS SLEEPLESS NIGHTS

...AND HOW HE MADE THEM A THING OF THE PAST...



1 A.M.
YOU SHOULDN'T HAVE EATEN ME!
YOU'RE GETTING MORE NERVOUS EVERY DAY!
DON'T FORGET ALL THOSE BILLS THAT ARE COMING DUE NEXT WEEK.
2 A.M.
ER—WHO'S THAT?
IT'S JANE. I THOUGHT I HEARD YOU TOSSING AND THRASHING — WHAT'S THE MATTER— CAN'T YOU SLEEP?
CLICK!
IT'S THE SAME OLD STORY. I HAVEN'T HAD A DECENT NIGHT'S SLEEP IN WEEKS! AND MY NERVES ARE READY TO CRACK!
WHY DAVE— THIS IS REALLY GETTING SERIOUS
NEXT MORNING
I'VE GOT A TERRIBLE DAY AHEAD AT THE OFFICE— AND HERE I AM, "ALL IN" EVEN BEFORE I START!
THIS SIMPLY CAN'T GO ON. I'M GOING TO PHONE LUCY PERKINS TODAY. SHE MAY KNOW OF SOMETHING.
---AND LUCY, YOU SAY ALL I HAVE TO DO IS GIVE HIM A CUP OF OVALTINE MADE WITH WARM MILK JUST BEFORE HE GOES TO BED?
THAT'S ALL. HAVE DAVE TRY IT. IT BRINGS SOUND SLEEP ALMOST AS SOON AS YOU GO TO BED. AND IT HASN'T ANY DRUGS IN IT---THAT'S WHY WE LIKE TO RECOMMEND IT.
OVALTINE, PLEASE!
THERE'S A SPECIAL ON THE LARGER SIZE TODAY. OUR CUSTOMERS SAY IT'S MARVELOUS, MRS. CARR
Special TODAY OVALTINE THAT NIGHT..
SAY, THIS TASTES WONDERFUL JANE! WHAT DID YOU SAY IT IS?
IT'S OVALTINE DEAR— AND LUCY SAYS IT SHOULD MAKE YOU SLEEP LIKE A TOP. SO NOW HURRY ALONG TO BED.
ONLY 10 MINUTES —AND SOUND ASLEEP ALREADY! LUCY PERKINS CERTAINLY KNEW WHAT SHE WAS TALKING ABOUT!
NEXT MORNING—
WHAT A NIGHT'S SLEEP! I HAVEN'T FELT AS GOOD AS THIS IN MONTHS
WHY DAVE! HOW WONDERFUL! BELIEVE ME, OVALTINE IS GOING TO BE THE OFFICIAL NIGHTCAP IN THIS HOUSE FROM NOW ON.
GREAT GUNS! WHAT'S COME OVER DAVE?
WHY HE LOOKS LIKE A DIFFERENT PERSON!
HE'S CERTAINLY "BATTING A THOUSAND" AND HOW!
IF YOU'VE NEVER TRIED OVALTINE TAKE MY TIP! SEE FOR YOURSELF HOW QUICKLY YOU FALL ASLEEP AT NIGHT— HOW MUCH BETTER YOU FEEL THE NEXT DAY.

SLEEP COMES QUICKLY

This Natural, Drugless Way

No More Bed-Tossing —New Energy Tomorrow

NOW— say good-bye to sleepless nights. Put an end to tossing and turning. For here is a way to get sound sleep quickly every night—entirely without drugs.

It is a delicious food-drink you take with warm milk just before going to bed. Then fall asleep almost as soon as your head touches the pillow. And sleep all night as naturally and peacefully as a child.

In the morning you awaken clear-eyed, refreshed—nerves calmer, mind clearer by far. For this new way rebuilds your body, your tissues, your nerves while you sleep—and increases your energy, too.

This remarkable food-drink is called Ovaltine—and acts to combat the 3 most common causes of sleeplessness in these 3 different ways.

First: Ovaltine, taken as a warm drink at bedtime, tends to draw excess blood away from the brain. Thus inviting mental calm and "conditioning" the mind for sleep.

Third: Ovaltine supplies important food elements, the absence of which, in ordinary diet, leads to irritated nerves and sleeplessness.

A cup of Ovaltine, in fact, provides, in easily digestive form, the food elements necessary for rebuilding nerve, brain and muscle tissues while you sleep. That's why millions take it night after night largely on physicians' advice.

Start tonight! 'Phone your druggist or grocer for a tin of Ovaltine now. Mix 2 to 4 teaspoonfuls in a cup of warm milk and drink it just before you go to bed. You'll sleep more soundly than you have, probably, in weeks and months.

Or, if you prefer to try before buying, mail the coupon on this page for a generous trial supply.

NOTE: Thousands of nervous people, men and women, are using Ovaltine to restore vitality when fatigued. It is also highly recommended by physicians for nervous, underweight children—and as a strengthening food for nursing mothers, convalescents, and the aged.

CUT OUT THE COUPON AND MAIL IT IN TODAY.

LITTLE JOE
THOSE INDIANS STOOD BY, HOPING TO SEE ME DROWN, AND THEN LEFT ME FOR THE WOLVES- HA! I'LL EVEN MATTERS WITH THEM, AND WITH OLD UTAH, TOO-
TALK ABOUT KILLING TWO BIRDS WITH ONE STONE- I'LL SET THE RANCH BARN AFIRE- - I'LL DROP THIS INDIAN MOCCASIN NEARBY, AND I'LL LET OLD UTAH GET A LOOK AT THIS DISGUISE-
THE OAKS AND UTAH WILL LOSE A BARN FULL OF CATTLE AND HORSES- THEN OLD UTAH WILL ATTEND TO THE INDIANS FOR ME-
OR MAYBE THE INDIANS WILL SETTLE FOR UTAH- EITHER WAY IT GOES, I WIN- LUCKY THERE ARE SO MANY TRACKS HERE- MINE WON'T BE NOTICED-
UTAH! UTAH! WAKE UP- THE BARN IS ON FIRE-
I HEAR YE, JOE- AND I SEE A SHADOW MOVIN' AWAY- HM-M-
NO TIME TO LOSE, IF WE'RE GOIN' TO GET THEM CATTLE AND TH' HOSSES OUT IN TIME-
WHOA! WHAT'S THIS? A MOCCASIN- STILL, MAYBE THAT DON'T PROVE SO MUCH-
OOP- THERE'S ONE O' TH' SKULKIN' REPTILES NOW- IT'S INJUNS ALL RIGHT-
THERE- HE SEES THE MOCCASIN- NOW HE'S LOOKIN' AROUND- AH- NOW HE SEES THIS FEATHER-----
YI! WHY, I NEVER EVEN SAW HIM DRAW-
WHAT INFERNAL LUCK- THEY GOT ALL THE HORSES AND CATTLE OUT ALIVE- BR-R-R- HOW THAT OLD FOSSIL CAN SHOOT- GLAD I'M NOT AN INDIAN-
THE STOCK IS ALL SAFE- WE CAN BUILD ANOTHER BARN-
WHO DO YOU THINK IT COULD HAVE BEEN, UTAH?
NO THINKIN' ABOUT IT, I GUESS- IT WAS INJUNS-OH, UTAH- WHY WOULD ANY INDIANS WISH US HARM?
DON'T KNOW AS TO THAT, MAM- BUT HERE'S A MOCCASIN THEY DROPPED, AND HERE'S A FEATHER I SHOT OFF O' ONE OF 'EM- GUESS THAT'S PROOF ENOUGH-

by ZACK MOSLEY
BOY! WATCH 'EM GO! I'M GONNA DRIVE A RACER PLANE SOME DAY! OH SIS!--THERE'S THE PEANUT MAN- CAN I HAVE A BAG?
WHY- PIN-FEATHERS- YOU'VE HAD TWO BAGS ALREADY-NUMBER NINE WINS! ELEVEN IS SECOND---FIVE COMES IN A CLOSE THIRD!! WHAT A RACE-WHAT A RACE!!
HOORAY!
HOORAY
FO' NUMBER NINE
NOW-IF YOU WILL WATCH THAT SPECK OF A PLANE SOME THREE MILES ABOVE US, YOU WILL SEE THE YOUNG DAREDEVIL, MACK MARTIN, DROP TWELVE THOUSAND FEET BEFORE OPENING HIS CHUTE!
WHERE?
THERE!
MACK IS DOING THIS JUMP SO HE CAN PAY MARY FOR THE DAMAGE HE DID TO HER LUNCHROOM WHEN HE UNAVOIDABLY CRASHED INTO IT---DART, KNOWING THAT MACK WILL NOT BE PAID IF HE OPENS HIS CHUTE TOO SOON, HAS BRIBED THE ALTITUDE FLYERS TO INTERFERE WITH MACK'S SUCCESS.
NOW, ALL I GOTTA DO IS JERK HIS RIP CORD AS HE LEAVES THE WING!
--BE SURE TO CLEAR THE PLANE!
OKAY! --SAY WHEN!
YOU'RE OFF, BUDDY!
HEY!! WHAT'S THIS?
SNAP
THERE HE GOES!
WHERE?
WHY---HIS CHUTE'S OPENING! I THOUGHT THIS WAS TO BE A DELAYED DROP!
FAKE!
--JERKIN' MY CHUTE OPEN TO QUEER MY ACT!! I CAN'T IMAGINE WHY-- --BUT I'LL SHOW 'EM! IT'S NOT TOO LATE YET. WHERE'S MY KNIFE?
HA-HA- IT WORKED-- NOW HE CAN'T PAY MARY AND I CAN WIN HER FAVOR BY LENDING HER THE MONEY TO REBUILD.
WHAT KIND OF A GYP IS THIS, DART?
AW, TH' KID'S JUST YELLOW!
MACK QUICKLY SLASHED THE SHROUD LINES--
I'LL DROP 12,000 FEET YET!
I'VE GOT TO! IF IT'S LESS THAN 12,000 I WON'T GET PAID!
LOOK! EEEOW! HIS CHUTE'S BROKEN-
HE'S FALLING LIKE A BULLET!
OH-OH- I CAN'T BEAR TO LOOK!
HEY- HE'S FLATTENING OUT---HE'S SLOWING DOWN!
THANK GOODNESS!!
OH-- THAT'S RIGHT. THE LAW REQUIRES EXHIBITION JUMPERS TO WEAR TWO PARACHUTES.
LOOK SIS! ANOTHER CHUTE-- IT'S OPEN!
HOORAY FOR MACK MARTIN!
WHAT A DROP
WHAT NERVE
HEY! LET ME DOWN FROM HERE!
BRAVO
WHY--I WAS NEVER SO SCARED IN MY LIFE!
ME TOO, MY HEART'S STILL JUMPIN' UP AND DOWN!
WHY- THE LONG-LEGGED PELICAN! UPSETTING MY PLANS! NOW MARY'LL LIKE HIM ALL THE MORE! BUT I'LL FIX HIM YET! HE'LL BE TAKING HIS PILOTS TEST SOON--- I KNOW WHAT I'LL DO TO HIM!
--TO BE CONTINUED

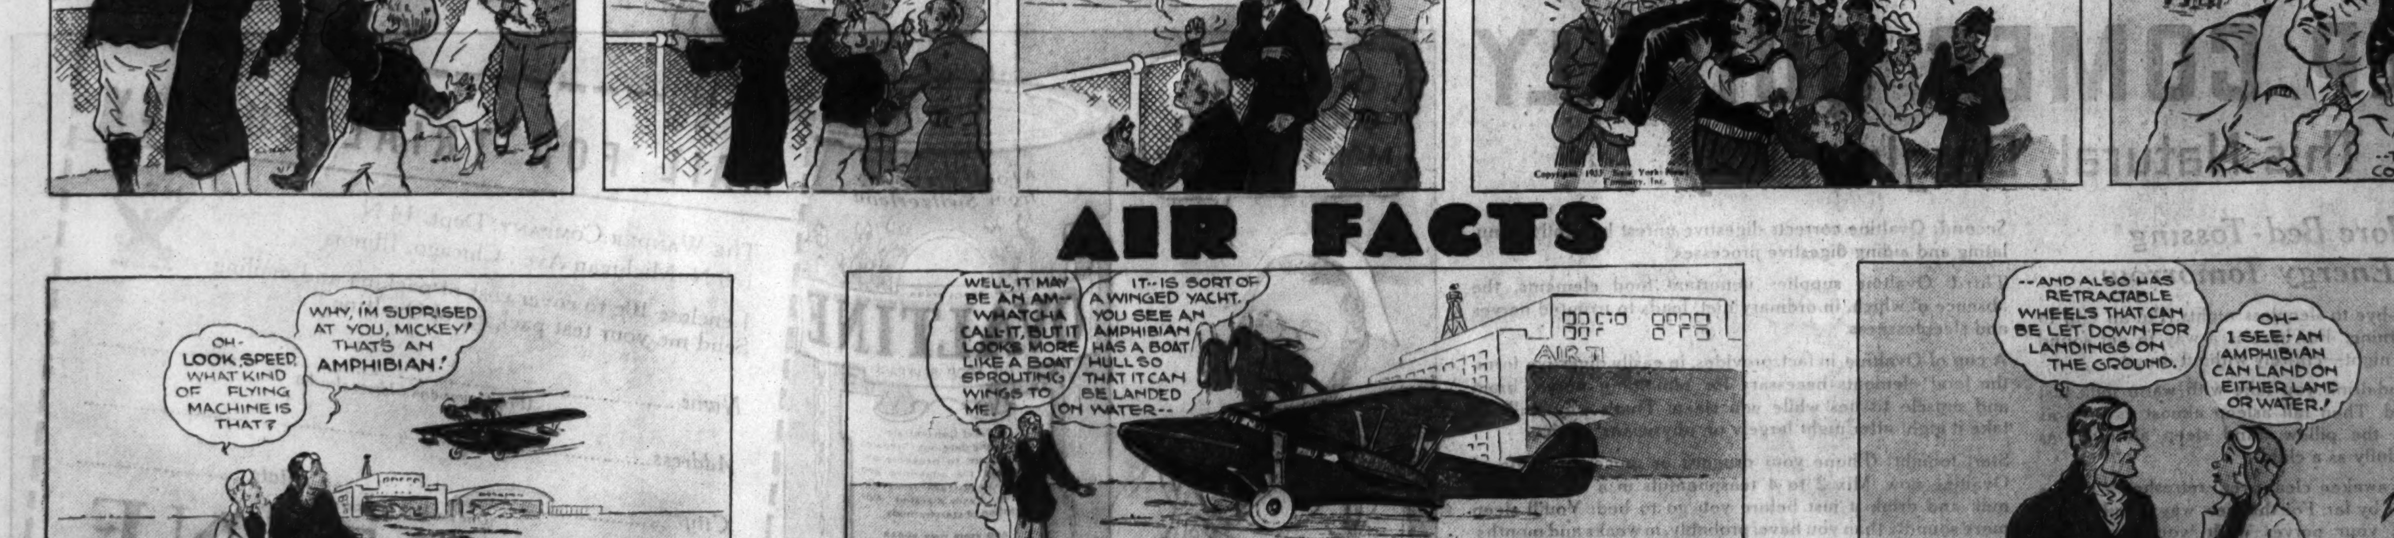
AIR FACTS



OH- LOOK SPEED. WHAT KIND OF FLYING MACHINE IS THAT?
WHY, I'M SUPRISED AT YOU, MICKEY! THAT'S AN AMPHIBIAN!
WELL, IT MAY BE AN AM-WHATCHA CALL-IT, BUT IT LOOKS MORE LIKE A BOAT SPROUTING WINGS TO ME.
IT--IS SORT OF A WINGED YACHT. YOU SEE AN AMPHIBIAN HAS A BOAT HULL SO THAT IT CAN BE LANDED ON WATER-- AIR
--AND ALSO HAS RETRACTABLE WHEELS THAT CAN BE LET DOWN FOR LANDINGS ON THE GROUND.
OH- I SEE- AN AMPHIBIAN CAN LAND ON EITHER LAND OR WATER!

I'M BROKE TOO.
BUT OUR HERO IS BY NO MEANS UNDAUNTED IN HIS EFFORTS TO RAISE MONEY FOR UNCLE WILLIE'S LIBERATION, NO SIR!
SAY YOU POYS BEDDER QUID NOW - IT ISS TIME I VAS CLOSING UP DER PLACE.
WELL, THAT CRAP GAME DIDNT DO UNCLE WILLIE'S DEFENSE FUND NO GOOD - I EVEN LOST MY OWN DOUGH.
SAY, BUDDY - WHAT TIME IS IT?
LEMME SEE - IT'S EXACKLY ONE FORTY FIVE.
GIMME THE CLOCK, KID - I'M LIABLE TO FORGET IT.
SAY LISTEN, THAT TURNIP'S NO GOOD - IT'S ONLY VALUE IS SENTIMENTAL.
WELL, I'M SENTIMENTAL.
KONK!
HA!
COME IN HERE, YOU BUM!
WELL WOT IN TH-?
BAM!
OW!
I WANT TO CONGRATULATE YOU ON NABBING THIS MUGG, MAMIE - YOU CERTAINLY GAVE HIM PLENTY OF PUNISHMENT.
WELL YOU SEE I WAS WAITING UP FOR MY HUSBAND IN THE DARK AND I THOUGHT THIS GENTLEMAN WAS HIM COMING IN.
POOR UNCLE WILLIE I GUESS HE'S SAFER WHERE HE'S AT.
MY PALS! LEAVIN' ME HERE. TSK TSK TSK. THERE AINT NO JUSTICE!
I'LL SAY DERE AINT - HERE I READ ABOUT A FOOTBALL PLAYER WHICH BUSTED TWO FELLERS' LEGS IN ONE GAME AND HE'S DE LION OF DE HOUR, WHILE I'LL GET TREE OR FOUR YEARS FOR SIMPLY STUNNIN' A SAP WITH A BLACK JACK.

WHY DeLEE BEAUTY CULTURE TRAINING IS BEST

After visiting the DeLEE University of Beauty Culture a prominent shop owner said: "Let me tell you exactly why I want DeLEE trained operators in my shop." Here are the reasons as she gave them:

DeLEE graduates have been personally trained by Madame Louise, internationally famous stylist and beauty expert. They know more about the finer points of beauty culture and hairdressing than do the "trade school" trained girls.

DeLEE students have been trained in the use of modern, up-to-date equipment, such as is found in high class shops. Therefore shop owners do not have to re-train DeLEE graduates in the use of their equipment.

DeLEE Offers You More

The aim at DeLEE is to give you better instruction and thus prepare you for a good paying position in a high class beauty shop. Almost any school can train you to become an "ordinary operator." But "ordinary" operators don't earn much money. If you want to become a genuine beauty expert and earn more money, you should investigate DeLEE methods.

It is true that there are "bigger" schools where you receive "mass" type of "trade school" training, and it is true that there are "older" schools where you may learn how to operate old fashioned equipment and may learn antiquated methods in small, stuffy classrooms. But it is equally true that there is NO OTHER school which has as much to offer you in SUPERIOR TRAINING as does DeLEE. At DeLEE you learn quickly and easily.

Easy Terms—Act Now
Visit DeLEE and learn how the FREE employment service will help you to obtain a good paying position when you are graduated. Talk with the DeLEE dean, Miss Ruby Lorrain Stevens, and let her show you through this marvelous, modern institution of learning.

Salesmen, Solicitors, Etc.

A FASCINATING BUSINESS with a Big Future for a Few Men.

Crew Managers—Salesmen—Collectors.

Not "just another old one"—but a new and intensely interesting vocation created by the largest organization of its kind, with headquarters in Chicago. You do not have to know our line, but you must be interested in people and possess conversational ability. Selling experience in any field would lay an excellent ground work for this plan, which has met with such unusual success that it has enabled us to expand, to absorb other companies, and to establish new outlets in spite of so-called depressed conditions. Our success has also been the success of our men. You will be virtually your own boss and the way you use your time determines your future and your income. We must have reliable, dependable men who can work without watching and who know an opportunity when they see one. Openings limited. 9-12 A. M. 334 W. 63d-st., or 3320 Lincoln-av., 1st fl.

MEN

The anticipated Xmas increase in our business demands additional help. Just 24 days left to make money before Xmas.

We want to interview 5 men who want to know how to make $24 a day between now and Xmas. We will show you how to make at least $400 in the next 24 days.

We are not having any trouble merchandising our product—it's a new invention, patented—everybody wants it and we make big profits in the Xmas season. SURE, we are working hard, but the financial returns justify our efforts. Now is our big season.

Within the last six weeks we have paid men from $30 to as high as $406.50 for ONE WEEK'S WORK—yesterday [November 24th] we paid four new men $71, $69, $76, and $81 FOR THE DAY.

This business is clean and honorable—not a peddling racket—but a real permanent business and just perfect for this season of the year. Some of our more experienced men will earn $700 to $1,000 before Xmas. How will you face Xmas—with plenty of money or in need?

This opportunity only comes once a year in our business and we look forward to it eagerly as a time to make a lot of real money.

However, this is a permanent all year round business, and the next 24 days offer unusual money making possibilities.

We have no time for floaters, insincere, or men on their uppers. Men must be of good appearance and have good references.

Apply for interview Monday ONLY, Room 1021, Mather Tower, 75 E. Wacker-dr., from 9 to 12 a. m.

Men in Gary apply Room 406, Gary State Bank Building, Gary.

Men in Evanston apply Room 403, Evanston State Bank Building, Evanston.

MAN WHO WISHES TO MAKE PERMAnent connection in direct-to-consumer merchandising with largest corporation of its kind in the field, with unequalled opportunity will find an ideal connection by writing for an appointment. Prefer man who wishes to learn selling rather than one with fixed sales ideas, who has good references and a clear record. Official of company here from east will personally go into details with you for work in Chicago or suburbs. Give age, present occupation, etc. in replying. Earnings modest to start, but right man can increase income steadily. Address O D 470, Tribune.

WE HAVE OPENING

for 3 ambitious young men, 21-25 years of age, to write orders for large Public Service Co. These positions are permanent, with opp. to advance; no selling exp. necessary. Apply Monday, 9-11 a. m. only, Room 231, 140 S. Dearborn-st., Mr. Prussing.

WANTED—MALE HELP.

Miscellaneous.

MEN—MONDAY!

While It May Take Time to Equal Some of These Earnings, You Will Start Out With Assurances of an Early Income!

Let us take some earnings for the first 21 days of Nov. and compare them with the Oct. earnings of these same men. First, there is T. P. whose $161.50 for the past three weeks promises to better his entire Oct. income, especially with 9 more Nov. days to go. P. B. for the same period was running well ahead of last month, with $137.75. H. W. with $115.00 for 21 Nov. days will likely top his Oct. earnings of $251.50. J. N., in charge of our stock room, made $160.00 in Oct. in addition to his regular duties—and he is out to tie it or pass it this month. M. J. for 21 Nov. days has $185.00, which will run him ahead of Oct.

These are moderate incomes. We now step into another class in the same office: C. G. in 21 Nov. days, made $192.60 against $231.50 for Oct., and therefore will pass last month. H. H. with $253.75 for 21 days this month passed all of last month. He has earned generously since the first 21 days—as the others have also—and should wind up with well above $400.00 this month. Last Thursday, ill enough to be in bed, he went out and made $24.00 in 2 hours. This man was a construction engineer, worked on many large civic projects, and started in this work rather slowly.

W. W., once a coal mine executive, made $346.10 the first 3 weeks in Nov., or better than all of Oct. He unquestionably will make beyond $500.00 for Nov. T. N. L. made $785.75 in Oct., and is hitting at the same ration for Nov.—and may pass last month. G. B., once a customers' man in a La Salle St. brokerage office, made $322.45 the first 21 days in Nov., a gain over all of Oct. Mr. B. will make about $475.00 for Nov.

Here are some earnings for the past week in one of our offices: C. W. M., $82.30. This man, newly come into this business, made $223.07 his first 3 weeks, starting end of Oct. S. C. W. just had a $70.74 week—V. A. S. just made $68.00 in the same time—H. E., $80.60 for the week—C. A. W., $92.17 for the week and $203.17 for 3 weeks. W. H. made $104.50 the past week.

L. B. made $245.00 the past 3 weeks—and in the same time W. L. earned $206.39. These men and the others mentioned came from various trades, businesses and professions, and all are with our Chicago organization. But those named do not comprise all of the earnings of a like nature in the same time. They are cross-sections only—most of them grab samples. We have many men who have joined us in the past two weeks who are clicking. H. B. made $47.75 the first 6 working hours of last Thursday—the day this was written. J. F., who came here from Russia some years ago, unfamiliar with our language, again proved his increasing earning power by making $48.25 in the same time. We can point to numerous examples of earnings in a day ranging from $20.00 up to $100.00 and more—and a greater number of men constantly getting into good earnings.

None of these men had experience in this business when they joined us—only a few had even a parallel experience. They did not invest a penny or buy anything or make a deposit, nor do you. But—they were workers, sincere, determined—as trustworthy out of sight as in sign. They had character—and character is necessary. They are men ranging from about 25 to 47 years. They have home connections — responsibilities that they must meet. Are YOU situated similarly? While a car is usually of value in this work, it is not a demand. The work is in Chicago and its suburbs. If you are acceptable and believe you like the work, you receive intensive training—and get out into earning possibilities without loss of time. We can point to many men in the national organization who are laying away genuine fortunes. One man has taken out of this business about $43,000.00 in cash in the past 40 months. Our national record was broken last month. One man made $2,600.00. We are closing our fourth consecutive sales year. As we approach 1934, every sign points to greater achievements.

This company does a world-wide business, and in Europe its product outsells all others in a like class. We are rapidly nearing that point right here. Skilled, successful men train you. There is no experimenting here. If you have the qualities that make you a consistent worker, you can win under our tutelage and co-operation. This is not an invitation to the down-and-outer, or the part-time man. Nor is it a tide-over, but a steady dependable business, not limited seasons — a business in which there is no seniority. You get the same treatment, the same rate of compensation, paid to these other men, and this company is amply able at all times to pay you. Its world success, backed by seven great factories and additional assembling plants, proves that its administrative forces and its product are able to command world respect and world trade!

Monday, Nov. 27, from 9:30 a. m. to 1:00 p. m., you may talk with a company executive in any of the following branches—selecting the one nearest you. Men who live in any of the suburbs of Chicago will call at the proper office designed below. Note the time, date and address.

If you live south of 22d street to the canal, and south of the canal and 47th street, call at Room 430 in the Hyde Park Natl. Bank Bldg., 1525 E. 53d-st.

If you live north of those boundaries, but south of Grand-av., call at Room 910 Engineering Bldg., 222 N. Wells-st.

If you live north of Grand-av., call at Room 215 McGrahan Bldg., 1046 Wilson-av

We suggest that you clip out this ad and avoid needless travel. It is easy to reach the right office within the hours named. Suburban men simply extend these boundary lines.

ARE YOU TIRED ANSWERING ADS?

If you are energetic, dynamic, and of a self-determined nature we may be able to fit you into a position to contact our customers. Position is steady; some public contact experience and A1 character essential; will discuss pay at personal interview. Monday, between 9 and 4 p. m.

STANDS FOR

BRYN MAWR Apartment Hotel

BRYN MAWR at KENMORE.

1. 32 prospective tenants came in to see the Bryn Mawr's newly furnished 1 and 2 room apts.

2. Five applications were signed on Sunday. 27 prospects wanted to compare other accommodations with those they had seen here.

3. On Monday four more new tenants were obtained.

4. On Tuesday two people signed up for Dec. 1st occupancy and one gentleman called long distance from Minneapolis to ask us to prepare a 6 Months' Lease on an apt. he had seen while in Chicago on Sunday.

5. Wednesday, the day this report was written for The Tribune, 5 more applications for permanent occupancy were signed.

Obviously, there are many reasons why so many people decided in favor of the Bryn Mawr.

AUBURN

1933-1932-1931
EIGHTS AND TWELVES.
NEVER BEFORE AND NEVER AGAIN SUCH LOW PRICES!
ALL MUST BE SOLD
BY NOVEMBER 30TH.

Just think of it! Twenty-three original dual ratio, free wheeling Auburns—sedans, coupes, convertibles—all spic and span—just like the day they left the factory—now being closed out at phenomenal prices! Dealers could buy these cars from us and resell them at a profit. Most of them are de luxe models, and every one will give you new-car satisfaction today. See them now.

OFFICIALS' CARS.

Yes, these Auburns were owned by factory executives and only driven enough to break in the motors. Salon Auburns and two 1932 de luxe Cords included in this sale. Backed by the full Auburn guarantee.

NO CASH NOW.

The allowance on your present car will probably equal or exceed the amount of our small down payment. Balance on easy terms.

The Tide

IS

BUSINESS IS BETTER, SELLING EASIER, IN CHICAGO

This great, mid-American market stands out like a lighthouse in the sales fog. Increased grain prices have already added untold millions to the great hog-and-corn agricultural region of which Chicago is the capital. Industry is quickening. Retail sales are improving. Chicago provides an attractive market for vigorous sales promotion.

Advertising costs are low. Chicago is one of the few cities in which one newspaper can do the job alone. The Tribune's 50% family coverage of Chicago and suburbs is concentrated among the able-to-buy. These families—600,000 of them—constitute practically 100% of the market for most advertised products.

Taking advantage of this sales opportunity, the department stores of Chicago during the first ten months of this year increased their total linage in the Tribune 348,405 lines over the same period a year ago while all other newspapers combined lost 1,594,392 lines. The Tribune's share of total department store advertising linage gained from 29.0% to 37.7%.

Your Chicago market is the Tribune reader. Besides the 600,000 family coverage of Metropolitan Chicago, the Tribune reaches over 150,000 of the same able-to-buy type of families in trading centers adjacent to Chicago. And you can buy the Tribune at the lowest cost per thousand of any newspaper in Chicago.

See an up-to-date analysis of this market. It shows how you can reach all the logical buyers of your product. Phone, write or telegraph for a Tribune representative with facts and figures.

PRACTICAL DECORATION FROM STAGE SETS

This Little Pig Stayed Home on Thanksgiving

Crown Pork or Whole Roast Suckling Makes Substitute for Turkey.

By MARY MEADE.

WHO-O-O'S afraid of the big bad wolf? Well, at least not the little pig who went into the crown roast of pork served to me last night for dinner. He couldn't have helped knowing that his plump young ribs were curled about in a most thrifty, money-saving dish nicely calculated to shoo the voracious wolf from the door.

So if it's not to be turkey this year at your house for Thanksgiving take a tip from one of the knowing little pigs and crown the feast with a practical roast pork substitute.

Fruit for Stuffing.

Likewise, give a thought to your stuffing or, rather, to that of the roast. Cranberries and diced apples formed the flavor background of the crown stuffing last night's hostess offered us. And when the regal affair was bestowed upon the biggest family platter and fat baked apples and sprigs of parsley placed around it had a truly bountiful look. So now for the details:

THANKSGIVING CROWN ROAST OF PORK
6 pounds crown pork roast
1 cup raw cranberries
2 cups diced apples
1-3 cup sugar
1 dozen large soda crackers

Have the crown roast tied in shape by the butcher. Wipe it with a damp cloth and rub over with salt and pepper. Sear in a roaster in a hot oven (500 de-

The silver screen, long an exponent of contemporary decoration, has helped to make it widely popular by featuring smart yet conservative modern interiors of which this living room scene from Paramount's "Trouble in Paradise" is a typical example. The simplicity of the lines of the furniture and its comfort are its chief charms. There is no straining for effect in this set.

Film Interiors Simplified for Use in Homes

Designers Combine Modern Furniture with Empire and Directoire Styles.

By CLAIRE WINSLOW.

BEEN to the movies lately? Then you'll agree that beautiful women and good-looking men are not the only magnets that draw the eye to the silver screen. The man who never has his name in lights a foot high, the fellow who designs the gorgeous sets against which the pictures are shot is a silent but a powerful factor in the evolution of the films. And not merely in the films, either, but in your own everyday life as well.

For the talkies are setting the pace in interior decoration these days. Rooms that are the last word in modern décor make such a vivid impression on many men and women that they are showing an active interest in the newest types of furniture, rugs, and draperies. They are injecting into their own homes some of the freshness, verve, and beauty they have seen on the screen.

Colonial Modifications.

O, to be sure, they are not going in for the super-extravagant furnishings for which the films are famous. They are keeping to their own tastes and budgets, but according to the opinions of decorators and furniture merchants they are showing quite definitely that the interesting modern note being struck by the best of the movie

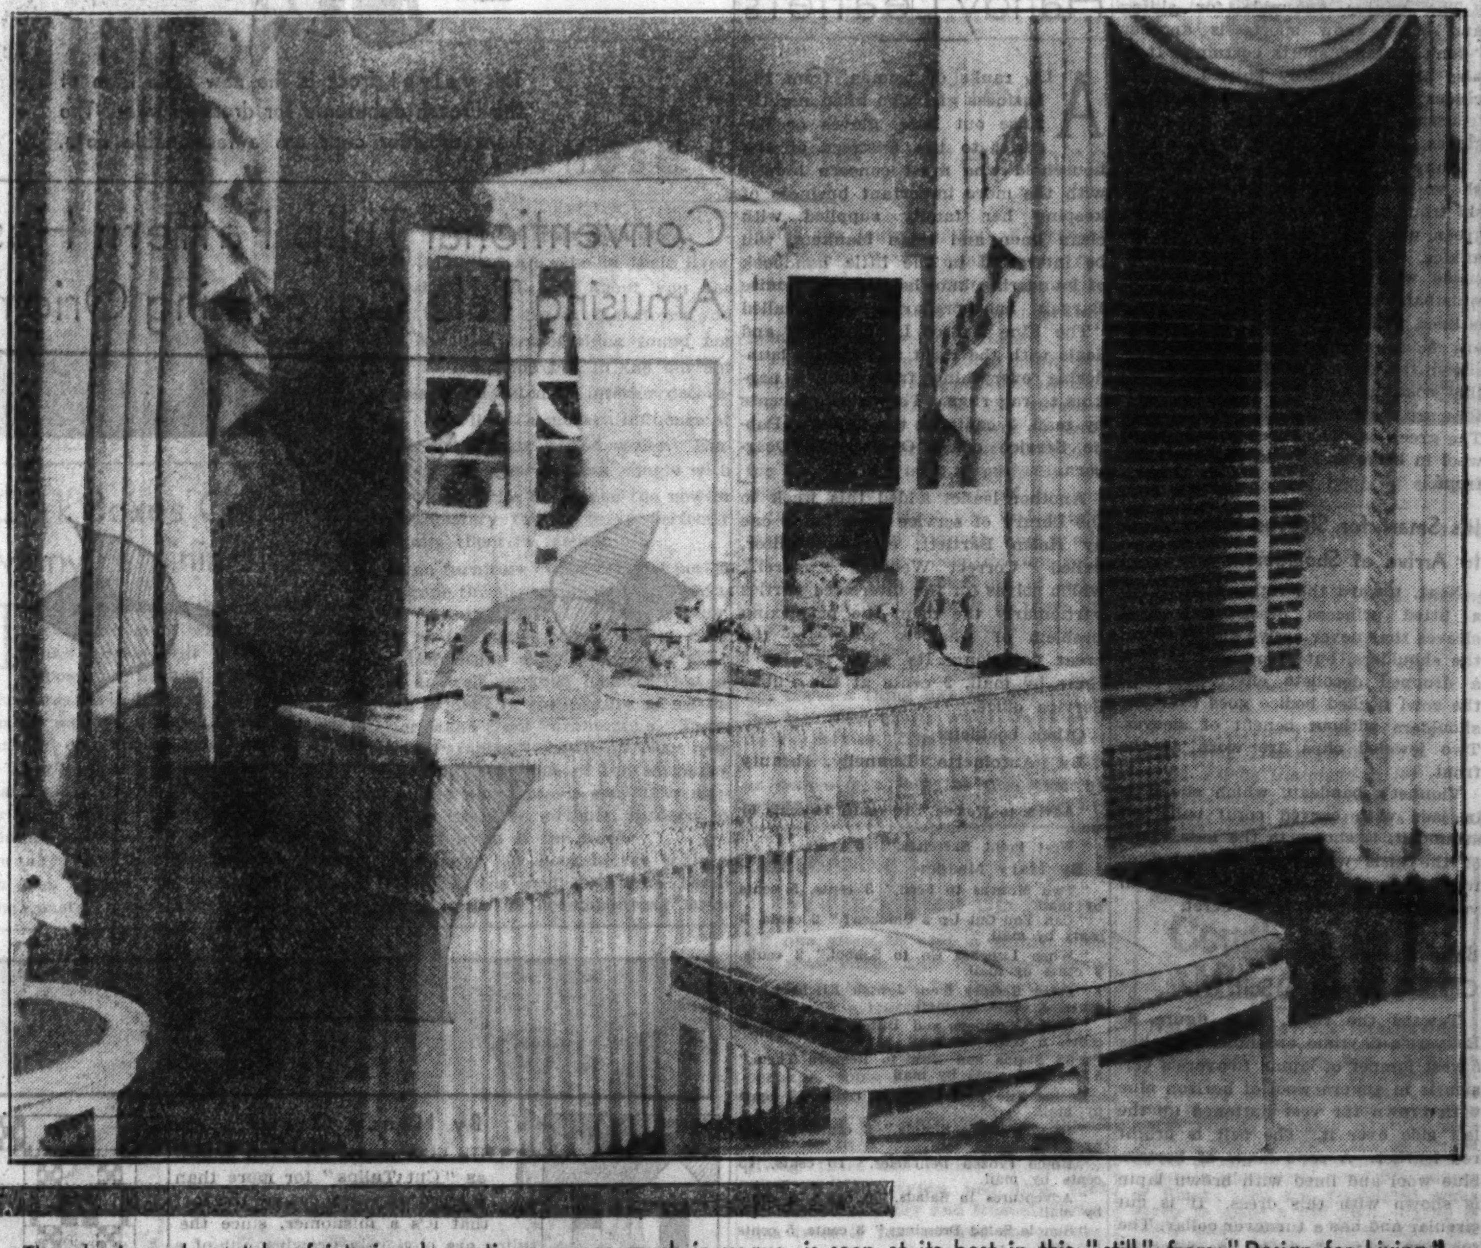
A mirror in the background reflects the beauty of this satin covered day bed and the modern desk in a very feminine set made for the film version of Noel Coward's "Design for Living." You will note the charm that results from the white accents.



The classic-modern style of interior decoration, now so much in vogue, is seen at its best in this "still" from "Design for Living." The dressing table is the type every woman loves. It is a contemporary interpretation of the directoire period.

Young Fathers, Tyrannizing Over Their Children, Need to Be Taught a Lesson or Two

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

"THESE young fathers!" sighed a grandmother—a charming lady whom, by the way, you would scarcely suspect of having the three grown sons she has, let alone a grandchild. "They are so sure of themselves—and they do the funniest things.

"Last Sunday Jim and his wife brought M'darlin (that's the name they really call their little girl by—isn't it sweet and odd?) to dinner. I noticed that he kept correcting her quietly, and finally I stopped talking to hear what he was saying.

"'Don't eat first a little of this and then a little of that,' he said. 'Eat all your potatoes, and then all your squash, and then all your meat.' What do you think of it?" she said to me. "So after dinner I took him aside and said, 'Jim, why do you tell M'darlin to eat all of one kind of food before she goes on to the next?'

"'Because I think she should,' he answered. 'I've told her to and I want to be obeyed.'

"'Do you do it?' I asked him.

"'Why—no,' he said. 'I guess I don't.'

"'Then why should she?' I asked.

"He paused and laughed.

"'I see,' he said. 'You've tagged me—I'm it. I'll let her alone . . . maybe it would be a good idea in general to let her alone more.'

"'It would, son,' I said, thinking of the bossy little boy he had been and the domineering man he might be if he didn't look out."

She stopped a minute, did this grandmother, who understands a great deal.

"Some of these young fathers need to be brought up short. They find themselves head of a family, they're in power over a

Youth's Frocks from Paris Are Sophisticated

But Girlishness Prevails in Headdress with Bandeaux, Tiaras in Vogue.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—They've gone and done it. Midwinter debutantes and other young fry have bolted the rigid French tradition that has so long dictated a strict clothes régime. Youth fashions, as flaunted here, run to trained frocks for formal evenings, to rakish town clothes, to slinky velvet dresses and feather in the hat.

On the other hand, above the shoulders, mature heads, as well as the under twenty, are taking on a mighty girlish aspect. Everybody wears something in the hair when hatless. Ribbons are the simplest and then come the bandeaux and then the tiaras. A slinky, long velvet frock with fitted sleeves, topped by a ringleted head, held by one of these contraptions, is the perfect outfit to wear around the town after dark.

Hats Drift to Back of Head.

The newest hats, too, are drifting to the back of the head, as you've been told in these columns before. They are distinctly tending toward more girlish shapes. One sees shirred, almost babyish, bonnets and big hats, too, worn this way. They're all for dressup wear at present, but look out for the future. We'll all have to get used to the set back chapeau sooner or later.

Giddy vests, shirtwaists, and waistcoats, worn with velveteen or wool suits, have become synonymous with youth in Paris. The knee length fur coat of sporty cut is the heavy wrap that most girls wear over these suits. Or they adopt the same type of coat in heavy wool, making no effort to match it in either material or color to the suit.

Knitted Clothes Worn Everywhere by Everyone.

Piratical looking capes, made of cloth, lined with lapin or some such fur and attached to a fur vest, are affected by some of the younger set here. Schiaparelli's rakish Tyrolean hats with a feather perched high on the Alpine crown are used with these cape costumes and with the short coat and suit ensembles, too.

Knitted clothes are worn by assorted ages of women. The two piece knited dress is universal under a sports coat. The knitted suit, with jacket, skirt, and sweater is worn a great deal for the same events. It's more fashionable to wear a suit which doesn't match for real sports. For instance, you wear a brown jacket, a plaid or mixed skirt, and a plain sweater blouse in another color.

"Don't Match" Sports Costumes Are the Rage.

The winter ensemble for skiing and other snow sports is another "don't match" sports costume. It is also always partially knitted. It includes shorts as well as the long ski trousers; also, of course, cap and gloves, socks and shoes.

Anny Blatt designed the ensemble shown in our sketch, upper left. The ski trousers are of waterproof, heavy green wool with knitted cuffs at the ankles. The jacket is done in beige suede with a ribbed, knitted collar, waistband and cuffs of green wool. It is lined with green wool. The mittens are beige angora. In the circle is shown the knitted shirt that goes with this costume and the knitted shorts that are worn under the ski trousers. The green cap has three pom-poms of wool in beige and green placed at the front.

It's Smart for Sleeves Not to Arrive at Shoulders.

Next, toward the right, is pictured a fitted princess dress with long sleeves that never arrive at the top of the shoulders, but stop short to give a dropped decolleté effect, whereas the cowl necked bodice goes over the shoulders without benefit of sleeves. Two jeweled clips are worn at the front.

Vionnet's bandeau, which she does in jade with carved coral balls set around it, is shown in the hair. Lots of the girls who wear this kind of frock here also wear it with a small velvet evening toque or beret.

Bebe Daniels Bought Chanel's Velveteen Suit.

Toward the right, next figure, is Bruyere's daytime ensemble that has a vest jumper of lapin. Bruyere's version is in angora wool of horizon blue with brown fur vest buttoned up the left side over it. The belt is bright red leather. A cape made of horizon blue wool and lined with brown lapin is shown with this dress. It is cut circular and has a turnover collar. The fur vest may, of course, be removed and the ensemble thus adjusted to changes of weather.

At the extreme right is a sketch of Chanel's velveteen suit that is so much worn in Paris by the younger set. Incidentally Bebe Daniels acquired it when she was here. The fitted jacket of this suit is of dark blue velveteen with revers and cuffs of striped Chanel jersey, in vivid colors. The skirt has a flared front gore to give it a forward movement and two set-in hip pockets. The waistcoat blouse is made of striped jersey, worked in chevrons, and is buttoned down the center front and belted with a narrow leather belt. The collar turns over and makes a point at the right side of the front, whereas on the left side it is tucked in. The Chanel hat of dark blue felt has a dashing feather at the left side.

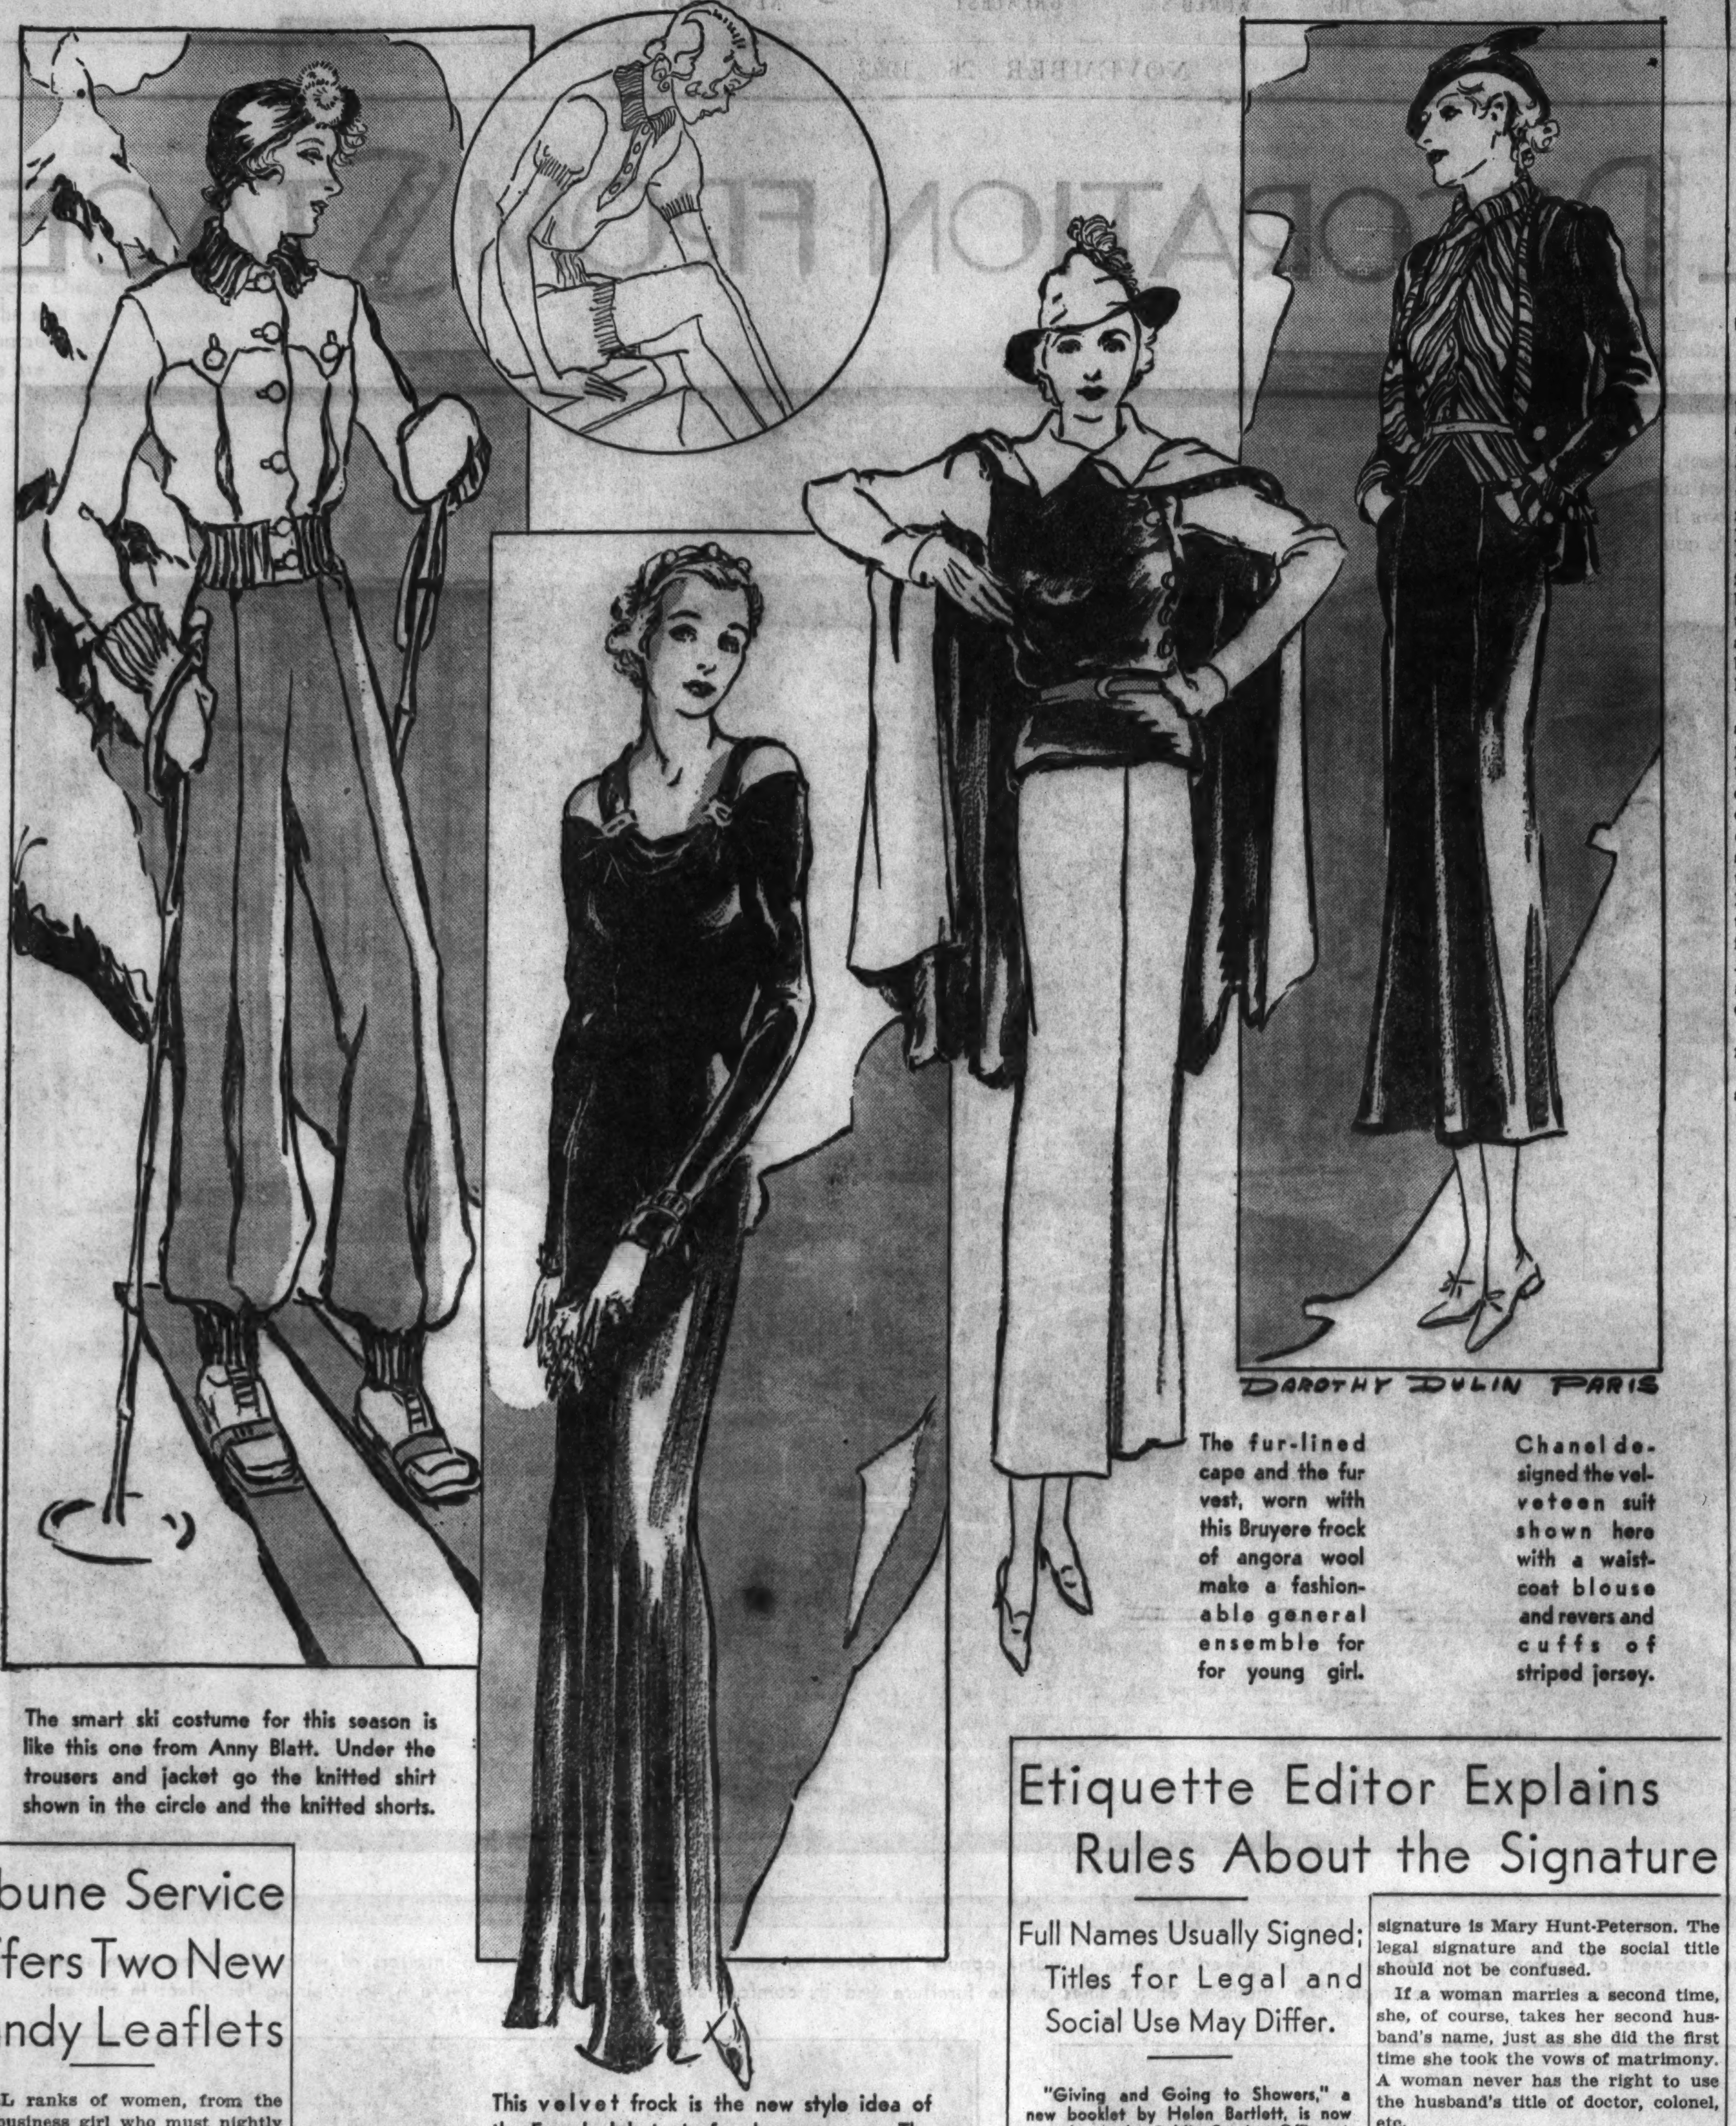
SUAVITY FOR EVENING WEAR, GAYETY FOR SPORTS



The smart ski costume for this season is like this one from Anny Blatt. Under the trousers and jacket go the knitted shirt shown in the circle and the knitted shorts.

This velvet frock is the new style idea of the French debutante for dress-up wear. The bare shoulder caps are a fashionable note.

The fur-lined cape and the fur vest, worn with this Bruyere frock of angora wool make a fashionable general ensemble for for young girl.

Chanel designed the velveteen suit shown here with a waistcoat blouse and revers and cuffs of striped jersey.

Tribune Service Offers Two New Handy Leaflets

ALL ranks of women, from the business girl who must nightly rinse out hose, gloves or lingerie, to the mistress of the household who must concern herself with the more important business of keeping her family supplied with clean linen and clean blankets, will be interested in the little handbook of laundering knowledge which Louise Bargelt has prepared. It's called "The Fine Art of Laundering," and deals with the right methods of laundering everything from baby's napkins to rag rugs. The price: 3 cents by mail, 2 cents at the Tribune Public Service office, One South Dearborn.

Another leaflet added this week to the library of service material is one by Helen Bartlett, etiquette editor, called "Correct Wedding Apparel," which solves for the interested parties particularly the men, the perplexing problem of what to wear for the great occasion. Conventional Tulip Pattern Has Amusing Tale Concerning Origin

By Nancy Cabot.

THIS little design has been known as "Cut Tulips" for more than a hundred years, despite the fact that it's a misnomer, since the tulips are obviously growing out of a pot.

Its story is an amusing one. A century ago at one of the customary meetings of the sewing or quilting circles in a little town in Dutch New York, the women were lamenting the dearth of new quilt patterns. One quilter said, "I can't draw, I can only cut," and proceeded to transfer to brown wrapping paper the design inspired by the bright pot of tulips that stood in the window. When the others commented on the lack of leaves in the design, her quite sensible reply was, "I never was any good at cutting them."

For a quilt pattern in this design send 5 cents in coin or stamps to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

Etiquette Editor Explains Rules About the Signature

Full Names Usually Signed; Titles for Legal and Social Use May Differ.

"Giving and Going to Showers," a new booklet by Helen Bartlett, is now on sale at the Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn. The price is 2 cents; by mail, 3 cents in stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Helen Bartlett, Chicago Tribune.

By Helen Bartlett.

PROPER signatures and the correct use of titles seem to worry people more than is necessary. There are definite right and wrong ways to sign one's name or have one's cards engraved, and since one's name or title doesn't change often, if ever, the right way might as well be learned and adhered to.

In signing a letter, both men and women sign their full names unless they are extremely long and cumbersome. Men writing business letters, of course, or correspondence to their intimate friends, are privileged to shorten the signature by using only the initial of the given name. An unmarried woman signs her letters Mary Alice Hunt. When Miss Hunt marries John William Peterson, her signature becomes Mary Hunt Peterson, the middle name received in baptism being dropped. The titles Miss, Mr. or Mrs. are never used with signatures. "Miss" may be prefixed in parenthesis, and a married woman may add her married name in parenthesis just below her signature, and a little to the left:

Very sincerely,
Mary Hunt Peterson.
[Mrs. John William].

Just a word about calling cards before we tell you how they should be engraved. Fashion dictates the size, color and material of the card, as well as the style of the engraving used. However, no card should have any sort of ornamentation, and the engraving should never be in fancy type.

Social Title Goes on Calling Cards.

On calling cards a married woman does not use her Christian name, but rather her social title of Mrs. John William Peterson. And socially, a widow is Mrs. John William Peterson, never Mrs. Mary Peterson. A divorcée retains her husband's family name and combines it with her own maiden name, prefaced by "Mrs."—Mrs. Hunt-Peterson. This same divorcée legal signature is Mary Hunt-Peterson. The legal signature and the social title should not be confused.

If a woman marries a second time, she, of course, takes her second husband's name, just as she did the first time she took the vows of matrimony. A woman never has the right to use the husband's title of doctor, colonel, etc.

When a man is a junior both he and his wife add the "Jr." to the name on the engraved card. But when the man's father dies, he, the son, is the bearer of the family name and both he and his wife give up the "Jr." His mother uses "Sr." or adopts some variation of her name in order to avoid confusion.

Professional Distinction Is Properly Signified.

A man who possesses a professional title is privileged to use it on his cards. His title is a part of himself. But if the title is a temporary one of office it is discarded after the individual is out of office and no longer entitled to the title. A man may be called governor or senator by his intimates, but his card bears the simple, formal "Mr."

A doctor has the choice of prefixing his name with "Dr." or of suffixing the name with the abbreviation of the degree he holds, "M.D." or "D.D.S." He never uses both. A clergyman uses the abbreviation of his title, "Rev." before his name.

A FRIEND IN NEED

Many Folks Will Celebrate Thanksgiving in a Real Spirit of Gratitude Because of Employment, Says Friend in Need.

By Sally Joy Brown.

TO many folks the approaching Thanksgiving day won't mean simply an occasion for overeating a repast of turkey, chicken, baked beans or whatever personal taste and financial condition dictate. I believe the national holiday will be celebrated far more fittingly than usual—that there will be in many homes a real gratitude for improved conditions. Numerous men and women in this city who were unemployed last Thanksgiving, many a child who was growing old before his time through family conditions of worry and struggle may play and study and rest securely this year because some member of the family has a job.

The depression has brought about a steadying, more thoughtful atmosphere. One couldn't be particularly thankful for things one had always enjoyed and accepted as a matter of course. To have them snatched away, or to have them threatened and then successfully weather the storm, such things make for true appreciation, and I believe this holiday will come closer to having the true spirit of the original day than it has for many years. And if you are thankful for something gained, won't you share a little with others less fortunate?

Here's one simple way of helping a fine cause:

The Visiting Nurse association operates for the benefit and assistance of those otherwise unable to secure skilled assistance in time of illness, helps to promote cleanliness and teaches proper care of the sick. Its nurses go into all sorts of homes within the city limits to care for invalids. They nurse the impoverished after discharge from hospitals, especially the handicapped, as well as cases of cancer, arthritis, etc.

This organization is always anxious to get old linen and old cotton [meaning soft, much laundered and much used old sheets, pillow cases, table cloths, night gowns, etc.] for surgical dressings.

Said the superintendent, "You have no idea how much more comfortable it is for the patient to have a nurse cover a large burned area with a dressing made from this soft old stuff rather than with gauze. All sorts of dressing, cancer, burns, large open wounds of any description, can usually be dressed so much more comfortably with what we call 'old linen,' but which is actually old cotton, linen, or muslin which has been washed and washed until it feels like soft old silk.

"If it is delivered to our main office, clean and preferably ironed [as naturally we cannot use crinkled stuff on aching wounds], your readers may know they have helped our patients considerably."

I am sure that after this appeal you thoughtful housewives won't utilize your old sheets and table linen as dustcloths when they can be put to such an excellent use as this. I shall be glad to give the address of the headquarters of this association to any one interested.

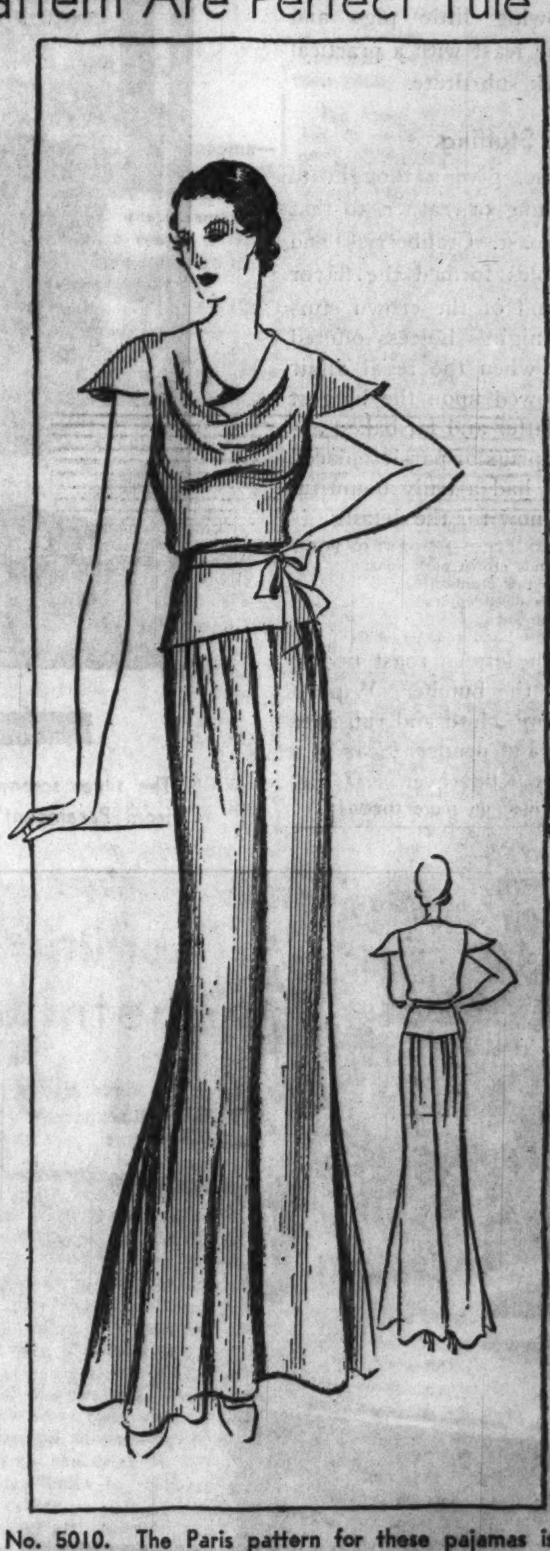
Pajamas Made from Paris Pattern Are Perfect Yule Gift



No. 5010. The Paris pattern for these pajamas is available in 14 and 16 year sizes and 36, 38 and 40 inches bust measure.

The deadline for snapshots submitted in the $250 prize contest for users of the four Paris pattern published in October is midnight tonight. Pictures, with name and address written clearly on the back, must be mailed before that time. Address Rhea Seeger, the Chicago Tribune.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The pajama offered today, to be made by Paris pattern, No. 5010, has a French accent in its cowl draped neckline and tiny winged sleeves.

The great French dressmakers in the Rue de la Paix are suggesting these for the perfect woman's Christmas gift of lingerie, and they're so easy to make even a 14 year old could do them. If you want them to be exact replicas of the original French model, cut the cowled front on the bias—it's easy—and you'll find that below the cowl drapery the pajama bodice seems to fit as if it were molded, without any special seaming or pinching. The trousers are wide and gathered onto an elastic under the bodice section.

I've made some of these and find them charming as well as most comfortable for sleeping. They're nice done in crêpe de Chine, plain or with a small flower design in brocade. In satin they're gorgeous, and they can be made in less expensive lingerie fabrics without losing their charm.

The bodice of these pajamas can be put to other uses. This part of the pattern makes a smart satin blouse to wear with a wool skirt. Keep the pattern, too, and use it for lounging pajamas next spring, or for sports. You can make them without the sash, if you prefer, or with a belt instead.

Movie Colony Sees Red When It Looks at Boldly Painted Feminine Finger Nails

Ox Blood Polish Is Favorite Coloring Medium

By Antoinette Donnelly.

HOLLYWOOD.—(Special.)—To add to the sensations of a well publicized sensational center, the feminine hands of Hollywood are ox-blood stained, and the tendency at the moment is to leave no confidence restoring white rim at the nail tip.

Startling beyond words are Marlene Dietrich's extraordinarily long nails, tomato red from the nail base to the very ends of the nail tips. Whether it is tomato red, blood red, or ox-blood red, Hollywood's finger nails are so many red flags waving in expostulation, exclamation or just ordinary expression. There are a few conservatives, as Norma Shearer and Alice Brady, but the rank and file of nails on view are blood-stained in one degree or another.

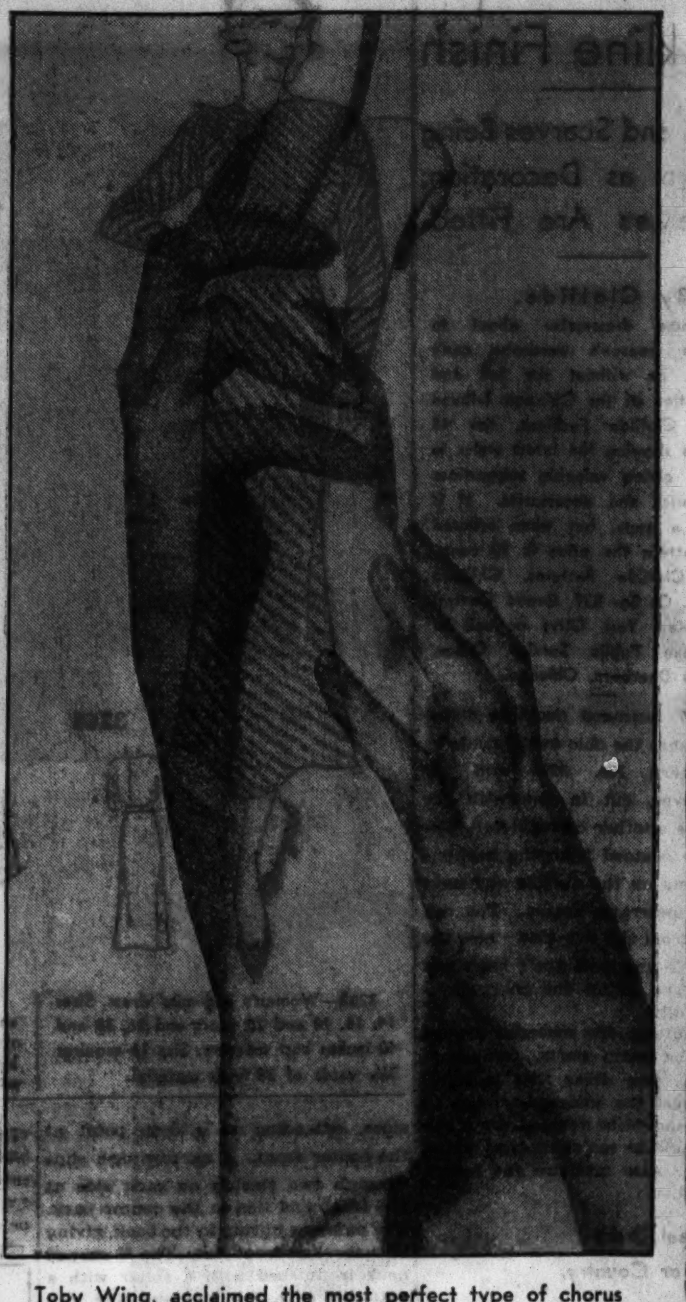
Lilyan Tashman is another with nails tinted a deep red from base to tip, without benefit of white rim. A perfectly matching lipstick stains Miss Tashman's lips, a makeup frequently adopted. Miss Tashman confesses an obsession on hands, the first thing she notices about a person. She has a unique collection of hands, the largest known display, of ivory, porcelain, glass, and other composition. The collection fills a three tier wall cabinet in her fascinating home.

Gloria Swanson's nails are blood red, but the white tips are preserved. Carole Lombard's are similarly made up. Mary Pickford's are not blatantly red, but colorful. Myrna Loy's are of deep dyed color. Jeanette MacDonald's, ox-blood, as are Sylvia Sydney's.

The hands of Hollywood, in fact, are scrutinized as inquisitively as the face for makeup reasons. "What color nail polish?" instead of "What color rouge?" is a leading question.

It's the season for star sapphires for "'em as has 'em." Toby Wing's becomingly young rose tinted fingers are borne down with the responsibility of one of these sapphires. Carole Lombard's fourth finger left struggles under an 80 carat star sapphire. Sylvia Sydney wears a star ruby, an intriguing gem with shifting colors under different lights.

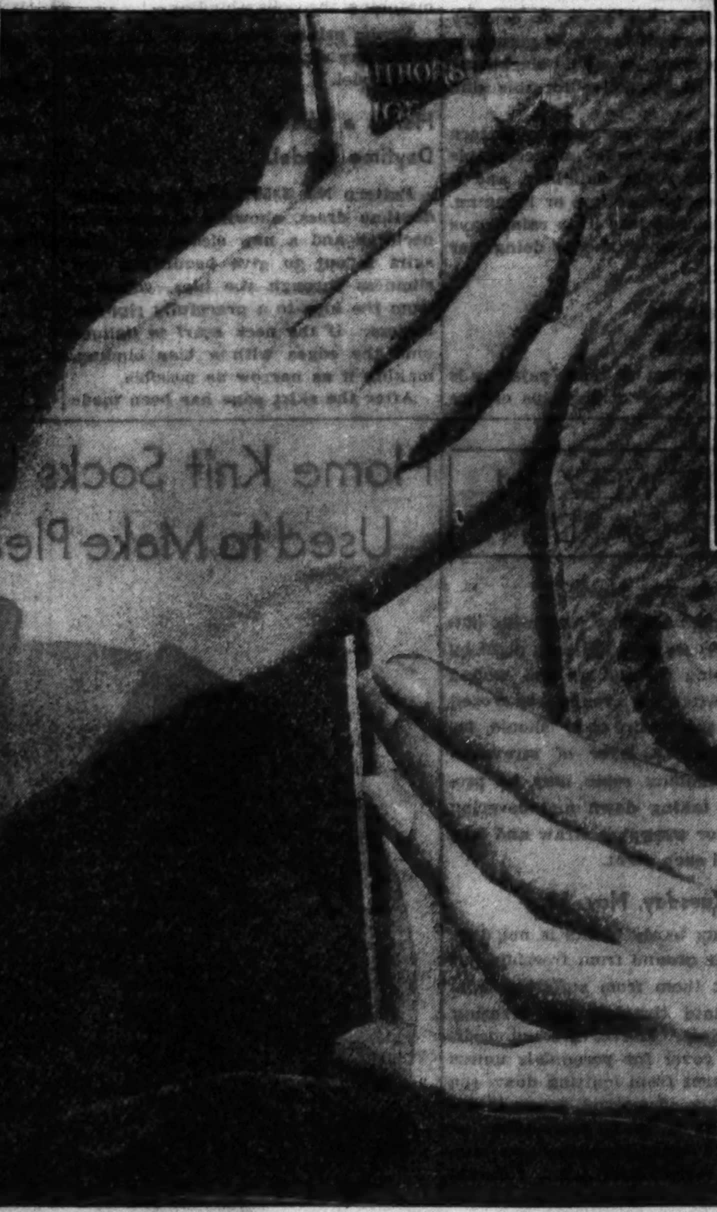
Yes, the hands of Hollywood are striving for a place in the sun, along with voice, profile, beautiful face and figure. You do see some beautiful hands with long, slender, sensitive looking fingers and carefully shaped and tended nails. Whether you like the barbaric polish, especially that extension to nail tip, is your own nevermind and mine.



Toby Wing, acclaimed the most perfect type of chorus girl, has almost perfect hands, as the above picture proves.

The lovely, sensitive hands ot Miriam Jordan, with the nails suitably unexaggerated.

The adjective "interesting" best describes the hands of Carole Lombard, who chooses to wear nails long and tinted.



Right: Wynne Gibson's hands are an unusual blend of strength and artistry. She prefers natural shades of polish, with nail ends rounded, not pointed.

Young Fathers Often Tyrannize Over Offspring

Sudden Authority Goes to Their Heads; Many Need to Be Brought Up Short.

child, and their child is just going to do as they say and no nonsense. It goes to their head—this power. And some of them don't know a thing about children. It just makes me plain mad," she said.

Young fathers, I'm afraid, are "on the mat" this morning, because a number of letters have come in that do make you feel for their small sons or daughters. Here is one.

"The other day some friends with two children dined at my house. Their darling, well behaved child of two and a half who has been in the habit of eating meat was chewing on steak and chewed for a long time before swallowing.

But Nature Was Better Guide than Dad.

"His dad said, 'Now if you don't eat that and swallow it you will be taken home and spanked and put to bed.'

"The child really acted afraid. His parents are quite young and his dad thinks he knows everything because he's a Harvard graduate. The little lad watched his father and then said, 'Please don't whip me, daddy—I'm a good little boy.'

"He has had so many whippings—it hurts me to see it. I wish something could convince this friend that the child shouldn't be whipped for everything. He complained that the little boy was always so slow eating everything, especially meat. I suggested omitting the meat or slivering it into paper thin pieces with a sharp knife. What would help this headstrong young man to see the child's point of view and some other way to manage?"

Whippings Benefit Parent, Not Child.

As to the spanking and whipping—well, I think a man is a little stupid and merely venting his impatience in an unworthy and unsportsmanlike way when he has to resort to such measures at every little thing his child does which doesn't please his royal highness. He isn't teaching this child of his anything, he isn't guiding him, he isn't helping him to understand this big new world he's been born into by smacking him and whacking him. He can't even pretend with any face at all that he's doing it for the child's good. He is probably just venting his ill temper and choosing as a butt some one who has no comeback—who is completely in his power.

Yes, you're right. I do feel strongly on the subject. And I think it is a dreadful thing so to treat a little child that he looks at you with fear in his eyes.

These little things of ours come into the world defenseless—for many years utterly in our power. They have to learn to manage themselves—and it's a more intricate process than the average person dreams of to coördinate muscles, to learn to talk, and walk, and eat. Then they have to learn about the world outside their bodies—the material world and the strange, unaccountable rules and desires of grownup human beings.

Scolding Never Helps Youngster to Find Himself.

Scolding and spanking and impatience don't help them to accomplish this—to find themselves in this complicated old world of ours. What they do need is love, understanding, wisdom, kindness, and infinite patience.

There are thousands of young men who have become fathers who are not like this one—who naturally know how to handle children, and there are many more who are eager to learn more about them. They read and think and some join parents' groups and on the whole find childhood a fascinating study. How much fun and interest and delight these other young fathers—these "cocky" and impatient ones—mill by their stern and, yes—by their really stupid—methods.

For those who really would like a key to unlock the door to an intelligent understanding of their children we have several booklets that would be very helpful. There are the written-in-full OBEDIENCE booklet and PATIENCE booklet, and the leaflet containing a reference to a fine little book on children's eating habits and one on menus and recipes. In addition we have a leaflet called SHORT CHILD MANAGEMENT which contains some references to very brief reading about children. All four of these pieces of material will be sent for double postage, or the first two for a single stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Movie Sets Are Simplified for These Home Interiors

And if you'll look about you the next time you are in the stores you will see the sort of thing found not only in the films but in the current magazines devoted to interior decoration. You'll see a modern influence at work simplifying period styles. Empire and directoire pieces mingle with modern; a white finish and the newest of upholstery fabrics serve perfectly to unite them in feeling.

Even furniture of the colonial period has gone through a minor transfiguration, gaining new life and vitality. And as for contemporary styles, they are beautifully simple, built for comfort as well as good looks. That is quite evident in the picture of an interior taken from Paramount's "Trouble in Paradise," shown on page one. This room has none of the earmarks of a spectacular movie set. It is simple, conservative, artistic, modern in the best sense of the word.

The long, low bookshelves with a table top, the couch in the background, with its accompanying lamp table, the lounge chair all bespeak that homey, lived-in quality every decorator strives for. This room might be copied verbatim in almost any home of average means today.

The other two pictures show sets from the film version of Noel Coward's "Design for Living." The gorgeous dressing table is the answer to many a maiden's prayer and luxurious looking as this one is it is perfectly possible to make a duplicate of it, given a table of the right size and height, material for the flounces, and a mirror. Women have been making good-looking dressing tables out of boxes in England for centuries, so there are positively no limits to what can be done with tables.

It is a blasé girl, indeed, who does not crave a thing like the day bed in the last photograph when she sees it in the movies. That rooms can have as much personality, verve, and life as people is a fact the film sets are proving every day.

Seasonable Decoration Will Brighten Up Home

IF one plans to keep a dining room "seasonable," that is, to have some festive touch in it for each month, a fresh and attractive note is perpetually being added in this way:

In the fall vines and leaves and, perhaps, some sprouting bulbs are a happy touch. Something green and growing is as charming in a dining room as in a sunroom. At Thanksgiving there are turkey ornamentations of many types, and after that the season of holly and frosted Christmas trees is just around the corner.

Each holiday—and there are quite a few of them—carries with it small decorations which are festive reminders of the time of year and the possible gayeties attending it.

Overhead Driers Simplify Life for Home Laundress

THE overhead type of drier which pulls up to the ceiling—out of the way when not in active service—is a useful piece of equipment. Not only for regular once a week washes, but for the occasional small wash which frequently has to be done daily in a family where there are little children.

This Little Pig Stayed at Home on Thanksgiving

grees F.). Meanwhile crumble the crackers and combine with the washed cranberries, cut up apples, and the sugar. Mix well. Heap this mixture into the center of the seared crown roast. Continue roasting in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.), uncovered, allowing 25 to 30 minutes per pound. From the drippings there will be gravy. Around the roast on the platter there will be roast apples.

Served as runner-ups, take your choice of whipped Irish or sweet potatoes, accompanied by a bowl of buttered fresh vegetables, hot refrigerator rolls, and crisp Waldorf salad. Complete the picture with a bowl of fruit, nuts to crack, cheese, and crackers, plus the best coffee you can conjure up, and you have as bounteous a feast as any eager table of diners could crave.

Roast Suckling Means a Treat.

Now for quite another sort of a suggestion. It is that you not only make use of Sir Little Pig's rib sections, but that you make a real occasion of it and create a family furor by presenting one of the three little pigs intact in the following manner:

ROAST SUCKLING PIG.

Buy one suckling pig dressed and washed well inside and out. Let it soak in clear water for three hours. Remove the eyes and salt the pig inside and out. Bend the fore and hind legs under the back and truss securely. Cut four parallel gashes three inches long through the skin on each side of the backbone. Now create the stuffing from the following ingredients:

STUFFING FOR SUCKLING PIG.

2 pounds tart apples
½ cup seedless raisins
1 cup dried currants
1½ tablespoons sugar

Peel, core, and cut the apples in eighths. Add to them the other ingredients and stuff into the pig. Sew up the openings and place the piglet on its back on a tray in a roasting pan. Brush the entire surface with melted butter, sprinkle with salt, and pour around the pig two cups of hot water. Cover with buttered paper.

Cream Furnishes Tasty Crispness.

Roast in a slow oven (300 degrees F.) until tender, allowing about 30 minutes to the pound. About half an hour before the meat is done remove the paper and brush the pig with rich cream. Let it brown and grow crisp. When done remove to a large hot platter, place a small red apple in the pig's mouth, cranberries in the eye sockets, and a wreath of laurel (or make it watercress) around the neck. From the drippings, plus thickening and milk, make gravy.

Bright Linen Towels Show Typical Barroom Scenes

WHETHER you have a bar or have merely fitted one corner of the kitchen as such, you'll want to add atmosphere with appropriate towels. They're of bright colored linen with two tone borders, and printed with a gay barroom scene which is complete even to the small signs "No Checks Cashed" and "Free Lunch."

Humidor for Boudoir Use Made of Mirrors

HUMIDOR is a word that always brings up visions of a clumsy, rather ugly container for cigarets or cigars—purely masculine in appearance and purpose. It seems a shame that such a tag should be applied to a brand new one, made entirely of mirror, that's just too decorative for words. It's for the boudoir, primarily, but wouldn't be out of place on any library table.

Also of mirror, and monogramed in black, are some new dressing table boxes that will win the feminine heart.

Perfume Atomizer and Dropper Made of Wood

THE newest and quite the smartest things in dressing table accessories are the twin atomizer and perfume dropper of wood shown in the toilet goods section of one of the loop stores. They are square cut and made of ebony, bird's-eye maple, walnut, or rosewood. You may purchase them either as a pair or separately.

Regarded as militant as can be found anywhere in the United States, the Federated Garden Clubs of Connecticut are now waging an anti-billboard fight in the state.

Cork Boxes Cache Many Feminine Items

THE woman with the laudable passion for the orderly in her closets and chests will love the new boxes of natural color cork for three reasons. They're smart looking, in the modern manner, amazingly useful and delightfully inexpensive.

They're specially sized to serve as hat, suit, trinket, shoe, hose, vanity or merely utility boxes, each lined with cinnamon brown moire. To be truly swanky, each should bear a monogram in deep brown. The new monograms that paste on would be perfect.

Turkey Time

By Eleanor Jewett.

I'm glad for lots of kinds of things—
I tried to count them up—
For swims in summer and not breaking
Mother's best tea cup;

For whooping cough and missing school;
For my old dog and cat—
For having Doctor Robbins say
I need not wear a hat.

I'm glad for every kind of thing
But come Thanksgiving night
I know I'll be the gladdest for
My "growing" appetite!

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

NoCooking! NoWork! Real Saving!

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in more homes than any other cough remedy, because it gives more prompt, positive relief. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Syrup is easily made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. This gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money, and it's a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes fine.

Instantly you feel its penetrating effect. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm, clears the air passages, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief in severe coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, used for generations for its healing effect on throat membranes. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Dizzy Colors, Simple Lines Characterize Sports Togs; Twin Sweaters, Wild Jackets Are the Rage

By Rhea Seeger.

YOU can slide back to uncomplicated simplicity with the newest winter sport togs. They are clothes reduced to two easy to manage pieces. You will find sweaters in grand assortments . . . twins, consisting of either two contrasting or harmonizing shades; twins of the same color, but one with a turtle neck and the outside sweater a button-down-the-front affair with pockets. You can buy triplets planned in the same way. You will find suede jackets, snappy "shorts" that merely clinch tightly around the middle, longer numbers that reach warmly and trimly over the hips, and the much longer swagger length garments that hit the knees.

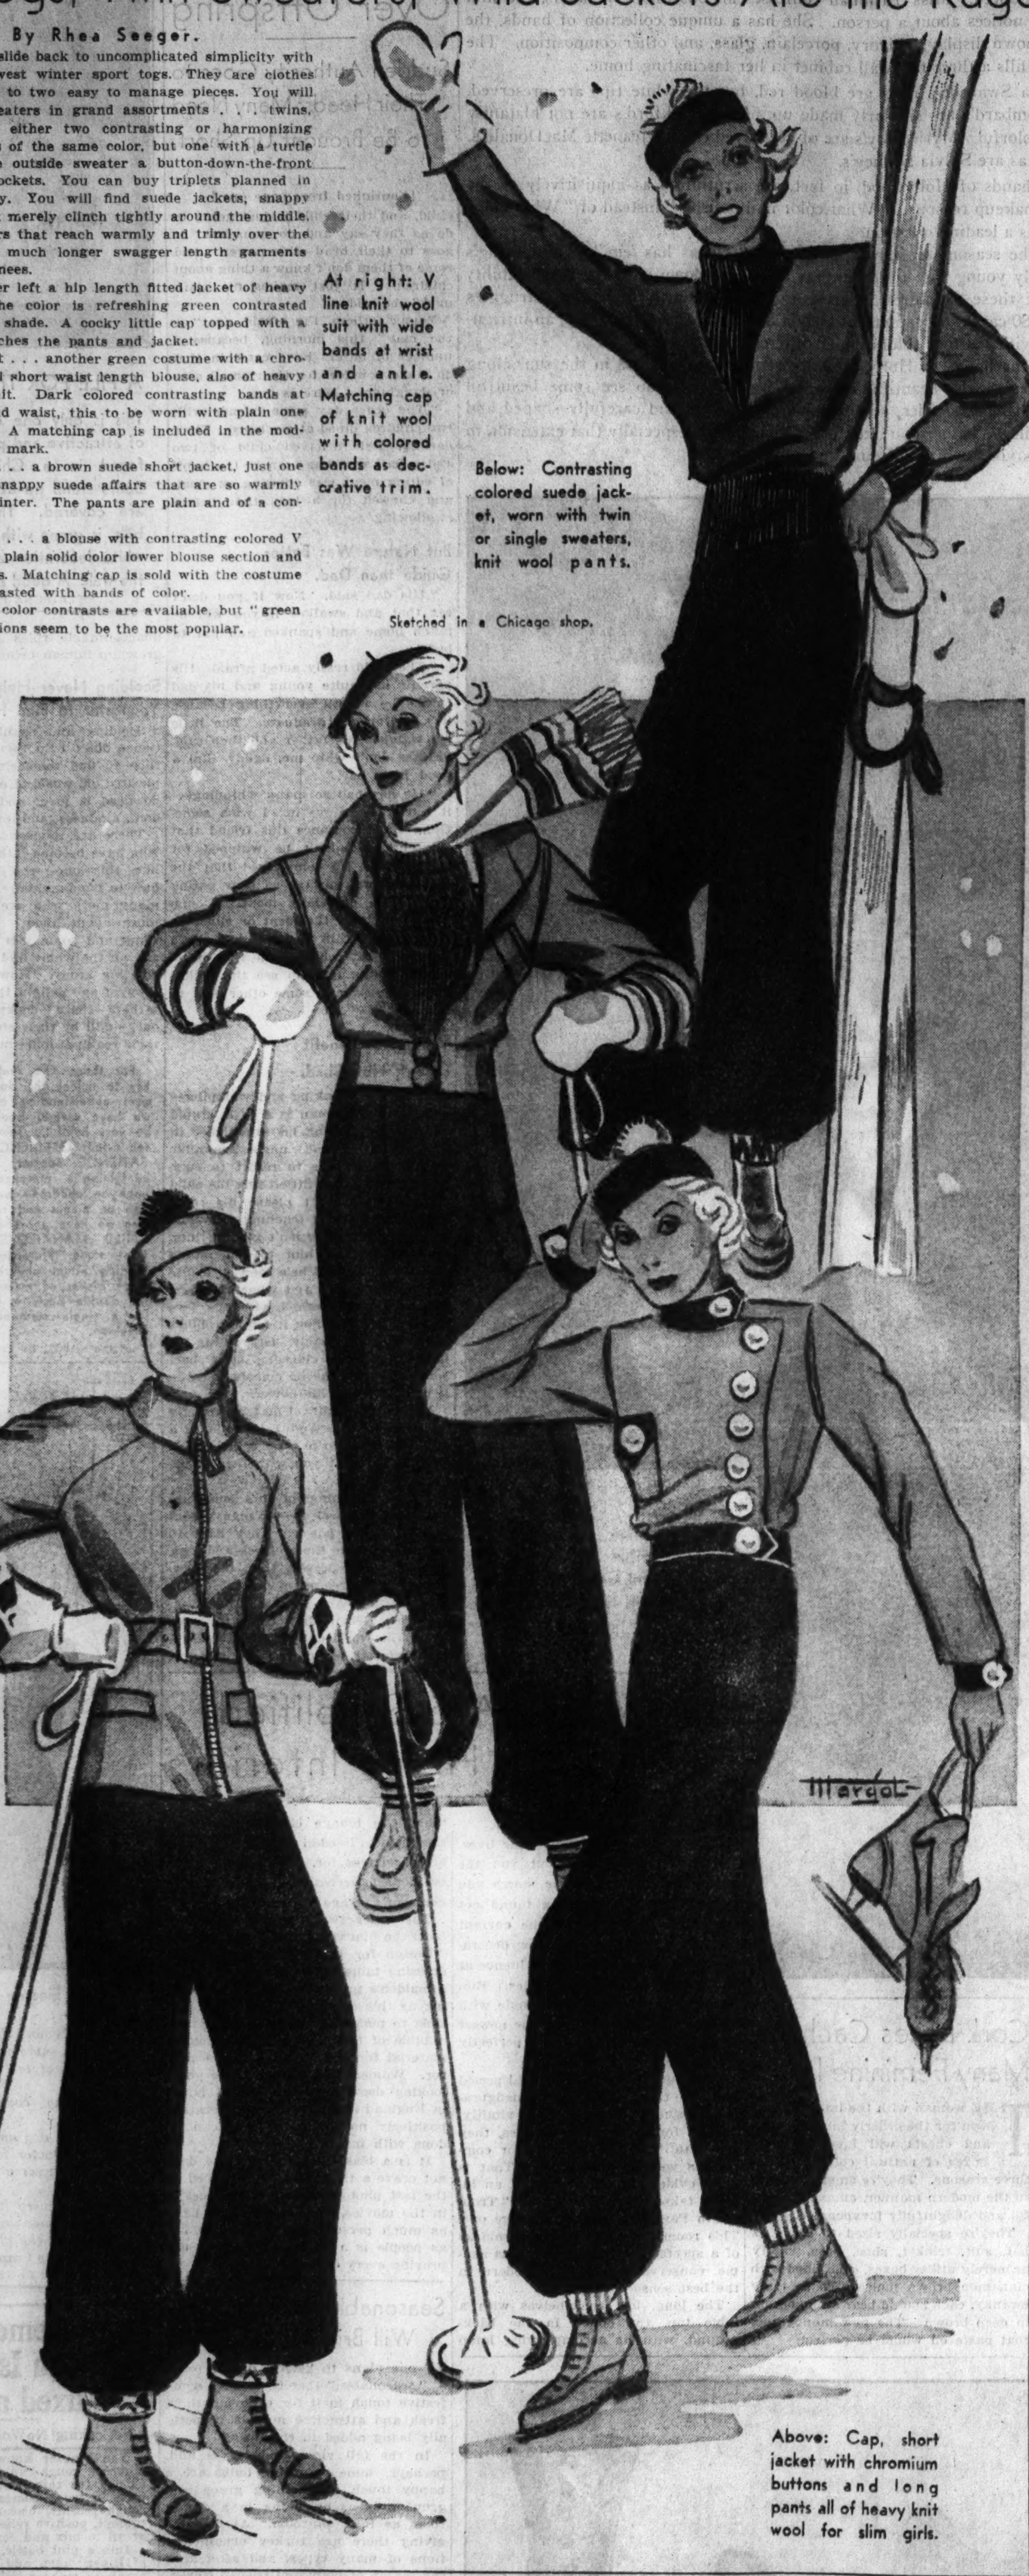
At the lower left a hip length fitted jacket of heavy knit wool. The color is refreshing green contrasted with a darker shade. A cocky little cap topped with a yarn ball matches the pants and jacket.

Lower right . . . another green costume with a chromium buttoned short waist length blouse, also of heavy waterproof knit. Dark colored contrasting bands at neck, wrist and waist, this to be worn with plain one colored pants. A matching cap is included in the moderate price tag mark.

Upper left . . . a brown suede short jacket, just one of the many snappy suede affairs that are so warmly popular this winter. The pants are plain and of a contrasting color.

Upper right . . . a blouse with contrasting colored V lines against a plain solid color lower blouse section and matching pants. Matching cap is sold with the costume similarly contrasted with bands of color.

All sorts of color contrasts are available, but "green and" combinations seem to be the most popular.



At right: V line knit wool suit with wide bands at wrist and ankle. Matching cap of knit wool with colored bands as decorative trim.

Below: Contrasting colored suede jacket, worn with twin or single sweaters, knit wool pants.

Sketched in a Chicago shop.

Below: Hip length zippered jacket and long heavy wool knitted pants.

Tinware Adopts Coat of Enamel for Living Room

TINWARE comes all dressed up these days in decorated enamels and moves from the kitchen to the living room. Thin, enameled metal flower pots are not unusual, but when they are designed in strings of five or six, all set in the same tray and graduated in size, they are refreshingly new. Antique white they are, with a dainty laurel wreath bordering the upper rim. These are ideal for the window sill, and for the wall little cornucopia shaped vases accommodate the trailing vines.

This same enameled metal, with the antique white finish and the gold trimming, is also fashioned into smartly modern fruit baskets, quite shallow, with center handles; into little beverage trays, with sections for four or six glasses; tiny cocktail trays with scroll handles, ash trays and toasters, clever little boxes, and foundations for memo pads.

Principal reasons for the charm of this ware in addition to its good looks are its economy, light weight, and the ease with which it may be kept clean. It may, of course, be washed or wiped off with a damp cloth.

Closet Accessories Made of Cellophane

HERE'S a gift idea what is an idea—a closet set in cellophane. For the woman who "has everything" it's a safe choice and for the others who haven't much but like nice things it's a sure winner.

Dress bags, coats cases and hat boxes can be purchased separately or assembled to make an imposing and useful set. A truly clever and thoughtful gift could consist of a dozen dress bags, two coat cases, and half a dozen hat boxes in white cellophane with bright colored seam bindings—red, perhaps. To finish things off one might tuck in a couple of jaunty red hat stands in dog motif.

New Opener Eliminates Struggling with Cans

WOMEN who lack a strong grip and who often hold up dinner preparation until the men folks come home to twist off the screw tops of jars for them will appreciate a new kitchen gadget. A new can opener has been invented which will grip the screw top and, presto! it's off with one turn. This inexpensive piece of equipment also boasts an opener for friction cans and one for bottle tops.

Fashion Experts Dote on Unique Neckline Finish

Buttons and Scarves Being Shown as Decoration; Sleeves Are Fitted.

By Clotilde.

The home dressmaker about to create her season's wardrobe can't afford to be without the fall and winter edition of the Chicago Tribune Book of Clotilde Fashions, the 48 page issue showing the latest styles in color and giving valuable suggestions about fabrics and accessories. It is 15 cents a copy, but when ordered with a pattern the price is 10 cents. Address Clotilde Patterns, Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Station, New York City; or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn, Chicago.

A NEW buttoned neckline distinguishes the chic model made by pattern No. 3268 and the sleeves, cut in one with the bodice, give another clever detail. The sleeves are seamed from the neckline to the wrists on the outside and have the usual underarm seams. You can easily see from the two views how the bodice is cut and you won't have any trouble if you follow the chart directions carefully.

Before cutting the material always measure the main parts, comparing them with some dress that is right. For instance, the underarm seam of the sleeve should be verified, for if the sleeves should be too short they would be spoiled. Also measure the length of the skirt.

Makes Ideal Dress for Town or Country.

The original dress was made of a chestnut brown diagonal weave and the wide belt was of brown suede. It's an ideal dress for town or country wear. A rough silk crêpe of mandarin red, bronze green, or a wild blackberry shade will be attractive for this slim line model.

The pretty pajamas made by pattern No. 2988 would make an acceptable gift for your young daughter, and it can be worn for bedtime or lounging. She can also slip into it on rainy days after school when she is doing her home work.

Sashed Pajamas Nice for Girls.

The upper part of these pajamas is cut to the bottom of the hips on the sides, extending to a deep point at the center front. A narrow sash slips through two slashes on each side at the front and ties in the center back. The pajamas button in the back, giving an unbroken front line. The V shaped neck is finished with a collar with a scalloped edge, the binding being in a contrasting color. Short puffed sleeves are set into narrow bands, the binding matching the collar binding.

Here's a Smart Daytime Model.

Pattern No. 3356 is for a charming daytime dress, showing a new scarf neckline and a new sleeve cut. The skirt is cut to give beautifully flat slimness through the hips, widening from the hips to a gracefully rippling bottom. If the neck scarf is unlined bind the edges with a bias binding, making it as narrow as possible.

After the skirt edge has been made even turn under a narrow seam edge, basting as you turn, then make the second turning, keeping a narrow seam. This can be hemmed by hand or stitched on the machine, depending somewhat on the material.

For formal wear choose black satin crêpe, and for less formal wear one of the rough silk crêpes or wool crêpe will make up beautifully.

THIS WEEK IN THE GARDEN

Monday, Nov. 27.

THE best method of protecting outdoor roses is to hill each plant by drawing the soil up and around it. After the ground has frozen later on the entire bed should be mulched with a layer of straw or leaves. Climbing roses may be protected by taking down and covering with soil, or wrapping straw and burlap around each plant.

Tuesday, Nov. 28.

Protecting hardy plants is not done to keep the ground from freezing, but to prevent them from suffering from the alternate thawing and freezing in springtime. Leaves are not desirable as a cover for perennials unless they are kept from matting down the crowns. A good method, where it can be done, is to place cornstalks on the ground between the plants and place the leaves over them, forming an umbrella-like canopy.

Keep house plants watered when they need water, but exercise care not to overwater. Never water succulents too generously or the soft stems may rot. The rule should be to keep these plants on the "dry side." Small seedling cacti require a warm situation, with moisture in the soil at all times, but not a saturated soil.

Wednesday, Nov. 29.

Roses are best planted in springtime in the middle west. A good protection for the lily-of-the-valley beds during winter is to spread well decayed organic fertilizer over them. Leaf mold is also an excellent medium.

It is an excellent time to gather fruits from berried plants for propagating purposes. All that is necessary is to spread a layer of berries between layers of sand in a wooden box; place the box out of doors and permit the sand to freeze hard over winter. In the spring remove the seeds carefully and sow in rows in a fine seedbed.

Thursday, Nov. 30.

Rake all leaves from the lawn as they are more likely to prove injurious than beneficial. Leaves may be used for mulching shrub borders and are excellent when mixed with soil and permitted to decay. Wet them down and decomposition will start immediately. It is not too late to construct a cold frame in which to store many kinds of plants. Perennials may be kept all winter if placed in a frame and covered with sash, boards, and strawy materials.

Friday, Dec. 1.

It is wise to protect all outdoor plants during the winter and especially if the snowfall is light. Peonies are as hardy as any plant, but even they are benefited if covered with straw, cornstalks, or similar materials. Do not use organic fertilizer if the plants show any evidence of disease. If the philodendron is not doing well transplant it into a soil mixture of loam, peat, and a little sand.

Saturday, Dec. 2.

If the house plants do not appear to be doing well try growing them in a different room where the light may be more or less intense. The philodendron, rubber plant, pandanus, Boston fern, aspidistra, and corn plant will grow for a long time in a north window. Flowering plants require the maximum amount of light during winter and need to be grown in a south window. The geraniums that have been growing out of doors in beds will not bloom profusely until springtime. New plants of these are preferable.

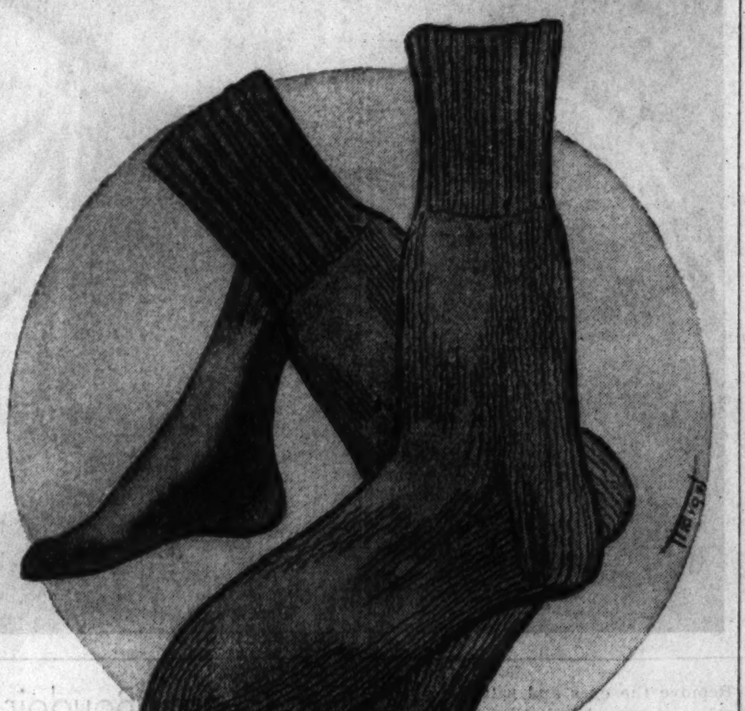
Home Knit Socks Like Mother Used to Make Please Husbands



By Jean Macdonald.

"BREATHES there a man with soul so dead"—who never to his wife hath said—especially when helping her to wind yarn for something striking for her personal adornment—"Say, couldn't you knit me a pair of socks? You know I used to hold yarn like this for my mother and she knitted all our stockings, and father's socks, too. She knit them without any trouble and they were good and warm. We never got cold feet!"

Thinking it over and deciding to make a pair of honest to goodness socks, it was done, first, with a view to appeasing that longing for something "my wife made for me." Secondly, practicality has been stressed in this column for weeks and these socks are the most practical items yet suggested.

The sock question has its pros and cons but the footwear illustrated has purposely been left unpressed to show what home made socks actually look like. Their simplicity appears to be one drawback and the fit another, but this has been remedied for the knitter. A knitter can invariably get the first one right but sometimes the second sock comes out a bit larger or tighter or something. The solution to these problems, including measurements and arrangement of stitches are all taken care of on the instruction sheet.

They cost no more or as much as ready made ones and they are most comfortable.

A good knitter must look to her laurels if she cannot make one sock in a day and match it with another exactly alike. In making these [on four steel needles] one has learned everything there is to know in knitting. Now, that's a laudable ambition for a new knitter! When it comes to charity, there is nothing more useful than a good warm pair of hose—from the little children to the old people. They do like their feet warm.

HOW TO ORDER.

If you wish instructions for making the men's socks illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Jean Macdonald, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter.

Fashion World Tries a Little Inflating, Too

THE fashionable world is a jump ahead of President Roosevelt when it comes to inflation, for accessories have grown overnight, taking on huge proportions extraordinarily flattering to the long, sweeping silhouette.

Muffs, bags, and gloves all look as if they've been pushed off the gold standard, for they've grown to enormous size.

Schiaparelli is showing extra large bags, and is featuring one of mahogany brown calfskin which is almost the size of an overnight bag. It's a foot high, rising to a point at the top, has a broad base, and is carried by long, looped handles.

Muffs Are Large as Pillows.

Other designers have created big, round purses of antelope or calfskin, and have enlarged the regulation "pouch" to the point that it will carry all the makeup and feminine gadgets and still have plenty of room.

The new muffs, which are nearly as large as pillows, cover the entire front of the figure, and are made of such furs as beaver and astrakhan. They look as if they'd been resurrected from the nineteen hundred files.

Fur Gloves Climb Toward Elbows.

Evening muffs are smaller, being designed more for frivolity than for practical use, and are covered with pink rose petals or frothy ostrich fronds.

Gloves have taken up inflation in a big way. Newest and smartest ones are of fur and come half way up the lower arm. Some are made of the same material as the ensemble and flaunt cuffs of fur. In such materials gloves are kept from being clumsy only by skilled tailoring.

Evening gloves, too, follow the inflation trend. Made of velvet or satin, they are worn loose on the hand and arm.

Mercolized Wax

Keeps Skin Young

Absorb blemishes and discolorations using Mercolized Wax daily as directed. Invisible particles of aged skin are freed and all defects such as blackheads, tan, freckles and large pores disappear. Skin is then beautifully clear, velvety and so soft—face looks years younger. Mercolized Wax brings out your hidden beauty. At all leading druggists.

Powdered Saxolite

Reduces wrinkles and other age-signs. Simply dissolve one ounce Saxolite in half-pint witch hazel and use daily as face lotion.

FURNISHINGS MAKE THE DINETTE SPACIOUS, CONVENIENT

Extension Table or Drop Leaves Is Primary Need; Oak and Walnut Good.

"Making the Most of the Dinette," a new booklet by Edith Weigle, tells how to select and arrange furniture so that this small room will appear larger and more attractive. It is 3 cents by mail, 2 cents at the Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn. "What's Wrong with Your Rooms?" is 5 cents by mail, 3 cents at the Public Service Office.

By Edith Weigle.

WITH Thanksgiving in the offing, one's thoughts turn naturally to the dining room, to the table loaded with the annual turkey, the sweet potatoes, cranberry sauce, squash, cider, and all the other good things for which the day is fondly remembered. Thousands of city dwellers have learned how to have the greatest possible fun in the smallest possible quarters. We're referring to the cubicle known as the dinette, a thing our Puritan forefathers never dreamed of on the first Thanksgiving day. A lot of the present generation never thought of it, either, until they found themselves living in a small modern skyscraper home.

It's not so difficult nor so expensive, however, to be comfortable in these postage stamp dining rooms if one chooses the right furniture. An extension table or one with drop leaves helps to solve the problem quite nicely. The stores are showing a regular line of small scale furniture designed especially for the dinette.

Walnut with a Touch of White.

There is, for instance, one intriguing set displayed by a Chicago store. The table top is of walnut which has been given a most attractive finish and which when pulled open causes a concealed extra leaf to rise into place. The base has a bone white finish which contrasts with the natural wood top. The chairs are white and the seats may be had covered in a rusty copper fabric or a lovely soft blue.

At another large store in this city we came across the simple, good looking group pictured today. It is of oak which has a pleasant light brown tone. Touches of black enhance this finish. As shown there are a table, four chairs, an open cupboard, and a sideboard or buffet.

This furniture is shown in a room the size of the average apartment dinette, and you see there is no feeling of crowding. Because the walls are plain, a plaid rug is used on the floor and the transparent window draperies and curtain echo this design.

Armchair Depicts the American Scene.

The table cloth, too, is one of those inexpensive, colorful peasant plaids that is sure to add a charming touch to the informal dining room.

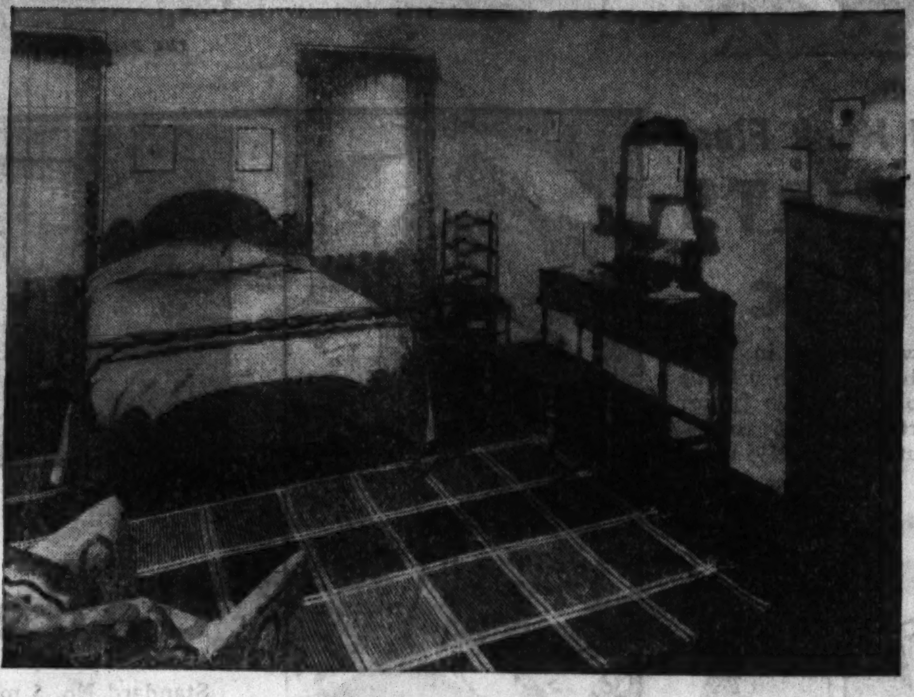
This grouping offers a pleasant change from early American maple and is certain to be popular, because of its extremely reasonable price. The same Chicago store is also showing the pretty little bedroom in the other photograph. Every item in it is made to meet the requirements of the slimmest purse without losing beauty or style.

The armchair in the foreground is upholstered in a colonial type of scenic printed material which is quite at home in the early American atmosphere created by the maple furniture.

The dressing table is particularly nice, with its attached mirror and small accompanying bench, and the high chest offers ample storage space in its five drawers. There is a bureau available also in this set, and twin beds may be substituted for the one pictured. A night stand may be bought with the beds.

If you are interested in discovering ways of furnishing small rooms to best advantage, our booklet "What's Wrong with Your Rooms?" and the new one described in the precede to this article, "Making the Most of the Dinette," may prove helpful.

At left: The simpler the furniture for the small dining room, the better. This set, shown in a large Chicago store, is most attractive and is priced to meet the requirements of the slender budget.



At right: Maple always makes a pretty colorful bedroom. This ensemble is no exception. A Chicago store displayed this model room just as it is pictured here.

Ancient Dollies Sit in Splendor at Play Exhibit

THE dolls our great-great-grandmothers played with are sitting today in one of Chicago's department stores.

The National College of Education, at Evanston, is displaying the results of one hudred years' progress in play materials in the toy department of a loop store. Demure dolls and fussily dainty dishes, musty books and tiny furniture of a bygone age stand wistfully in a row of glistening cases.

The most venerable doll of the collection was old when Washington took command of the revolutionary army. She dates to 1750. A few of her companions are also grande dames of the eighteenth century. Most of them, however, were fondled and spanked by our mothers and grandmothers in the nineteenth.

Hope, who has the shiny china head that characterized all the best dolls of long ago, sits in a carriage brought from Maryland to Ohio in a Conestoga wagon in the 1830s, and is covered by a quilt made in the same decade.

Some of the dolls are foreign—Dutch, Scotch, Austrian, French, and American Indian. There is a choice collection of little ladies with wax heads. A doll made from cornstalks in 1900 rustles her skirts if you bump against the case.

Surrounding these maidens is everything that went into a respectable doll's house. There is a toy dresser of 1852, a toy dining room set of 1870, and sets of tiny dishes which successively represent every fad in chinaware from 1800 on.

POPULAR ROCKER

Here is a chair that is a perennial favorite because it is so comfortable. A copy of a colonial rocker, it is made of mahogany and has a spring seat and web bottom and back. It is sold in Chicago.

Symbol of Comfort, Old Rocking Chair, Resists Modernism

REMEMBER the old fashioned rocker your mother used to hold you in when she read aloud to you from "Alice in Wonderland" or Andersen's "Fairy Tales"? Even in this day and age when contemporary designs in furniture are taking the country by storm this good old chair is still being manufactured and sold by the thousands.

Both at the Merchandise mart and the American Furniture mart it was being featured in the recent show, and no wonder, for it is difficult to find a more comfortable, made to fit rocker than this one. In walnut or mahogany, one usually sees it with a little fruit or flower carving in the center of the top rail, the back gently curved and upholstered with a modern copy of an old fabric. The arms are padded and upholstered, ending in curving pieces of wood that run down to the rockers.

It is a strange bit of fact to see this heavy, homey, unpretentious Victorian rocker being made and sold by the same manufacturers who display fashionable and chic period pieces right beside it. And when a visiting buyer sits down to do a little figuring he invariably takes his rest in one of these rockers. Amusing, and true.

SCIENCE FOILS HOUSEWIFE'S ANCIENT ENEMY, MR. MOTH

Fumigators and Chemicals Will Make Fabrics Immune to Greedy Larvae.

By Louise Bargelt.

IT scarcely seems credible, but statistics tell us that the damage done by moths to our material possessions in this country is more than 50 per cent greater each year than the damage done by fire!

The problem of insects, like a number of other problems in life, seems to be persistently with us. Indeed, some one has remarked that this seems to be the age of insects. Certainly it is true that their rapid multiplication entails a constant and unceasing struggle on our part.

Of all our household pests, moths are by far the most destructive to our clothes, our furniture, and our furnishings, including rugs, carpeting, and draperies. Certainly every housewife is interested in the war of extermination which is being carried on against them.

Moths breed fast and furiously. They know no season but carry on their deadly work in dark places, laboring zealously under cover for a long time before they are discovered.

1 Egg=800,000 Moths in One Year.

One egg, under perfect working conditions, can develop by the pyramid process to over 800,000 moths in one year. Take the fact the female of the species may carry from 200 to 300 eggs, depositing them cannily as she flits about in dark places. It can easily be seen how these eggs represent the future generations of numberless deadly larvae. And, incidentally, it should be noted that these larvae, or moth worms, are the only insect in the cycle of moth life which feed on your cherished possessions.

If our closets are dark they are a veritable open sesame to moths. Even nice new rugs and furnishings are not necessarily immune. Moths may be hiding in our homes, unknown to us, or moth eggs may be brought in from the outside on the clothes of incoming visitors.

Scientific methods are now being invoked and improved methods of elimination and subsequent protection are possible. Protecting our clothes and fumigating our closets and generally insuring our wearables against moth ravages is not so difficult any longer—if we know just what to do.

First is the fact that we should never put away any bit of woolen or fur, feather or mohair, even for a few weeks, without being sure of two things. First, that it is absolutely clean and that it is placed in some air tight container. Dry clean it if possible. If not, air it well by hanging in the sun, and brush it thoroughly.

Second, the box or trunk or chest or bag or storage vault in which we put it should be air tight, so that moths cannot get inside.

If we cannot buy a moth storage vault, which has been expertly and scientifically manufactured, but must use an old trunk or box or bag, the garment should first be wrapped tightly in paper, and the inside of the container lined with paper. To take further precautions, scatter a good many tablespoonfuls of nahpthalene flakes among the garments, or tie these crystalline substances into small muslin bags and place in folds of the articles.

But to repeat—it is original cleanliness and air tightness which will count most against the moth depredations. The aroma of red cedar oil, for instance, is moth repellent, and will kill, if strong enough, newly hatched or young larvae of the clothes moth. But—there are the moths themselves to contend with and the older larvae, which are pretty husky and strong.

Garment Vaults Now Have Fumigating Chambers.

There are garment vaults available for the home now which contain a fumigating chamber which kills moth life and prevents further infestation. These vaults mark a new era in moth control. The storage vault must be closed after the garments are put in and the fumigating chamber charged according to directions. The cost of this type of storage vault is under ten dollars. It is handled by some department stores.

It is harder to fight off moths from our furniture and rugs and carpets than from our clothes.

The female of the moth species works cunningly when it comes to the depositing of her eggs. She doesn't just drop them promiscuously as is commonly supposed, but places them in out of the way places, in dark corners of rugs, upholstery, clothes closets, and shelves.

There are two methods of ridding our furnishings of moths. One method is to send them to a fumigating vault. But this method does not guarantee against reinfestation if the house has moths in it.

Moths Do Not Relish Chemically Treated Fabrics.

The second method is that of moth proofing, and the work is done at home. All materials in a house or an apartment which are subject to moth attacks are rendered unpalatable to moth larvae, which either eat and die or starve to death.

Only reliable firms should be dealt with. The store where one buys furnishings and rugs can advise on whom to call.

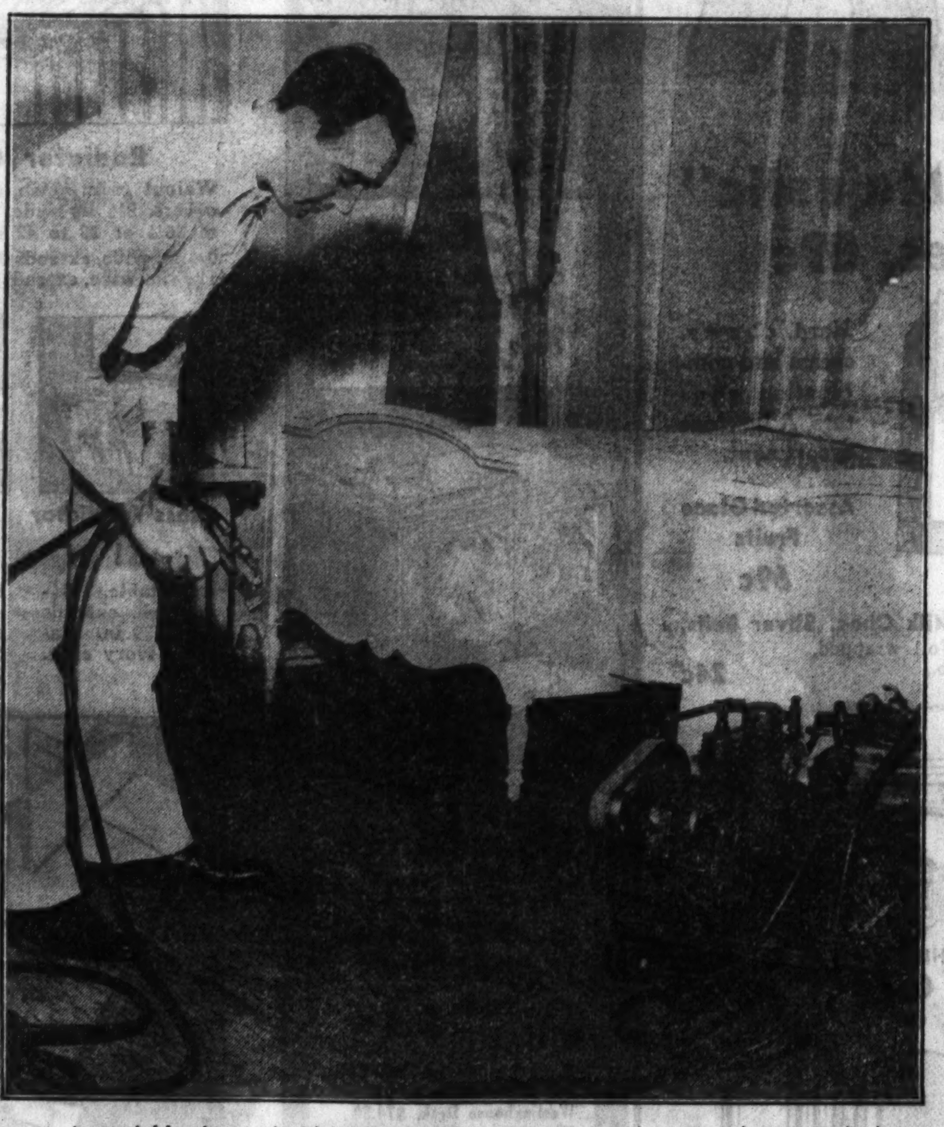
There are definite requirements set down by the United States department of agriculture which must be met by a reliable moth proofing firm. The process should repel or cause the destruction of moths, be without odor, unrecognizable on the fabric. It must not discolor nor injure it, nor cause a color change in the dye stuff. It must saturate or evenly adhere to the material and must not injure human beings from contact or from breathing.

Napthalene Flakes Deadly Enemies of Larvae.

A dependable chemical, applied by an electrical machine which generates at least 30 pounds of pressure, will completely penetrate any fabric. Closets can also be fumigated by experts if moth residence in them is known or suspected. They must be sealed before the fumigating charge is set off inside the closet.

After all is said, the well known ounce of prevention is worth many times its weight in cure for the elimination of all our household pests. If we keep our furnishings and clothes unpalatable to insects we guard against future attacks.

Naphthalene flakes and balls have a deadly effect on clothes moth larvae if they are placed in air tight containers. They will not be satisfactory just thrown in a loose drawer or even a trunk which has not been sealed as to cracks and crevices.

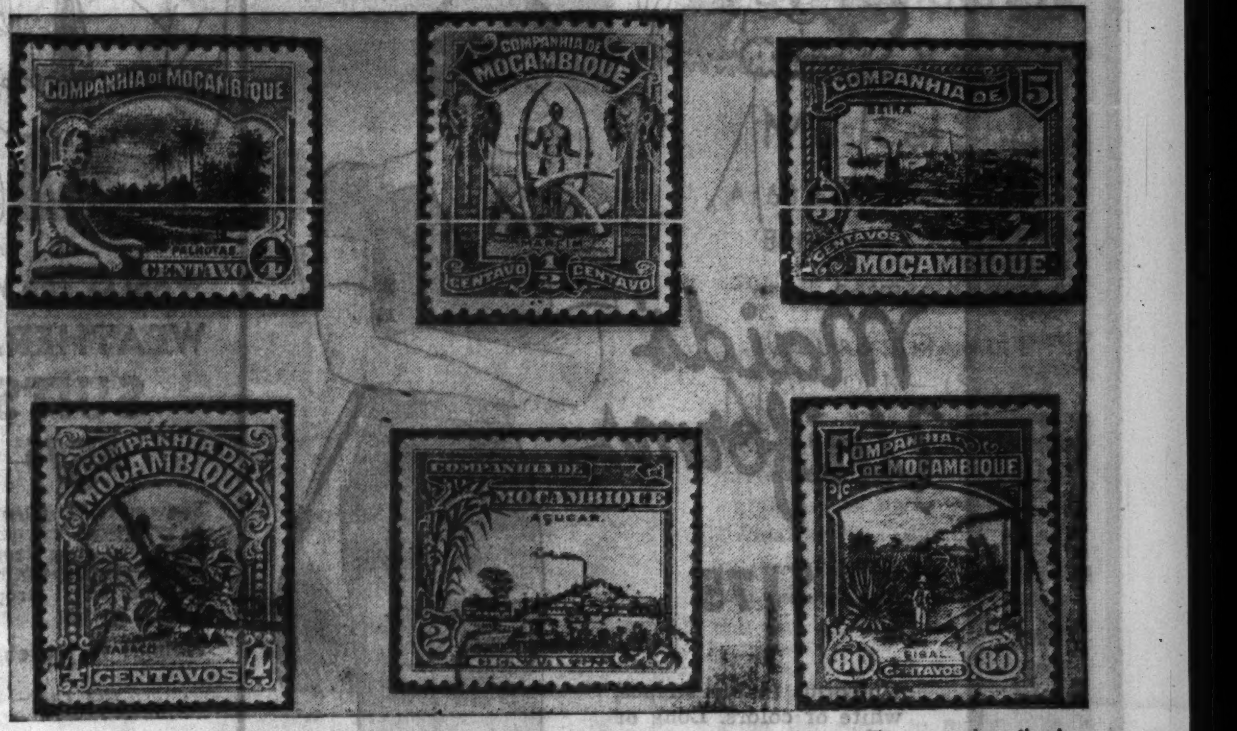


A dependable chemical without odor and nonpoisonous to humans is being applied by an electric machine generating some 30 pounds of pressure—by way of ridding a home of moths and moth larvae. This is called moth-proofing.

Here a closet is being sealed with a special tape after a fumigating charge has been set off inside of it. A special safety gas is used so that people may occupy the adjoining room without danger to health.

THE STAMP COLLECTOR

By Richard McP. Cabeen



This issue of stamps of the Mozambique company came out in 1918-'21. They are described in an adjoining column.

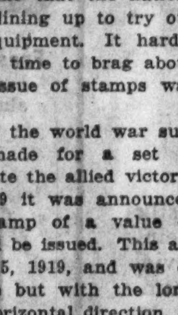
Mr. Cabeen will be glad to answer questions concerning stamps. A stamped, self-addressed envelope should be inclosed if personal reply is desired. Questions concerning value of stamps cannot be answered.

THE United States and Great Britain had, in 1914, passed through a hundred years without actual gunplay, and it was considered a feat worthy of a special stamp. This was designed, and plates were made, but before printing actually started, news came that the nations of Europe were lining up to try out their military equipment. It hardly seemed to be the time to brag about peace, and the issue of stamps was abandoned.

At the close of the world war suggestions were made for a set of stamps to celebrate the allied victory, and early in 1919 it was announced that a single stamp of a value of three cents would be issued. This appeared on Feb. 25, 1919, and was of the standard size but with the long dimension in a horizontal direction. It shows a figure of Liberty with sword and balances, behind which are the draped flags of Great Britain, France, Belgium, Italy, and the United States. The color is violet. About 100 million copies were issued to postmasters and eventually sold to the public. The stamps were printed in sheets of 400 on the flat plate press, a total of 16 plates being used.

French Indian Stamp.

Although India is almost entirely controlled by Great Britain, France has five dependencies on the east coast lying on the bay of Bengal. Altogether they have an area of 196 square miles or about 14 square miles less than the area of Chicago. One issue of stamps serves for the lot and is marked in French "Establissements Français dans l'Inde." The design shown herewith was issued in 1914 and represents the deity "Brahma." The figure is seated on a swan and near by is a cobra in the attitude that snake assumes when charmed by the musette.



A Native American.

Some people think that only the Indian should bear the title "Native American," but that is all relative, for there were native Americans here long before the Indians. This stamp of Salvador shows a statue erected to honor Atlacatl, a famous warrior of Central America. Perhaps like the northern Indians, his fame came through the destruction of a greater civilization than his own.

Arms of Salvador.

The arms of Salvador show five mountain peaks rising out of the sea. Above the central peak is a Phrygian liberty cap, and behind the group is a rising sun. The entire device is enclosed in an equilateral triangle standing on its side. This stamp is an example of four color printing, being lithographed in red, blue, green and gold.

Mozambique Company.

In 1891 the government of Portugal chartered a private company to exploit an area of about 60,000 square miles in Portuguese East Africa. Although this charter was for fifty years and would not expire until 1941, it has recently been announced that it would be canceled and the territory taken over by the Portuguese government. The first pictorial issue of stamps of this country was designed to advertise the resources of Mozambique and includes such subjects as: Palhotas, a native village; Marfim, elephant ivory; a view of Beira, the capital; Tabaco, a field of tobacco; Acucar, a sugar refinery; and a field of sisal.

A Veteran Speaks.

Members of the Chicago Philatelic society were entertained at the 1120th meeting recently by Prof. W. F. E. Gurley of the University of Chicago, who gave a summary of his experiences in collecting. Starting in 1860, Prof. Gurley has spent a long life in bringing together some of the most valuable collections known to art and science. His collection of fossils was the foundation of the Museum of Geology at the University of Chicago and the collection of sketches and drawings by the old masters which he donated to the Art Institute of Chicago is the finest of its kind. Prof. Gurley, who is still called "Bill" by his friends in his old home town of Danville, Ill., joined the C. P. S. in 1891 and has been a member ever since that date.

New Stamp Club.

The Roosevelt Philatelic society will meet on the first and third Tuesdays of each month at the Avalon Park Community hall, 1425 East 81st street. Neighborhood collectors are urged to affiliate with this club, and may call L. E. Van Reeth, secretary, at 8134 Kenwood avenue, Regent 3450.

Your Questions.

A. C. C.: Rand, McNally & Co. are the publishers of the new Atlas for stamp collectors. This has maps showing the various countries as they existed before the world war as well as the present maps of the world. In addition there is a dictionary and a section on monetary systems. It sells at 35 cents at your book store.

R. H. L.: The printing of A Century of Progress stamps amounted to 300 million copies of each value. All of these stamps have been issued to postmasters and will be soon used up.

- Wives! I give you M-a-e W-e-s-t! (She's taught you a new strangle hold on husbands.)

- Sirens! I give you M-a-e W-e-s-t! (She has weighed and found you wanting.)

- Puritans! I give you M-a-e W-e-s-t! (Because I might just as well give her to you. You've got her ensconced on your rigid laps, and so you might as well joggle her gently and make the best of it.)

A Superwoman!

- A Superwoman is Loose!

Never before in all its history has Hollywood had a visitation such as descended on it in the form of the billowy blonde from Brooklyn.

She appeared in the night of box office depression like a pillar of flame and, since her spectacular success in "She Done Him Wrong," has been busily leading the industry, snorting with amazement, out of the Bad Business wilderness.

- Even yet the producers are rubbing their eyes and lending confused ears to a babel of conflicting choruses. To the right sing the West Advocates, and this is the burden of their song:

She is a Real Woman.
She is a Great Actress.
She is a Pattern of Sobriety.
She is Warm-hearted, Generous and Independent, and her Singular Sinuosities and Broad Language are no sin because she's Funny!
She's an A1 Entertainer.
She exudes Good Nature and Kind-heartedness.

- From the Anvil Chorus:

She has mounted the Seat of Shame.
She is Conceited, Defiant.
She is a Pattern of Looseness.
She Mocks the Moral Code.
She is Overdressed, Vulgar.
She is an Evil Influence on Youth.
She delights in Shocking Custom, which she does with the most

1933 . . . Vamp of the Age

Perfect Bad Taste.

- So be it. Yet—

All the world goes to see Mae West, even though a large percentage of her observers looks at her curiously as one looks at a strange insect through a microscope, and wonders what, in heaven's name, makes it the remarkable bug that it is.

Well, for one thing, the specimen has an abounding vitality that radiates through all her actions. You can't imagine Miss West enjoying bad health, or even yipping faintly for the aspirin.

Another thing—she knows she's good, paradoxically speaking, and has proved true Mr. Emerson's assertion that all men are taken at their own valuation.

Then—she is a woman of One Idea.

Vamp of the Age.

- Miss West firmly believes that she received a Call! That she has been elected to promote the Liberty of the Stage. You may make the correction "the liberty of licentiousness." I won't. Be that as may—she went to jail for her cause, and she's still hammering away, with what success you know. And so, I reckon, she willy-nilly takes her stand along with female emancipators such as:

Carrie Nation, who fought for the Liberty of Reform.

Carrie Chapman Catt, who battled for Suffrage.

Margaret Sanger, who wages untiring war in the interests of having your Family when you Want it.

Aimee Semple MacPherson-Hutton, who barges along a forked trail making the world free for Lady Evangelists cursed with originality.

Sally Rand, whose activities in the cause of Freedom for Fan Dancers has resulted in a jail sentence.

- Besides being an Emancipatress, Miss West is the greatest showman to appear since P. T. Barnum. Barnum said: "There's one born every minute"—and Mae West Knows there is.

Emancipatress, Showman—she still is "something else again." She is the Vamp of the Age.

Every generation produces a meager crop of women who rule men and sway women through their sex appeal. Helen of Troy, Cleopatra, Ninon de l'Enclos, Dubarry, Nell Gwynn—bad girls all of them (according to conventional standards). "Those terrible women!" to the holy. But the names of these "terrible women" have slid down the ages on shafts of glamour, whereas those of the rank and file of chaste and noble ladies crowd the gray mists of oblivion.

And always, hearing of these women, one knows a haunting wistfulness. For to such is bequeathed that something that hungry hearts yearn for. Some Open Sesame to Life, warm, vital, elemental; some deeply forged link to the great, pulsating Inner heart of Nature. . . .

Fay Templeton Comes Back in Musical Show

At 68, Milton Aborn's Best 'Buttercup' Adds Zest and Charm to 'Roberta.'

By BURNS MANTLE.

NEW YORK.—(Special.)—The week Milton Aborn died Fay Templeton, his favorite Buttercup and the star of almost as many revivals of "Pinafore" as the old master of the revival staged, found herself rehearsing in a modern musical comedy called "Roberta."

Miss Templeton has retired from the stage so many times her coming back in her sixty-eighth year to start all over again is not even surprising. It happens, too, that she is one of the most satisfying features of the new entertainment, though her part in it is small.

Heir Felt Futile.

"Roberta," taken from a story written by Alice Duer Miller and not too sadly mistreated by Otto Harbach, is the story of John Kent's Aunt Minnie, who went to Paris, established herself as "Roberta, Modiste," took a fortune away from American tourists, ate herself into fatty degeneration, and passed quietly away without signing a will.

This leaves the business to John, who stands 6 feet 2 in the shower room and plays full back for old Alpha Beta Pi. John doesn't know a bodice from a bustle and had rather go right out and jump off the Eiffel tower than become a couturier. But there's the law, and there is Stephanie, Aunt Minnie's protégée, who should have the business but will not take it.

Liking Stephanie, John decides to become a partner, and so it goes till closing time, by which time it is practically impossible to pry Stephanie and John apart.

Miss Templeton, holding wonderfully to the four low notes of a voice that always is a little thrilling, sings a song called "Yesterdays" before her heart puts her out of "Roberta." It is one of Jerome Kern's gentler croonings and is filled with memories which, to us oldsters, adds sentiment to her singing of it.

Handsomely Staged.

Otherwise "Roberta" is another of those handsomely staged affairs done by Max Gordon in style. The humor is nothing to brag of, nor the principals, though these include Tamara, a Russian singer of songs and a competent actress; Bob Hope, a quick wit who knows his late sots as a master of ceremonies, and Lyda Roberti, the platinum clown some

WESTward HO!

Mae Tinee Tells the Exuberant Story of Mae West, Glorifier of Sex and Queen of Curves.

strictor? Sex was, so to speak, at the present day a somewhat shy and retiring subject, varying its eye fluttering periods with those of ultra and some said poisonous sophistication till the Sheba of Pash, better known as Mae West, decided to preach its gospel.

Miss West believes—and exhorts—that sex is what makes the world go round. It is, she says, beautiful. Love and sex are the same thing. To quote from an interview in Screenland:

"Sex is one of the great natural things of life. Why evade it, then? . . . It takes plenty of sex appeal for a man and a woman to get by in the world today.

How to Hold Men.

"Look at the divorces in Hollywood. Most of them could be easily avoided if the wife would take the trouble to apply a little allure. . . . The most absurd thing I ever heard about are these Hollywood divorces with the two principals announcing all over the newspapers that they still love each other, though they don't want to keep on living together. Of course they don't love each other—that's too silly for words. One or both of them has lost sex appeal. . . . If I get married I'm going to hold my man for life—and I mean to do it with sex.

"I get hundreds of letters every day from men and women who want to know how they can attract the opposite sex. Strong sex appeal is my invariable prescription. . . . Every girl is born with a varying amount of sex attraction, but the things some of them do to conceal it you'd think sex was the smallpox . . ."

Beauty: A Duty.

● Miss West declares that it's every woman's privilege and duty to be just as beautiful as possible. And curves, she avers, not bulges—C-U-R-V-E-S—are an irresistible lure.

That boyish figure she blames on the Paris designers of the world war period.

"They created the slat girl," she says scathingly. "On account of how their models were half starved . . ."

"Don't let anybody fool you," bewares this buxom dame. "Men like 'em rounded. And they like 'em feminine—soft and scenty. And they like 'em to eat a regular meal when they take 'em out—meat, potatoes, rolls and butter, and a dessert with whipped cream.

"I'll bet nine out of ten girls lose their men by one simple two word remark: 'I'm dieting!'"

Her Prescription.

● In Screen Book magazine Miss West gives the following ten rules for holding men:

1. Make yourself desirable by positive sex appeal.
2. Stay feminine in looks and attitude.
3. Don't wear a halo of virtue while man hunting.
4. Study each man's individual peculiarities and work on them.
5. Let 'em know they have competition—but not too much.
6. Be hard to get—a man's pride likes a challenge.
7. Stimulate the imagination of men.
8. Brains will get you more than beauty.
9. Be "different"—and keep dishing up something new.
10. Study the lives of history's charmers.

How to Handle Them.

But—not all men can be handled alike.

For instance, there's the Bashful Male.

He must be made to forget himself.

By building up his good opinion of himself. Not letting him know, of course, that you're working on him.

The Conceited Man?

Treat him hot one day and cold the next. Keep him guessing and he'll deflate.

The Cave Man?

Laugh him off.

And so on.

One gathers that one recipe, after all, works pretty well at most times, and that—keep 'em guessing, keep your head, and you'll keep 'em interested.

But, adviseth the preacher, women can't fall in love themselves and expect to escape scot-free. She says:

"Be crazy about yourself and you won't get too crazy over any man."

29 Years Ago—About.

● Brooklyn, City of Churches!

That's where, one Aug. 17, a twinkling-eyed Fate deposited the lusty girl baby who was to become the notorious Mae West!

This event occurred, according to its most interested participant, twenty-nine years ago. There are some who raise the eyebrow and greet the assertion fith an "O, yeah!" But Mae West is one of those ageless women who defy the teeth of time; so, it doesn't matter. It is of interest, however, that her birthplace was in the Bushwick section of Brooklyn, just two blocks from that of Screenland's other dangerous darling, Clara Bow; and that church chimes ring from the now hallowed spot where, disputed years ago, a family doctor made the momentous announcement:

"It's a girl!"

The date—August 17—with Venus in the ascendant! Note, please—Mae says her lucky numbers are 7 and 8—and her birth date shows the one and totals the other. As for Venus—Miss West proclaims that her destiny has been guided by the goddess of love—"and no foolin'!"

An Almost Champion.

● The star's daddy, Jack West [a chiropractor now], was a prize fighter in those good old days; a featherweight boxer who, according to report, almost, but not quite—which is completely not at all—won the world championship in his class. Says one who knew him:

"He was a rough, tough, socko and biffem fellow who, often in those gay nineties his daughter uproarified in "She Done Him Wrong," fought ring gladiators weighing from twenty to forty pounds more than he did—and licked 'em, too . . ."

From her dad, then, Mae probably inherited her carefree personality and her vigorous health

Mrs. West was of French and German parentage—born in Paris—and to her mother, Mae says, she owes virtually everything. For this gay, gentle woman was always at hand with sympathy and encouragement. Daughter and papa didn't get along so well. The pair were too much alike.

● Mae first tasted the blood of the theater at vaudeville shows to which she was taken by her parents. Here she gazed with owl eyes at Eva Tanguay, Bert Williams, Eddie Foy, George M. Cohan, and other favorites of the day, and, returning home, mimicked them, to the pride of her parents and the delight of the neighbors.

"That child will get somewhere yet!" crowed the folks. Ha—if they'd only known! . . .

Sang at Sociables.

● A yellowed clipping, long treasured by the now deceased mother, puts on record the fact that Mae West's first public appearance was when she was 5 years old—at a church social!

After that the tike was in demand, and her life was just one "recitation" after another for club and church affairs.

Several blocks from the West home stood the Gotham theater; and here, in Hal Clarendon's stock company, a small female spitfire, with mischievous, secretive cat eyes, played her first professional engagement.

Clarendon, a temperamental matinée idol of his time, had a standing rule: Nobody must come into his dressing room.

That rule preyed on the mind of young Mae.

One day the devil spoke to his own . . .

●

The story of this early indiscretion begins the second installment of Mae Tinee's revealing story of the Queen of Curves. . . . Read it in next Sunday's Tribune.

Virile Singer

EVER since Leonard Ceeley made his hit in Chicago as the swaggering gaucho in "Nina Rosa" several seasons ago he has been more or less "typed" as the villain of every piece he has appeared in. Following "Nina Rosa," he returned in "Marching By" as a philandering Russian officer, and is now playing the rôle of a bullying German captain in "Bitter Sweet" at the Grand Opera house.

However, Ceeley is anything but a one type actor. Few leading men in operetta have displayed the versatility in their stage careers that he has. Coming to the United States from England, where he had sung in grand opera and operetta, he was first seen here in Henry W. Savage's play "Lollypop." He was engaged by the Messrs. Shubert to play the title rôle in one of the "Student Prince" companies. He then played the leading part in "Countess Maritza." Then came "Katja," and an engagement with Hope Hampton in "My Princess," followed by "The Desert Song."

Ceeley has been one of the mainstays of the St. Louis Municipal opera during the last four seasons. Among the productions he has appeared in there are "Beau Brummel," in which he created the title rôle; "The Desert Song," "Nina Rosa," "My Maryland," "Three Musketeers," and "Bitter Sweet."

DANSEUSE OF NOTE

One of Chicago's well known, not to say distinguished dancers, Eleanor Block, will appear in a recital at the Punch and Judy theater this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The program is an item in the series of Sunday dance recitals now being given at the Punch and Judy.

Cornell's Start.

Katherine Cornell will begin her tour next Wednesday night with a performance of "Romeo and Juliet," in the Erlanger theater, Buffalo, N. Y. She will appear next week in the Davidson theater, Milwaukee.

like and some could do very easily without.

Only a few years back—at least it seems like a few years—one small Stone girl used to sit up prim and proper in a theater box and watch her father cavort about the stage. That would be Dorothy Stone. Then, in 1923, Dorothy quit high school and became an ingénue in "Stepping Stones." She was the loveliest dancer of that season. The fact that Ned Wayburn and a lot of other dancing teachers began turning out lovely dancers literally in carload lots about that time heightened the competition for Dorothy, but she kept well up with it.

By the time theatergoers became Dorothy-conscious there were a couple of other small Stones to sit in the stage box and applaud her. And go home to reason with their mother that going to school was really a silly business when going on the stage was so much more fun. They would be Paula and Carol Stone.

Carol Is a Good Sport.

Paula was the next to go over. Fred had decided to quit after he had Dorothy started, but there was an airplane accident which cracked up his ankles and a depression which cracked down his income. A lot of things happened which decided him to go on for a couple more years. So he added Paula to his troupe. Paula can dance, too, and sing a little, but she likes acting best.

This left Carol the only small Stone to take her place in the box and watch all the rest of the family act. She was a bright little chestnut haired schoolgirl for a couple of years and you could tell from the light in her eyes and the twitch of her head that she was both proud and envious of her sisters, a little impatient to be showing what she could do—but a good sport about awaiting her chance.

Smallest Stone More Than Makes Good.

Last Monday night Carol, who is 17 now, made her Broadway debut in a little ingénue part she had been studying four days and had never rehearsed. She played Blanche Yurka's daughter in "Spring in Autumn." On the program the name was still Helen Walpole, who was leaving to join Miss Cornell's traveling troupe, but there were a lot of folks in the audience who knew about Carol's going in, including her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Rex Beach.

There was a good deal of friendly family applause that night, but Carol didn't need it. She can, unless all signs fail, take very good care of Carol's stage future. She was not frightened, she said next day, just numb.

Polish Pianist, Aged 8, Sends Critics Into Rhapsodies.

Another debut of the week in which youth was served—a most amazing youth in this instance—was that of a pudgy little 8 year old Polish somebody carrying the name of Ruth Julia Sienczynski. Ruth Julia is a piano prodigy who sent the music reporters scurrying out of town hall to bombard their city editors with the information that they just had been witness to a sensation of practically historical significance in music circles.

An 8 year old girl who had to stretch to reach the pedals played a classical program that would have stumped many a professional of thrice her years. And played it with a feeling and understanding for which the reporters just couldn't find adjectives.

Ruth, it appeared next day and in the stories that followed, had been giving concerts in Europe practically since she was 5. She has been "hungry for music" since she was 2, her father, a violinist, insists. She never would play as other children played. Just followed her father around begging for music. He took her to a doctor, who could find nothing at all wrong with her otherwise. So they let her play the piano.

Ruth Julia is to tour America this winter, going through to the Pacific coast and back. She will give one more New York concert before she starts and there is a possibility that she will challenge the record of Master Mozart and play something important with a symphony orchestra before she sails home.

Classics on Tour

WALTER HAMPDEN will take to the road once more, opening Christmas night in Pittsburgh with a répertoire of three or four of his past successes, including probably "Richelieu," "Hamlet" and at least one other Shakespearean work. "Cyrano de Bergerac" and "Caponsacchi," familiar Hampden vehicles for a number of seasons, will be left behind this time. "Ruy Blas," in which the actor-manager appeared on tour briefly this fall, has been retired to the storehouse.

"AGGIE APPLEBY"

Charles Farrell and Wynne Gibson seem content if not ecstatic in this still from "Aggie Appleby, Maker of Men." At the Palace theater.

Barrymore for London.

Ethel Barrymore has agreed to visit London in February or March. She will play vaudeville for a time, and later may appear in a full length play. She has signed a contract to this effect with a London theatrical representative in New York.

"HENRY VIII"

Roistering royalty! Here's one of them as portrayed by Charles Laughton in "The Private Life of Henry VIII." Now at the United Artists.

"Music in Air" Is Masterpiece of Lyric Stage

Jerome Kern's Operetta of Bavarian Romance Is Notable for Charm.

By Charles Collins.

CHARM is an easy word to use, and therefore much abused, but it happens to be the right one for "Music in the Air," which has come to Chicago for an engagement that ought to run through the entire season. This musical production is notable for its harmonious balancing of the various elements that form an operetta—for its grace of theme and design and for its sunny, refreshing mood. It is a rich and gentle entertainment marked by high skill and fond authority in every department, both those of authorship and those of interpretation.

"Music in the Air" is particularly striking because it stands apart from the strident tendencies of the time. It is neither bawdy nor ironical. It gives you the lyric theater that tastes sweet in the mouth and caresses the imagination. It treats the stage as a medium for happy relaxation and blithe enjoyment rather than an incitement to inordinate lusts and mordant cynicisms. In this aspect it is, I think, progressive, not reactionary, for when I withdraw under the mantle of prophecy I foresee the coming of a period when much of the stuff that now flaunts the label, "civilized," will be regarded as a crazy form of barbarism.

Pageant of Life in Bavaria.

So if you are fairly sick of certain noxious tendencies in the theater of today—and vast numbers of good citizens are, I believe, in that mood—I urge that you give immediate attention to this admirable operetta, which may also be called a light opera or a large-scale lyric comedy. You will find the experience reassuring and highly rewarding.

A romantic view of town and country life in Bavaria, drenched with vocal and orchestral music, is the substance of this delightful work. Simple-hearted folk of a mountain village are placed in contrast with urbane and temperamental types of the theatrical class in the capital city, Munich. Bavaria, one might add, is the region to which Katharine Cornell, the actress, repairs for her summer holidays, and there is reason to believe that, in spite of the current press dispatches from Germany, it is a picturesque and happy land worthy of a librettist's fancy.

In its early scenes "Music in the Air" is an idyl of young love between a village girl to whom Heine might have written his best known lyric and a droll young schoolmaster who climbs mountains before breakfast. Then the story moves to Munich and becomes a blithe comedy in which worldliness and pastoral ideals are in conflict, and many spirited and engaging songs are caroled.

Authors as Stage Directors.

This light and winsome story is thronged with picturesque characters. The program names thirty-four of them, nearly all with sufficient identity to carry dialogue and at least fifteen of them life-size. The show thus becomes almost a pageant of Bavarian life in the terms of its theme. Even the figures in the background are well realized, and the audience never gets the impression, so common in operetta performances, that the participants in the crowd scenes are merely ungifted chorus employés carelessly stuffed into fancy costumes.

The stage direction is so adept, and countless little strokes of miming and "business" are so smoothly and adroitly managed that one wonders who was the master technician that rehearsed "Music in the Air." A glance at the program supplies the information that the composer [Jerome Kern] and the librettist [Oscar Hammerstein II.] attended to this important phase of the production. Here, then, is a team of operetta authors that can rank with George S. Kaufman, the "Of Thee I Sing" man, who writes them and stages them with equal shrewdness. The fact that Kern and Hammerstein served "Music in the Air" as technicians as well as creators undoubtedly contributed importantly to the well-tempered mood of the piece.

Score Based on German Folk Music.

Kern's mellow score is based largely upon the themes and style of Bavarian folk music, but he treated his material creatively and added another masterpiece to his impressive record. He has given each of the seven scenes its special musical mood, and the titles of these episodes run in the vocabulary of composition as follows: Leit motif, étude, pastorale, impromptu, sonata, nocturne, caprice, rhapsody, intermezzo, humoresque, rondo. Hammerstein's dialogue is deft and natural, achieving comic sparkle without straining for "lines" and "laughs."

The four central characters—a pair of country sweethearts and a brace of city sinners—are admirably played by Walter Slezak, Ann Barrie, Donald Brian and Desirée Tabor. Mr. Slezak, a quizzical young fellow from central Europe who has been making a name for himself on the English-speaking stage, strikes a new note in German comedy. Miss Barrie is a golden girl who can be a simple village maiden and a fascinating young woman at the same time. Mr. Brian's skill as an impetuous gallant is notable, and Miss Tabor appears as a spoiled prima donna with persuasive effect. All the others are equally happy in song and action.

"Music in the Air" is an operetta that reaches perfection in the realization of its intentions. The sum of it all is charm and grace and the clean air of lyric romance.

Who's Who in Cabaret Life; Alex's New Program

Gus Van, Veteran Star of Vaudeville Programs, at Paramount Club.

THE Café de Alex is now offering a floor show called "Alexander's Ragtime Follies." It includes two tableaux or spectacles—"Life of a Sophisticated Lady" and "End of the Depression." Gene Myles is the prima donna. Dorothy Denise appears in Hindu and African dances, and the Jordans give a demonstration of roller skating tricks.

● The Paramount club's entertainment is now led by Gus Van, formerly of the vaudeville team of Van and Schenk, who were as popular around Chicago as Olson and Johnson a few years back. Other entertainers are Babe Kane, Anita La Pierre, and Paul Batchelor. Keith Beecher's orchestra plays for dancing.

● A new café on the Randolph street rialto bears the name of Tin Pan Alley. Situated under Lindy's restaurant, it is patronized by the night owls of the show business. . . . The Melody club, also a recent addition to the catalogue, has Betty Burnett, a dancer, as featured entertainer. Tom Brown Jr.'s band supplies the music and William Mace serves as master of ceremonies.

● The Playground, Al Tearney's café on Wabash avenue, offers a new program of entertainment that has Jimmy Francis as master of ceremonies, Joe Little as dancer, Mildred Bolin as prima donna, Peggy Joyce, and Lou Shuttle's orchestra.

● Phil Harris continues his popular programs of entertainment at the College inn and promises to become as much of a landmark as Ben Bernie. Leah Ray, his young songstress, is the toast of the rialto. Lafayette and La Vergne, dancers of "Apache" numbers, have begun a return engagement with this floor show.

● Last night's formal dancing party in the Bal Tabarin of the Hotel Sherman was dedicated to China. The Joy Fun Toy company of acrobats and jugglers from Shanghai, who was a popular attraction in the Chinese theater at the World's Fair, gave the entertainment.

● Boyd Raeburn, music master in Fred Harvey's Embassy room in the Straus building, is reviving old ballads and American folk songs. He is also preparing orchestrations of authentic cowboy ballads, such as "Git Along, Little Dogies," "Bury Me Not on the Lone Prairie," "Good-by, Old Paint," and "As I Went Out on the Streets of Laredo." Raeburn says that the author of "The Last Roundup" apparently thought that the word "dogie" means a horse instead of a yearling steer.

● Ann Anderson, accordionist, who appeared in the stage production called "A Night in Spain" several years ago, is now the featured entertainer at the restaurant called L'Aiglon.

● The Old Mexico café at 64th street and Cottage Grove avenue has been received as a vivid reproduction of the cabaret of similar title at the World's Fair. The principal entertainers are Clarisse and Christian, from South America; Amelia Morales, Johnny Maloney, and Elizabeth O'Donnell. Charles Pierce is the band leader.

● A new place of night life entertainment called the Arcadia Gardens opened recently at 4444 Broadway. The dance floor accommodates 4,000. Leon Bloom's orchestra supplies the music. . . . Another north side amusement focus is the Limehouse café, at 1561 Howard street. A floor show is announced for every night this week except Monday, with Barney Richard's band.

ACTS IN NEW COMEDY

Marjorie Peterson has a leading role in "Sailor, Beware!" a comedy that is now at the Selwyn theater, supported by a Broadway reputation for bold, breezy mirth.

IS THAT YOU, CLARA?

Critic Finds That Twenty-five Parts of La Bow Are Just Plain Primitive.

By Mae Tinee.

INSTALLMENT VI.

A Battling Bow.

"IF 'Hoopla' isn't a success, I'm through with pictures for good."—CLARA BOW.

But don't you think that the girl whom a psychoanalyst called "33 parts introvert and 42 parts extrovert"—and who is 25 parts something we're going to decide on right in this chapter—isn't doing her best to MAKE "Hoopla" a success! Let there be no mistake about it—Clara is a Battling Bow!

And fat is one of the things she has to fight the hardest.

When the summons came to report in two months for work on "Call Me Savage" Clara suddenly discovered that she had taken on so much weight that she didn't conform to Hollywood's ideas of beauty.

To Rex she was perfect, but to the camera she was F—A—T!

She hadn't been worrying a bit about pounds out there in the desert.

She Let Herself Go.

"I always DID have to fight weight," she told an interviewer, "but out there on the ranch I just let myself go.

"If you've ever ridden horseback in the cool of the morning, you know just how hungry you are when you get back for breakfast. I used to rush into the ranchhouse starved—devour all the ham and eggs I could stand—and never feel it.

"I learned to cook, and I sampled everything I cooked. D'ya like rich, fluffy angel food cake piled high with marshmallowy frosting? Well—I can bake 'em. And I ate 'em, too. Too many—a heap too many. For the first time in my life, out there on the desert, I ate everything I wanted. . . ."

"Now—28 pounds of SOLID fat—and that's the sort I had!—is the hardest kind to get rid of. If you don't believe it, try it out some day. Was I flabbergasted!

"Well — nothing to do — but TO DO. . . !"

So Clara sent for a dietitian with a wallop. There arrived at the ranchhouse, husky, smiling, determined, competent—a certain Mrs. B——.

Mrs. B—— put her patient on a diet. Mrs. B—— gave her exercises to do. Mrs. B—— bared muscular arms and started to pound the pounds off Clara Bow.

"Those beatings she gave me," Clara said, "were so awfully painful that I used to put a handkerchief in my mouth to keep from screaming. . . !"

The End of the Battle.

Clara still cooked for Rex—but now she didn't sample. You who love to eat, who have at one time or other gone on a diet, will realize just how much self control THAT took!

The heat at the ranch was terrific. Still, after exercises, Clara'd get into an electric reducing machine and perspire. Ice bags on her head kept her from fainting.

Her diet was largely spinach, raw carrots, tomatoes, boiled fish, honey and avocado pears. NEVER anything fried! NEVER any desserts! No bread, tea, coffee, sweets, or starchy vegetables. BUT—

When the two months had rolled round Clara tipped the scales at 117 pounds.

Battling Bow had won!

All of which was just dandy. BUT—

The picture was finished and Rex and Clara went for their European holiday. . . . And they were wined and dined—as you've read about in the papers. . . AND, when she got back to Hollywood, Battling Bow was Butterball Bow and her producers looked at her with dismay.

"AW—off with those long faces!" cried Clara, valiantly. "I did it once. I can do it again. . . !"

The Remaining Twenty-five Parts.

And so we come to the end of our résumé and take up the psychoanalyst's analysis where he left off.

He said, if you remember, that Clara was 33 parts introvert and 42 parts extrovert—which to our way of calculating left 35 parts unaccounted for. So we thought we'd just try to figure out from a layman's standpoint just what the missing segment of 25 parts consisted of.

Don't you think—I do—that Clara Bow is 25 parts just plain primitive? There is about her a lawless, primal urge that appeals to the aborigine in every one of us. Wild calling to wild.

Reprehensible as may have been some of her actions, there was never anything studied about her misdemeanors. She has always been free of "the scum of sentiment and the mist of sophistry." When Fate flung her out into the big, dazzling world, she was just a little animal without trainers, and, up to a certain point, she followed the law of the jungle. As haven't we all? In our imaginings, anyway?

Disapprove of Clara Bow, blame her as one may, there remains a deep down something in most of us that growls companionably over her exploits.

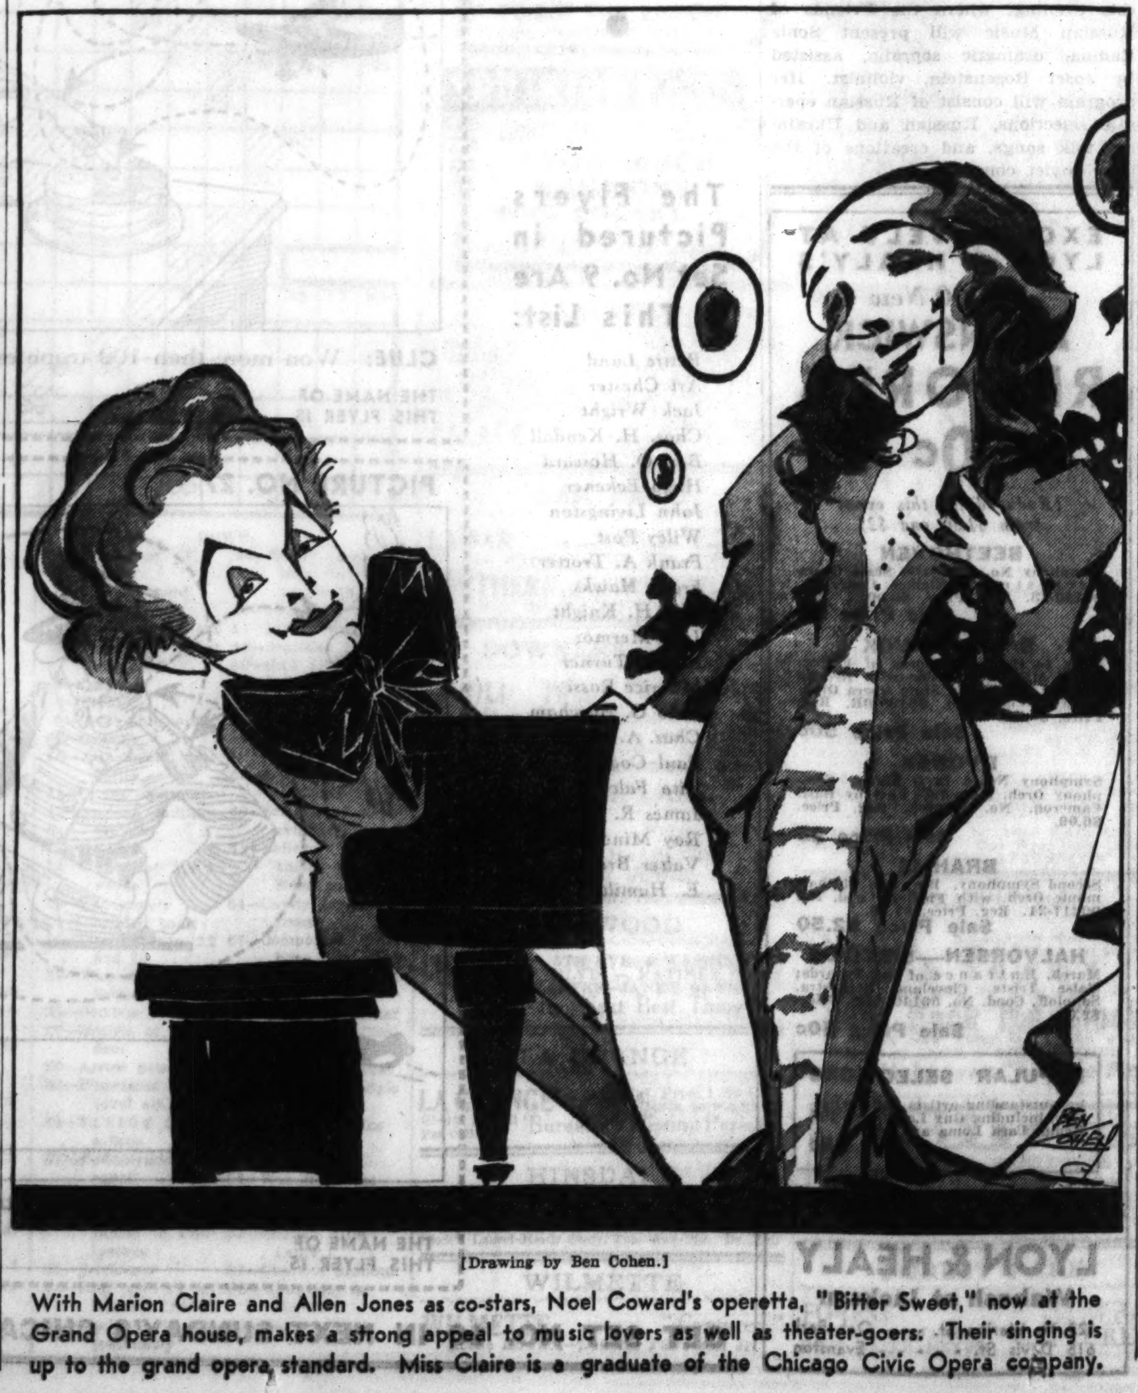
Good luck to her! May "Hoopla" be a success. If it isn't and Clara Bow DOES retire to the ranch and become just plain Mrs. Bell—why, may her children and grandchildren call her blessed!

THE END.

Ibsen Revival.

Eva Le Gallienne, whose tour is developing into something of a triumph, is adding to her répertoire, which now includes "Romeo and Juliet" and "Alice in Wonderland," a third production from her civic repertory stock. "Hedda Gabler" will be given for the first time Dec. 9 in Pittsburgh.

SINGING OF LOVE IN "BITTER SWEET"



[Drawing by Ben Cohen.]

With Marion Claire and Allen Jones as co-stars, Noel Coward's operetta, "Bitter Sweet," now at the Grand Opera house, makes a strong appeal to music lovers as well as theater-goers. Their singing is up to the grand opera standard. Miss Claire is a graduate of the Chicago Civic Opera company.

FOLLOWING THIS MEDICAL ADVICE OFTEN ENDS ALL BOWEL WORRIES

If you want to
. . . keep the bowel action regular and comfortable
. . . make constipated spells as rare as colds
. . . avoid danger of bowel strain
—use a liquid laxative

Can constipation be overcome? "Yes!" say medical men. "Yes!" say thousands who have followed their advice and know.

You are not apt to cure your constipation with salts, pills and tablets, or with any habit-forming cathartic. But you can overcome this condition by gentle regulation with a suitable liquid laxative.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the average person's bowels just as regular as clock-work in a few weeks' time.

Why Hospitals use a liquid laxative

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can be controlled. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The right liquid laxative will bring a perfect movement, with no discomfort at the time, or afterward.

The wrong cathartic may keep you constipated as long as you keep on using it!

In buying any laxative, read the label. If it contains a doubtful drug, don't take it.

If you don't know what is in it, don't chance it. The contents of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is stated plainly on the label; fresh herbs, pure pepsin, active senna.

Its very taste tells you syrup pepsin is wholesome. A delightful taste, and delightful action. Safe for expectant mothers, and children. All druggists have it, ready for use, in big bottles.

A Thousand People a Week are Making this Test

This test has proved to many men and women that their trouble was not "weak bowels," but strong cathartics!

First: select a properly prepared liquid laxative. Second: take the dose you find suited to your system. Third: gradually reduce the dose until bowels are moving of their own accord.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the highest standing among liquid laxatives, and is the one generally used. Any druggist has it.

Fair Has Fine Building for Summer Music

Little Used Hollywood Theater Might be Opened for Operas, Concerts.

By Edward Moore.

THOUGH the present musical season is still in its first quarter, though many interesting events, including an opera season, are still on the horizon, it is not entirely out of place to look ahead to a possibility of next summer. For the way to get things done is to plan them in advance rather than to make a hasty, last-moment swoop at them.

Over on the grounds of A Century of Progress there is a building that could be turned to first class uses in the way of summer music. It is the Hollywood theater. If and when the Exposition reopens next summer it will be there. Even if some mischance should cancel the reopening, it will still be there. An expert opinion has been conveyed to this department that the building, while not classifying as permanent, is well enough constructed so that it can last for ten years or more.

Lions and Steamboats Would Have to Be Hushed.

It seats about 1,800 persons, and the author of the opinion just quoted added that a bit of by no means difficult enlargement would give it a capacity of 3,000 or more. It has a practicable stage large enough to accommodate a complete symphony orchestra or a large band, and a little more reconstruction would make it possible to erect scenery on the stage and present opera, musical shows, or ballet, with the orchestra in a pit below.

For one reason and another the Hollywood theater was little used last summer, but there was at least one night, when the Woman's Symphony orchestra played on the stage under the direction of Ebba Sundstrom, that displayed it as an excellent place for musical programs.

It is true that this particular concert was a bit disturbed by extraneous noises, the whistles of arriving and departing steamboats on one side and the petulant remarks of a lion that did not enjoy orchestra music on the other, but these could be controlled. There could be rules for steamboats and the abolition of the lion. Otherwise the Hollywood theater is in a location where noises from the outside need not be much of a factor.

Airy Place (Plus Liquid Refreshment?) Aids Melody.

There is no need here to enlarge on the pleasant qualities of summer music, especially when such music is presented in an airy place and perhaps with refreshments, liquid or otherwise, to assist melody in its flight. Concerts of the sort are generally successful. The chief requirements are a good attraction, a location not too difficult of access, and an admission charge not too great for the average pocketbook.

If there be those who would promote summer music, here is a suggestion of a place in which it could be promoted.

An enclosure of this sort would be a good place for the introduction of the music that Paul Whiteman hopes to bring out. Mr. Whiteman has always been of the opinion that there are a number of mute, inglorious Johann Strausses and Victor Herberts in America and, though some of the music brought to his attention has not always tended to justify his belief, he at least discovered George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue." So he maintains it.

Whiteman's Scholarships Will Go to Musicians Under 30.

He now issues a statement saying that he will once a year give a Whiteman gold medal, plus a scholarship and financial support for one year to the composer of "the best musical composition in the modern American form."

Amateurs and professionals alike are eligible. He stipulates three conditions: that the composer be American; that he be not over 30 years of age, and that the composition be submitted in orchestral score. Piano versions alone will not be considered. He adds:

"All this, I feel, will go a long way toward stimulating interest in modern American music, and toward possibly developing a group of writers now unknown, who, through the medium of my sponsorship and through the support that my orchestral and radio connections will be able to assure, may develop into important figures in the world of music."

News of Interest to Lovers of Music.

It would almost seem that the proponents of the newly established Chicago Grand Opera company are not altogether in accordance with the title of the organization. They may, or may not, have a theory about taking the grand out of grand opera, but they certainly are planning to make the season one of much less austere entertainment than it has been for many years.

They speak of a great pageant and ball to introduce the new company to its patrons, one which will not only give a pictorial and scenic idea of what the season is to be, but will introduce the public to that mysterious country called backstage, the scene shifting mechanism, the electrical equipment, the dressing rooms, all the region usually kept secret from all except participants.

They also tell of a night club in the Civic Opera house lobby, to start operations each night the moment the final curtain has fallen, and to be featured by a fine orchestra and the best of entertainers. This, the proponents say, will have two advantages. It will give entertainment to those who desire it, and by so doing will relieve the congestion of automobiles for those leaving the opera house.

Other plans of a similar order are on foot. They tend toward the physical comfort as well as the artistic pleasure of the patrons. One begins to suspect that the Chicago Grand Opera company is to be run by showmen.

Frederick Stock will return from a brief vacation in time to take up the concerts of the Chicago Symphony orchestra on Thursday evening and Friday afternon. Eric DeLamarter will conduct the program on Tuesday afternoon. On this occasion Joseph Vito, the harpist of the orchestra, will be the soloist, playing Ravel's Introduction and Allegro. The symphony will be Scriabin's "The Divine Poem," and Mr. DeLamarter will likewise present what would seem to be the first performance of Turina's "Sinfornia Sevillana."

The Hungarian violinist, Joseph Szigeti, just returned from a two years' tour of the world, will be the soloist on Thursday and Friday in Corelli's "La Folia" and Mozart's Concerto in D major. Mr. Stock is likewise conducting a novelty, the first performance of John Alden Carpenter's "Sea Drift." The symphony will be Beethoven's Eighth.

Two notable choruses will be singing simultaneously on Michigan avenue this afternoon. Hall Johnson, who was responsible for the musical success of "Green Pastures," is bringing his own choir to the Studebaker to present a program of sacred and secular Negro music. The concert is sponsored by the All-Chicago Kiwanis clubs, and the proceeds will be for the benefit of the Christopher House association.

At the same hour the Don Cossack Russian Male chorus will appear at Orchestra hall under the direction of Serge Jaroff. Officers of the Russian White army, they began to form as a chorus while in prison camp in Bulgaria, and they have been singing ever since their release. They are vividly remembered here not only for their singing of the Russian church ritual but for the folk and dance songs of their native country.

Other Russian music will be heard in the Masonic Temple auditorium this evening, where the Friends of Russian Music will present Sonia Radina, dramatic soprano, assisted by Josef Rosenstein, violinist. Her program will consist of Russian operatic selections, Russian and Ukrainian folk songs, and creations of the later soviet composers.

RAFTER ROMANCE

MUSIC FOR FUN

- "Lopez speaking." When you hear these words coming out of your receiving set you can be sure that it will be followed by some smart music, smartly orchestrated, smartly played.

- Vincent Lopez is something of a radio attraction as well as the leader and head of the band which bears his name. He is doing his talking and playing just now from Chez Paree.

- He adds to his talents by being a pianist of uncommon swiftness and skill as well as a director. When he takes up the baton it is easy to see in his face as well as in those of his players that his music is all in the spirit of good nature.

- But chiefly he does his stuff and makes it entertaining. He has a gift for keying his pieces to the tempo that belongs to them.

"Extras" Most Colorful Group in All Hollywood

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—Probably the most interesting and colorful group in Hollywood is not the stars but the extra players.

From all walks of life, from high spots in their present profession, if you can call it that, from many countries, the Hollywood extra is recruited. The extras encountered on the set of "Let's Fall in Love," at Columbia, are perhaps exceptional, but they typify what one can find in this work that pays $7.50 a day.

Leo White is a name that perhaps means little to audiences of today. Yet Wallie Beery and Leo were the first comedy team in films back in the old Essanay days. He was starred in famous George Ade "Fables" on the screen; he played in Chaplin comedies as a French count; later Chaplin felt that they were too much of a type to play together in films and asked Leo about being groomed as a director for him. White is still kicking himself that he let that chance slip.

Lillian West, who co-starred with William Farnum, Harold Lockwood, and Frank Mayo, who came to films from the Follies, is another "atmospheric" player. She played with Sam Bernard in the ingénue lead when Charlotte Greenwood was a chorus girl in the company.

Donald Hall, who played the stellar rôle in London as Lord Abercord in "Florodora," in its first production in London, still has his press clippings from those halcyon days. Also of the twenty years in films with Earle Williams, Norma Talmadge, Dustin Farnum, and other stars.

Michael Visaroff, once noted star of the Moscow Art theater, is working as "atmosphere," too; Gregory Ratoff, who used to be an usher and handyman at the theater in those days, is now featured in this same "Let's Fall in Love," and he and Visaroff swap yarns of the old days.

Emilie Cabanne, socially prominent sister of Christie Cabanne, famous director, let her pride slip with her dividends and earns her living as an extra. She can recall the time when she dined with the prince of Wales on his battleship at Manila when her husband was aide de camp to Gov. Gen. Leonard Wood.

"DANCING LADY"

Joan Crawford — looking as if she's about to ascend unto heaven — or something. Now in "Dancing Lady." At the Chicago theater.

THE WEEK'S VAUDEVILLE

EARL CARROLL'S "Vanities" revue [tenth edition], reduced to 75 minutes of playing time, forms the stage entertainment on the program of the Palace theater this week. The company numbers 60 players, including Ray Bolger, the Collette Sisters, the Samuel Brothers, Jack Squires, and Jean Travers.

"The Piccoli," Podrecca's world-famous marionette show, has returned to the Chicago theater, where it appeared last winter after a Chicago engagement as a legitimate stage offering. The program will include many new numbers, as well as favorites such as "The Bull Fight" and "The Concert." Donald Novis, radio singer; Vic Oliver, comedian, and Margot Crangle are also on the bill.

Verne Buck and his orchestra are returning to the State-Lake theater today to succeed Al Kvale. The vaudeville portion of the program contains Sally Sweet, of Broadway revues, films, and cabaret shows; Wally Jackson and Ed Gardner, comedians, and the Robins Sisters.

Sixteen Roles in Light Opera for Allan Jones

ALTHOUGH Allan Jones, the young leading man of "Bitter Sweet" at the Grand Opera house, has been singing on the legitimate stage only a year and a half, he has appeared in sixteen productions.

Jones had been winning laurels for himself in the fields of grand opera and concert when he was discovered by J. J. Shubert, and was immediately signed up, in June of 1932, to play leading rôles with the Municipal Opera Company of St. Louis, whose activities are directed by Mr. Shubert. He made his debut as Baron von Schober in "Blossom Time," and scored one of the hits of the season. He appeared in seven other operettas during that summer, including "Desert Song," "Blue Paradise," "Honeymooners," "Sari," "The Love Call," "Land of Smiles," and the musical version of "Cyrano de Bergerac," called "Roxane."

At the close of the St. Louis season he was engaged to play in a touring company of "Roxane." When that production closed he was immediately put into the "Student Prince" and "Blossom Time" repertory company.

Stage Biography

NOTED actors are represented in the twelfth volume of the Dictionary of American Biography, just completed under the auspices of the American Council of Learned Societies.

Among them are Danforth Marble, actor of Yankee rôles in the thirties and forties; Juhn McCullough, one of the most popular actors in the middle of the nineteenth century; Richard Mansfield and Robert B. Mantell, Henry Miller, who in the latter part of his career designed and supervised the building of Henry Miller's theater, New York, and the dramatist, actor, and inventor, Steele MacKaye.

- In this display are the famous pictures worth from one thousand dollars up to twenty-five hundred dollars. For sale are beautiful linens, auto robes, Irish tweeds, poplins, and ecclesiastical goods. Prices range up to more than one hundred dollars.

★ ★ ★ ★

- Fine jewelry, mosaics, beautiful laces, gorgeous brocades, as well as table runners, brocaded spreads and handsome tapestries. Prices range from forty-eight cents to over one hundred dollars.

★ ★ ★ ★

- The merchandise in these various displays consists of modernistic furniture, fine linens, dainty wash goods and silks, novelty jewelry, ivory and lacquer ware. A wonderful exhibit of artistic Japanese home life. A range of prices suitable for every purse.

★ ★ ★ ★

- Handbags, slippers, jewelry and rugs—a display of merchandise worthy of the most fastidious shopper. A group of inlaid coffee tables, tabourets and hassocks adds to the interest of this exhibit.

★ ★ ★ ★

- Rare tapestries, beautiful jewelry and a wonderful collection of pottery vases grace this display. Particularly important to those desiring to give a gift for the home is the exhibition of handsomely decorated genuine leather hassocks.

★ ★ ★ ★

- A unique line of pottery and filigree jewelry (see this jewelry made) has found its way to this country via A CENTURY OF PROGRESS from this ancient land. The colorings are exotic, but the prices are very moderate.

★ ★ ★ ★

- Tapestries, vases, shawls, and jewelry with the charm of old Spain. The products of artisans combining the mystery and skill prized in the old world.

★ ★ ★ ★

- Furniture, china, glassware, silverware, linens, dinnerware, art pottery, table glassware, fine liquor sets and many others. Merchandise made by the skilled hands of craftsmen. In this display you will find items suitable for lovely Christmas gifts. Prices range up to five hundred dollars. (See the model motor ocean liner.)

THE VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Lilian's Fan Objects.

Dear Mae Tinée: Mae, you ain't done right by our Lil.

After reading your review of "My Weakness" and your criticism of Lilian Harvey, I'm ready to have it out with you. True, the piece was trivial, but to lampoon Miss Harvey the way you did, well—you'll never go to heaven when you die.

It isn't simply that Lilian has everything; she is everything. Everything in life that is young and lovely and sadly sweet. Every time she flits across the screen; every movement she makes; every gesture and grimace; every word she speaks or sings, is dripping with personality. You can see and hear and sense and almost smell the fragrance of her charm. It must be that you are so accustomed to the commonplace, that when some one has something new and different to offer, you're too sleepy to wake up. Some one ought to stick you with a pin.

"Licking her lips" . . . "messy hair" . . . "artificial." Some of your descriptive phrases would really be hilariously funny if it weren't that one is supposed to take you seriously. You must have had too much 3.2 in you when you wrote that review. Lilian is Miss Universe, 1933, and all the others are falling stars now that she's here.

Well, toodle-oo, Mae. You need a good scolding once in a while. Now maybe you'll feel differently next time you see her. Yours,

HELEN HUMPHREY.

Editor's Note: Toodle-oo.

Fairy Tales for Children.

Dear Miss Tinée: Every morning I read your reviews and have noticed time and again that you always mention whether the pictures are fit for children or not.

Now with the "Three Little Pigs," such a hit, and "Alice in Wonderland" soon to be released, why don't they have revivals of some of the fairy tales of ten or twelve years ago?

When we went to a movie on Saturday afternoon we were held enthralled by "Jack and the Beanstalk," "Hansel and Gretel," and "The Wizard of Oz" [not the one Larry Semon played in]. These were acted by Madge Evans and the Lee sisters, and enjoyed by all the kiddies and grownups alike.

I am certain many mothers would rather have their children see shows like that, than the hair raising serials that are run every week.

Please see what you can do toward having these pictures shown again. Sincerely,

R. L.

Editor's Note: I'll print your letter. Maybe that will start a ball rolling.

Here It Is, in Print!

Dear Miss Tinée: I know beforehand you will not publish this, for I note that only such letters as praise your favorites or condemn your "pet peeves" see the light of print, but anyhow I send this to ask Why? O! Why? should a clever actress like Kay Francis get the stupid idea that women doctors wear the type clothes worn by inverts. I am well acquainted with many women physicians, and very competent ones, and I am yet to see one of them dressed in "mannish" clothes such as she assumes in "Mary Stevens, M. D." Sort of like the old time silents when they tabulated a doctor with long whiskers and a silk high hat. And that's that.

However, Lyle Talbot made up for the other defects of the picture. In my humble opinion he is a coming actor, and I'm glad they've taken him out of the gangster parts. Yours very truly,

E. B. F.

Such a Lot of Enthusiasm!

Dear Mae Tinée: I have just been to see "Broadway Through a Keyhole." Was it great? I'm telling you! Paul Kelly stole the picture from Constance Cummings and Russ Columbo.

There was one thing that bothered me throughout the picture, that is, when I wasn't sitting on the edge of my chair with excitement, who was the fellow playing the part of Chuck Haskins?

There were times when I could have sworn it was Jack Benny. Did you notice the resemblance, or am I all wet? [Look up the date and have your wise crack.]

And that Frances Williams! Hotcha! I could hear the sighs of the men—bald heads and boys—around me when she did her number.

What I liked about W. W.'s film was that it had just the right portions of melodrama, comedy, and music to make you feel rested upon leaving the theater.

This letter is getting too long. Good luck, etc.

HAROLD DOVER.

Editor's note: Hugh O'Connell played Chuck Haskins. Like your enthusiasm!

Rafter Romance Is Enlivened by Two Gay Stars

Ginger Rogers and Norman Foster Again Team Up in Charming Love.

"RAFTER ROMANCE."

Produced by RKO. Directed by William Seiter. Presented at the State-Lake theater.

THE CAST.

Mary Carroll	Ginger Rogers
Jack Bacon	Norman Foster
Max Eckbaum	George Sidney
Hubbell	Robert Benchley
Elise	Laura Hope Crews
Fritzie	Guinn Williams
Rosie Eckbaum	Ferike Boros
Julius	Sidney Miller

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD MORNING!

You haven't forgotten—how could you!—"Professional Sweetheart," that so pleasantly teamed Ginger Rogers and Norman Foster? Note, then, with glee, that these attractive and clever young people are again the co-center of interest in the State-Lake's new screen show.

As Mary Carroll and Jack Bacon they are vurr', vurr' poor, and are both tenants of a cheap walk-up apartment house owned by Mr. and Mrs. Eckbaum, kindly Hebrew folk who are earnestly trying to get along. Jack, a night watchman with artistic tendencies, occupies the attic. Mary—out of a job when the picture opens—has a small apartment on the next floor down. Neither knows the other exists.

Poor Mary has not the wherewithal to pay her rent and has been that way for a good long time. Poor Mr. Eckbaum needs his money but can't bear to throw her out.

He worriedly keeps life in her with Mamma Eckbaum's noodle soup, the while casting about in his mind what to do, what to do . . .!

Suddenly the light breaks. Unto Papa Eckbaum is born a great idea. So——!

His attic tenant sleeps days and is out of his quarters from 8 p. m. till 8 a. m. Fine! Mary shall be the attic's night tenant, vacating each morning before Jack returns from his night watching.

At first Jack, who believes his prospective co-tenant to be a rigid maiden lady, refuses point-blank. But Papa Eckbaum will not take "No." And Mary throws hysterics at the notion of occupying "a room with a man"—albeit the contract demands that she never see the brute.

Both being hard put to financially, eventually give in . . .

Well, Mary gets a job as telephone solicitor for "Icy Air" refrigerators, and one evening runs into Jack down at the delicatessen store. Here, with each in ignorance of the other's true identity, a friendship is struck which develops into love.

Mary believes Jack to be a wealthy Mr. Whoosis interested in dating up a lot of refrigerators for an "aunt's" suburban project . . .

And soon the fireworks start . . .

The story is entertainingly built up and has considerable amusing subsidiary incident in which Laura Hope Crews and Robert Benchley figure brightly. The former is in evidence as a rich, tippling would-be patroness of the night-watchman-artist and the latter as the sales manager of "Icy Air," who craves to be the big moment in Mary's life. As for Ginger Rogers and Norman Foster, they're delightful.

"Rafter Romance" has enough laughs to satisfy most reasonable fans, packs quite a bit of suspense and is patly dialogued.

It is, all told, a mighty intriguing package of entertainment from RKO to you.

See you tomorrow!

Prospects of Opera and of a "Gay Nineties Ball" Cheer Local Society

By COUSIN EVE.

ONWARD into winter we go, with a short season of grand opera in the offing. The pink velvet interior of the once Civic Opera house will again resound to the voices of Schipa and Muzio, Martinelli, Raisa, and other Italians, and, one might hope, an equal number of American artists.

George Woodruff has resolved that Chicago shall continue to have opera.

The Drake, latterly a great dancing center, has another fashionable charity dance on Thanksgiving eve, "The Gay Nineties Ball," of which Mrs. John Elliott Warner, handsome daughter-in-law of Lansing Warner, is chairman. Featured parodies of early ballroom dancing, and our present casual steps, also oriental soothsayers, tintyping, this and that of amusement to benefit infant welfare on the north shore, our popular Riviera.

Radio Review for Charity.

Also in the offing, another great Radio review at the stadium on Dec. 4, with a tremendous program. "in person" of all the stars, to benefit the Community Fund for Unemployment Relief.

A part of the woman's committee met late Monday afternoon in Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick's living room to push the project, the only benefit to be given for this fund. Mrs. McCormick is chairman and has for her chief adjutant Mrs. John Alden Carpenter.

Under the smiling eyes of a lovely blonde Raeburn lady of the long ago, and with a dreamy Corot river of France, relic of a beautiful, peaceful past to inspire, these few women organized in a half hour. One hundred boxes at eighteen dollars are selling rapidly, and the seats fortunately sell themselves. Each woman present volunteered to sell five boxes, and the meeting ended with a cup of tea. Mrs. Joseph Cudahy, since the beginning a leader in unemployment relief, is the Radio review's greatest fan—says it is football, grand opera and baseball all rolled into one for her. She thrills as the roof shakes over greetings to Wayne King and as the crowd reacts to Amos and Andy.

Parish Suppers Gay and Charming.

For those uninformed of the Community fund, it is destined to reach those people not helped by the government's food, shelter, and small amount of clothing. They are in dire need of help, being infirm, ill perhaps, incapable of work.

Present at this meeting, called by Mrs. McCormick and Mrs. Carpenter, were Mrs. Joseph

THE EXQUISITE MISTRESS OF WARWICK CASTLE

Below: As beautiful as any moving picture star he met in Hollywood is the earl of Warwick's exquisite bride, the former Rose Bingham. The countess is the daughter of Lady Rosabelle Brand, the granddaughter of the earl of Rosslyn and the great-granddaughter of the nonogenarian dowager countess of Rosslyn (who also is the great-grandmother of the earl of Warwick, which would mean that the young couple are distantly related). The marriage of the beautiful English "Rose" and the seventh earl of Warwick took place last July in the little village church at Glynde, Sussex, culminating a romance that started in childhood. Young Lord Warwick paid a brief visit to Chicago last spring on his way to New York to sail for home from Hollywood, where he had been spending two months. He is master of historic Warwick castle, that great gray pile of stone in Warwickshire saved by order of Oliver Cromwell.

AN AUSTRALIAN BEAUTY WHO BECAME THE COUNTESS OF JERSEY

Above: A recent portrait of the lovely young countess of Jersey, formerly Miss Patricia Richards, daughter of Kenneth Richards of Cootamundra, New South Wales, Australia, and Mrs. Richards of London. The marriage of the young Australian beauty and the ninth earl of Jersey, one of the most eligible young men in London society, at St. Margaret's church, London, in January, 1932, was a brilliant event of that season. Lord Jersey and his bride went to Australia on their honeymoon. The young earl and his countess (he is 23 and she is 20) have three homes, Middleton Park, Bicester; Osterly Park, Isleworth, and Baglan house, Briton Ferry, South Wales.

Large Reception or Small Musical—Which?

By GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 25.—(Special.)—If you had your choice which would you rather attend: A large reception at the White House or a smallish musical after a state dinner? Not the dinner itself, you understand—merely the musical.

The Roosevelts are cutting down on the guest lists at the state receptions this year. But they are expanding the guest list for the post-dinner musicals. Mrs. Roosevelt is concerned for fear the guests who used to be bid to a formal reception and who receive instead a card to a musical will feel cheated.

But I think she's wrong. It seems to me I'd rather go to the musical with a few people than the reception with the many, even though there are more gold lace and ambassadorial medals at the reception.

Do you agree with me or with Mrs. Roosevelt?

- I see the wonderful refrigerator lost out. Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, wife of the attorney general, was looking at a house recently. Its main charm, she found, was its mammoth icebox. She fell in love with that icebox. But today the real estate press agent sent out a dispatch (they do that in this town). It told that the Cummingses had taken a house. But it's not the house with the famous refrigerator.

- A prominent lady politician who hasn't got all she wants from the administration confided to me the other day: "I wonder if the Republicans were as unhappy when they were in power."

- Washington loves a party. It groans when the social program is shortened or simplified. New Year's-day used to be one of crowded hours. In the morning the diplomats, and all the official celebrities, and as many others who could horn in, were received at the White House. At noon the same crowd went to the Pan-American patio to the big breakfast given, traditionally, by the secretary of state. This year there will be no White House reception. Cordell Hull, the secretary of state, will be down at Montevideo, so there will be no breakfast. But Washington, wistfully waiting, is saying: "Why doesn't Acting Secretary of State William Phillips give a bang-up breakfast New Year's morning? He's rich."

So far he hasn't heard the sighs.

- As I write this Jim Farley, the postmaster general, is, I believe, walking up the gangplank of a steamer with his wife, bound for a holiday in Europe. He needs it. He won't weep many tears to leave the job seekers waiting on the shore. He's not the first politician who has left the country to get a respite from patronage pleas. Bob Reynolds, the junior senator from North Carolina, fled to Russia for a rest. But we mustn't say a word about Russia now, must we?

- Everything goes by seniority in the senate. When you are assigned to a committee you take the last seat. Gradually you work up the side until, when you are the ranking member of your party and your party is in power, you become the committee chairman. Sometimes it takes twenty years for you to accomplish this journey from the foot to the head of the green baize table.

But Senator Erickson of Montana, who was appointed only last March, will be chairman of the public lands committee when congress convenes in January. This comes about through a succession of deaths and retirements, and the fact that those ahead of the Montanan in the line already hold other chairmanships. So, John Erickson, it looks as if you'd be the boy who made good right soon.

- A writer in a recent magazine article named the diplomatic missions from some of the lesser countries the "bush-league legations." The name has stuck. Now these legations are entertaining at a great rate—to offset the poor publicity.

IN A GOWN REMINISCENT OF DAYS THAT ARE PAST

PROSPECTS OF WINTER OPERA CHEER SOCIETY

Pink Velvet Interior of the Civic Will Again Echo World-Famed Voices.

R. Patterson, Mrs. Kersey Reed, Mrs. Silas Strawn, Mrs. Charles W. Dempster, Mrs. Joseph Cudahy, Mrs. Frank Hixon, head of the women's local drive; Mrs. George Lytton, Mrs. C. B. Goodspeed, Mrs. W. A. Yager, Mrs. Frank Johnson, Mrs. Edwin Sims Jr., and Mrs. John W. Gary.

Among the quaint jollifications of this week, on Tuesday an all day sale in the community house of St. James church, followed by a supper. Such is the spirit of camaraderie established by Dr. and Mrs. Duncan Browne at St. James that its parish suppers and parties are about the best in town. That is, they are gay and full of life, and charming people.

Polish Consul General Honors Madame de Hygersberger.

Thus for Tuesday's sale Mrs. Fremont A. Chandler is chairman, and the names of Mrs. Edward Blair, Mrs. Alan Dixon, Mrs. Robert F. Hall, Mrs. A. C. McCord, Mrs. Eames MacVeagh, Mrs. Robert Peck, Mrs. E. L. Ryerson Jr., Mrs. Joseph Ryerson, Mrs. Orville Taylor, Mrs. P. A. Valentine, Mrs. Knickerbocker Wood follow.

Last Sunday was a day of luncheons, quite fascinating ones. One at the Polish consul general's, assembled to meet Mme. de Hygersberger, the handsome sister of Edward Kuhlikowski, and also Mlle. Lipkowska, a blooming young pianist about to motor off to California. This attractive girl was rather pleased than not that she had been held up at dusk on the fashionable north side. Dinner table talk for Warsaw.

Mme. de Hygersberger spent last winter in Rome as a guest at the Polish embassy, having no end of an entrancing time in diplomatic circles. She is a definitely Greuze type, and very smart.

After luncheon the consul general asked Mlle. Lipkowska to play, which she did—she is devoted to the work of Shumansky, a young composer of 18 years, I believe. I confess I prefer my Poles to play Chopin.

Emil Wetten Revives "Back on the Farms" Memories.

While this Polish party was going forward Emil Wetten, eminent lawyer in Chicago, but the most farmer-y farmer any one ever met in Barrington, was entertaining a dozen or so charming people on his farm.

Mr. Wetten raises everything on the spot, including tobacco, wool, all known vegetables and fruits, and now he makes sorghum.

If the occasion is very grand the menu includes "three little pigs," beautifully roasted outdoors. This time it was partridge, and guests came home full of fresh air from walking over crackling leaves in the woods and down wind-swept lanes.

Late in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mulford were "at home" in Delaware place in honor of the engagement of their niece, Evelyn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Mott of Charlottesville, Va., to John Dodson, a young Pennsylvanian. Tall and charming, the prospective bride has chatain locks and dark eyes.

Lifar Couldn't Live Up to His Press Notices.

Needless to say, the Winterbotham family, always clannish and united, was here in numbers—Mrs. John H. Winterbotham, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Winterbotham Jr., Mrs. Shreve Badger, Mr. and Mrs. Rosecrans Baldwin; also Mr. and Mrs. Ballard Moore, Mr. and Mrs. George Lytton, Helen Dawes, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Grace, Robert Fernald, Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Powell Pardee.

Meanwhile Thomas Fisher and his charming wife, Ruth Page, the dancer, were entertaining many at the Arts club. This party was for Serge Lifar, premier danseur of the Paris opera. I saw him there last year in a magnificent ballet of his own staging called "Le Coq d'Or," and it was a gorgeous evening, unforgettable. What he did for Miss Grace Denton's Monday nights at the Auditorium was not so good. Because he had been heralded and perhaps handicapped by the advance reclamé of Madam Sert and others, the great audience expected too much of the young Russian. Given a 75 per cent rebate for overstatement, Lifar is a powerfully built bouncing boy who dances with a retinue of six solid youths.

John Alden Carpenter to Play at Pikes' Tea.

I thought when they came on that they were Japanese wrestlers. However, the evening had its moments. Curiosity was at least quieted, and Olga Adabache and Mlle. Darsonval were delightful girls. I really like ballet dancing better than faunesque things. Audience highly diverting, with Robert Allerton home and, as usual, in the front row. The Howard Linns, madame in shimmering black; Francise Clow draped in gold tissue, the Donald and James H. Douglases; Shan-Khar in a side box full of Hindus. Swathed in bandages, his dancing dates are canceled for some weeks. The Louis Sudlers, Sol Smiths Jr., and Joseph T. Bowens Jr. all well down in front, while the boxes were a blaze of glory, with budding little tiaras, much gleaming lamé, tails of ermine.

The next Girl Scout concert, Dec. 11, hails Elizabeth Rethberg and Tito Schipa.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burrall Pike have sent out cards for a musical and tea at the Chicago Historical society, Sunday, Dec. 3. The musical program is of special moment, John Alden Carpenter at the piano in a recital of his own composition, and that gifted singer, Minna Hager of New York, to interpret his songs. Mr. Pike is president of the Chicago Historical society.

Duchesse Gives Inside Story of French Chateau Life.

I saw quite a little of that distinguished lecturer and traveler, the duchess of Clermont-Tonnerre, before she lectured here. It was amazing how quickly she registered in the small, intimate group in which she found herself and became one of that group. But there is a sort of freemasonry among women of the great world; put them down anywhere among women of their own class and they are at home, immediately finding points of contact.

Thus the duchess, here for the first time, knows well Comte Serge Fleury, literary man of the French foreign office, who visits us annually, but whom doesn't she know?

Fortunately I had read her "Pomp and Circumstance" and "Years of Plenty," worldly memoirs full of the dignity and charm of French country and town life, of stag hunts, house parties; piquant recollections, if lightly scandaleuses. The duchesse de Clermont is confused by the casual with la duchesse de Grammont, born Princess Ruspoli of Quite, is, to quote an old saying, "a different breed of cats." Our visitor was born Elizabeth de Gramont, daughter of a duke, and for her books and lectures uses that name. She is a sister of the present duc de Gramont and was married many years ago into the old French ducal family of Clermont-Tonnerre.

Castles Depression Ridden or in Hands of Racketeers.

She is a tall, slight woman, with regular if somewhat haughty features, and large, prominent blue eyes. She had a Scotch grandmother, looks English, and speaks perfect English with a heavy London accent.

At the Town Hall lecture Saturday at the Drake in a simple red frock with black furs, she took us on a round of the great French chateaux of the old noblesse, first as she knew them in childhood, then as she toured them at house parties during her married life, and now as they are standing closed and silent, many of them in depressive times or fallen into the hands of racketeers.

She so described one exquisite little place north of Paris built by Louis XV. for Mme. du Barry. Done without notes, her talk had much originality. It began with Dampierre, country seat of the dukes de Luynes, and the duchess, widowed at 27, who lived for many years in royal splendor, receiving visiting kings and queens with a magnificence now unknown. Her hunting parties, night fêtes, with hundreds of lackeys in blue velvet holding flaming flambeaux, lighted gondolas on the lake, music, operatic performances, presence of great beauties, grand seigneurs from all Europe, were classics.

The most lovely young girls of France and gallant young men of great families were to be found at the court of this young widow, whose sole exercise was a tour in an open victoria. From there to the château of the Noailles family, whose partridge shoots are famous, followed by picnics at the end of the day and great, lively dinners at night. In this country house is furniture tapestried in a certain shade of green, now a lost art, divinely lovely but no longer made.

Strange People Speak Forgotten Tongue at Chateau de Vallieres.

Then the Château de Vallieres, seat of the duc de Gramont, with its three lakes, its forests, its strange people of these forests, wild, uncouth, speaking forgotten language, picking up fagots, living on roots, mushrooms, berries.

Bois-le-Grand, near Chantilly, château of comte and comtesse de Greffulhe, she for many years reigning beauty of French society. Her smile, her coiffure, the slightest change in her appearance, everything pertaining to her of vast interest. Here in September, great pheasant shoots, with all the big guns, wonderful days in the open, followed at night by dinners for fifty in the château. A table banked with orchids, for the Greffulhes were first to have orchid greenhouses. Women wore their smartest clothes, and the divine Mme. de Greffulhe sat at the head of her table, radiating beauty. A changing world! Now hostesses sit anywhere at the table and let the guests radiate.

Then the pink brick thirteenth century house of prince de Wafraun, which I well remember with its steep slate roofs à la mansard. And Chaumont, country seat of princess de Broglie, high over the swift Loire with its round tower wherein slept Catharine de Medici and her astrologer. Here were always forty guests or more, no central heating, much dancing at night, and wild boar hunts by day. Also frequent theatrical performances and promenades in the marvelous grounds along the silver-gray river.

Then the many great houses in Burgundy whose owners frankly live the old life of the landowner, eating and drinking merrily, red as autumn leaves, round as barrels, happy when crops are good and apple trees heavy with fruit; growing old softly, comfortably.

CHICAGOLAND BRIDE-TO-BE

Miss Eleanor Cushman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wesley Cushman of Winnetka, is to be a bride next spring or summer. Her engagement to Charles Henry Gallway Kimball was announced two years ago. He is a son of the Ralph Rigg Kimballs of Hinsdale.

Daniel Cupid Is Still on Job in Santa Barbara

Mrs. Hazel Eckhart Brophy, Florence Summerbell Are Recent Brides.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal.—[Special.]—Despite the continued efforts of Mr. Gobbler and jolly old Saint Nicholas to crowd him out of the picture so that they can launch their holiday activities, little Danny Cupid is sticking right on the job. And his arrows, it seems, prefer persons well known in Chicago.

He scored two direct hits this week, Mrs. Hazel Eckhart Brophy of Chicago and Palm Springs becoming the bride of Raymond Richard Wilson of Los Angeles in a quiet wedding ceremony performed by Dr. Oliver Hart Bronson, also well known in Chicago. A wedding breakfast in the Biltmore followed. Mr. and Mrs. Truman W. Brophy, son and daughter-in-law of the bride, attended the wedding

The bride wore a wine colored suit with a small hat to match and a corsage of orchids.

Elizabeth Davidson Engaged to Cyrus Walker.

Miss Florence Summerbell, graduate of Northwestern and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Summerbell, former Chicagoans, who are making their home in Hollywood, was the bride of Kenneth Crawford of Iowa and Los Angeles in a pretty wedding in the Hotel Samarkand gardens. The bride's sister, May, was her only attendant. The bride wore a gray suit with caracul trimming and a hat of bronze green velvet. She had a corsage of orchids. A wedding breakfast at the hotel followed.

The Rev. W. H. Doner of the Pasadena Methodist church performed the ceremony.

Of great interest to members of the Chicago colony was the setting of Dec. 22 as the wedding date of Miss Elizabeth Nicoll Davidson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Davidson of Montecito, to Cyrus Talbot Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Talbot Walker, also socially prominent Montecitoans. The wedding will take place in All Saints' Episcopal church in Montecito at 4 p. m. Miss Helena Davidson will be her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids will include Miss Helen Wheeler, Miss Barbara Strong, Miss Leila Withers of Winnetka, Ill., and Pasadena, Miss Helen Margaret Carr, Miss Pauline Wilson, and Mrs. Gerard Francis Twist of San Francisco.

John A. Jamesons Give Dinner Party.

James Walker will be his brother's best man. The ushers will be Hunter Brookeclyde, John Gill, William O. Davidson, Robert Johnson, Owen Jameson, and Christopher Funnell. There will be a small reception at the home of the bride elect's parents on Hot Springs road after the ceremony.

Mrs. Henry C. Olcott of Chicago, who has been passing the autumn months at the home of her sister, Mrs. Robert J. Jenckes on Hot Springs road in Montecito, has taken a house on Cleveland avenue for the winter.

Mrs. Jenckes and her son, Walter Jenckes, of East Haddam, Conn., spent several weeks at The Peppers this summer. They returned early in the fall.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Jameson gave a dinner party in their Park Lane home during the week, entertaining a large number of guests.

Small Talk of Comings and Goings.

Col. and Mrs. Franklin M. Cutcheon, who have been in Locust Valley, L. I., during the past summer, have returned to their home on Mission Ridge here for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Holden Evans have removed to the Biltmore hotel from Miss Amy Du Pont's home on East Valley road, which they have been occupying since last spring.

Miss Du Pont will return in a fortnight from Wilmington, Del., for her annual winter visit at her home in Montecito.

Mrs. M. Russell Perkins of Montecito has left for the east. She will visit in Boston and will go to Virginia for the races.

Mrs. Perkins was accompanied by Mrs. Charles E. Perkins and her daughter, Miss Carlena Sheridan, who will visit in Washington, D. C., where Miss Sheridan will make her debut.

New Bouquet Designed for Short Bride

Florists Decree Round, Compact Cluster for Girl of Small Stature.

GOING to be a winter bride? Then you're one of the hundreds of girls whose heads are buzzing with the weighty details of the choice of a gown, a veil, a bouquet and the ensemble for the bridesmaids.

It's only natural, considering the momentous importance of the occasion, to want every detail of costume and flowers to be exactly right—and rightness isn't achieved haphazardly. Perfection, if you want it, demands thought and care on your part, but you'll be paid back tremendously.

The choice of a gown is not too difficult; the shops and the fashion arbiters are only too willing to help you. And the same is pretty much true of veils. Incidentally, did you know that a brand new veil note is to have it a pale, pale pink, with a halo headdress achieved by braided satin? It's a tremendously pretty effect.

Bouquet Chosen with Great Care.

Flowers, now, are something else again. Individuality in the bouquets is important. No longer does a bride order carelessly the conventional white wedding bouquet with streamers and let it go at that. The choice of a bouquet is given as much thought as the choice of a gown.

This season the bride, if a short girl, is apt to wear a veil that falls only a little below the waistline. And the short girl must be particularly careful in her choice of a bouquet. She shouldn't be buried beneath a huge, streaming cluster of flowers. Fortunately, her florist can now offer her a bouquet especially modeled to accentuate the charm of a not too tall figure, a round, compact cluster, minus streamers or anything in the least like the shower bouquet that is favored by the tall and stately bride.

Round Cluster for Short Girl.

Recently a society model in an important fashion show carried one of these bouquets, hers fashioned of white Killarney roses and white sweet peas, a round cluster without streamers. It can be varied, its nice lines carried out exactly, however, by using gardenias only, or lilies of the valley with, perhaps, a center cluster of orchids.

For bridesmaids a number of brides prefer arm bouquets of long stemmed roses or chrysanthemums—and here, too, the length of the bouquet should be regulated by the stature of the girl who will carry it. It is never intelligent, remember, to order just "so many bouquets." Each person who is to carry flowers should be "fitted" for them, in a manner of speaking—to say nothing of obtaining the benefits of getting personal, helpful advice from the man who knows more than any one else what's right and wrong in flowers—the florist.

Long Bouquet for Tall Bride.

The tall bride this season usually carries a long bouquet of white Killarney roses, gardenias, or lilies of the valley with full streamers. One favorite is the triangular bouquet of lilies of the valley showered in graceful lines downward for an effect that is statuesque and striking.

Muffs for bridesmaids are too important this season to overlook. They are often of fur or velvet, and almost invariably have flowers pinned on in a cluster—perhaps orchids or gardenias. The effect is very smart indeed.

Work of Malvina Hoffman Is Praised by Paris

Her Statuette of Cambodian Dance, Familiar to French, Arouses Interest.

By May Birkhead.

PARIS. — [Special.] — There was much anticipation, as we foreshadowed last week, of Malvina Hoffman's exhibition of sculptures, replicas of those native types which Miss Hoffman made originally for the Hall of Man of the Field museum. The showing was inaugurated the other day at the Ethnographic museum in the Trocadéro, M. de Monzie, the minister of national education, making an address in the presence of the new premier, M. Albert Sarraut, and dignitaries of the government, as well as leading personalities in French and American society. The spectators, representing the élite of cultivated Paris, were enthusiastic over Miss Hoffman's art, and consider that Field museum is fortunate in possessing such a collection.

The French were particularly interested in the fact that some of the types were drawn from that part of equatorial Africa which is under French sway, and much interest was manifested in a statuette of a Cambodian dancer, a familiar figure in the far eastern French colony. Parisians like this display also because so many specimens of the races delineated by Miss Hoffman figured at the Colonial exposition here two years ago. The renovated Ethnographic museum of the Trocadéro furnishes an excellent setting and Miss Hoffman was well pleased at the effective showing of her craftsmanship, and touched by the tributes of her art and psychological insight.

Miss Hoffman Honored at Mrs. Spreckels' Tea.

Some of those present at the opening of the exhibition were Dr. Harvey Cushing, the eminent American surgeon, who recently received an honorary degree at the Sorbonne and one of whose daughters is the wife of President Roosevelt's son James; Miss Mary Cushing, Mrs. Alice Forbes Perkins Hooper, Mme. Emma Eames, Comtesse de Jumilhac, the former Ethel Barbey of New York, who, by her first marriage was Mrs. Lanfear Norrie; Mrs. J. Athearn Folger of San Francisco, and Mrs. A. B. Spreckels, to mention only a few. After the inauguration Miss Hoffman was the guest of honor at a tea given at the Ritz by Mrs. Spreckels, who had first met the sculptress years ago when the latter was a pupil here in Paris of the great Rodin. Among some hundred guests at the tea were James J. Walker, former mayor of New York, and Mrs. Walker, Prince and Princess Christian of Hesse, Comtesse Chlapowska, wife of the Polish ambassador, and many others who had attended the inauguration of the exhibition earlier in the afternoon.

Mme. de Soriano and Husband Visit in Paris.

Mme. de Soriano, the former Italia Blair of Chicago, is a visitor with her husband in Paris at the moment. She has not been well and is contemplating, it is understood, entering a clinic here before returning to their home in Biarritz. They have recently been in England.

Mrs. Honoré Palmer is just back in her Paris apartment after a visit to London and is planning to sail for America late in November. She was seen Sunday at the races. Mrs. John Wentworth, who spent the early autumn shooting in Scotland with the Wolcott Blairs, will probably sail with Mrs. Palmer, although her plans have been somewhat upset through the fact that she has been ill.

SOCIETY, HOME AT LAST, MAKES GOTHAM GAY

Fall of Dollar Brings Expatriates; Film Stars Also Trek to Broadway.

By Nancy Randolph.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—Are we gay? Whoooee! I honestly cannot remember the time when Gotham was more festive and jolly than it is at present. From all parts of the globe notables are flocking in upon us. The theatrical world is jubilant, and the smart restaurateurs are beaming like veritable Bonifaces.

It isn't repeal that has caused the renaissance, either. Just what lies at the bottom I can't say, unless it is the decline in the purchasing power of the dollar abroad that has brought all our missing Mayfairites back again to be surprisingly happy in their native land.

All roads lead to New York. Even Hollywood has caught the fever. There are more film stars in town, more of them preparing to go into new shows than ever before. Society pets: Joan Crawford and Mr. Tone; the enigmatical Miss Hepburn is with us again, and Noel Coward is missing—though there are those who insist that Cole Porter is just as much a boon to society as England's Mr. Coward.

Shiploads of Impressive Titles.

Suffice it to say that the erstwhile gloomy Broadway is gay with hit shows; the smart restaurants are thronged at lunch time, and at night, after the theatre, all the gay spots are crowded—simply crowded. And do we like it? Indubitably—to use a mouth filler.

The ships, too, bring in their loads. Mauretania. The titles alone are most impressive; Lady Fairhaven and the Honorable Audrey Pauncefote; Prince and Princess Guy de Polignac and Count and Countess Raoul de Lubersac.

The Fairhaven title is an interesting one, since Lady Fairhaven is an American, having been born Clara Rogers, sister of Col. Henry H. Rogers. Her son, who was confirmed in the title by special act of parliament as first Baron Fairhaven, selected as the peerage name the home town of his grandfather, the late Henry Huddleston Rogers, which was Fairhaven, Mass., opposite New Bedford.

Sartorially Perfect A. J. D. B. Jr. Heads Tennis and Racquets Club.

It was also a special act that gave Lady Fairhaven her dowager title. Her second son is the Hon. Henry Rogers Broughton, who, since his brother is unmarried, is heir to the barony.

The Hon. Audrey Pauncefote is a daughter of the late Baron Pauncefote who died without male issue. Her sisters are the Hon. Violet Pauncefote and Lady Bromley.

Tony Biddle Jr. has not only gone in strongly for the ancient game of court tennis, but he has garnered honors connected with the sport.

From Paris comes the news that the sartorially magnificent A. J. D. B. Jr. has been elected president of the Court Tennis and Racquets club with his fellow officers including Frank Burke-Roche, Stephen Wright, the Marquis de Vivier, Jacques Worth and others.

Gotham Society Goes Definitely Victorian.

Tony's club conducts all the court tennis and squash tournaments of importance on the continent, and is the rendezvous for the sportsmen of London, Paris, and points foreign.

The Biddles, incidentally, are not yet to return to these shores. They will go to Switzerland soon for the winter sports and possibly return here in time to taste the golden Florida delights.

Perhaps it is the Mae West influence but even society is definitely going Victorian. Fannie Hurst gave a dinner at Billy the Oysterman's and the guests sought hansom cabs to arrive.

Appropriately; Elsa Maxwell is thinking up new and bigger Victorian splurges, and a recent arrival, John Dunhill, son of Alfred of sporting and tobacco fame, is going to celebrate his stay in town by giving a "Charles Dickens supper." Heigho! What with Victorian dances and costume parties, and ladies doing fan dances all over the village, things do seem to be getting amazingly mixed. Weren't they extremely proper in Queen Vic's day?

Deb Parties Hold Fort from Now Until New Year's.

With Harvard and Yale out of the way—speaking à la pigskin—and Princeton-Yale soon to be disposed of, the debutante season is getting set for the big plunge. From Wednesday evening right until New Year's the presentations will boom out, three and four a day, and marriages and divorces will be unimportant by contrast. Among the girls to be honored is Georgia Buck, daughter of Laurence M. Buck, who is to attend the first Monday German in Baltimore on Dec. 4. On New Year's night Georgia will be formally presented to town at the St. Regis at a dinner dance given by her mother and stepfather, the Richard Evans Sperrys of town and Greenwich, Conn.

And among Chicago folk who have been stopping off to visit here are Mr. and Mrs. Philip D. Armour and Col. and Mrs. A. A. Sprague who have been at the Savoy-Plaza and Mr. and Mrs. Howard C. Phillips of Winnetka, who were at the Barclay.

WHEN WE WERE VERY YOUNG

The craze for dressing up in the feminine fripperies of the Gay Nineties has extended even to the very young. Here is 9 year old Courtney Anne Cook as she appeared in a fashion show held recently by the junior auxiliary of the Evanston branch of the Infant Welfare society of Chicago. The auxiliary is giving a Gay Nineties ball Thanksgiving eve at the Drake. Courtney is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Cook of Winnetka.

French Troops Mobilized—but They're All Tin

Paris Exhibit Depicts Difference in Fighting in Old Days and Modern.

By Edmond Taylor.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—A sensational mobilization, hitherto unmentioned in the press, has been quietly going on within the gray walls of the Invalides, headquarters of the Paris military area.

Upwards of 10,000 troops of all arms—that is a rough estimate; THE TRIBUNE could not obtain exact figures—are gathered there, fitted out with full battle equipment and ready to march. But they won't march. Neither Herr Hitler nor Signor Mussolini need have any fear. They are tin soldiers.

From the First Century to the Present.

They form an exhibit by the "Societe de Collectionneurs de Soldats d'Etain"—Association of Collectors of Tin Soldiers—whose honorary president is Gen. Mariaux, curator of the famous army museum in the Invalides. They are tin soldiers, but they are not toy soldiers. They have artistic value and historic accuracy, and they offer a comprehensive perspective of all branches of French military service from Vercingetorix in the first century B. C. to the gas-masked world war "poilu."

So much for the formal part of the exhibit, where the soldiers stand stiffly in rows and rows. Another section offers more action. It consists of remarkably lifelike so-called dioramas of famous battles, in which the actors are tin soldiers cast into all sorts of appropriate and lifelike battle poses.

The visitor is inevitably struck by the great difference between the romantic fighting of the good old days and the ugly if efficient warfare of modern times.

Napoleon Astride a White Horse.

Consider Napoleon astride his white horse on a hillock. Behind him at a respectful distance his staff, magnificently coiffed and mounted on beautifully caparisoned chargers. Down in the valley [in those days, apparently, the general commanding always sat on a hill and the fighting went on below to give him a chance to supervise it—shades of Verdun!] closed rank after closed rank of infantrymen, bayonets glistening, blue coat tails flapping against red-panted thighs, advances joyously to battle. Over there are the white-coated Prussians ready for them. The landscape is perfect. Trees unshattered by gunfire. Plenty of green meadow unchurned by high explosive shells. The only debris an occasional dying infantryman raising an arm to salute the emperor up there on the hillock.

Compare to it Chemin des Dames: shattered barbed wire, rent camouflage netting, blasted tree stumps, earth churned through and through by artillery fire, not a vestige of greenery left, and horizon blue uniforms caked with mud crawling efficiently about among the debris.

Youths of Both Sexes Building Moscow Subway

MOSCOW.—[U. P.]—Nearly 15,000 members of the Communist Youth league, thousands of them girls, are at work with pick, shovel, and electric drill under the streets here, building Russia's first subway, according to the construction administration.

The enlistment of young communists for this work was begun when the subway construction slowed up through lack of effective labor. In the beginning young people were slow to abandon their clean office jobs for hard labor underground.

By now, officials declare, the initial distaste has been overcome and hundreds are signing up. It is expected that before the subway is finished fully half its 70,000 construction workers will be boys and girls with red membership cards in their overalls.

The participation of youth in the building of the subway is played up throughout the nation. Pictures of youthful shock brigades at work in the shafts are published. The motion pictures and other propaganda channels are being utilized to inspire those already on the job and to attract others.

Canadian Planes Will Carry Mail During Winter

EDMONTON, Alta.—[U. P.]—Trappers and traders in isolated posts from McMurray to the Arctic ocean will continue to get their mail quickly and regularly this winter. The Canadian government has renewed a $50,000 yearly contract with Canadian Airways to carry mail by airplane over the 2,000 mile stretch to the arctic.

During the winter there will be 40 trips to Fort Resolution, 12 to Fort Simpson, and 6 to Aklavik. Deliveries will be made at Embarrass Portage, Fort Chipewyan, Fort Fitzgerald, Fort Smith, Hay River, Fort Providence, Fort McPherson, Fort Norman, Wrigley, and Arctic Red river.

A surviving relic of the old time mail service will be between Aklavik and Herschel island, where Royal Canadian mounted police will mush dog teams with the mail.

Witch Fearing Have Church.

DAR ES SALAAM.—(AP)—The first cathedral in the diocese of central Tanganyika has been consecrated here. It is intended as a refuge for Africans beset by fears of witchcraft and evil spirits.

THE PROGRESS OF SOLDIERY THROUGH THE AGES
The glory of French arms through 2,000 years is represented in this diorama at the exhibit of tin soldiers in the Invalides war museum in Paris. It begins with Vercingetorix (left) in the first century B. C., with ancient helmet, sword and shield, and goes down to the trim, steel helmeted world war infantrymen, shorn of all unnecessary trappings in the interest of efficiency.

Lloyd George to Be Dictator? British Wonder

Attack by Wartime Prime Minister Has His Government Badly Worried.

LONDON.—[U. P.]—Is David Lloyd George, wartime prime minister, to be Great Britain's Roosevelt.

Political observers see that possibility as a result of the grizzled veteran's recent return to the political limelight. Those who long ago relegated him to the realm of political has-beens are busy reconsidering the position.

Lloyd George began his attempted comeback the day before the world economic conference adjourned and two days before the house of commons adjourned for the summer recess. The house of commons was the scene. He made his first political speech in six months. There is every indication that it was carefully and deliberately planned to have the maximum effect in putting him in the field as a candidate for high government office.

Ridicules Government's Lack of Policy.

He ridiculed the government's lack of policy, or negative policy. He accused them of lack of vision, imagination, and enterprise. He insisted a revision of the Ottawa agreements was necessary. He viewed with considerable anxiety the national government's Indian policy. He practically renounced the free trade views he has held all his life. He insisted that if industrialists were to be protected by tariffs, agriculturists were entitled to similar protection.

He advocated a policy of development of the empire. He referred to the United States and Russian "experiments" as experiments on which the "whole course and whole outlook of the world" depended. He foresaw the "end of the era of conferences for some time."

By his speech he appealed to all kinds of diverse political elements in the country with the exception of actual members of the government and members of the Liberal party, of which he has been a lifelong member.

Reactionary conservatives like Winston Churchill who oppose the government's Indian policy were pleased. Reactionary conservatives, who are "whole hog" tariff advocates, liked his speech. Lord Beaverbrook, the newspaper magnate, saw in Lloyd George a possible leader of the Beaverbrook inspired empire crusade.

Those who think Ottawa went too far and those who think it did not go far enough, all found crumbs of comfort.

Churchill Pleased; Liberals Amazed.

Laborites were pleased with his advocacy of a policy of "action" instead of drift in government circles. Members of the government were considerably discomfited. Liberals with whom Lloyd George has had no active association since the 1931 general election when they supported the government and Lloyd George and his family party of four "georgettes" did not, were amazed.

Lloyd George's speech was beautifully timed. The present national government is none too popular. In a world overflowing with dictatorships, critics accuse the government of a do-nothing policy, contrasted with the vigorous actions of Roosevelt, Hitler, Mussolini, Stalin, and other dictatorial or semi-dictatorial rulers.

Nazis Consider NRA Plan for German Workers

BERLIN.—[U. P.]—A radical reemployment scheme, carrying one step further the U. S. NRA program, was brought forward recently by the Nazi retail trade leader in Silesia.

The proposal, put in the form of a "suggestion" to the trade, is designed to increase employment of storm troopers in good standing, in accordance with the frequently expressed wishes of party leaders. It would set up a sliding employment scale providing that:

A firm with a monthly turnover of between 15,000 and 30,000 marks employ either an additional assistant, or salesman, at a minimum monthly wage of 90 marks, or a workman between 16 and 18 at a wage of 60 marks.

A firm with a turnover between 30,000 and 50,000 marks employ a more experienced assistant at 110 marks, or an older worker at 70 marks.

A firm with a turnover between 80,000 and 100,000 marks employ one assistant and one worker.

Nazi officials in other districts are understood to be contemplating similar "suggestions."

Philippine Deaths Low.

MANILA, P. I.—(AP)—The Philippines death rate for 1932 was the lowest in three decades. For the Christian population, on which records are kept, it was 18.57 a thousand, a reduction of 13 per cent in a year. Tuberculosis, chief scourge of the islands, dropped nearly 4 per cent.

JAPS TO LEAVE QUAKING COAST FOR NEW HOMES

TOKIO.—(AP)—For the population of the exposed Pacific coast of northeastern Japan a wholesale strategic retreat from its sinister enemy, the tidal wave, is being mapped by the home ministry.

Ambitious plans call for the gradual removal of 56 villages in Iwate prefecture with a population of 20,000 from their present waterfront locations to new sites inland.

Not too far inland, however, for the hardy fishing folk of these villages gain their living from the sea, but far enough and high enough as to be beyond the reach of the terrible tidal waves that often ravage this coast after earthquakes.

Past Disasters Hasten Plans.

This is the shore that was stricken in the early morning of March 3, 1933, when northeastern Hondo was heavily shaken. A ten foot tidal wave surged in 30 minutes later and 1,535 lives were lost.

The Iwate coast suffered its greatest modern catastrophe on June 15, 1896, when a tidal wave drowned 30,000 persons.

The removal plans will require scores of millions of yen, to be advanced to the communities without interest, repayable in 40 years. The approval of parliament for these advances is necessary.

Model Towns Being Charted.

The new villages are to be laid out with civic centers and wide streets and with modern roads linking up the entire region.

The sites chosen are such as the records of hundreds of years have shown to be beyond the reach of any tidal wave.

Old Bridge Record Shows Cheap Labor

NEUILLY-SUR-SEINE, France.—(AP)—The bridge built in 1772 which carries the western highway over the Seine here has become inadequate for modern traffic and is to be replaced.

The new bridge, however, is likely to be more costly than the old. Accounts still preserved show that the contractor in 1772 paid his masons 46 cents, carpenters, 45 cents, and laborers 26 cents a day, and they were not 8 hour days, either.

But living was cheaper then.

Life at The Pancoast has a distinctive savor—quite different from the crowded accommodations so common to many large resort hotels. The gardens, the aviary, the whispering cocoanut palms, the Cabanas and private beach are characteristic of the tropical surroundings. Guest rooms have sun porches overlooking the ocean. French chefs specialize in appetizing menus. Early season arrivals indicate the advisability of making reservations without delay.

PEACEFUL WATERS AND RUGGED MOUNTAINS IN HAWAII

The never-failing allure of Waikiki beach, with the Koolau range overshadowing two of Hawaii's leading hotels, has a more or less comprehensive explanation in this picture. The Koolau mountains form the background of the island of Oahu.

Plan to Link Philippines to China by Air

Weekly Transport Service to Be Recommended by Shanghai Representative

MANILA. — [U. P.] — Interest evinced by the Pan-American Airways and the Royal Dutch Air lines in linking the Philippine islands by air with China and Java and a three year aviation program proposed by Gov. Gen. Frank Murphy for the Philippines have stimulated airmindedness here.

Dutch Air lines, which cover the Contemplating commercial air service from Manila to Hongkong, H. N. Bixby, Pan-American Airways Shanghai representative, with Pilots W. S. Grooch and William Ehmer, made a successful survey flight here from Shanghai and Hongkong.

Bixby, finding that quick and accurate reports from the Philippines weather bureau minimized the only major problem of aviation here, indicated he would recommend to Pan-American Airways a weekly air transport between Manila and Hongkong.

The proposed Hongkong-Manila line ultimately would connect China with the projected trans-Pacific service between San Francisco and Manila, via Honolulu and the South Seas.

Bixby, vice president and division manager of the Pacific American Airways, Shanghai subsidiary of the Pan-American Airways, and president of the China Airways Federal Aviation corporation, came to China from New York the first of the year to conduct a series of air route surveys.

With hopes of extending service from Java to the Philippines the Royal Dutch Air Lines, which cover the longest passenger air route in the world, from Java to Holland, and the Royal Netherlands Indian Airways, operating in the Dutch East Indies, are putting out feelers in a preliminary survey.

If the Java-Philippines service materializes it will put Manila only 12 days or less from Europe by air.

Airplanes Are Widely Used by Royalty Abroad

Prince of Wales, Prince Nicholas and King Albert Lead Procession.

LONDON.—[U. P.]—European royalty and eastern sheiks have taken to the air.

More rulers, members of royal families and important government personages have taken long air trips in the last few months than at any other time.

Air minded royal personages are led by the prince of Wales, who, while not possessing a personal pilot's license, is the owner of a fleet of six planes. His brothers, the duke of York, the duke of Gloucester, and Prince George also are enthusiastic airmen, although neither King George nor Queen Mary ever has flown. A few years ago flights by the prince of Wales were followed by the British populace with even more concern than were his hunting trips. But in these days the prince's airplane trips are so numerous that little note is taken of them.

Nicholas Flies All Over Europe.

Prince Nicholas of Rumania recently has been flying all over Europe. King Albert of the Belgians is another enthusiastic royal flyer. His son and daughter-in-law, Prince Leopold and Princess Astrid, are equally enthusiastic.

Flying over northern Africa in a British air liner recently ex-King Ferdinand of Bulgaria expressed his amazement at being able to cover in 36 hours a journey which, some years before, had taken him 26 days.

When King Feisal of Iraq made his recent trip to Britain he chartered an air liner to carry him and his suite from Baghdad to Cairo.

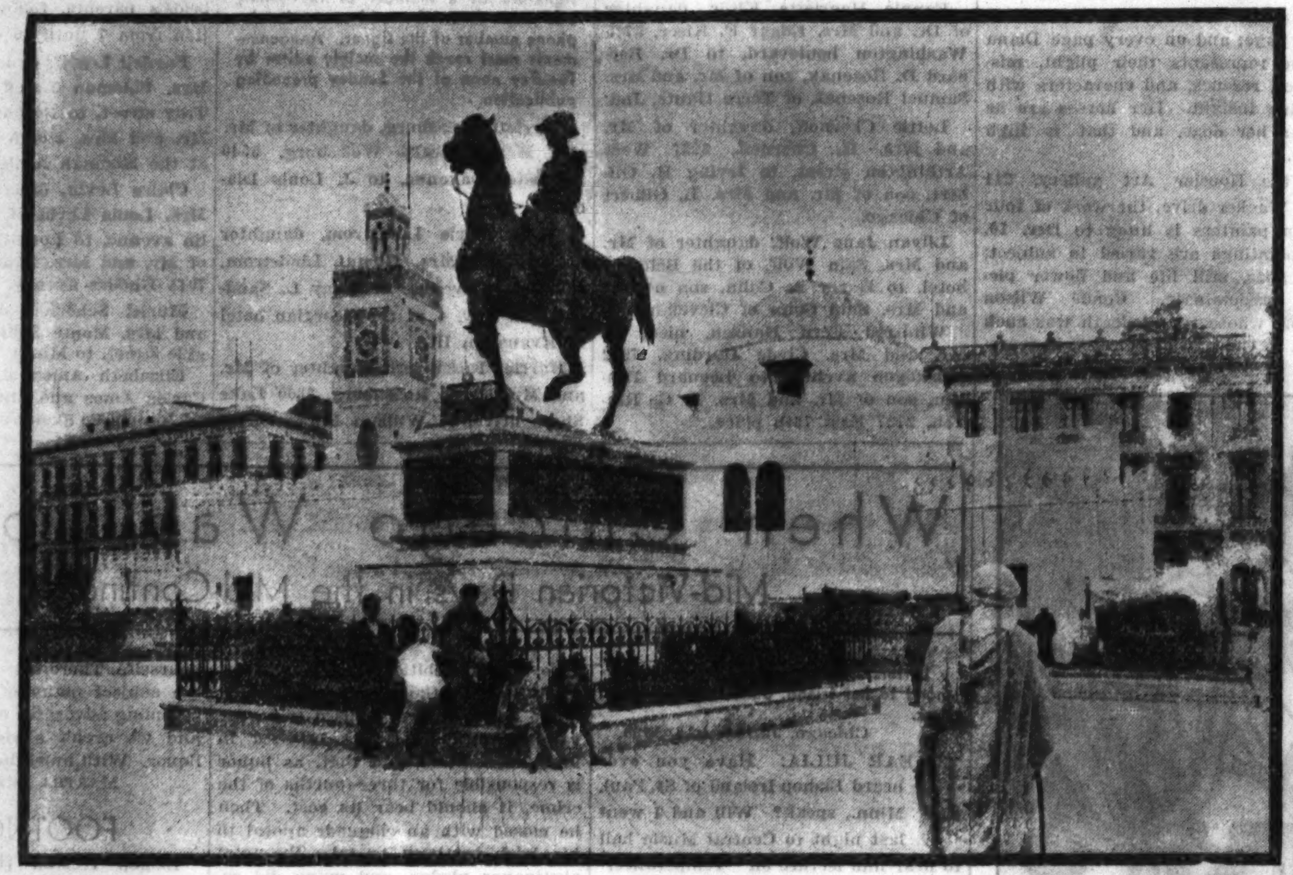
Two Arabian sheiks who are particularly air minded are the sheik of Sharjah and the sheik of Koweit. Sharjah is one of the Arabian coast halting points of the Imperial Airways Indian route, and the sheik is an ardent believer in flying.

Sheik Pays Visit to Another.

The sheik of Koweit paid a ceremonious visit to the sheik of Sharjah. He did not make the journey mounted on his Arab steed and surrounded by hordes of his followers, armed to the teeth. He made the trip by the regular Indian air mail plane.

In addition to Gen. Balbo, whose great flight to the United States with the Italian air armada is still fresh in the mind, there are numerous European statesmen who prefer airplanes. British Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald frequently travels from London to his Scottish home town of Lossiemouth in a Royal Air Force open cockpit machine.

Lord Londonderry, the British air minister, not only has qualified for his pilot's license, but has extended his enthusiasm to his two daughters and has had them trained for their pilots' licenses.



ORIENT AND OCCIDENT ENCOUNTERED IN NORTHERN AFRICA

The statue of the duke of Orleans, in the Place de Gouvernment, Algiers, with examples of both near eastern and western architecture in the background, is one of the many unusual sights found by passengers on the Mediterranean cruises.

DETOURS

By Frederic Babcock.

WEIRD sacrificial rites are still held every year by the Aymara Indians in Bolivia. One of the ceremonies, staged in the middle of the night at the Corocoro mines, has been witnessed by a white woman, and this is how she describes it:

"The space in front of the mine where the metal is dumped was all whitewashed. In the center three Indian witches squatted in front of three big bonfires while members of the tribe marched by, dropping in front of each witch their gifts for the gods. Since these natives were poor, their offerings consisted of such simple offerings as coins, cocoa leaves, cigarets, and pieces of dried lamb.

"Exactly at midnight a bull was driven onto the scene. One of the witches stabbed him, another removed the heart and threw it on the fire, and a third spattered the whitewashed walls with blood. The position in which the heart falls into the fire is carefully observed. If it falls sideways it is an ill omen, but if it strikes the fire in a vertical position it is a good omen and a sure sign that the mine will yield fine metal.

"That night three handsome bulls and a number of guinea pigs and chickens were sacrificed. Their hearts were all torn out and thrown on the fire, as offerings to the gods who were supposed to preside over the earth's treasures."

● Now comes the Society for the Advancement of Better Living with the announcement that as soon as prohibition repeal becomes effective an effort will be made to raise wining and dining once more to a fine art. The first course in the curriculum will be offered on a cruise leaving New York for Nassau and Havana the day after Christmas.

This society holds that there has been a steady decline in the quality of American cooking since the speakeasy came along. There has been an increasing tendency to drink during meals such things as cocktails and scotch and rye—which, say the gourmets, destroy all the finer perceptions of the palate. The absence of good wines also has been felt severely.

With wines made legal again, such dishes as rouget en papillote, faisan en cocotte, poularde de bresse a la broche, and selle d'agneau bouquetiere are to be revived.

● The prices on world cruises are still tumbling. One of the big lines has put out a schedule calling for a globe girdling trip, Chicago to Chicago, for $654, first class throughout, or $439, tourist class. Thus the 104-day cruise can be made for $6.29 a day—cheaper, it is held, than the cost of staying at home. And among the places to be visited are Havana, Cristobal, Balboa, Honolulu, Yokohama, Kobe, Shanghai, Hongkong, Manila, Singapore, Penang, Colombo, Bombay, Suez, Port Said, Alexandria, Naples, Genoa, and Marseilles.

● For those wishing to get further from the beaten path, another line is planning a journey to South African places old in history but new and strange to most Americans. The itinerary calls for stops at St. Helena, with a trip to Napoleon's home; Cape Town, with a side trip to the top of Table mountain; Muizenberg, Kimberley, Johannesburg, with a visit to the gold mines; Pretoria, Nelspruit, Bulawayo, Victoria Falls, Durban, and the Zulu Kraals. Just to be different, three days will be spent in the heart of the jungle.

● Something new in transportation facilities is the cruise boat train that will leave New York Jan. 19, Chicago the following day, and arrive in Los Angeles Jan. 24, in time to catch a liner sailing for the south seas and the orient. This is said to be the first time that a transcontinental train, eliminating the transfer at Chicago, has been run for such a purpose.

● Did You Know Department:

That experiments have shown that a white ship is 12 degrees cooler than one painted black . . . That the difficulties of landing at Haifa, the port for Palestine, have been done away with; new harbor facilities have been opened there . . . That Queen Mary already is planning her shopping for Christmas of 1934, and intends to do much of it at the British Industries fair, in London and Birmingham, next February . . . That the eleventh international automobile show will be held at Geneva March 16 to 25 . . . That the season for hunting migratory birds opened in Louisiana Nov. 15, and that New Orleans' winter racing season will begin Thanksgiving day . . . That a port of call on one of the world cruises this winter will be Kalabahar, on Alor island, in the Dutch East Indies, where natives will make three-day trips to give the visitors a view of tribal dancing, and that the dancers would be paid 15 cents a day if the islands had a stabilized currency, but that, as it is, they will get their wages in cheese, ham, and bracelets.

Austrian Bank Says Nazi Coin No Good

SALZBURG, Austria.—(AP)—Circulation of "Hitlerized" Austrian money has led the Salzburg branch of the Austrian national bank to warn the public that coins done over into Nazi designs are invalid.

Coincidence has played into the hands of the Hitlerites in that the 5 groschen nickel and 2 groschen copper coins carry the word "Oesterreich" [Austria] around an emblem that readily can be altered into a swastika.

TWIN BLESSINGS IN A HOME AT LA GRANGE

Which is Betty and which is Joan? is the question every one always is asking about these two cunning little daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Williams of La Grange. The photographer says the one to the left is Joan and the one to the right is Betty, but how can he be sure? These two very young ladies celebrated their second birthday last July.

Art Galleries Offer Two Current Exhibits of Interest; Bright Prospects for Winter

Johnson's Display Will Satisfy Any Taste.

By Eleanor Jewett.

THE number of interesting exhibitions scheduled for the near future is increasing week by week. December promises to be a busy month at the Art Institute and January offers the annual Hoosier Salon in the Marshall Field galleries and a retrospective exhibition of paintings, water colors and drawings by Robert Henri in the Carson Pirie Scott galleries. Meanwhile the stream of current exhibits is still flowing swiftly.

Two important exhibitions opened last Monday, the one in the Anderson galleries, 536 South Michigan boulevard, and the other in the Chester H. Johnson galleries, Fine Arts building. This last is an exhibit of water colors and drawings by some thirty artists. It contains representative work by such painters as Lintott, Davies, Prendergast, Winslow Homer, Redon, Matisse, Orpen, Picasso, Degas, Gifford Beal, and Boucher. As one grasps at once, a catholicity of taste is being deferred to. The exhibition will continue only to Dec. 1, and as it is worth seeing the next few days should find the galleries crowded.

W. L. Lathrop Gains Fame Despite Aversion to Exhibits.

The exhibition in the Anderson galleries is a one-man show of paintings by W. L. Lathrop, N. A., one of the finest of living American landscape painters. Eighteen canvases make up the show and the majority of them are lovely. Mr. Lathrop is an old man now, but his work still holds the vitality that marks his earlier pictures. Some think he is painting today better than ever before.

During his long career as an artist Mr. Lathrop has won every award available to an American painter. Of late years he has steadily refused to send pictures to exhibitions, but a member of his family secretly sent in his "Jericho Road" to the National academy and it was awarded the Altman prize. This was in 1924. It is amusing also to recount the remarks passed upon Mr. Lathrop by Ivan Olinsky, another of our older academicians, who said that when he [Olinsky] first studied at the National academy Lathrop was considered extremely modern. Since then, one fears, public opinion would not concur with that conclusion. Notwithstanding which, this exhibition at the Anderson galleries is perhaps the most important exhibit in town this month.

Water Colors Kinder than Oils to Bohrod's Genius.

It is a far cry from Mr. Lathrop's beautiful and thoughtful landscapes, finished work, exquisite in color and composition, to the blatant oils by Aaron Bohrod now to be seen in the Increase Robinson gallery, Diana Court building. One wishes Mr. Bohrod would grow up. The child motif has been so frightfully overdone the last few years that as big a dose as this is hard to swallow. Vivid, undisciplined color, crude drawing, half-digested impressions with ideas abandoned in an embryonic stage, may be art, but as painting they register zero, except that they are in the fashion of the day.

Much the better work from Mr. Bohrod's brush is discovered in the few water colors hanging in the smaller of the two rooms. Water color is kinder to naïveté than is oil. What was crude in the one medium is amusing in the other. But the fact should by this time be fairly well established that more than a jest is wanted in an exhibit that pretends to importance.

Lowell Houser, Provincetown Artists, Do Selves Proud.

Meanwhile, however, Mrs. Robinson is showing some work of merit by other painters in the smaller gallery. Woodcuts in black and white of simple, anecdotal scenes in Haiti by Lowell Houser excite immediate appreciation. They are fascinating, and beyond that they are extremely well done. Mr. Houser has struck an original note and his work is sustained by a conscious craft that is eminently pleasing. "Fishermen Calling the Wind" and "The Lieutenant's Bath" would win him admittance to any company.

Just beyond one finds delightful coloring and composition in the blockprints of two Provincetown artists, Ada Gilmore and Blanche Lazzell. Each artist has contributed but a few, yet the total is impressive so far as proving again that it is not quantity nor size that counts in art, but quality, taste, training and personality. Both these painters see life with a whimsical eye and their various pictures are amusing in theme as well as delightful in color and composition. The few serious landscapes maintain the perfection of color shown in the Janet Deftly Combines Classicism and Modernism.

Drawings by Janet [Miss Janet Busby] may be seen at Breckenridge, 912 North Michigan avenue, to Dec. 1. They strike an unusual and original note and are most charming. Perhaps sophisticated classicism is too harsh a definition to apply to Janet's technique, and yet these drawings are many of them pure as only drawing was in the classical period, and rescued from too severe a purity by a modern, understanding touch. The drawing will bear the closest inspection; it is beautifully perfect. Neither feeling nor atmosphere is lacking to bring out the human qualities of these figures. The clever impression of Marquesa di Cazatti, all perfume and shallow as a shell, is most effective. "Memory" is a lovely episode; note the eyes swimming with tears, the girl thinking back to that moment which beckons in the background.

"Angus and Caitilin" was done as an illustration to James Stephens' "Crock of Gold." It is a beautiful conception, strongly realized. The portraits, Mrs. Bertron Massee, Mrs. Winston Elting and Mrs. Victor Young, are well done, that of Mrs. Elting being particularly lovely.

The exhibition continues over Thanksgiving day.

Diana Thorne Portrays Joys and Sorrows of Dogs and Horses.

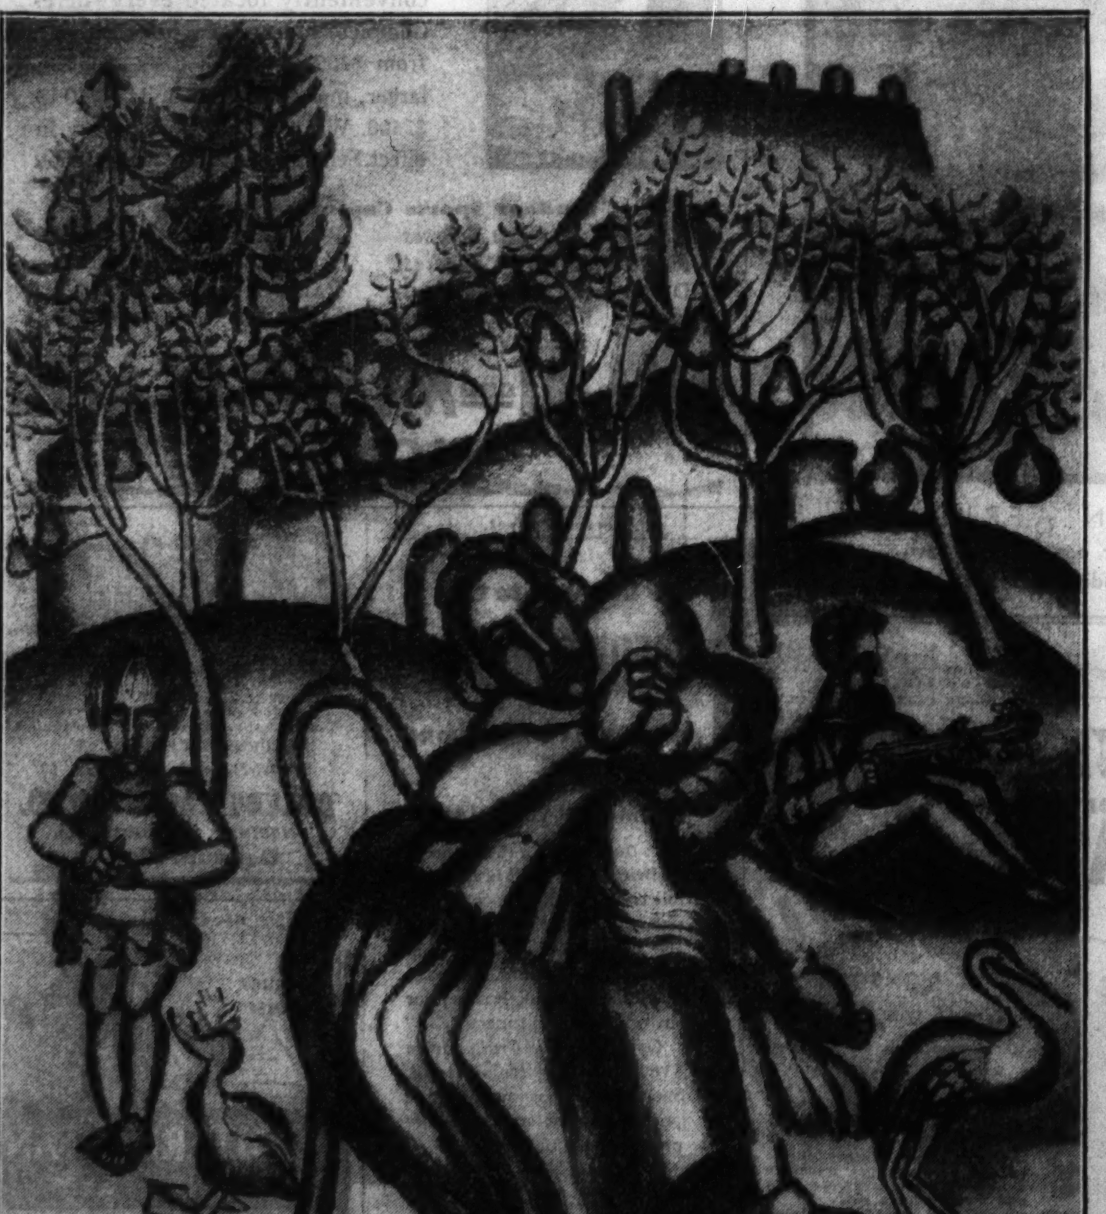
This afternoon sees the opening of the All Illinois Society of the Fine Arts Eighth Annual Art exhibition on the third floor of the Stevens hotel. It will continue to Jan. 31.

Diana Thorne, whose recent exhibit of etchings of dogs and horses in the Marshall Field galleries was of interest to many, has done some delightful work in illustration for the story for children, "Pepito," by Ruth Orton Camp. Colts and horses and dogs fall into and out of amusing incidents on every page; and on every page Diana Thorne represents their plight, mischances, rescues, and characters with unerring insight. Her horses are as fine as her dogs, and that is high praise.

In the Hoosier Art gallery, 211 West Wacker drive, the work of four women painters is hung to Dec. 10. The paintings are varied in subject; landscapes, still life and flower pictures predominate. Condé Wilson Hickok, whose recent death was such a loss to Chicago art circles, is represented by several important landscapes, one of the finest being "Killarney Bay." Perhaps "The Lily Bed" reflects more truly Mrs. Hickok's preference in subject. One remembers many another beautiful painting from the same theme.

Ruth Kealing offers an exquisite flower decoration, "French Bouquet," with above it "New Fallen Snow," a lovely winter landscape. "The Yellow Window" by Hallie Prow jumps to the attention through its striking qualities, and Lillie Fry Fisher has an ususually fine still life in "Every Day Things of Life." All in all, the exhibit is worth seeing.

Chicago's Own Christmas Basket Benefit concert is the subject of a program cover contest that is being conducted in the advertising design department of the Chicago Art Institute Industrial Art school.



"Le Concert Champetre," by Suzanne Rogers, one of the many paintings in the modernist tempo which will be exhibited in the group shows at the Art institute beginning December 14.

Pink Wedding Veil Gives Bride Filmy, Fanciful Halo

HAVE you seen—and if you're wearing an engagement ring or expecting to wear one soon you mustn't miss it—the new and delectable whim in bridal veils? It's a filmy mass of tulle in the palest possible shade of pink, the head dress arrangement a halo of braided, pinkish satin. Guaranteed to make a girl feel and look like a story book princess.

When Chicago Was Young

Mid-Victorian Days in the Mid-Continent

By Herma Clark.

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend, Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, January 18, 1883.

DEAR JULIA: Have you ever heard Bishop Ireland of St. Paul, Minn., speak? Will and I went last night to Central Music hall to hear him lecture on "Temperance," under the auspices of the Catholic Total Abstinence league. I think every seat in the large hall was taken, and the audience included a large number of prominent citizens. On the platform were seated Archbishop Feehan, Dean Terry, and nearly all the Catholic clergy of the city, and in the audience I saw Judge Moran, Commissioner Mattocks, City Collector Onahan, Philip Hoyne, Col. W. P. Rend, De Witt C. Cregier, and a great number of the Protestant clergy, who seemed enthusiastic about the address.

It lasted two and a half hours, but the silver tongue of the bishop so charmed us that we could have listened longer. He began by saying that he did not consider the use of alcohol wrong, per se, but added that few principles needed more careful watching than this. Then he went on to describe the nature of alcohol, and he didn't mince words, for he calls a spade a spade . . . not an "agricultural implement." "Link by link," he said, "the drunkard forges the chains which lash him to that most insatiate of masters—alcohol. Drinking is like sailing down the Niagara river. As it grows on the system, the poison invades the mind itself, which is the power to repress the baser appetites. Suspend or destroy the reason, and this power of repression is broken down."

He wasn't content to be merely eloquent, but he gave statistics to show that there is in America one liquor dealer to every 270 persons [men, women, and children]. I was surprised to hear that the figures are worse for the region about Chicago—Kane, Du Page, and Cook counties, comprising the first district of Illinois. Here there is, said the bishop, one rum seller to every 130 of the population. In addition, he added, there are the "speakeasies," or unlicensed rum holes, which add to the total number of places where liquor may be bought. He said it is the silent tongues and idle arms of the moral and conservative people of the land which are responsible for the condition of our country, where the liquor traffic has not spared youth or womanhood.

I sat simply fascinated by the way he held his audience. I wondered whether every one agreed with him. If they did not they were spellbound, for he seemed to carry them with him as he said solemnly: "Woe betide that country in which the party caucus is held around a beer table; the slate made up in a rum shop."

As to remedies, he said he did not believe in prohibition except as a last resort, but he thought it would come if the liquor dealers refused to accept rational measures. He believed in high license and said that, as liquor is responsible for three-fourths of the crime, it should bear its cost. Then he closed with an eloquent appeal to his Irish brethren to take the total abstinance pledge, and many did so. Mr. Onahan, who is a warm friend of the bishop, came to speak to us, after the meeting. "What do you think of our speaker, Will?" he asked.

"I'm so impressed," replied my husband, "that I'm going to give him the satisfaction of seeing me sign that pledge he has on his desk."

Mr. Onahan raised his eyebrows. "One would think you felt yourself a brand to be plucked from the burning, whereas I've always thought you one of Chicago's soberest citizens."

"So I am," replied Will, "but perhaps my small influence may help some one else."

So up to the platform he went and signed the pledge, bringing a brilliant smile to the face of the great prelate, for he recognized Will's name and felt, he said, that his example would bring other signatures, as indeed I think it did. So when you come to visit us next month you'll find us teetotalers. Will that trouble you? I imagine not, since you are practically an abstainer yourself. There is so much feeling on the subject many of our friends are becoming advocates of this movement, and we aren't alone in not serving liquor. With much love, yours as ever,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

Bishop Ireland [later Archbishop Ireland] was one of the most distinguished prelates of the Roman Catholic church. His championship of total abstinence added much force to the temperance movement which began to gain ground at this time.

Has any reader a memory of hearing Bishop Ireland give this address in Central Music hall?

Two especially interesting letters about Lily Langtry have been received from readers who saw the famous English beauty on her visit to America in 1883. Eva Williams of Chicago met Mrs. Langtry at a social affair in New York and thought her charming as well as beautiful. Frederick Werz, another reader of the column, saw her as Rosalind, and writes: "As a beauty, she was great. As an actress, I thought her only fair."

"DEAR JULIA," a collection of letters from this column, is an excellent gift (if we do say so, as shouldn't) for father or mother.

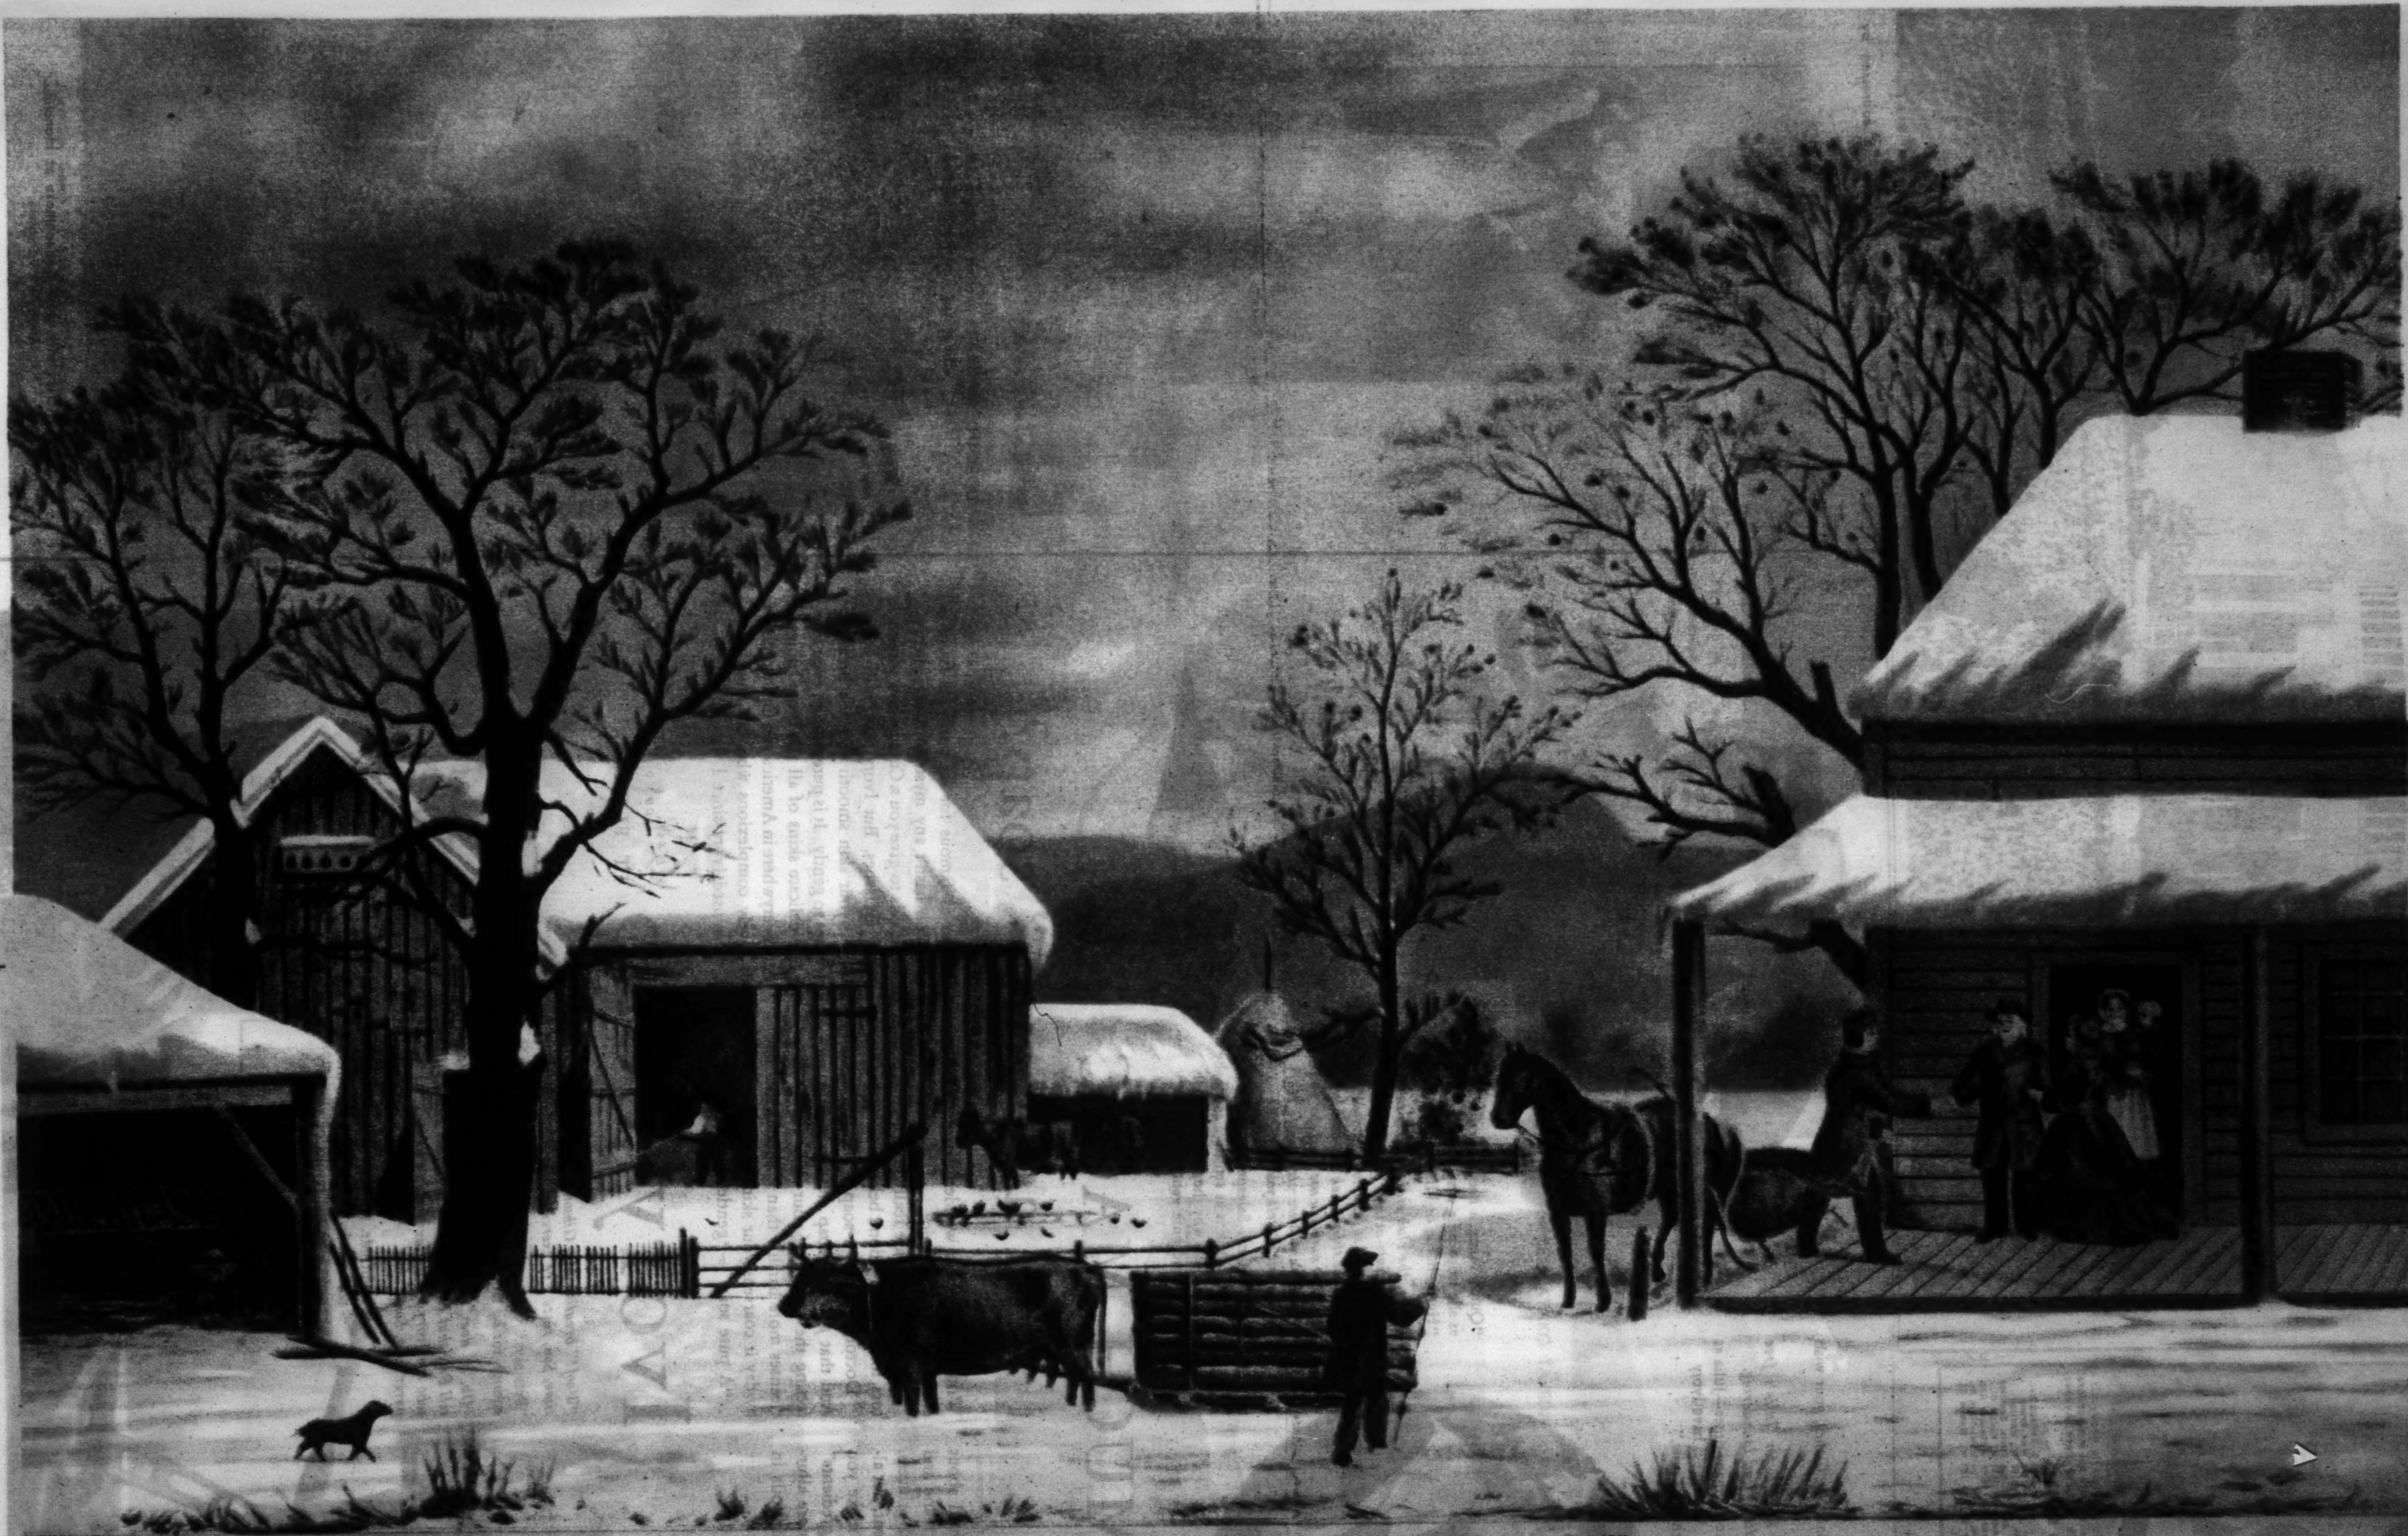
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

November 26, 1933



Entered according to Act of Congress A.D. 1867 by Currier & Ives, in the Clerks Office of the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of N.Y.

HOME TO THANKSGIVING.

(From "Currier & Ives—A Manual for Collectors," by Jane Cooper Bland.)

Over the river and through the wood,
To grandfather's house we go;
The horse knows the way
To carry the sleigh
Through the white and drifted snow.

Over the river and through the wood—
Oh, how the wind does blow!
It stings the toes,
And bites the nose,
As over the ground we go.

Over the river and through the wood,
To have a first-rate play.
Hear the bells ring,
"Ting-a-ling-ding!"
Hurrah for Thanksgiving Day!

Over the river and through the wood—
Trot fast, my dapple-gray!
Spring over the ground
Like a hunting-hound!
For this is Thanksgiving Day.

Over the river and through the wood,
And straight through the barnyard gate.
We seem to go
Extremely slow,—
It is so hard to wait!

Over the river and through the wood—
Now grandmother's cap I spy!
Hurrah for the fun!
Is the pudding done?
Hurrah for the pumpkin-pie!

—"THANKSGIVING DAY," by Lydia Maria Child.

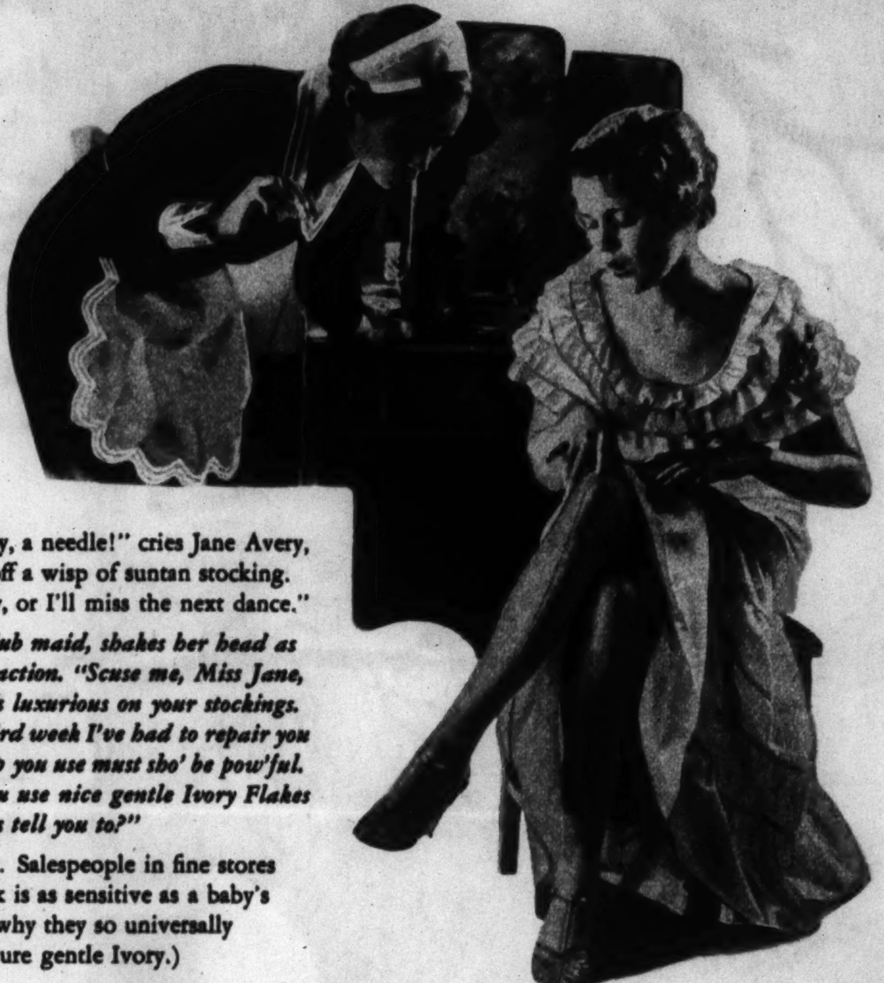
GATHERING OF NAZI STORM TROOPERS addressed by Hitler at Kelheim, Germany.
(Acme photo.)

"If you get the long end of the wishbone, Mr. Clancy, your wish will come true," giggles Julia.

"I'll get it!" declares Pete, making a grab for Julia's free hand. Such a pretty hand in spite of dishes and laundering.

Officer Clancy has one wish. He's pictured it many times—Julia as his Mrs. Clancy in a snug 3-room flat . . . "and we'll have Ivory so Julia's hands can keep as smooth as they are now."



"Quick, Marty, a needle!" cries Jane Avery, as she strips off a wisp of suntan stocking. "Hurry, hurry, or I'll miss the next dance."

Marty, the club maid, shakes her head as she goes into action. "Scuse me, Miss Jane, but you sho' is luxurious on your stockings. This is the third week I've had to repair you up. That soap you use must sho' be pow'ful. Why don't you use nice gentle Ivory Flakes the way stores tell you to?"

(Right, Marty. Salespeople in fine stores know that silk is as sensitive as a baby's skin. That's why they so universally recommend pure gentle Ivory.)

HOW MUCH MAGIC in a "beauty" soap?

When you were very young, you read about the fairy godmother who waved her wand and changed Cinderella into a beautiful princess.

Now the tales you read are different, but almost as magical. "This soap will make you beautiful—it contains mysterious ingredients" . . . "No, this soap will make you more alluring to men" . . . "Wonderful beauty oils in this soap will keep you young."

Wouldn't this be a wonderful world if soap could work such magic?

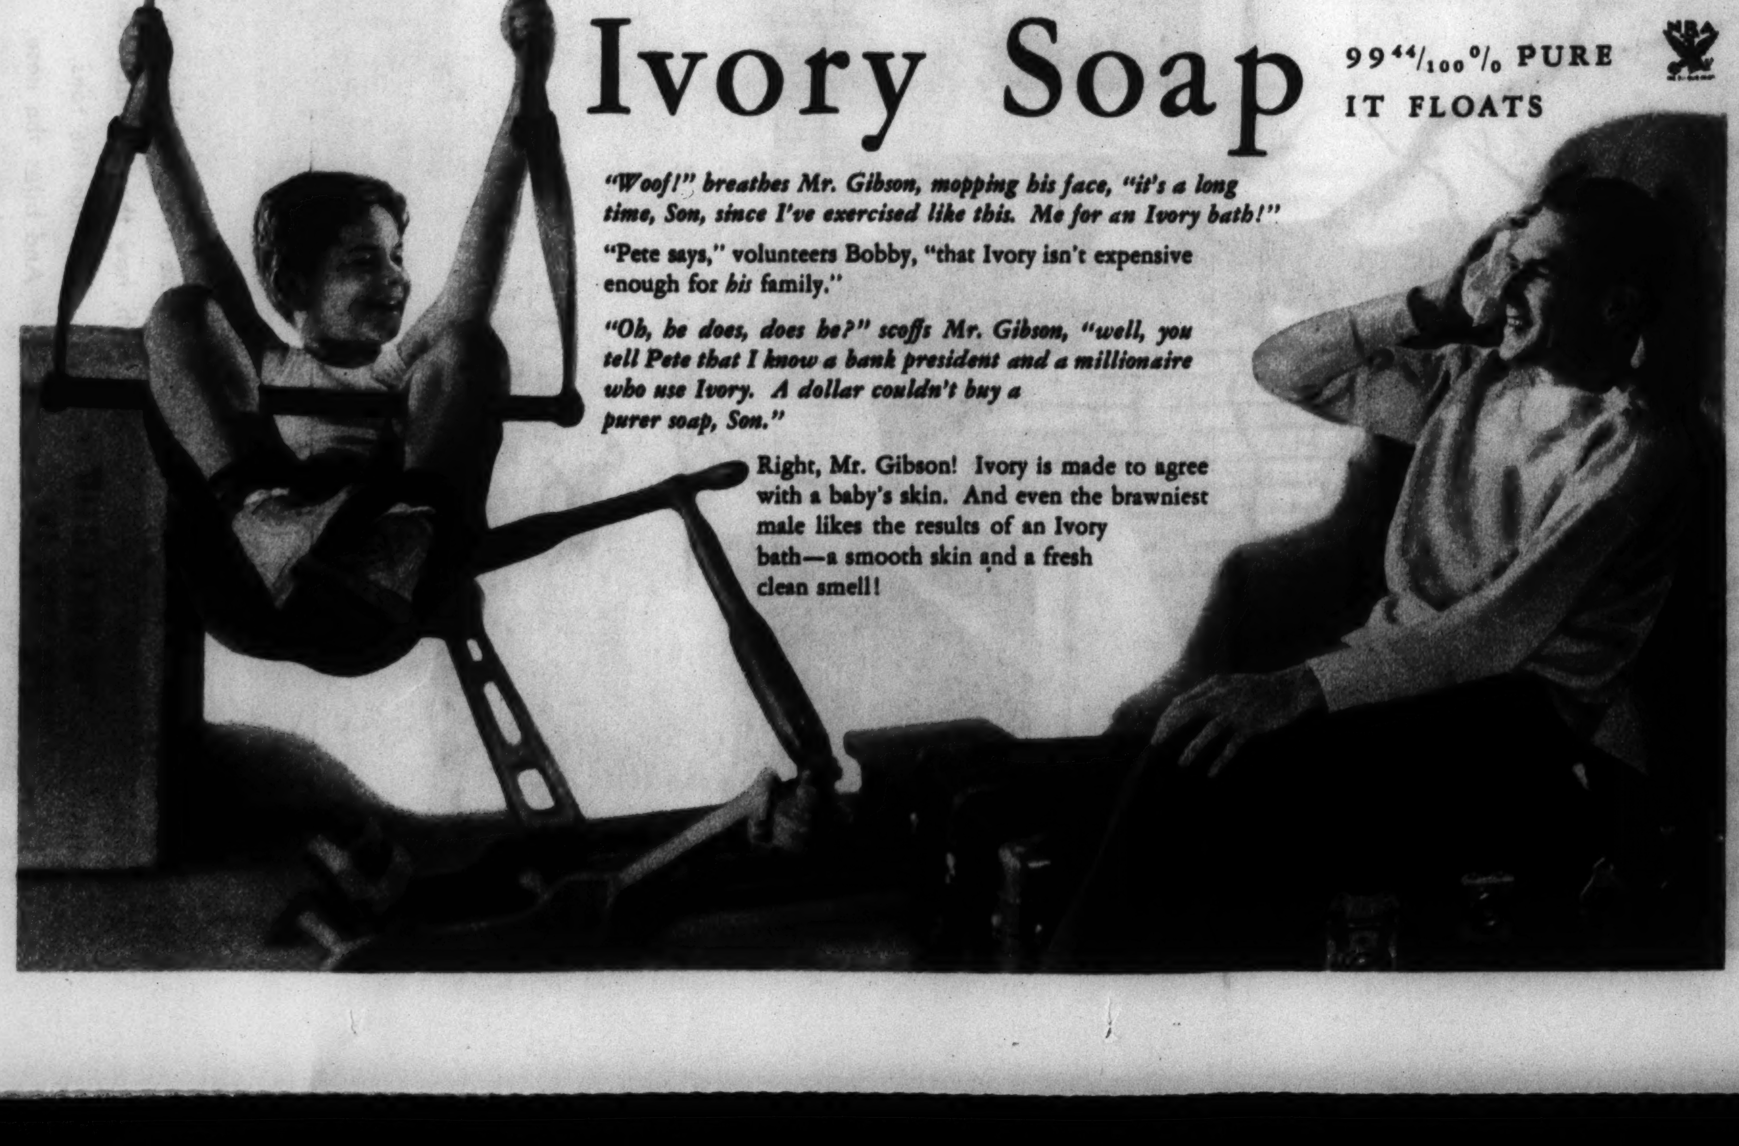
But people who are really grown-up—doctors, for example—don't believe in soap magic.

Doctors say that a soap cleanses your skin. And that pure fine soap cleanses gently, protecting the texture of your skin. Impure soap cleanses more harshly than it should, and day by day it coarsens your skin.

"A pure soap"—"gentle cleansing" . . . is any soap as famous for its purity as Ivory? Ivory Soap hasn't any mysterious ingredients or magic oils to give you a Cupid's-bow mouth or curly eyelashes. But Ivory Soap will help you keep your skin smooth and fine because it cleanses so gently. It is pure enough even for the fine delicate skins of all the Ivory babies.

And everywhere in America you find women with lovely complexions who can truthfully say, "I've used Ivory since I was a baby."

Ivory Soap 99 44/100 % PURE IT FLOATS



"Woof!" breathes Mr. Gibson, mopping his face, "it's a long time, Son, since I've exercised like this. Me for an Ivory bath!"

"Pete says," volunteers Bobby, "that Ivory isn't expensive enough for his family."

"Oh, he does, does he?" scoffs Mr. Gibson, "well, you tell Pete that I know a bank president and a millionaire who use Ivory. A dollar couldn't buy a purer soap, Son."

Right, Mr. Gibson! Ivory is made to agree with a baby's skin. And even the brawniest male likes the results of an Ivory bath—a smooth skin and a fresh clean smell!

Gifts that start from Bond Street . . . . and travel the whole world over

THEY'RE globe-trotters, these Yardley gifts. Confirmed, inveterate, case-hardened globe-trotters. Likely to turn up in Honolulu, or Buenos Aires, or Singapore . . . and taking a bit of Bond Street with them, wherever they go. • Here's a gold compact, slim and smart and shining. Here are Lavender bath salts, famous all over Europe. Here, the complete contents of a Mayfair toilet table (cushioned on yellow satin, and ready to book passage). • We can understand why these Yardley things find a welcome throughout the world. They're beautiful to look at, reasonable to purchase, and luxurious to use. As gifts, they leave the donor pleased, and the recipient proud (practically a hundred per cent for any gift). • And if you can recall your own first experience with anything of Yardley's, you will remember how . . . long after the original gift had entirely disappeared . . . the cool, clear fragrance of Lavender remained to tantalize you—until, like almost everybody else, you presently found that vanished gift replaced with another . . . from yourself, and to yourself! Yardley gifts can be bought at almost any good shop in America . . . 95 cents to $14.85. Yardley & Co., Ltd., 620 Fifth Avenue, New York City (Rockefeller Centre); in London, at 33, Old Bond Street; and Paris, Toronto, and Sydney.

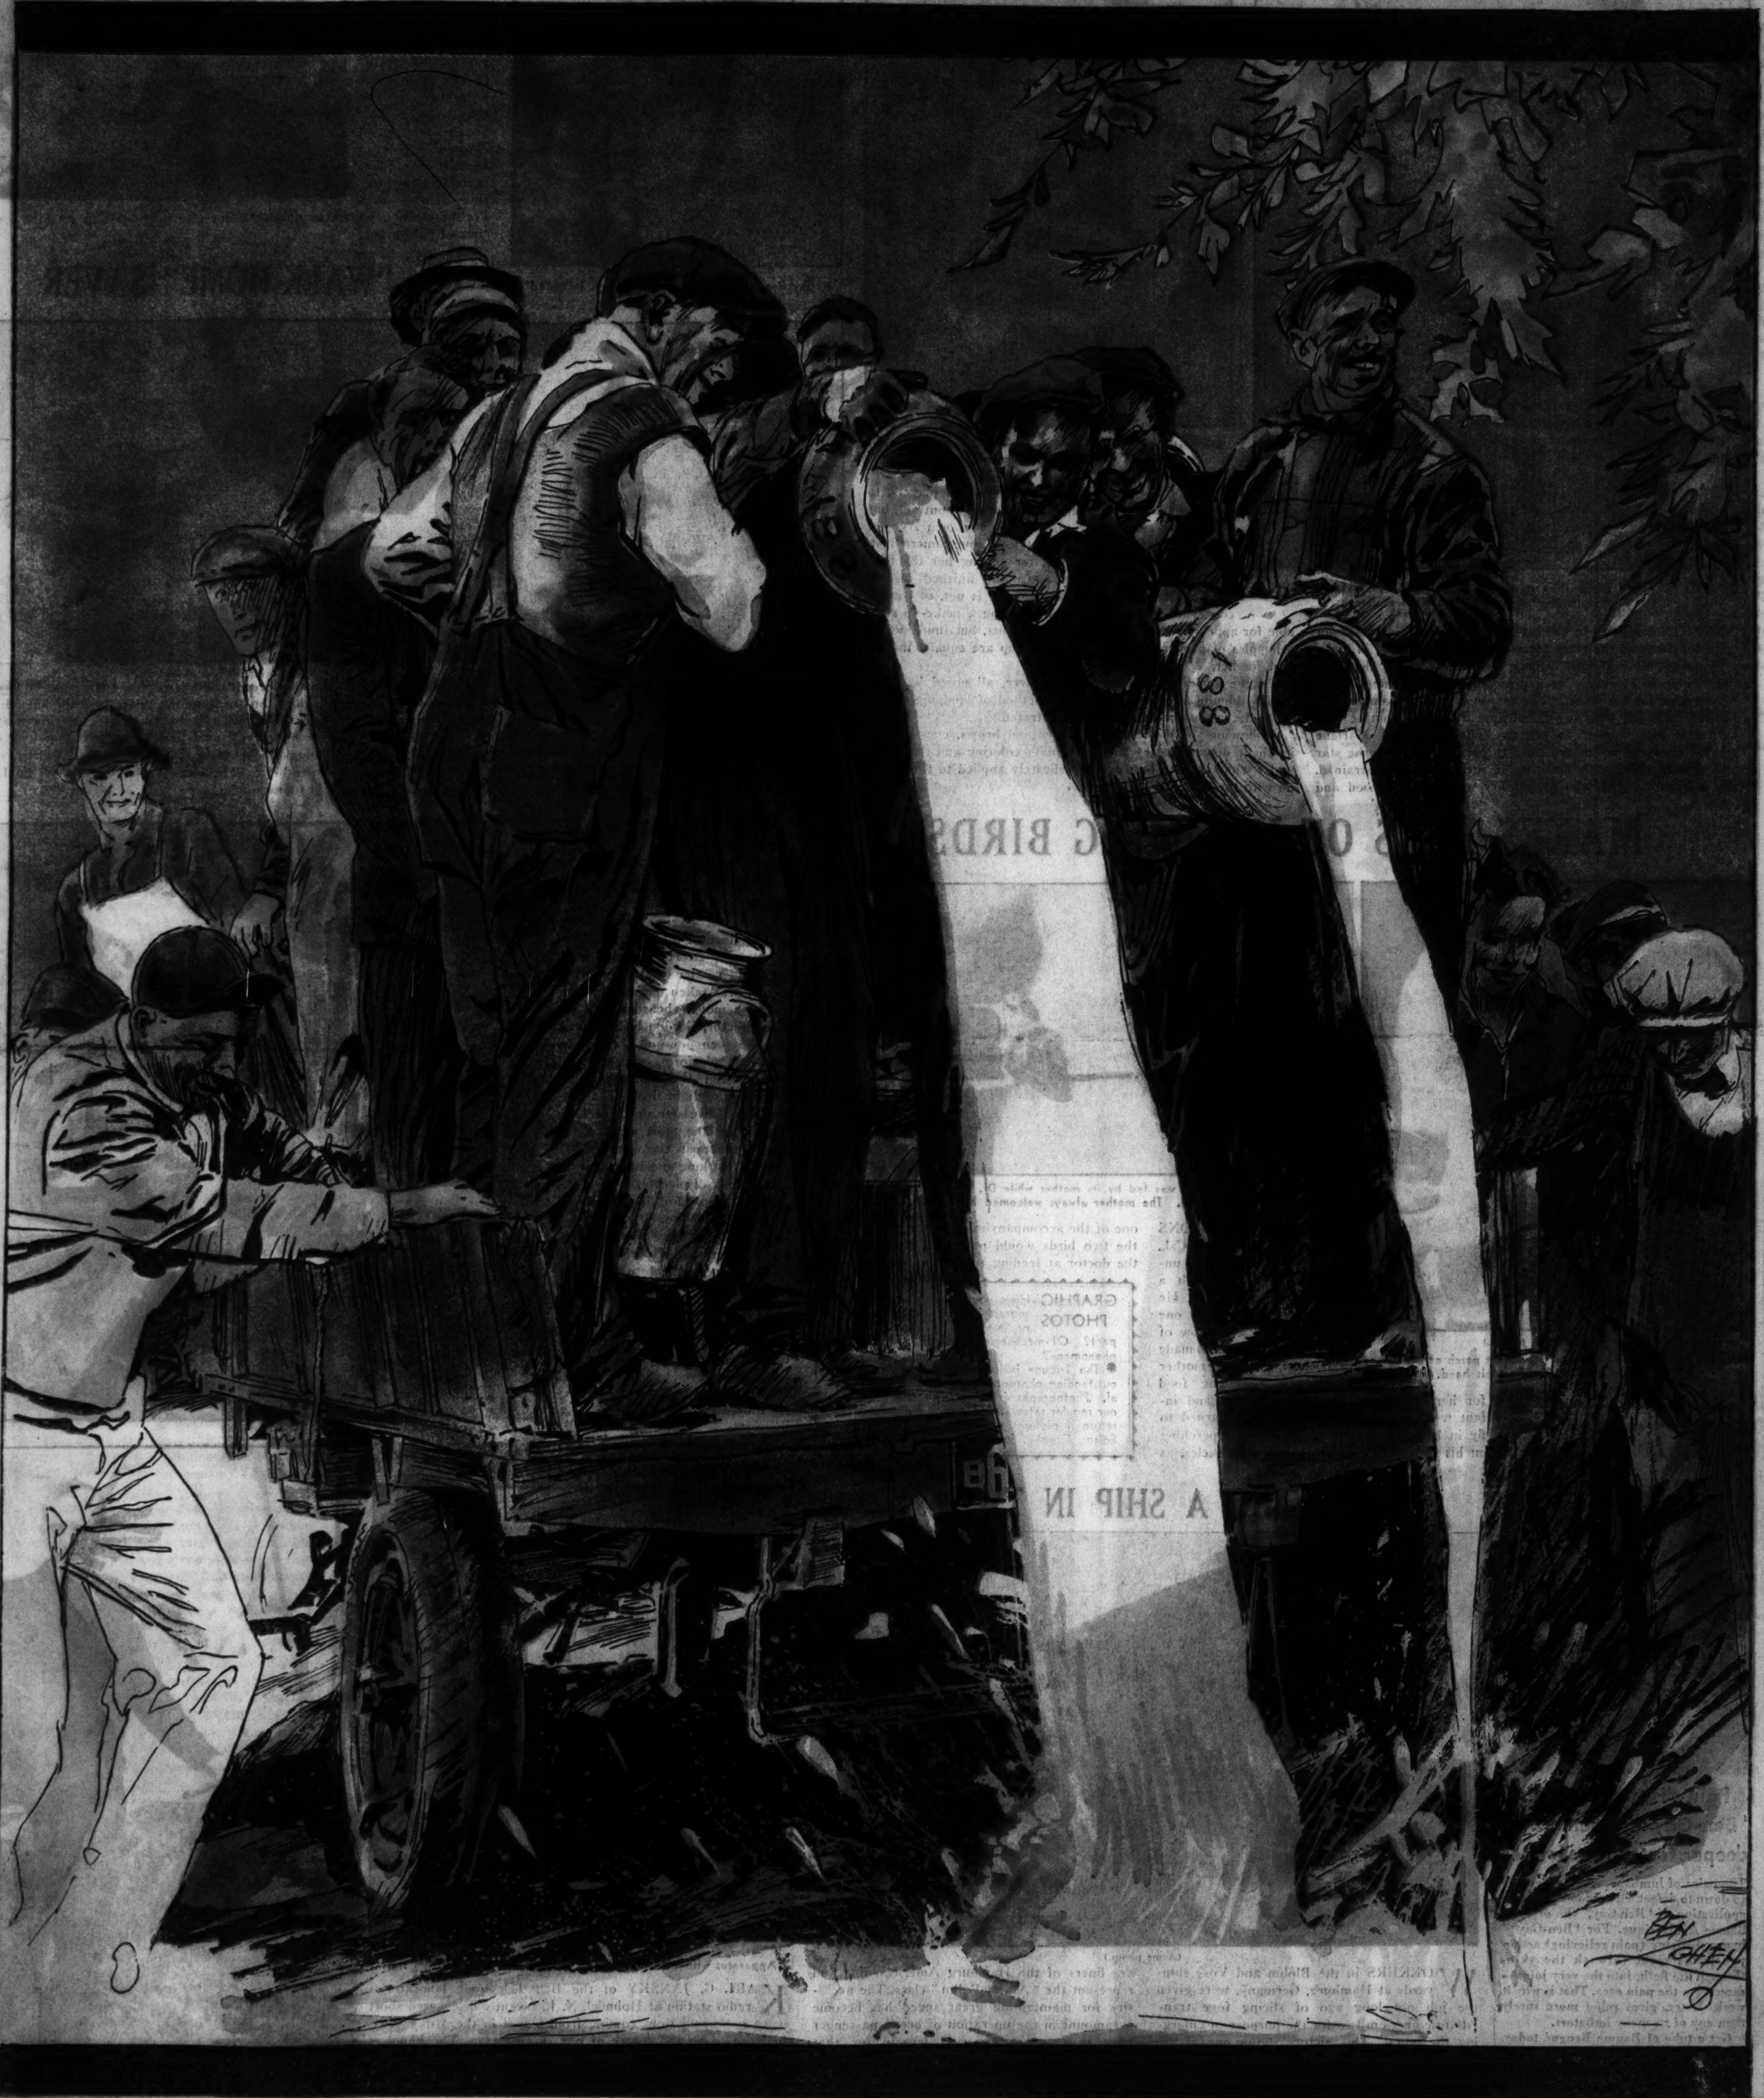
Camera News Review



Here are militant dairymen who are wasting no tears over spilled milk. In fact, as the picture reveals, they are actually spilling the milk themselves. It is their way of protesting against what they consider an unfair price for the fluid product of the dairy. This and other demonstrations of the so-called milk wars are only one phase of the farm strike movement, which, under the more dignified name of farm holiday movement, has kept large sections of rural America in turmoil for more than a year. Spurred on by belligerent leaders who openly criticize the administration's agricultural policies, the farm strikers have resorted to measures that suggest revolt against the NRA and the AAA. A pictorial news review of the farm strike situation is presented on pages 4 and 5.

EYE GLAMOUR

June Vlasek, pretty blonde film star, gives a lesson in eye make-up. First, she brushes the eyelashes with an upward motion.

She next applies a dark wax, or other lash darkener, again using the upward motion method.

A tiny line at the end of the eyelash is added with a crayon.

EXPERTS employed by the big film studios to apply make-up to the faces of the stars assert that over-emphasis in making up is a universal fault among women, whether they are making their faces ready for a professional appearance before the camera or for the street. The reason is that no woman ever is entirely satisfied with her facial appearance, no matter how beautiful it may appear to others. They say that Marlene Dietrich's eyes and lashes are close to perfect, but that the star would change them with make-up if she were not restrained. Many a beautiful girl who fought her way to Hollywood and up out of the ranks of the ordinary extra players, to the moment when she might have won a contract, has ruined her chances by insisting on her own style of make-up for the all-important light and camera test. Her beauty was responsible for getting her the test, but no beauty remained when she finished fussing with her face. The average woman is not, of course, concerned with the problem of using a make-up suitable for appearance before strong klieg lights, but fundamental principles of proper and improper make-up are equally important for her.

In the series of pictures printed here, all posed by June Vlasek, blonde film star, the proper method of applying make-up to the eyelashes and brows is illustrated.

Following the darkening of lashes and brows, eye shadow, its shade determined by the individual's coloring and the lights under which it is to be worn, is delicately applied to the upper lid with the finger.

EVOKED BY GAS WARFARE

(Acme photo.)

NEWEST devices for preserving human life against the effects of poison gas were shown at a recent special exhibition in Belgium. The show was organized by the Belgian Civil union in Brussels, and the affair was a reflection of the tense atmosphere prevailing in Europe, where the people are under constant terror of another war. The accompanying picture shows artifical respiration apparatus developed for emergency use in reviving victims of poison gas.

A "WALK-HOME" SAVER

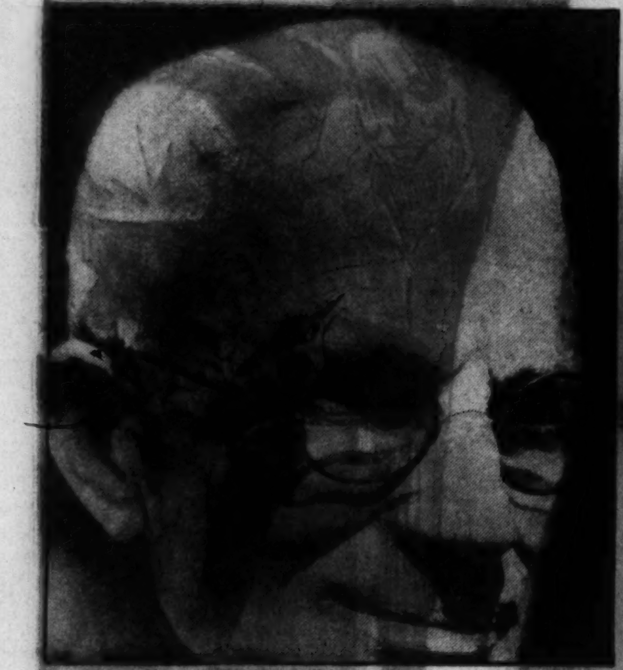
FLYERS often must make forced landings at places far removed from means of communication, thus causing the pilots to walk long distances in order to call for help. Alex Brun, an aviator of Cincinnati, O., has designed this tiny motorcycle as a first aid against that kind of distress. The cycle is only 36 inches long, weighs 90 pounds, and travels at a speed of 35 miles per hour. The one-cylinder engine will go 110 miles on one gallon of gasoline.

MAKES PALS OF HUMMING BIRDS



(Associated Press photos.)

Sometimes the baby bird was fed by its mother while Dr. Parsons held them both on a stick. The mother always welcomed his help.

DR. J. J. PARSONS of Monrovia, Cal., recently enjoyed an unusual friendship with a humming bird family. He discovered the nest one day outside a window of his home. First he made friends with the mother bird by providing food for her baby, and soon both mother and infant were his pals. The baby bird learned to fly in his home and spent much time perching on his shoulders and even on his spectacles, as one of the accompanying pictures shows. Often the two birds would perch on a stick held by the doctor at feeding time.

SEA EYRIE OF U. S. EAGLES

(Acme photo.)

HERE is an unusual close-up picture of the deck and huge elevating platform of the navy airplane carrier Saratoga. The picture was taken during the filming of a movie aboard the vessel. The director, Gordon Holingshead, may be seen pointing toward the elevating platform, which raises planes from the hangars below decks to the flight deck. The Saratoga and its sister ship, the Lexington, are the most modern airplane carriers in the world. They are 888 feet long and 106 feet wide, and have a displacement of 33,000 tons and a speed of 33 to 34 knots. They carry 70 to 80 planes and have 30 or 40 more planes in reserve in crates. Originally, both ships were intended to be battle cruisers. After their keels had been laid, in 1928, it was decided to build them as airplane carriers instead. The United States navy has one other large airplane carrier, the Langley, which is an older ship than the Saratoga and Lexington.

SLICING A SHIP IN TWO

(Acme photo.)

WORKERS in the Blohm and Voss shipyards at Hamburg, Germany, were given the job not long ago of slicing four tran-Atlantic liners in two for the purpose of enlarging the bows. This picture shows one of the liners in dry dock after the severing operation had been completed. After reconstruction the ships were 12 meters longer and the bows were given another shape. The purpose was to enable the vessels to maintain an average speed of 19.5 knots with a reduced horsepower, 20,000 instead of 28,000. All of the vessels so enlarged are liners of the Hamburg American line and represent the "Albert Ballin" class. The necessity for maintaining great speed has become paramount in the operation of ocean passenger lines in recent years, and largely for that reason many otherwise worthy ships have been revamped to meet increased speed requirements. Cutting a huge ship in two has been done often for purposes of enlarging and altering the design of the vessel. Many ships which were about to become obsolete have been modernized in this manner.

CELESTIAL RADIO

KARL G. JANSKY of the Bell Telephone laboratories radio station at Holmdel, N. J., recently discovered short wave radio radiations coming from a spot in the Milky Way, believed to be the center of our star galaxy. The impulses from the stars, which he picked up, were transmitted to New York and heard by an audience of the New York Electrical society and the Amateur Astronomers' association at a meeting in the American Museum of Natural History. In one of the accompanying pictures Mr. Jansky is shown pointing to the spot on the ster map which seemed to be the center of the strange radiations.

WILL PLANE AND GAS ABOLISH ARTILLERY? EXPERTS SAY "NO!"

Formidable Array of Projectiles Used by United States Military Forces Remains a Vital Factor in Armament

By Joseph U. Dugan

FEAR that another war in Europe is imminent has given impetus in recent weeks to terror-inspiring stories which picture the next war as one in which civilian populations will be annihilated by clouds of poison gas, sprayed over wide areas by armadas of enemy airplanes. Such stories have been widely circulated in the United States, but, according to military experts, they are based more upon imagination than fact. Men qualified by training and experience to know assert that, although airplanes and poison gas may be used more effectively in a future war, the ultimate decision will be won, as always, by artillery fire and infantry advance.

The use of artillery in warfare began with the discovery of gunpowder. Since that time the missiles and later the projectiles fired from big guns and field pieces have been the most destructive forces known to military science. Crude artillery, which replaced the ancient catapult and ballista, was employed in battle as early as the thirteenth century. In every succeeding war to date the vital importance of artillery has been demonstrated. Not until the World war, however, was it so conclusively proved that an army cannot advance without a preceding barrage of artillery fire.

Crude as were the first artillery weapons, they represented an advance which revolutionized warfare. The first missiles were round stones, some of them weighing as much as a quarter of a ton. The devices from which the stones were hurled were built of wooden or iron staves, held together by iron hoops, shrunk on. Next came the development of smooth-bore cannon, made of iron or brass, from which spherical round shot was fired. The gunpowder charge and round shot were rammed in at the muzzle. Detonation was effected by applying fire to a small opening at the base of the cannon called the "touch-hole." Often, because of an overload of powder or defective metal in the cannon, the resulting explosion shattered the gun, killing the gunners. Then came the advance in the science of ballistics which developed the rifling of gun bores, elongated explosive projectiles, breech-loading mechanisms, and the scientific application to artillery fire of that factor which makes it the deadliest, most destructive weapon known to man. That factor is control.

Projectiles are fired and exploded today with mathematical exactness. It is seldom, if ever, necessary for a target to be visible. There is a weapon and a complementary projectile for every purpose. Pictured on this page are the projectiles for most of the weapons used by the United States army. Projectiles for guns of the navy differ ballistically only slightly.

As important in achieving control of artillery fire as any other element is the explosive used to propel the projectile from the gun and to explode the shell at or near the target. The exact formulas for the explosive compounds now in use are closely guarded military secrets, but it was a well known fact during the World war that most of the belligerents were using compounds of nitroglycerin, nitro-cellulose, picric acid, and gunpowder. The explosive composition, first developed before 1914 by the Germans, trinitrotoluene, or trotyl, became popularly known as "T.N.T."

The amount and the power of the explosive charge placed within the projectile depend entirely upon the purpose of the shell. In all cases the detonation is accomplished by a fuse, placed either in the nose or the base of the shell. Generally there are four types of projectiles: 1—armor piercing, 2—shrapnel, 3—gas and smoke, and 4—high explosive.

Armor piercing shells have extremely hard and sharply pointed noses. The fuse is placed in the base and the explosion must occur after the nose has penetrated the target. Shrapnel shells, designed to kill or wound as many of the enemy as possible, contain metal balls which, with the fragments of the shattered shell, are hurled over a wide area by the explosion. Poison gas and smoke shells are known as specialty projectiles. High explosive shells are designed to shatter with such force as to destroy the target, usually an obstruction or other specific inanimate object.

Anti-aircraft machine guns, four in a row, on a single mount. They fire the .50 caliber bullets for a maximum range of 7,500 yards.

One of the fundamentals of the science of ballistics is the rifling of gun bores. This means cutting a series of spiral grooves inside the gun barrel. In shoulder rifles and other small-bore arms the force of the propellant charge against the base of the bullet widens the projectile at the base sufficiently to engage the rifling and cause the bullet to spin. In cannons the rifling operates on the projectile by means of a copper ring placed near the base of the shell and called the driving band. As the projectile passes through the gun barrel the driving band is engaged by the grooves, which give the projectile the necessary spin for accurate flight toward the target and longer range.

The smallest projectile used by our army is the .30-caliber infantry rifle and machine gun bullet. By international agreement these bullets are nonexplosive. They are fired from a brass cartridge and have a muzzle velocity of 2,650 feet per second and a maximum range of 5,500 yards. The next larger size projectile is the .50-caliber anti-aircraft machine gun bullet. It has a longer range and may be incendiary.

Brass cartridges, called case or fixed ammunition, are used to contain the propellant charges of five of the larger sized shells. The chief advantage of fixed ammunition is that it permits quick firing. Guns in which this type of ammunition is used are provided with extractors which automatically throw out the empty ammunition case after firing. The breech is then ready for a new cartridge, as no swabbing out of the gun is necessary. Such ammunition is comparatively heavy and more expensive, and for these reasons its use in the heavy guns is impractical.

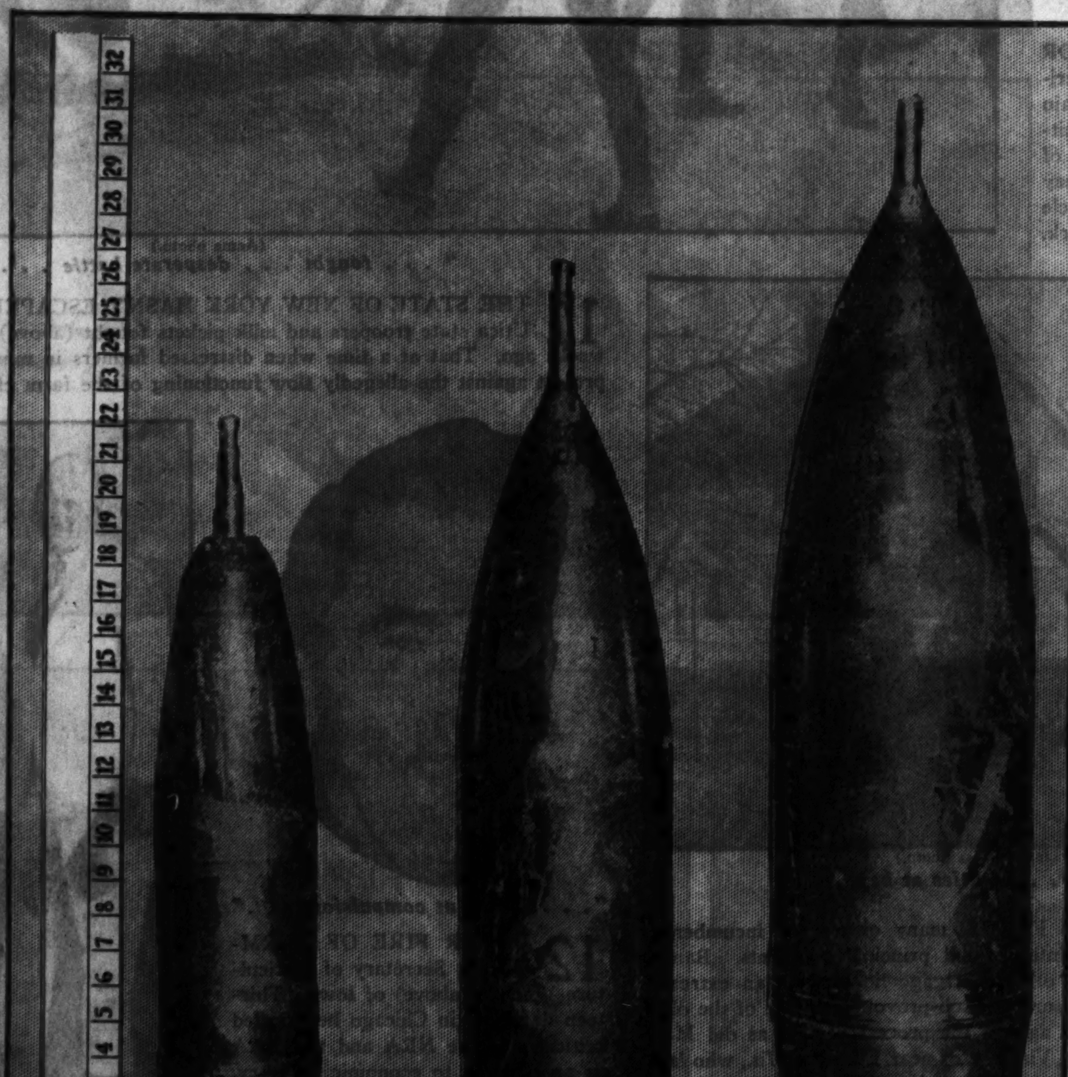
The largest shell used by the U. S. army is the 16-inch projectile, fired from huge cannons mounted on extremely heavy fixed emplacements. The shell is propelled by the explosion of charges contained in bags, usually made of raw silk. Bag ammunition is necessary for the larger projectiles because the huge amount of explosive required may be handled more easily in these light containers. The 16-inch shell weighs more than a ton and can be hurled a distance of about 28 miles in less than sixty seconds.

Best known of our artillery weapons, perhaps, is the 75-millimeter field artillery gun. Adopted from the French for our field artillery during the war, the 75-millimeter gun has since been improved by our ordnance designers. These guns are classified as light artillery. Operating in close proximity to the battle lines, they provide the preponderant fire which permits the advance of the infantry. The projectile for the 75-millimeter gun weighs 15 pounds, is fired from a brass cartridge, and has a muzzle velocity of 2,175 feet per second and a maximum range of 15,000 yards. A smaller light cannon is the 37-millimeter infantry weapon, which fires a projectile weighing 1.25 pounds from a brass cartridge and has a muzzle velocity of 2,000 feet per second and a maximum range of 5,400 yards.

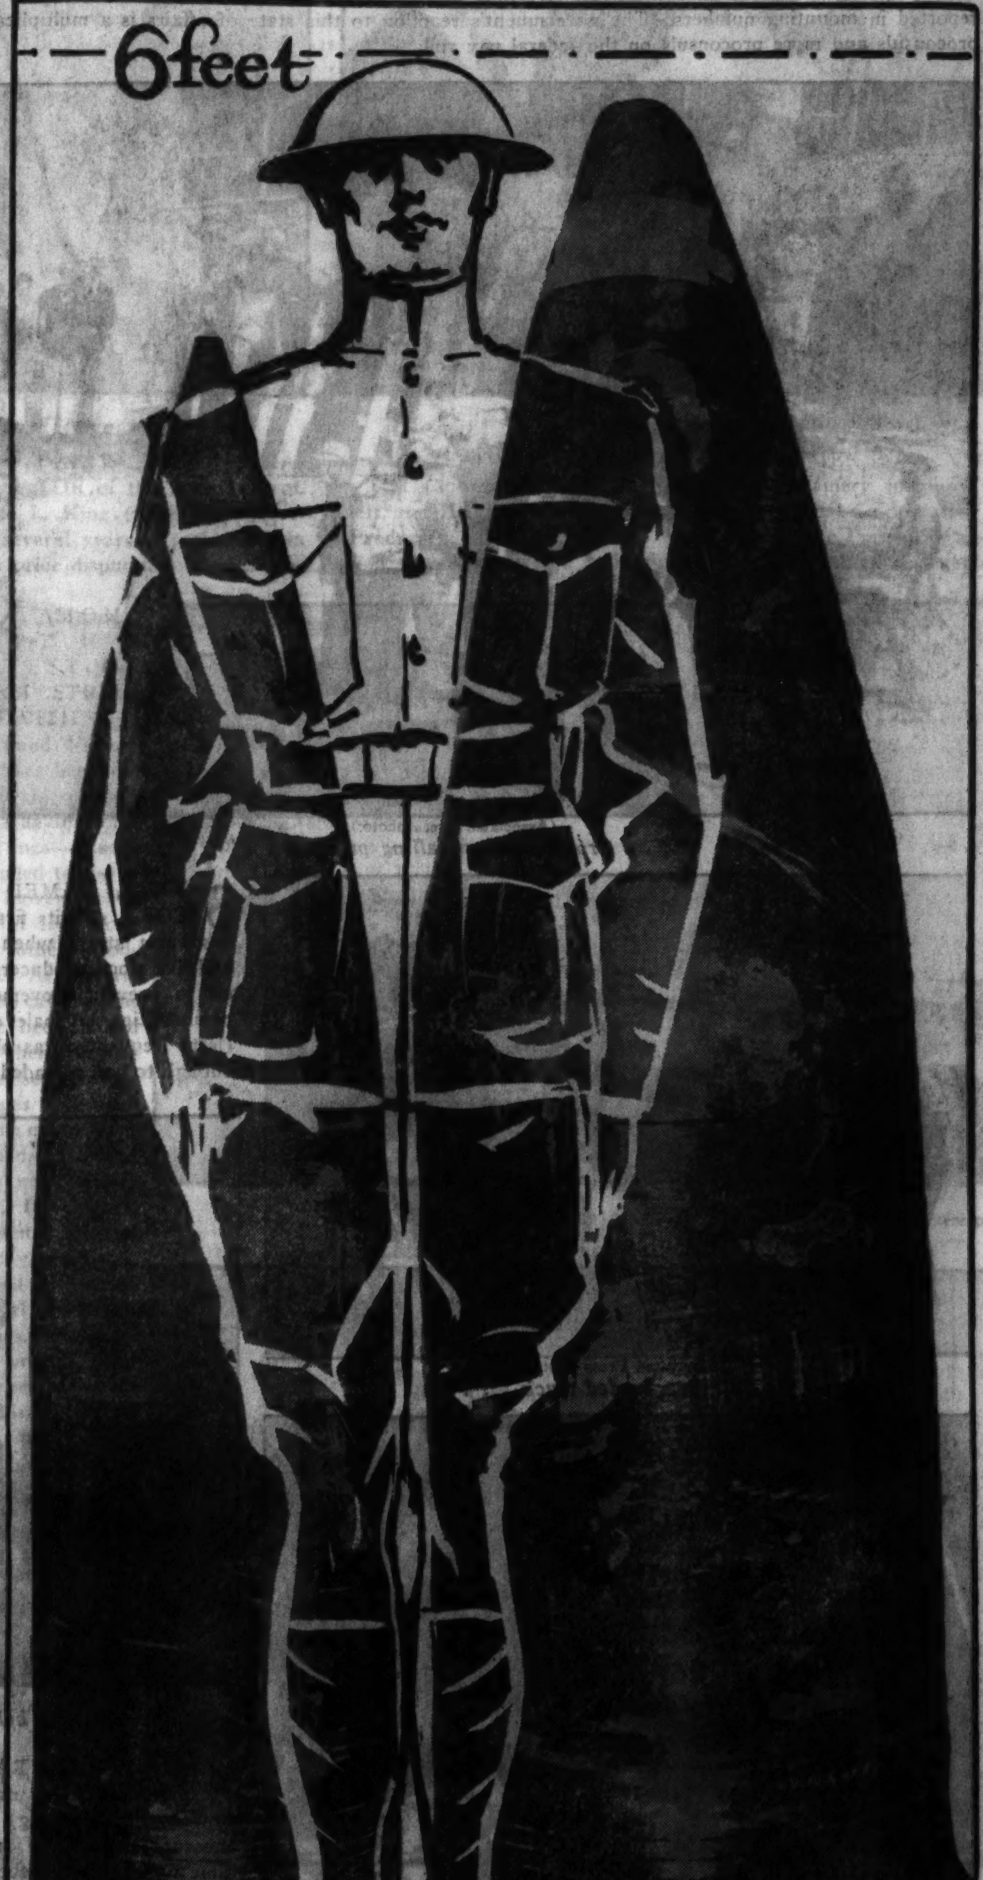
Another important type of artillery weapon is the howitzer. This is a short cannon employed to throw highly destructive shells at comparatively short ranges and high angles, thus dropping the shells into "dead" spaces that cannot be reached by the high-powered guns.

For purposes of silencing hostile artillery, destroying trenches, and interrupting enemy operations behind the lines, heavy guns and projectiles, classified as medium artillery, are employed. Still heavier guns, many of them mounted on railway carriages to provide greater mobility, are used to destroy field works, ammunition dumps, storage depots, transportation systems, and other objects far in the rear of the enemy lines. The principal U. S. army medium and heavy artillery projectiles, including those for howitzers, are provided for the following guns: 105-millimeter howitzer; 155-millimeter howitzers and rifles; 240-millimeter howitzer; 8-inch, 10-inch, 12-inch, 14-inch, and 16-inch rifles and mortars.

Anti-aircraft artillery is a highly specialized branch of this arm of the service. The principal weapons used by our army for combating enemy aircraft are the .50-caliber machine gun and the 3-inch anti-aircraft and 105-millimeter anti-aircraft guns. Projectiles for these weapons are fired from brass cartridges, and the two larger guns are easily and quickly transported on motor truck trailer carriages, which may be quickly removed and the fixed ground mounting as quickly set up. The 3-inch shell has a range of 14,200 yards and the larger shell a range of 20,000 yards. Both guns may be elevated to extreme angles quickly.



Projectiles for medium artillery, designed to silence hostile artillery, destroy trenches, and interrupt enemy operations behind the lines, are shown above. They are (from left to right) the 155-mm. shell, 8-inch shell, and 240-mm. howitzer shell.



Largest of the heavy artillery projectiles of the United States army are the 16-inch shell (right), which weighs 2,340 pounds and can be hurled 28 miles in less than a minute, and the 14-inch shell, which weighs 1,200 pounds and has a maximum range of 47,000 yards, or about 26 miles. Guns which fire the 16-inch shell are mounted on heavy fixed emplacements. Many of the 14-inch guns are mounted on railway carriages. The figure of the doughboy illustrates the comparative size of these huge projectiles.

FARMERS FIGHT FOR EQUALITY UNDER THE NEW DEAL

1 MASS PROTEST, WEAPON OF DISGRUNTLED AGRICULTURISTS ONLY TWO AND A HALF YEARS AGO, when Iowa farmers (right) stormed into Des Moines to object to alleged discriminatory legislation, has been supplanted today in many sections by so-called farm strikes, attended by disorder and violence. These strikes, some under way at present, are the farmers' reply to low prices for crops, to lack of credit in local communities, to increasing prices for commodities that they buy, and to their belief that the administration in Washington has failed to help them out of the economic morass into which the depression has driven them. Though never as yet nation-wide, and limited so far to sporadic outbursts, the farm strikes nevertheless present a growing menace to peace in rural America and bring the suggestion, at least, of open revolt against the NRA (National Recovery Act) and the AAA (Agricultural Adjustment Administration). The middle west farm belt, hard hit by the depression, has been and is today the territory most seriously affected by the belligerency of the farmers. Picketing and the blockading of roads to prevent movement of farm products naturally provoke conflict with the authorities—conflict which results in cracked heads, wrecked trucks, and more serious manifestations. Burning of railroad bridges, bombings of warehouses, elevators, and dairies, and other outrages are reported in mounting numbers. The government's reaction to this state of affairs is a multiplication of boards, bureaus, and administrators—proconsuls and more proconsuls on the federal pay roll.

2 FARMERS SPECULATED during the easy money era—in high-priced farms instead of stocks and bonds. They paid $300 and more an acre, which burdened them with mortgages. These by 1928 had risen to nine and a half billion dollars—nearly triple the farm debt of 1910. In Texas, dairymen (left) in one day destroyed hundreds of gallons of milk in protest against falling prices.

3 IOWA, FAMED FOR CORN, saw its first serious farm strike when grain and live stock producers united to prevent movement of commodities. A bale of hay (left) frequently was obstacle enough to halt a loaded truck.

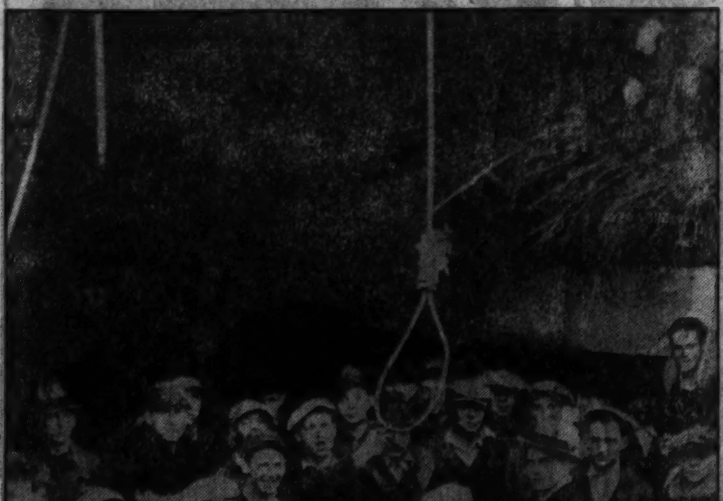
4 UNABLE TO RAISE FUNDS, many owners of incumbered farms failed to meet interest and principal payments. Banks (those still operating) and other mortgage holders, as an extreme measure, resorted to foreclosure, the sob-provoking theme of the old-time melodrama. Rebelling against the process of law, as did Max Cichon and his spirited wife, Virginia, of near Elkhorn, Wis., who last December held 19 besieging deputies at bay from their little farmhouse fortress (above), evoked considerable sympathy for the Cichons, but sympathy did not keep them out of jail.



(Acme photo.)

". . . a threatening noose . . ."

5 ANOTHER FARMER WAS LUCKIER THAN MAX CICHON. Early this year when the farm stock and tools owned by one Cecil Kestner of near Deshler, O., were to be sold to satisfy a claim against the farm, Cecil's neighbors gathered in his barn and suspended a threatening noose (left) from one of its rafters. The mortgage holder looked at the rope and refrained from bidding.

15 NOT ONLY HAS THE MORTGAGE SITUATION AROUSED INDIGNATION, in outbursts such as that in Iowa, where farmers forced a deputy sheriff to kneel and kiss the flag (above), but throughout the country today there is public condemnation of the AAA's domestic allotment plan—a scheme devised to reduce crop acreage. Though eight million acres of wheat were taken out of production, acreage now is within 400,000 of that of a year ago. The same is true of cotton. Production last year was 13,002,000 bales. Reports say this year's production will be 13,100,000 bales, though the government expected to reduce production by 4,200,000 bales, and spent 111 million dollars in the effort—almost rivaling the farm board's 18-million-dollar adventure in stabilizing wheat. Crop reduction has been branded as inconsisent with irrigation projects to increase soil fertility, such as the 165-million-dollar Hoover dam.

16 SHOCKING IN ITS FLAGRANT DISREGARD FOR LAW was the action of a mob at Le Mars, Ia., which last April dragged Judge Charles C. Bradley (above) from his court. A noose was placed about the jurist's neck, and he was choked into unconsciousness in an effort to make him promise to sign no more foreclosure notices. The region of Iowa in which that outrage was staged was only one of hundreds throughout the land affected by bank failures during the collapse of the rural financial structure in the period from 1929 to 1932.

"... two hours the battle raged ..." (Acme photo.)

17 MILK STRIKES ARE ONLY ONE PHASE of the general farm holiday movement, and Wisconsin, so far, has been the most active sector on the milk war front. At Shawano last May, national guardsmen in civilian clothes (above) were sworn in as deputy sheriffs. They were armed with pistols, clubs, and tear gas bombs, and marshaled onto the highways with orders to prevent violence on the part of milk strike pickets. The pickets—farmers, farm hands, and town boys seeking adventure—were on the job to stop milk sold at a price below that asked by the striking dairymen from reaching the milk depots.

18 LIKE A STREET SCENE IN HAVANA DURING A REVOLUTION was the clash (above) between the guardsmen and the milk pickets. For two hours the battle raged, and scores were injured. Two hundred pickets were taken prisoner in this strange melee.

(Acme photo.)

19 LIKE THE RED COATS AT BUNKER HILL, the deputies (above) at Durham hill, just outside Milwaukee, charged and charged. This was one of the most spectacular engagements of the milk war of May of this year, a war that simmered down only to flare up again in September and again this month. Though some regions of Illinois have been affected by milk strikes, the territory adjacent to Chicago has been surprisingly free of disorder, owing in a measure to the fact that much of the city's milk supply is furnished by the 18,000 members of the Pure Milk association, an organization which to date has been able to maintain prices through negotiation and arbitration. Milk and milk for cream bring $1.92 a hundred pounds in the Chicago market; elsewhere as low as ninety cents to $1.25 a hundred pounds.

"... considerable dragging about ..." (Acme photo.)

20 CLOSEUP OF A BATTLE (above) reveals considerable dragging about of offending pickets but little actual cudgeling. It is likely that the sympathies of the deputies often may be with the striking dairymen.

21 APPARENTLY IT DOES NOT DAMPEN THE ARDOR OF FARM STRIKERS (left) to lock them up, for when they are released, which happens speedily in all cases of a not serious nature, they go back to patrolling the roads, dumping trucks and wagons of farm produce, or turning back crops intended for the market. They wage their war against low prices for their crops and rising prices for the things they buy, and against what they call the impotency of the AAA with smiles on their faces and hopes in their hearts.

22 GROUPED BY THE FARM STRIKERS under the heading of minor annoyances are the demonstrations of law and order, such as explosions of tear gas bombs (below), battering about of pickets, and verbal thunderbolts from governors and the like miles from the scenes of action. The farmers, so they say, are fighting for equality, contending that the AAA is not getting it for them.

23 ALMOST EVERY WAR PRODUCES SOMETHING NEW in the way of weapons—witness the plane, the dirigible, and the tank of the world war. Inventors in the ranks of the farm strikers have brought forth a weapon particularly effective in their type of warfare, a plain old plank studded with sharp nails (below) that puncture the tires of automobile trucks. A vehicle of that description can't be driven to market on flat tires, so its owner is balked in his efforts to sell his products.

(Acme photo.)

"... a weapon particularly effective ..."

Geyer (above, center, with John Brandt, creamery company head, left, and Harry Hartke, president of the National Co-operative Milk Producers' federation, right). As manager of the Pure Milk association, Geyer threatens a strike this winter if the AAA fails completely.

26 AMONG THE LATEST OF FARM STRIKE ACTIVITIES in Iowa and Wisconsin have been the renewals of attacks against railway lines—attacks intended to tie up the movement by rail of live stock and other products. At several points cattle trains have been halted and their cargoes set loose. Railway bridges have been dynamited or burned. A bridge fire near Sioux City, Ia. (right), attributed to farm holiday pickets, caused a loss of several thousand dollars. A question arising from destruction such as this is: Who is going to pay for the damage?

"... persist in blocking highways ..."

27 MEANWHILE THE FARM STRIKERS PERSIST in blocking highways (scene above from Sioux City, Ia.), destroying milk shipments, dumping trucks, and in divers ways calling the public's attention to their economic plight.

"... met with disappointment ..." (Acme photo.)

28 GOVERNORS OF FIVE FARM STATES OF THE MIDDLEWEST AND THE NORTHWEST are back home again after a trip to Washington. The quintet (above at the White House with Secretary Wallace and Administrator Peek) sought from President Roosevelt a minimum fixed price on all important farm commodities. Contending that the AAA was not assisting farmers as it should, they also sought for the farmers a working code under the NRA. The governors met with disappointment at the White House. Arguments of the farmers, not only the striking farmers but a sizable proportion of the others in east, west, south, and north, is that the AAA has brought them little relief and that the NRA, in raising prices on virtually everything except farm crops, has brought a considerable amount of harm.

SYNOPSIS

Fear for the safety of his gold brings Horace Denslow, New York financier, to his death in a Georgia hunting lodge where he has flown with Pilot Davy Allen to cache precious metal. Meanwhile Prescott, Denslow's manager, being warned by a mysterious woman's voice over the telephone that Denslow is flying to his death, phones Linda Telfair by long distance to hurry to the lodge which adjoins her plantation. There she finds Denslow's body and scattered bits of paper which form a note incriminating to Gregory Denslow, the murdered man's son. She hides the scraps. Linda tells Gregory's mother of the note. Mrs. Denslow has divorced the financier because of another woman in his life and that woman's son, who was Davy Allen, the pilot. One night, walking late, Linda spies the lifeless body of a man perched in a tree—it is Allen. Old Lucius, family retainer, makes another discovery, a "conjure stone," which Prescott cracks open, revealing to Linda bars of gold. At the inquest, which begins to the accompaniment of a swarm of radio announcers, movie sound machines, reporters and curiosity seekers, a mysterious veiled woman makes a scene. Davy Allen's widow murmurs words which Linda recognizes as those on the page before Denslow when she found him dead. Words from the Psalms: "For, lo, the wicked bend their bow."

INSTALLMENT VII

LINDA stepped up and took the oath. She had never been sworn before "The truth; the whole truth; nothing but the truth."

It was solemn, especially there with the dead whom you might imagine listening behind the door with the bullet hole in it. Did their souls listen? Where were their souls? Lingering, hovering here to see how they would be avenged? The dead knew the truth; and sometimes they told it.

She stood, trembling and pale and turned slowly about to the riveted eyes, the tense faces regarding her.

Milton Rowley guided her to the chair used by the other witnesses.

"Mr. Prescott has testified," Milton Rowley was saying, "that he called your house from New York yesterday morning. Was that the first knowledge you had——?"

O! They wanted her to tell just what she did yesterday. Of course, that was it.

"Yes. That was the first knowledge I had that anything might be wrong here, Mr. Rowley. I was in the dining room at home having breakfast with my brother, Dan, when——"

She spoke slowly and clearly, her eyes moving over the audience and meeting, for a moment, the eyes of Gregg. She stopped speaking for the emotion which choked her as she realized that, whatever she said, Gregg might be accused of murder.

Milton Rowley brought her back.

"You were saying, you set out with your brother for this place."

"Yes; we——"

She told of her driving with Dan to the house; how they rang and beat upon the silent door; how they looked in the windows; and how they saw through the window of "that room"—they all knew what room she meant, but she turned and looked at the door—Mr. Denslow fallen forward over his desk.

"Then you entered the house?" the coroner was helping her.

"Not right away," Linda answered.

"What did you do?"

"We waited outside," said Linda, "listening to the telephone in here ringing."

"This telephone bell was ringing?"

"Yes; it began just after we'd—looked in the window. We waited to see if it would rouse anybody in the house; if anybody in the house would answer."

NOW, Linda was aware—and all those staring at her knew—that upstairs there had lurked the man who later descended masked and mute and had overpowered her. He had seen Dan and her arrive, surely; and then he had heard the ringing of the phone.

"No one answered?" asked Rowley.

"No one answered," said Linda. Of course the man upstairs would not answer; he had crouched somewhere listening for them and watching them when they entered. "But the ringing stopped."

"Then you came in?"

"Then Dan and I came in. The front door was not locked."

"Did you see or hear anybody in the house?"

"Not then. We supposed it was—empty. I opened that door. I saw that there was a bullet hole in the panel. The light was coming through."

"Yes," said Milton Rowley.

"Dan and I went in. I was a little ahead of him. Mr. Denslow did not move. Dan and I stood there."

"Yes," repeated Rowley. "Yes. And now if you tell us in as complete detail as possible exactly how everything was in the room then, you will do us the greatest service."

"I will try to," said Linda, wetting her lips.

"I wish," said the coroner kindly, "we could spare you this; but you understand that it is essential."

"I do. Mr. Denslow was dead. He had fallen forward with one arm on the desk and his face rested partly upon it. His right arm hung at his side and held a pistol, then, pointed at the floor. There was blood and bullet wounds . . . . Dr. Ames has described them. They did not change; must I describe them?"

"No," replied Rowley, "I had you describe the position and attitude of Mr. Denslow because, I understand, the position later was changed?"

"Yes; it was."

"Come to that in its time. Now tell us what else you noticed in the room, especially in the vicinity of the body."

The scraps of the torn letter upon the floor. The fragments of paper which Dan, in his excitement, never saw and which she had picked up and concealed when Dan stepped out of the room! The bits of note paper which told that Gregg had visited his father the night before!

Those damning little scraps of writing which she had secreted and hidden away, but which had been taken from their hiding place and now were in the hands of—whom?

Of the woman upstairs?

"There was a book before Mr. Denslow on the desk," said Linda's lips. "It was open, faced down. He had been reading it. It was a little black book with selections from the Bible. Apparently Mr. Denslow had been reading it before he reached for the revolver we found in his hand; before his murderers came in. It was open at page seventy-nine."

She emphasized this, half unconsciously; and the emphasis was not lost on the coroner.

"Why do you particularly mention that, Linda?" he said.

"Because of what was on that page."

"What was on the page?"

"Can I," asked Linda, "can I show you?"

"You mean, can we give you the book to refer to?"

"Please," said Linda, "unless—unless—unless it's still—in there."

"It is," returned the coroner, "but I can get it for you."

He turned from her and went to the door of the dead, drawing all eyes away from the witness while he quietly opened the door and stepped in. Almost instantly he reappeared with the little black book in his hand.

Trembling, she turned the pages until she had the little book open at page seventy-nine.

"Psalm 11," she read aloud, and scarcely aware that she was speaking. "The second verse:

"'For, lo, the wicked bend their bow, they make ready their arrow upon the string.'

"You see, he had it before him. He was reading it."

"Let me see that," requested Milton Rowley; and she handed him the book. "Yes; that is upon page seventy-nine," he announced. "'For, lo, the wicked bend their bow. . . .' Mr. Denslow appears to have been reading it; or at least he had it before him. Now let me refer again to David Allen's last letter."

He laid down the book and again obtained the letter.

LINDA watched him, her mind spinning. Almost—almost she could make meaning out of what she had seen in that first awful moment in the room where Mr. Denslow lay across his desk with the book before him. Almost—but not quite. The meaning seemed to skip before her, tantalizing her, luring her on, only to elude her.

"May I see that letter again, Mr. Rowley?" she appealed.

"I will re-read it to you and to the jury," the coroner replied. "David Allen wrote in this remarkable manner to his wife on the afternoon of the day upon which he and Mr. Denslow were murdered:

"'I'm sending you something that sounds queer this time; but keep it. It's important, more than you'll ever guess—unless you're good. As you are.

"'The eleventh psalm goes with the place down here. Start with the second verse Remember that but don't tell anybody unless something happens.

"'For, lo, the wicked bend their bow, they make ready their arrow upon the string."

"'We were here the first time on the second of November; now it's March 8, but the second date doesn't mean anything, here or at any of the other places.

"'Just keep this. O. K. Goodnight.'"

Now, if he would just wait a minute—Linda thought—she'd have it! But he didn't wait; he wanted to know, at once:

"Do you remember anything else in the room, Linda, that might have been related to that message?"

"Nothing," she answered.

"Then please continue with what you did in the room and with what next occurred."

"The telephone began ringing again," Linda answered almost mechanically. Her mind could not dismiss that message of which almost, almost she had the meaning. "We answered. Dan first and then me. It was New York: Mr. Prescott. He's told you about that. Dan left the house, then, to look at the landing field. I stayed in the house; in this room; and the man came downstairs."

"Yes," said Rowley, halting her. "Now describe him and what he did as carefully as you can."

"I can't describe him—except that he was tall and very strong—and had dark hair," she flung in quickly, to deny at once the possibility that he could have been Gregg. She had not noticed at the time, she well knew. She had said "dark hair," when questioned before, in order to protect Gregg; and so, now, she repeated it. "He was masked by a handkerchief with holes for eyes; he wore gloves. He never spoke a word nor made a sound. He grabbed me when I ran for this door. He completely overpowered me, and never said a word! He locked me in the closet in there," she pointed to the gunroom. "I heard him in the hall; then I heard nothing. I couldn't tell whether he was in the house or was gone—till Dan came back and I called to him and he let me out.

"Then we found he'd left but, first, he'd gone back in there." She motioned, this time, to the door of the dead.

"Why do you say that?" Milton Rowley proceeded.

"Because we went in—and Mr. Denslow'd been moved." In detail, she described it and told, also, of hearing the airplane motor and of running out, with Dan, and seeing the machine overhead.

"Do you know Niles Evans?" the coroner asked.

"I have never seen him; and I never heard of him until today."

There was a pregnant pause in the proceedings. The coroner, looking down his line of witnesses, gazed at Gregg; and every one sat more alert.

So far, no one who had been called to testify was under suspicion, himself or herself, of complicity in the murders of the men lying behind that dominant door. But now it would be different.

Milton Rowley felt this and fumbled.

"Sheriff" he said to Clem Clay, "you ought to be a witness, yourself, before we go on. You arrived on the scene here mighty promptly and before much had been moved. Sheriff, will you tell us what you saw and what you found?"

GONE was Clem's erstwhile shamble; his stride, for his few steps to the witness chair, was not unlike a swagger. As he recounted his endeavors one would have thought that no one except himself had had anything to do with the events following the murders.

"I found the body of Denslow," he said, "there," and he pointed. "Of course, the Telfair youngsters had glimpsed it, but I made the first actual examination of it. It was a dead body. Dr. Ames estimated it had been dead for about twelve hours. My experience told me that eleven hours would be nearer it.

"All the time, it was plain to me that there was more to this murder than what met the eye in this house. I was on the lookout for another body. It was plain to me that Denslow's companion—who turned out to be his son—had been murdered, too. Or abducted. So I threw out my net and last night found in the woods the other dead body."

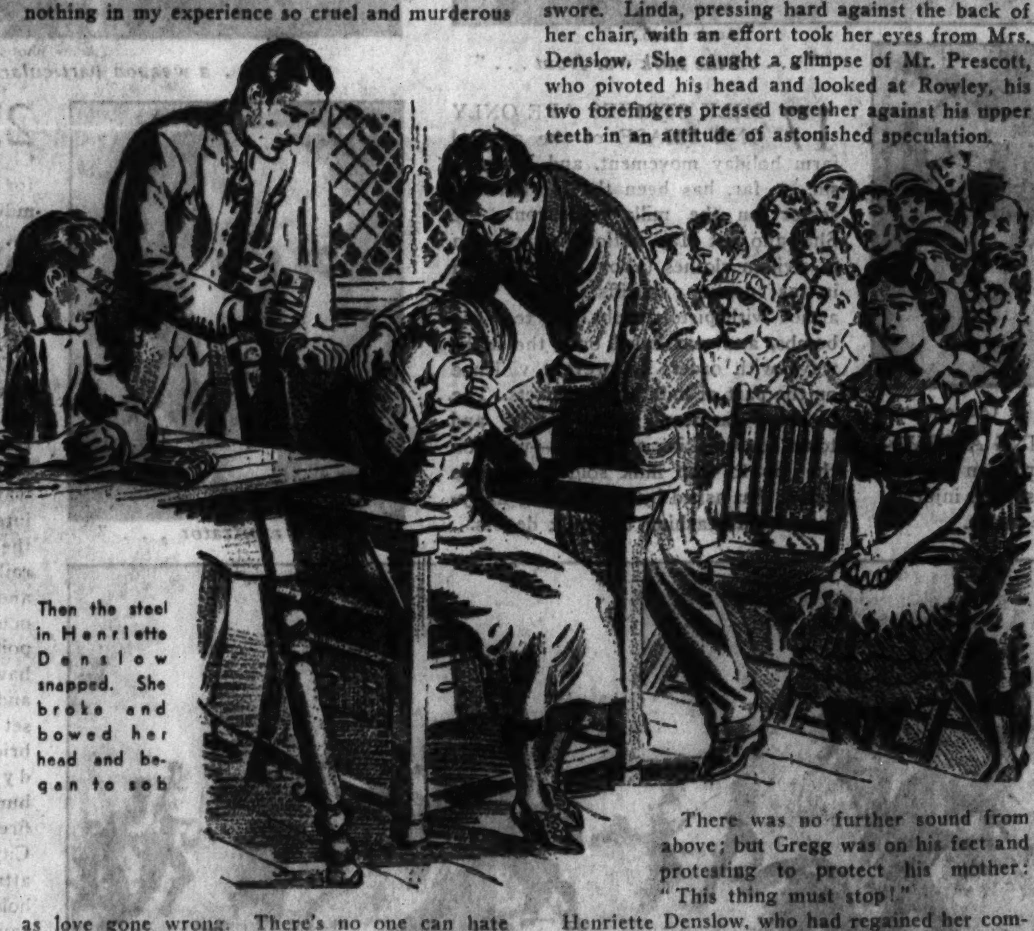
Milton Rowley did not interrupt him. It is a common but not enlightening spectacle to observe a man forging ahead over a road constructed by other people. Milton himself could never do it; he had not the audacity. He gazed at Clem Clay with a surprise which contained as much envy as contempt.

"Now, who are the murderers?" Clem came to his point. "Who did what I've just told you was done? That's what you want to know, gentlemen," he declaimed to the jury. "That's why you're here; that's why you're sworn in and are listening to these witnesses summoned before you.

"Gentlemen," went on Clem Clay, though he scarcely glanced at the jury again, "there are murders and murders. When you've been sheriff for a few years, you pick up a lot about what makes man bedevil man and do murder. There's nothing in my experience so cruel and murderous as love gone wrong. There's no one can hate another human like some one who's loved him; there's nothing can cruel the human heart like seeing another take from you what you was sure was yours——"

"Sheriff!" interjected Milton Rowley at last. "Mr. Clay. Please! You know better!"

"Better than what?" Clem cast back at him. "Ain't I speaking the truth?"



Then the steel in Henriette Denslow snapped. She broke and bowed her head and began to sob

LINDA, seated beside Gregg and trembling half with anger, half with terror, was sure that the coroner had intended next to call Gregg, but that the sheriff's intervention altered his plan.

Rowley advanced slowly toward Gregg and his mother; his eyes went back and forth from one to the other, but settled at last on the woman.

"Your name," he said to her courteously, "the name you wish to be known by is——"

"I resumed," said Gregg's mother, still seated, "my maiden name some time ago. But it would simplify matters if I am known in these proceedings by the name which will most clearly identify my place and the name to which I am entitled."

Rowley nodded. "Exactly. Thank you, madam," he said; and he glanced at the court reporter who was recording the proceedings. "Mrs. Denslow now will give her evidence."

Linda felt Gregg grasp her hand and he whispered: "Isn't she wonderful?"

"We can presume, I am certain," said Milton Rowley when Mrs. Denslow faced him for questioning, "that you have heard the statements of the previous witnesses. You are aware, therefore, that the name of a man, known to have been a lifelong friend of yours, has been drawn into this investigation."

"I am aware of it."

"We know that you came to Albemarle of your own accord soon after learning of the murder of him who had been your husband. Your voluntary presence here indicates that you wish to aid us in any way you can—does it not?—in determining who may have visited Mr. Denslow here and killed him and his—his pilot?"

"You may call him 'his son,'" Henrietta Denslow's controlled voice said. "I know it to be the fact. This is no time to employ euphemisms to evade it."

"Very good. I will be glad to be as direct as possible. Will you, therefore, describe to us your own recent situation in regard to your late husband and to his son who was not also your son?"

"With his son, David," replied Mrs. Denslow, "I had no dealings whatsoever. From Mr. Denslow I was divorced nearly three years ago. The divorce and reasons given at the time are a matter of record."

"The reasons given at the time were not, however, the real reasons for your separation?"

"They were not."

"Will you tell us the real reasons?"

"In their place. Niles Evans has been mentioned here. I am well aware that there is a belief held that he, with my son, might have done these murders. Let me speak first for him.

"He has been my loyal friend since I was a girl; and when I proved capable of feeling no more than friendship for him, when I believed myself in love with another and married him, Niles Evans proved himself a very gallant gentleman.

"I was Horace Denslow's wife for more than nineteen years. It is a mistake to assume that knowledge of his son, David, and of David's mother had been kept from me. I married my husband, accepting that situation. I divorced him when elements in the situation made marriage with him no longer possible."

"Can you describe to us the alteration of the elements of your marriage?"

"I can; very simply." But she stopped.

"Will you do so?"

"I will. My husband ceased to love me."

Milton Rowley was hesitating, uncertain how to force on, when a voice, contralto, ominous, measured, suddenly pervaded the room from above.

"He never loved you!"

ROWLEY, in his hesitation, had lifted from his table a glass of drinking water. It crashed to the floor. Gregg, beside Linda, half rose from his chair. Mabel Allen jerked back. Kate Kelly swore. Linda, pressing hard against the back of her chair, with an effort took her eyes from Mrs. Denslow. She caught a glimpse of Mr. Prescott, who pivoted his head and looked at Rowley, his two forefingers pressed together against his upper teeth in an attitude of astonished speculation.

There was no further sound from above; but Gregg was on his feet and protesting to protect his mother: "This thing must stop!"

Henriette Denslow, who had regained her composure after the first start which she could not control, relieved Rowley of replying.

"I understand," she said, "that she has the right to be here; I understand also that she is entitled to any unusual consideration or privacy which can be arranged for her. She has lost more than us all."

Rowley appealed to Clem Clay; and Mrs. Denslow's eyes met Gregg's. He went back to his seat, and no one else moved.

"Can you go on?" asked Milton Rowley.

"Whatever it was that held my husband and me together for nineteen years," Mrs. Denslow went on, "came to an end. With its end, and with the divorce, all relations between us ceased. I have not seen him who was my husband since I left him nearly three years ago. As I neither asked nor accepted a penny of alimony, I have had no occasion to communicate with him directly or indirectly."

"None?" asked the coroner; and Linda, remembering the letter which Gregg had carried to his father, sat stiff with suspense.

"None," Henriette Denslow chose to repeat.

"But this was not true of your son?"

"No. My son visited his father at intervals, and, on different occasions, wrote to him or heard from him."

"Though he had taken your part and left his father's home with you?"

"Yes."

"When was the last time your son visited his father?"

"Some months ago," Gregg's mother replied.

"Do you remember the definite date?"

"He may. I do not."

"Of course, we will question him later; but you are sure this was some months ago—the last visit of which you have any knowledge?"

"Yes."

"Where was this visit made? I mean, where did your son go to see his father?"

"To New York."

"And to the best of your knowledge, he did not since come here to meet his father?"

"No."

"Do you know where your son was on the evening of the day before yesterday?"

"On that day, he was with me."

"Where?"

"In Florida. At Palm Beach."

"How late in the day was he with you?"

"Until afternoon."

"Then he left you?"

"Yes."

"When did you next see him?"

"On the following day at Albemarle."

"That was after the murder?"

"Yes."

"Then you have no personal knowledge of your son's whereabouts during the intervening time?"

"Only what he told me."

"NOW tell us about Niles Evans," the coroner commanded suddenly. "When did you last see him?"

"The day before yesterday."

"How late in that day was he with you?"

"Until late in the afternoon."

"Then he left you?"

"Yes."

"With your son?"

"No."

"He left before your son?"

"No; later."

"Do you know where he went?"

"I do not."

"Do you know where he is now?"

"I do not."

"In other words, you have no idea what he may have done between the time he left you, shortly after your son left you, and now?"

"I do not know what he may have done," Henriette Taylor replied slowly, and with lifted head, "but I know what he could not have done. He could not possibly have shot down my husband, as he was murdered here, and he could not possibly have had a part in the torturing and killing of David Allen."

"Was he," continued the coroner, "tall?"

"Yes."

"Was he dark-haired?"

"Yes."

"And he could fly?"

"Niles Evans," replied Henriette Denslow, "was a pilot in the war. He flew first with the French and then with the American air forces. He was an ace. He won a Croix de Guerre with five palms. He was a soldier and a very gallant gentleman!"

Then the steel in Henriette Denslow snapped. She broke and bowed her head and began to sob.

Gregg rushed to her side and put his arms around her. Prescott appeared in an instant with a glass of water in his hand. Linda sat frozen in her chair and tears ran down her cheeks—tears that fell from sympathy and from fright. For what might the truth about Niles Evans be? Did Gregg's mother know? And, if she knew, was she shielding him by falsehoods and evasions as she had decided she must to shield her son?

Her collapse, of course, stopped the questioning; but voices and whispers were now all about.

"Who's Niles Evans?"

"He's the one that was in the house that morning . . . that locked her up. . . ." Linda was aware that she was pointed at . . . "then searched the body and flew away."

"O, he was the man hiding in the house!"

There were sounds upstairs; some one was walking above, hurrying from room to room.

"Hey! What's he got?"

He was the man coming down the stairs which the masked man—now supposed to have been Niles Evans—had descended on that awful morning.

This man was not masked; indeed, he was seen to be Yerkes, who had accompanied the woman in black upstairs. Now he came down carrying her clothing!

HIS burden was draped over his arm, and it trailed to his feet so that he lifted it in order not to stumble over it. Someone exclaimed:

"He's got her veil and dress!"

They all saw what he had, and Yerkes held out his arms displaying the veil and garment more plainly.

"Where is she?" he half shouted.

"Where's who?" returned the coroner; and Clem Clay was beside him.

"Her!" yelled Yerkes, brandishing the black materials.

"Don't you know? Ain't she upstairs?"

"Not now!"

"Where is she?"

"Gone! Disappeared!" Yerkes was advancing to them and they met him. "There ain't no one upstairs now—but this!" Yerkes showed them, and he shook the dress and veil as if to demonstrate beyond doubt that they were empty. "There was only this on the bed just now."

"What bed?"

"Where she went to lay down, she said. She stepped into a room. I let her. She shut the door. Then I knocked; thought maybe she was fainting. She didn't answer. So I opened the door. This was on the bed. Not a trace of her. I went to all the rooms. Did you see her come down? Where is she?"

THANKSGIVING

By Thyra Samter Winslow

Ma Housing Had Despaired of Anything Ever Happening in Centerville—Until She Took a Lonely Ride Along a Country Road and Found Fate Again Staging an Old, Old Tragedy

MA HOUSING woke up, as she always woke up, with a little start as if an unheard alarm clock had rung. She knew it was because for so many years a real alarm clock had rung and she had had to jump hurriedly out of bed. There had been babies to wash and breakfast to cook—and then years of getting children ready for school—and then more years of getting grown boys and a girl ready for, well, for the world.

Now Ma Housing lay quietly in bed and tried to feel luxurious. She knew that downstairs Irma May, with her two trained dark hands, was already preparing the simple breakfast and would, through the day, do all the things that she herself had done for so many years.

The children had insisted on Irma May.

"Now, ma, if you're foolish enough to live in that silly town all alone in that big house," they had said, "at least you're going to have some one to look out for you—some one there in case something happens."

So Irma May was there. And sometimes, through the long days of nothing to do, Ma Housing rather wished that "something would happen." Anything, almost.

Not that the children weren't good to her. They were. She was awfully proud of them. Of all of them. Even of the wanderer, Ben, when the rest of the family were a bit doubtful. And she didn't blame them for not living in Centerville, though she didn't think it was quite as dreadful a place as they made out.

Ma Housing could have gone to New York. They had written and asked her to come. But in New York she felt confused and strange and not at home, even with her own children. She always felt she was putting them out, interfering with their plans. It was better when they came to Centerville. Christmas, maybe——

But this was Thanksgiving.

Ma Housing bathed and dressed quickly, the way she always did, as if there were important things to be done right away. She put on a warm jersey dress, for the morning was cool. It was a gray dress with white wool embroidery and Lorraine had sent it to her.

After breakfast Ma Housing read the morning paper, still in the kitchen while Irma May cleaned the breakfast things and straightened up Ma Housing's room. Then Ma Housing put on a big gingham apron and the two of them went about preparing the Thanksgiving dinner.

This dinner would have astonished the onlooker, especially if the onlooker had known that Ma Housing and Irma May were the only ones who were going to eat dinner in the old house. For there were three turkeys! And three pies! And quantities of baked potatoes all hollowed out and seasoned and put back into the shells again, and a great pot of string beans, neatly slivered, and on the table stood three jars of Ma Housing's favorite preserves and packages of nuts and raisins. Ma Housing and Irma May worked busily, chatting as they worked. Ma Housing tasted and added butter and cream and spices. She was having an awfully good time.

Ma Housing and Irma May had good appetites, but they were not gluttons. They had no intention of eating three turkeys and the things that went with three turkeys. But it was Thanksgiving and if you can't do something for some one on Thanksgiving to make some one a little more thankful or a little happier, well, it didn't seem to Ma Housing there was much excuse for the holiday.

One of the turkeys and the accompanying dinner was for old Mrs. Fredder, who lived in the little brown cottage on the other side of Jerome hill. Mrs. Fredder's son, Henry, had hurt his foot almost a month ago. His foot was better now, but things being slack at the lumber mill they hadn't held his job for him and there were three little Fredders and Henry's wife.

The other dinner was for the Bartels. Mr. Bartel wasn't out of work; that is, he had as much work as he had had in a long time. But there wasn't much painting and decorating being done in Centerville and Mr. Bartel was getting old. The Bartels had no children. Their only son had been drowned skating on the river when he was 17. The two of them, living alone all these years!

Ma Housing and Irma May remarked how nice it was that they both liked turkey. They apparently didn't remember that they had said the same thing about the turkey last year and the goose last Christmas and the year before—when the children couldn't come. They liked turkey creamed on toast, and turkey cold and turkey hash. A turkey lasts a long time when there are only two.

WHEN the two turkeys were cool enough to pack, Ma Housing and Irma arranged the two big baskets. Cranberry sauce left in the molds, potatoes in covered dishes. Vegetables. Little red hothouse tomatoes brought into Centerville especially for the holiday. The pie safely on top.

The door bell rang. Irma May hurried to the door, though Ma Housing didn't try to hide her eagerness. What if——

It wouldn't be Ben. He'd know the front door was locked and come around to the kitchen. But one of the others——

Irma May held three telegrams in her hand. Ma Housing's hands trembled a little as she opened the envelopes. Nice telegrams. A long night letter from Lorraine. Shorter messages from Donald and Lewis. What good children they were!

Ma Housing was on her way upstairs to straighten up and put on her hat when she heard a new noise. Some one coming around to the kitchen door? A voice! A man's voice!

She almost lost her footing as she turned around and hurried down into the kitchen again.

It was Bill Morris, who worked for the express company.

"This came three days ago, Mrs. Housing," Bill said, "but a letter came before that saying it was to be delivered on Thanksgiving day, so we figured out it wasn't anything that would spoil. Your family certainly don't forget you on holidays."

Ma Housing peered at the address on the box, saw the name of the sender. She was happy when she saw Lorraine's name. A box from Ben would have meant definitely that he wasn't coming home. This was nice! And there was still a chance that Ben might come!

The box was grand! A big new black and white tweed coat with a gray squirrel collar and a fur lining! The boys had given Ma Housing a black caracul coat for Christmas two years ago, but she thought it was too good to wear except for "best," and they laughed over the fact that this meant she hardly ever wore it at all. This coat she could wear every day.

There was a big lot of candy, too—Jordan almonds. Ma Housing's favorite. And a striped flannel bath robe and some candy for Irma May. And a note from Lorraine saying the coat was from all three of them and the candy was from the children. It was a nice surprise—the box. Ma Housing wondered why it made her feel a little sad.

MA HOUSING put on her neat little black hat and the new coat, though the weather was a little too warm for it. The coat fit absolutely perfectly—Lorraine was so clever seeing about things like that. She brought the shining new car out of the garage and Irma May put the baskets carefully into the back. Irma May would finish their dinner while Ma Housing was out.

Both of the families were glad to see Ma Housing. She had rather thought they would be, with the dinner. Well, they were good people. They urged her to stay to dinner.

Ma Housing said she couldn't stay, though it was nice of them to want her. Mrs. Brannen, who lived next door, had asked her, too. She must remember to take over the cranberry sauce she had made for the Brannens the minute she got back!

In both homes she proudly exhibited the new coat. She told Mr. Fredder she was sure something would turn up—she'd speak to Mr. Johnson herself tomorrow. And she hoped Mrs. Bartel's cold would be better soon.

Ma Housing didn't turn the car toward home, though there was nothing else for her to do. She felt restless and blue. There ought to be something you can do for folks on Thanksgiving that means more than taking them a turkey or cheering them with words.

Ma Housing didn't usually feel useless or blue. She had been busy this morning. She was a little tired now. She felt there ought to be something for a woman of her age to do, something that was needed, besides being on the Orphans' home board and the Missionary society and the committee for the free hospital ward, things like that.

She thought for a minute she'd go out to the cemetery and look at Pa Housing's grave—at Philip's grave. But there is nothing you can do in a cemetery in November, and the sun had gone behind a cloud now and it looked as if it were going to rain. Ma Housing knew the graves looked as nice as they could for this time of year. You can remember folks just as well when you're not in the cemetery, anyhow. And Pa Housing and Philip had been dead for a long time.

Ma Housing drove over toward the new bridge. She liked to watch its slender, graceful curve against the sky. It didn't seem nearly substantial enough looking to hold the cars that drove over it, though she knew how strong it was. There weren't many cars today.

Near the bridge Ma Housing stopped the car. The river and the sky were gray behind the black silhouette of the bridge, but the trees across the river were still orange and red. It was peaceful. A sort of an end to things. Maybe folks who didn't have anything left to do——

A figure of a woman stood on the bridge. Ma Housing didn't know how she got there; hadn't seen her walking past. But then she hadn't been looking, especially. A dozen people could have passed. She looked at the woman now. A curious figure, bundled in black. A young girl. No, a sort of a misshaped figure. Why——

Quickly Ma Housing jumped out of the car. She didn't even stop to slam the door. She ran faster than she had run in years. She knew now what the woman had in mind. For the woman stopped, looked around, went over to the side of the bridge.

The woman reached the iron railing, started to climb over!

Ma Housing ran as fast as she could. What if she couldn't get there in time? If she called—the woman would surely jump. There was no one else around.

Ma Housing muttered something under her breath. If it were a plea to God it was a most undignified plea, not the sort one usually made to a divinity.

"Come on, God! Be a good sport! Hold her off!" prayed Ma Housing, using the words her boys might have used. It never occurred to her that she was being profane.

The god to whom she prayed must have sensed the spirit back of the words, for Ma Housing, out of breath, her heart beating the way Dr. Stimson said she should never let it beat, laid a firm hand on the black shoulder just as the woman put her other foot over the rail.

"Don't do that!" said Ma Housing sharply, the way one talks to a naughty and difficult child. "Do you know what you are going to do?"

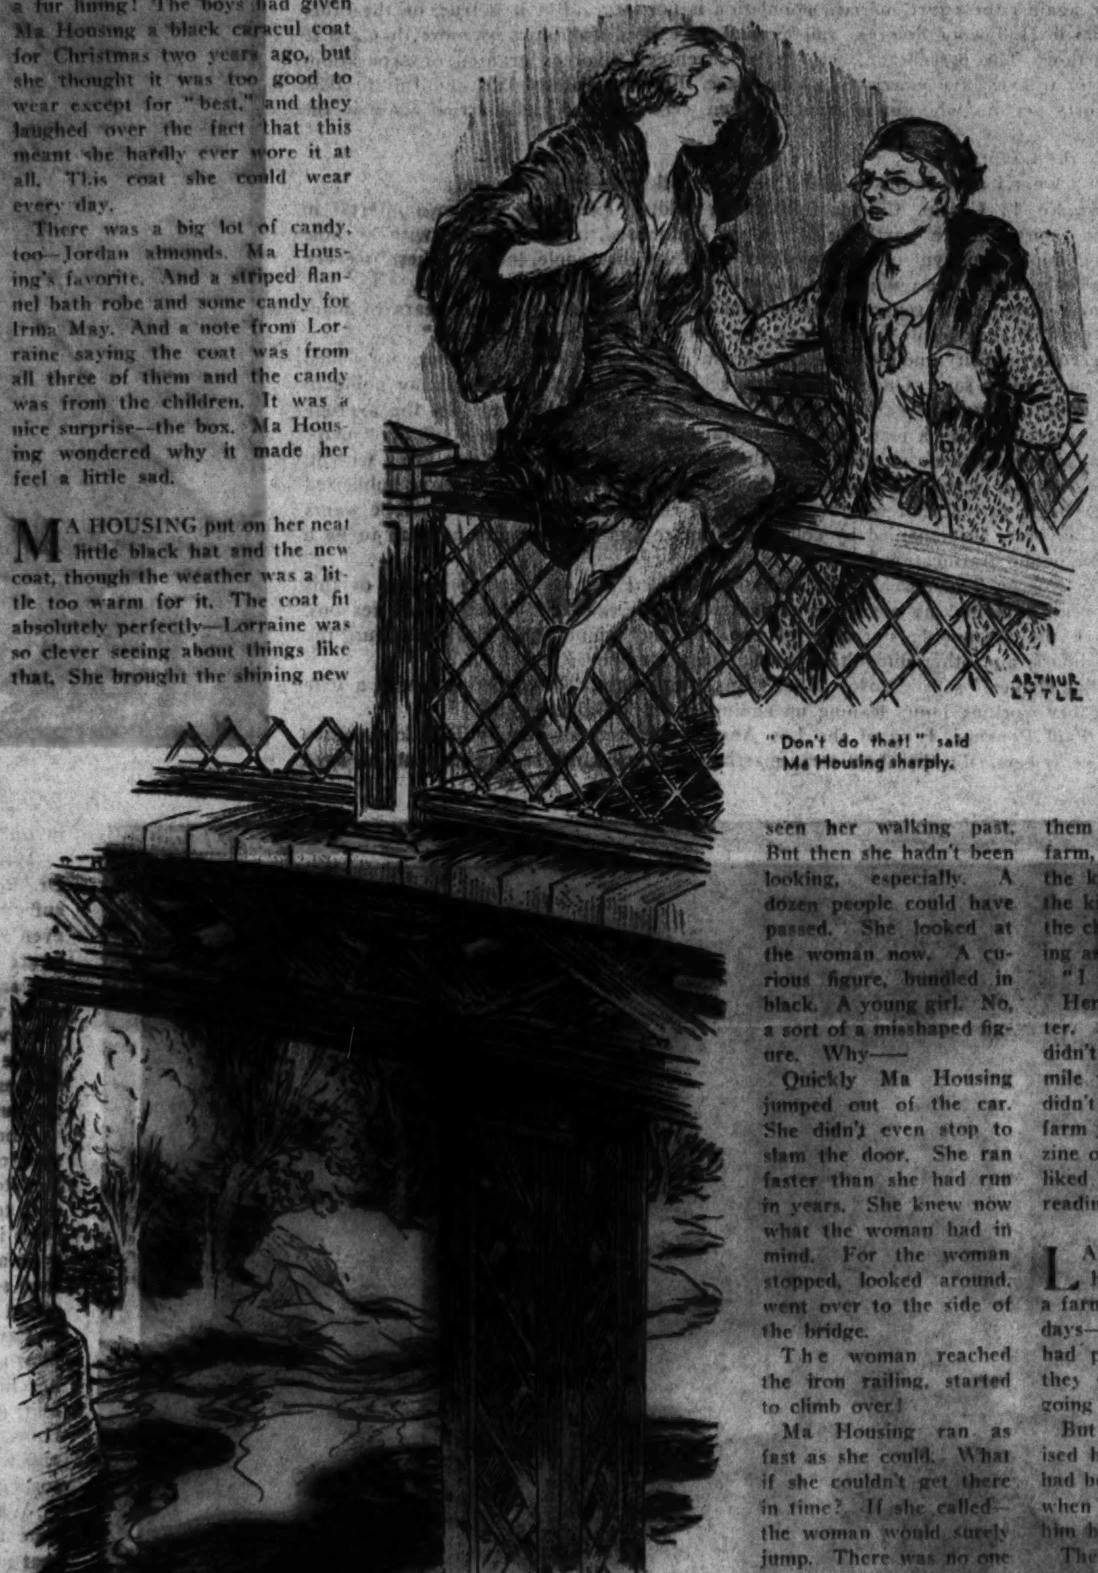
THE figure twisted out of her grasp, turned around, climbed down again. For the first time Ma Housing saw the face of the person whose life she was trying to save. Why, she was a girl, a young girl. Not more than 18 or so. She had a tender, oval, white face, and her eyes were big and gray and frightened now.

"I—I was going to kill myself," said the girl slowly. "I would have been in the water—it would have been nearly over—if you hadn't come along."

"And wouldn't that have been a sensible thing to do!" said Ma Housing. "A young girl like you—and this Thanksgiving day!"

"That's one reason why," said the girl. She was a little sullen now. "What have I got to be thankful for?"

"I'm sure I don't know," said Ma Housing. "I don't know you very well. I don't know anything about you except that you gave me a scare. But you're young, for one thing. Lots of folks would think that being young was something to be thankful for."



"Don't do that!" said Ma Housing sharply.

"Sure," said the girl. "Young. That's it. All those years ahead."

"Yes," agreed Ma Housing, "sometimes it does seem a long time. But you're young and husky. And you've got something to live for. You're going to have a baby."

"Yes," said the girl. "Ain't that reason enough?"

"Most people don't feel that way about it," said Ma Housing.

"Maybe I wouldn't," said the girl. "If I was like folks around here." She waved her hand into a vague curve. "A home and a husband. Taken care of. Some place to go."

"But you didn't just spring up," said Ma Housing. "You've been living some place."

"I was living some place, all right," said the girl. "Lots of places. Yesterday I lost my last place. I walked all night—and today. Nobody wants a girl around—like this. I guess I can't blame them. Now I haven't any place at all. Except here. And now you came along."

"Where's your husband?" asked Ma Housing. Her voice was gentle.

"As if you didn't know I didn't have a husband!" said the girl. The sullen look was stronger. "Even if I do get the baby born, what then? It wouldn't have a father."

"Of course the baby has a father," said Ma Housing, suddenly calm, as if conversations like this were the most commonplace thing in the world. "Was he a healthy, strong young man?"

The girl began to cry.

"Sure he was," she sobbed. "Big and strong. Good—good looking. You don't think I'd have cared enough otherwise."

Not very articulate, hesitating over words, she told Ma Housing about things. The story was simple enough, certainly. And not new, even to Ma Housing.

The girl had been in an orphan asylum until she was eight. "The Children's and Old Folks' Home of Bergen county." Then the Jacksons had taken her to live with them on their farm. She'd worked hard on the farm, taking care of the children and helping in the kitchen. As she grew older she worked in the kitchen garden, too, and helped take care of the chickens. And helped feed the men at planting and harvest.

"I was a good girl," she said.

Her room was under the eaves. Cold in winter. She wore Mrs. Jackson's old clothes. She didn't go to school very much. It was a four-mile walk when she did go, and the Jacksons didn't believe much in schooling. She read the farm journals and the newspapers. And a magazine or a book when there was one around. She liked to read, but there wasn't much time for reading.

LAST spring Carl had come to the farm. He had just wandered in. He was better than a farm hand, he always said, but conditions these days—O, she should have known better! But he had promised so many things. All the things they were going to do. The places they were going to see. Traveling and good times——

But it hadn't been just the things he had promised her. He had been gentle and merry. She had been so happy while she was with him. And when he wanted to make love to her—to make him happy——

Then she had been worried—had cried. And Carl had laughed at her. But then he grew worried, too. He had said he would take care of her always. And then one day he went away.

She hadn't known what to do. She had felt desperate—as if she were in a dark place. She had written to every place she had ever heard him mention. The latters had come back. And she had cried all the time—couldn't help crying.

Mrs. Jackson had found out and said she wasn't any good. She knew she wasn't any good without Mrs. Jackson saying so. And Mrs. Jackson had told her to get out.

She had taken her things and had got out. She had got a job on another farm. And they had found out and let her go.

She didn't know what to do then. She had never done anything but live on a farm. She didn't know anything but what she had heard on the radio or at the picture shows—or from Carl.

She tried to get jobs. A week one place. A few days some place else. And crying at night.

Then she'd got a job in Gloverton—taking care of three children and doing the housework. She thought the woman knew about her, would let her stay, maybe, until time to go to the hospital—she hadn't dared think ahead further than that. And last night suddenly the woman had told her to get out. So she had walked and thought—and now——

"Well," said Ma Housing, "there certainly is nothing new about that story! It's so old you don't even read stories like that any more. I thought girls these days knew more than to let men—what do you call it—take advantage of them. I'm ashamed of you!" said Ma Housing. "You're old fashioned. I like modern girls!"

"I know," said the girl, sniffling, "it's awful. I never thought I'd—I'd end like—like this."

"Who said anything about ending"? asked Ma Housing. "I can't even remember how stories like that end, they're so out of style. But the baby is coming. I guess babies don't ever quite go out of style. And with both the parents strong and healthy I don't see why the baby shouldn't have a chance if you don't make a fool of yourself. Hurry and get into the car. It's getting cold."

"You mean—you're going to take me?" asked the girl.

"I can't leave you on the bridge very well," said Ma Housing. "You've got common sense enough to know that's no place to spend Thanksgiving."

"I think you—I don't know how to tell you——" began the girl, crying again.

Ma Housing bundled her into the car.

SHE drove slowly and carefully, keeping too far to the right, as she always drove.

"Listen," she said, as they came into town. "You look like a girl who can hold her tongue. Nobody here knows anything about you. What is your name?"

"Rose Jordan," said the girl.

"Well, it's—it's Mrs. Roy Cromwell now," said Ma Housing. "That's a nice name. Your husband was killed in—in an automobile accident. You're my cousin Walter's daughter. I could have had a cousin Walter. And I wrote them to send you on to me. After the baby comes we'll see. You may like it here. Or it may be too quiet in Centerville for a young girl."

"You mean you're going to let me stay with you! And—and say I'm married! And let me keep the baby!" said the girl.

"Yes," said Ma Housing, "if you stop your sniveling. You'd better say your husband died four months ago. So you can be over most of your mourning."

"Yes, ma'am," the girl said.

"And you'd better call me Ma Housing," Ma Housing went on. "My children call me ma, all but Lorraine."

"Yes, Ma Housing," the girl said and smiled.

When they got home Irma May managed to conceal her surprise. Her cousin Walter's daughter, indeed! What would the old lady do next! Still, the girl was here——

Ma Housing put her into the big guest room. The children's rooms had to be ready for them when they came home.

"In the morning," she said, "we'll drive in to see Dr. Stimson. He'll look you over and tell you if there is anything special you ought to do or eat. Then we'll go to the Banner store and get you a few things to wear. And we'll make the clothes for the baby——"

Sewing clothes for a baby—some one who needed her—something to do——

What would Lorraine and the boys say? The nice, warm feeling that was beginning almost made Ma Housing chuckle. They wouldn't like it—at first. What could they do? They led their own lives. This was hers.

Already color had come into the girl's face. How pretty she would be—later on!

"This—this is wonderful," she said. "I—I don't know what—I'll—I'll do my best——" She didn't know how to go on.

"Sure you'll do your best," said Ma Housing. "We've all got to do our best. It won't be too easy for you, some of the time. There'll be a lot for you to learn—for you to go through. But maybe it will sort of pay. Things are like that. Wash up now. In there. When you come down we'll have something to eat."

SLOWLY Ma Housing went downstairs. She took tired little steps into the kitchen. She wasn't as young as she once was. But it seemed to her now that she was just as happy. It didn't even make her sad when Irma May put a yellow envelope into her hand—a radio from Ben. He was in London. He wouldn't be home after all. She read the message. "Happy day, see you soon, love, Ben."

Ben would be home—soon! Though soon didn't mean the same to Ben as it did to other people. But he'd be home!

"I'm going to take the cranberry sauce over to Mrs. Brannen," she said to Irma May. "Soon as I get back Mrs. Cromwell and I will have dinner—in the dining room."

"I'm sorry you won't eat with us," said Mrs. Brannen. "Eating your Thanksgiving dinner all alone——"

"O, didn't I tell you," said Ma Housing, almost carelessly, "I'm not alone. My cousin Walter's daughter—you've heard me talk about my cousin Walter and his daughter—the one whose husband died four months ago——"

Mrs. Brannen nodded. She didn't remember, but then she didn't always listen when Ma Housing talked about her family—those wonderful children of hers——

"Well," Ma Housing went on, "I wrote them to send her to stay with me—she's expecting a baby in a few months and they've had business losses. You know how that is. She just got in. I met her at the station. A lovely girl! She'll be a great comfort and pleasure to me. With the children getting along so well—did I tell you I had telegrams from them and a beautiful new coat and a wireless from Ben from London? They're always thinking of their mother! And now this fine young girl to live here in the house with me. I've got a lot of things to be thankful for, I can tell you."

FINDS FIVE WRECKERS OF MOVIE MARRIAGES

Doris Blake Attributes Hollywood Divorce to Gossip; Unreality of Film Life; Immature Emotions; the Career Problem; and Childlessness

By Doris Blake

Hollywood, California.

WHAT'S the matter with Hollywood marriages that they can't stay put? What's the matter with Hollywood life to make cinema marriages synonymous with divorce? What's the matter with marriage that it can't stand the Hollywood test? Probably you've been asking yourself one or all of these questions since the recent avalanche of divorces and separations that testify to marital warfare in so many of filmdom's best families. Among these have been Douglas Fairbanks Jr. and Joan Crawford, Richard Dix and his society girl bride, Bill Powell and Carole Lombard, Chevalier and his French wife, Sally Eilers and Hoot Gibson, Mae Murray and Prince Mdivani, Marian Nixon and Eddie Hillman, Ann Harding an' Harry Bannister, Doug and Mary—to list just a few of the movie matches that have gone or threaten to go up in smoke.

Of course we must keep in mind that Hollywood names are news and that divorce statistics are high all over the country. After all, the number of married movie people as pitted against the entire married population is not large. But it is true, on the other hand, that in Hollywood divorces and separations exceed marriages by more than a 3 to 2 proportion. The percentage, actually, is seventeen divorces granted or separations applied for to every ten marriages taking place. Between July of 1932 and July of 1933, of the forty persons who got married eighteen were divorced and married again in the same year.

Why the fatalities?

Here's what I have found in a first hand investigation in Hollywood:

Cause No. 1: Gossip. Cinema folk lead a goldfish existence. Our own interest in them and their doings is partly to blame. In Hollywood, which abounds with keyhole peepers, gossip is synonymous with publicity. And we, the people, love it. There is every reason to believe that the public finds divorce headlines of appetizing interest.

Spencer Tracy, just separated from Louise Treadwell after eleven years of marriage, says: "If they'd only let us alone, our troubles could be patched up."

He credits publicity and gossip with aggravating their difficulties, a theory for which there is much to be said. One or the other, seeing the quarrel in print, is not going to give in. With so many eyes looking on, "pride" has to be kept up. In the average home, a quarrel arising, a man goes unostentatiously to his club, works off his "mad" and sneaks home, with no one but wifie the wiser. Movie folks can't get away with it.

Here's what a clergyman says about divorce causes: "Publicity! They're publicized until they begin to feel that whatever they do is right; anyway, what the public wants . . . A divorce, accompanied by columns of space and photographs, appears to be a matter for public gratification."

Cause No. 2: The unreality of Hollywood life. Even casual examination of this scene reveals that making a success of marriage isn't easy, for a number of reasons. There are the astounding unreality of the life, the temptations, the ambitions, the working hours, and other difficulties peculiar to the colony itself.

"What chance," says Charley MacArthur, playwright, "has marriage, with a wife spending her working hours leaning up against a Clark Gable, say?"

Mary

Harding & Bannister

Dr. Paul Popenoe, head of the Los Angeles Institute of Family Relations, offers some sane reasons for the short-term marriages. They must be worked out, he says, in an atmosphere of too much money, sex, and limelight.

What might be classed as Cause No. 3 is brought out by Dr. Popenoe. Too many Hollywoodites, he claims, are not sufficiently adult emotionally to meet marriage problems, even under more advantageous circumstances. Many who figure in Hollywood marriage scandals suffer from—or would you say enjoy?—arrested emotional development. Like children, they live in and for the present, and they want what they want when they want it. A pretty face or an Apollo profile are what influence matrimonial choice. They have neither appreciation nor knowledge of the good, sane character qualities necessary to happy marriage partnership.

The ambition of every entrant on the Hollywood scene, married or unmarried, is to get a break. The personal contact item looms large, and it's the rule, rather than the exception, to go at this with a heavy barrage of lure and wile. The place is running over with charmers of both sexes—and there is an active proportion of these charmers with more ambition than scruples who wouldn't hesitate to break up a home if it meant promoting their own interests.

Cause No. 4: The woman versus career problem. In the films a woman's salary may, and often does, so largely eclipse her husband's that it damages his ego and makes compatibility out of the question. Then, too, her career, not her home, is given the best of her energy and interest. The care and feeding of children can hardly be as glamorous and absorbing as starring with a Gable or a Barrymore.

Which brings us to Cause No. 5: Childlessness. For a long time there has been current the entirely erroneous theory that motherhood will ruin a career. Many a Hollywood marriage that might have been saved by the shared companionship and responsibilities of parenthood has been denied these advantages. There is no need to "consider the children." A divorce entails nothing more than a hasty, ill considered plane flight to Mexico—and the marriage is ended.

Most of the successful Hollywood marriages have skirted the majority of these pitfalls, but in these lasting marriages that stand out by their scarcity we find almost invariably that the two principals have had years of early plodding, hard times, and hard work together to cement the marriage tie. They were not subjected too early to the strain of a flight from "rags to riches" overnight. When success came, husband and wife had achieved a knowledge and appreciation of life that survived the advent of the new and big money. George Arliss and Florence Montgomery, Jimmie Gleason and Lucille Webster, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Murray, Will Rogers and Betty Blake, and a good many others are in this class.

Such stability, such a sense of real values in an unreal world, apparently is denied to the rest of the boys and girls stumbling about in movieland's marriage woods.
